

STORIES AND TELLERS ORIGIN STORY

JULY 12, 2007

Once upon a time, there was a boy named Shadrach. Shadrach liked dancing and singing. So, he got his torch and headed to the Pacific Ocean.

As he danced and sang around the Pacific Ocean, it soon began to get dark. He decided to light the torch and he started dancing and singing again.

He didn't know that the song he was singing was magic. The mountains, the Earth's ears, came up to listen to his magic song.

It began to rain as he sang and danced, and as a raindrop hit Shadrach's torch, it sizzled and sparked. Sparks flew to the nearest mountain, and that mountain soon became a volcano. When this volcano erupted it sent sparks to all of the other mountains that had been listening to Shadrach's song. All these mountains turned into volcanoes, also, and that is how the Ring of Fire came to be.
