Nature of Organization
The Danny Woo Community Garden is a green space in the heart of Seattle's International District. This 1.5 acre garden provides an opportunity for low-income elders and children, mostly Asian and Pacific Island immigrants, to grow nutritious food.
Duties and Responsibilities
The intern's primary responsibility is to provide project management for the design and implementation of an indoor/outdoor cookery for the garden. Responsibilities will include: coordinating and participating in community meetings, collaborating with design professionals to create a design, applying for permits, purchasing materials, supervising work crews, completion of reporting, recruiting volunteers, and construction. Secondarily, the intern will assist with garden maintenance and the coordination of garden events. This will include pruning, mulching, weeding, infrastructure repairs, planning, purchasing supplies, recruiting volunteers, and managing volunteers.
Minimum Qualifications

-Carpentry, construction, and landscaping experience
-Knowledge of sustainable agriculture and horticulture
-Ability to work independently
-Creativity and imagination
-Leadership experience
-Commitment to social justice

Educational Benefits

This internship is a great hands-on experience where conceptual theories can be applied to physical reality. Solutions for this urban garden often involve ideas that are unconventional and 'outside the box.' Creativity has been the best tool. Additionally, it is an opportunity to gain experience with sustainable agriculture, gain leadership experience while leading volunteers, and learn to work collaboratively among a team of committed individuals.
