"No finer site for a University can be imagined than the present campus of our Alma Mater. Bounded on the one side by far reaching Lake Washington, on the other by Lake Union, it lies like a gem in a setting of silvery waters..."

PACIFIC WAVE - THE UW STUDENT NEWSPAPER, MAY 1896

Medicine and Research

Advancing health care through discovery, education and outstanding patient care, UW Medicine trains new physicians and medical scientists, researches health and disease, and provides primary and specialty care to patients across the Pacific Northwest.

UW Medicine includes: UW Medical Center, Harborview Medical Center, Northwest Hospital & Medical Center, Valley Medical Center, UW School of Medicine, UW Physicians, Airlift Northwest, UW Medicine Neighborhood Clinics.

In addition to its work with the Seattle Cancer Care Alliance, UW Medicine has academic and service affiliations with Seattle Children's, Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, and the Seattle and Boise Veteran's Affairs Medical Centers.

UW Medicine hospitals and programs ranked high in U.S. News & World Report's 2011 edition of America's Best Hospitals, which also included the first-ever Best Hospitals metropolitan area rankings.

UW School of Medicine has been ranked #1 in the nation in primary-care training for 18 years by US News & World Report. It is the top public institution for receipt of biomedical research funding from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and #2 among all institutions for NIH funding, public and private.

In its 40th year, the five-state regional medical education program that stretches across WA, WY, AK, MT and ID (WWAMI) is widely considered the best academic model for the training and placing of physicians in rural and underserved communities...

UW Medicine's 2,000 faculty and nearly 5,000 volunteer and part-time faculty include four Nobel Laureates, 33 National Academy of Sciences members, and 33 Institute of Medicine members.

Study Hard, Play Hard

STUDY HARD At the UW, students enjoy a wide variety of academic opportunities, choosing from almost 150 majors, from student government, to over 700 clubs and organizations, and many different academic research projects.

PLAY HARD When students need a break from all that studying, they have choices. A state-of-the-art fitness center, the Intramural Activities building (IMA), features everything from a climbing wall to cardio and weight training machines, gyms and a pool.

WELCOME! CELEBRATING 150 YEARS OF EXCELLENCE

In 1861, 28 years before statehood was granted, while carving out a fledgling city in a forest of Douglas fir above the mudflats of Elliott Bay, city founders established the Territorial University of Washington. Like the baskets woven by local Suquamish and Duwamish artists, the history of the University is woven tightly with that of its surroundings, Seattle, the state and the region. During this sesquicentennial anniversary, we celebrate this rich history and the many diverse individuals who have contributed to the University's distinctive spirit.

First located at University Street and 4th Avenue in downtown Seattle on a 10-acre knoll when Seattle's population was about 250, the school had a modest start with only one professor teaching 20 students in six subjects: Greek, Latin, English, history, algebra, and physiology. In 1895, having outgrown its first building, it was relocated to its present 643-acre site four miles north. Today, UW students study at the Seattle, Tacoma and Bothell campuses, and they are doing research at the Friday Harbor Laboratories in the San Juan Islands and all around the world. The University of Washington now educates more than 100,000 undergraduate, graduate and professional students a year, who choose from more than 140 majors and 90 minors.

Our award-winning faculty of nearly 4,000 includes: Six Nobel Prize winners, two Pulitzer Prize winners, 53 Institute of Medicine Members, 15 MacArthur Fellows, five National Medal of Science winners, 66 Members of the American Academy of Arts & Sciences, 141 Fellows in the American Association for the Advancement of Science and 133 Fellows of the National Academies. These and other awards are a tribute to the University's faculty, students, staff, and the power of the UW intellectual community. Over our 150 years, the UW has continuously encouraged diversity, curiosity and innovation.

POINTS OF INTEREST

1 Information and Visitors Center

The Visitors Center is located next to the George Washington statue, and on the ground floor of the Odegaard Library. This is where you'll find maps and brochures for the University and for surrounding destinations. Everyone is welcome to use the center.

2 Odegaard Library - 1972

This library contains the largest computer collaboratories on campus along with digital media collections, Book Store, and food service at the By George Cafe.

3 Henry Art Gallery - 1927/1997

Founded in 1927, the Henry was the first public art museum in the state of Washington. The museum's major renovation and expansion, completed in April 1997, quadrupled the museum's size — from 10,000 square feet to over 40,000 square feet. The increased size allowed for the addition of a 154-seat auditorium, a multi-media gallery, café, and sculpture court.

4 Denny Hall - 1895

Denny is the oldest building on campus with a copper clad belfry that contains the "varsity bell" brought around Cape Horn for the original campus in downtown Seattle. The bell is ceremonially rung at Homecoming every year.

5 Burke Museum of Natural History and Culture - 1885, 1962

The Northwest's largest cultural and natural history museum — home to the State's largest collection of Native American baskets and over 5 million objects representing Northwest cultures and the natural history of Washington State.

6 William H. Gates Law School - 2003

The 196,000 square foot, six-story building is named after William H. Gates, Sr., a 1950 graduate of the UW School of Law and father of the Microsoft co-founder. This building also houses the Gallagher Law Library, which has the largest collection of law publications in the Northwest.

7 Foster School of Business - 1961

Named for Michael G. Foster, founder of the investment firm, Foster and Marshall. Buildings include PACCAR Hall, the new Phase II building and Mackenzie Hall.

