Course Description
This Canvas-based online course is one option for students seeking to earn Gen St 350 credit for the demonstrated learning associated with an internship. The course aims to enhance students’ career readiness through guided self-reflection, peer dialogue, and employer feedback. Through active participation in online discussions and thoughtful completion of structured assignments, students will reflect on their internships and identify how their internships relate to their coursework, personal identity, and professional future.

Learning Objectives
Upon completion of this course, students will be able to:
- Set measurable goals and develop a plan to achieve them
- Analyze a professional setting's strengths and challenges
- Identify how their internship relates to their academic courses and major (if applicable)
- Communicate in a workplace environment in a clear and confident manner
- Evaluate their own performance, accept feedback from others, and embark upon change based on internal and external feedback
- Articulate their experience and skills to potential employers
- Identify and articulate next steps in their career trajectory
- Communicate effectively in an online environment, with an emphasis on coherent, concise, and respectful dialogue

Course Expectations
This course is graded as Credit / No Credit and can be taken for variable credits. To receive, you must:
- Make 20 Canvas posts (10 self-initiated posts and 10 in response to classmates)
- Turn in all assignments
- Earn 80 out of a total 100 possible points on assignments
- Receive a favorable evaluation from your internship site supervisor indicating you have completed the required number of hours
- Work at least 3 hours at internship site per week for 10 weeks for each credit you seek to earn:

Policies

Inclusivity:
At the University of Washington, diversity is integral to excellence. We value and honor diverse experiences and perspectives, strive to create welcoming and respectful learning environments, and promote access, opportunity and justice for all. It is important that we – as a community of learners in this course – respect, honor, and explore diversity in all of its forms. It is critical that each of us carefully listen to others’ experiences, respect the validity of others’ experiences, and be willing to reconsider our own perspectives in light of new information.

Access and Accommodations:
Your experience in this class is important to us. If you have already established accommodations with Disability Resources for Students (DRS), please communicate your approved accommodations to us at your earliest convenience so we can discuss your needs in this course. If you have not yet established services through DRS, but have a temporary health condition, mental health concern, or permanent disability that requires accommodations, you are welcome to contact DRS at 206-543-8924, uwdrs@uw.edu, or disability.uw.edu so that we can work together to create an inclusive and accessible learning environment.

Academic Integrity:
Students have the responsibility to know and observe UW's Student Conduct Code and section on Academic Responsibility - http://depts.washington.edu/grading/pdf/AcademicResponsibility.pdf

Communication:
Instructors will communicate with students individually using students’ UW email addresses. You are encouraged to check your UW email frequently. Additionally, students will receive announcements via Canvas and students are responsible for seeing and understanding the information posted there.