8 The Liberal Arts Quadrangle (the Quad) - 1917-1950

Featuring gothic architecture, brick pathways and green lawns, the Quad is surrounded by six buildings that house the arts, humanities and social sciences. It is the primary gathering place on campus, especially when the Yoshino Cherry trees are in bloom each spring. Listen for the sounds of voices and violins flowing out of the Music Building at the east end, and look up near the top of Miller and Savery Halls to see gargoyles gracing the parapets.

9 North Campus Residence Halls

Four residence halls for undergraduates are in this area of campus, and offer a variety of living arrangements for students.

10 Hall Health Center - 1936/1978

This building is the health care center for students and provides services through its Travelers, Women's, and Immunizations clinics and other programs.

11 Husky Union Building (HUB) - 1949/2012

Grand re-opening September 2012.

12 Guggenheim Hall/ Kirsten Wind Tunnel - 1929/1937

Envisioned as a building that would "assist in making air transportation safe, popular and regularly available" by the original donor, Guggenheim houses the Department of Aeronautics and Astronautics. The wind tunnel is famous for testing the Space Needle, the Boeing 707 and bikes for Lance Armstrong.

13 Paul Allen Center for Computer Science and Engineering - 1999/2004 and Electrical Engineering - 2000

Named for the co-founder of Microsoft, this building has two wings, combining electrical engineering with computer science and engineering. The central atrium soars 6 stories high and features informal team brainstorming areas on every level.

14 Rainier Vista and Sylvan Theater / Columns

With its inspiring view of Mount Rainier and fountain, this area was the site of the 1909 Alaska Yukon Pacific Exposition. See the original 1861 Territorial University's columns in Sylvan Theater just off Stevens Way.

15 Drumheller Fountain - 1961

The centerpiece of Rainier Vista, the multi-stream fountain is at the center of Frosh Pond, named for an early tradition of dunking freshmen. It was also used for log rolling contests.

16 Mary Gates Hall - 1928/2000

This building combines the original Physics building from 1928 with a modern atrium, wired classrooms and laboratories. It houses undergraduate education services and the career center. The building is named for Bill Gates III's mother, Mary Maxwell Gates, '50, who served on the UW Board of Regents for 18 years and was a strong advocate for undergraduate education.

17 Cunningham Hall/Women's Center - 1909

Built for the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition in 1909 as the Women's Building, it was an important gathering place for suffragists who fought for women's right to vote. Today it continues to serve as a lifelong learning place for girls, women and men. The building is named for renowned photographer and 1907 alum, Imogene Cunningham.

18 Central Plaza - 1971

Also known as Red Square after its red brick paving, this large plaza is one of the central gathering places on campus, connecting the arts at Meany Theater with Odegaard and Suzzallo libraries and the lecture halls in Kane.

19 Gerberding Hall - 1949

The Administration building, housing the President's Office and other administrative offices. Note the stone statues representing fields of study on the parapet.

20 Suzzallo Library - 1926

A classic example of American collegiate gothic architecture, the library is renowned for its circular grand staircase and expansive reading room.

21 Meany Hall - 1974

The UW's premier performing arts venue, with seating for 1200 in the main theater and a smaller performance hall that seats 300. Home to the Dance Department.

22 Architecture Hall - 1908

Built in 1908 as the art museum for the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition. It now contains Construction Management and Architecture Studios.

23 Molecular Engineering - 2012

Built for laboratories to catalyze translational research in the CleanTech and Biotech industries.

24 UW Medical Center - 1948

One of the highest ranked medical centers in America, UWMC was also the first hospital in the country to achieve Magnet Hospital certification, the highest honor awarded by the American Nurses Credentialing Center.

25 West Campus Residence Halls

Student housing located west of 15th Ave NE include new buildings and offer eclectic dining options, parking and convenient access to public transportation.

26 UW Tower Complex

The 22-story UW Tower on the corner of NE 45th St and Brooklyn Ave NE and its adjacent buildings. Tenants include UW administrative offices, UW Press and UW Professional and Continuing Education.

27 UW Book Store

The University Book Store opened January 10, 1900 in a cloak room next to the University President's office in Denny Hall. Now located on "The Ave." at NE 43rd St. with additional locations in Odegaard Library and the South Campus Center, downtown Seattle, Bellevue, Tacoma, Bothell, Mill Creek and Renton.

West of 15th

New UW residence halls, the reconstruction of the Ethnic Cultural Center and other changes are adding vitality to the area just west of 15th Ave NE.
hfs.washington.edu/housing

UW Botanic Gardens 206-543-8616

More than 320 acres of gardens and woodlands — including one of the oldest arboreta on this side of the Mississippi — and one of the West Coast's largest horticulture centers and libraries. The botanic gardens include the Washington Park Arboretum, Center for Urban Horticulture, Elisabeth C. Miller Library, Otis Hyde Herbarium and Union Bay Natural Area.

U District udistrictchamber.org

Located in the heart of Seattle, the UW is part of this vibrant urban neighborhood. University Way, known as "The Ave." is at the center. Ethnic foods, specialty and bike shops and the local drugstore and supermarket are an easy walk from campus. There's a farmers market year-round on Saturdays, and movie theaters with both mainstream and independent films.

The Burke-Gilman Trail burkegilmantrail.org

Originally the Burlington Northern Railroad, the trail borders campus and the neighborhood on the south and east and is a great way to get just about anywhere by bike or foot.

The University of Washington is committed to providing access, equal opportunity and reasonable accommodation in its services, programs, activities, education and employment for individuals with disabilities. To request a disability accommodation contact the Disability Services Office at least ten days in advance at: (206) 543-6450/V, (206) 543-6452/TTY, (206) 685-7264 (FAX), or dso@uw.edu.
