University of Washington
Native American Advisory Board
BYLAWS
(RE-DRAFT May 2006)

Purpose
The Native American Advisory Board (NAAB) advises the University of Washington’s Vice President for Minority Affairs on outreach and retention strategies for Native students, faculty and staff.

Vision
The land and environment where the University of Washington is located is housed on the indigenous lands of tribes of the area. In respect of this rich history, the Native American Advisory Board is established to further promote the sovereignty of Indian tribes and the diverse Native populations being served.

ARTICLE I – OBJECTIVE

The objective of the NAAB shall be to represent regional Native American communities and to address the culturally relevant needs of Indian students at the University of Washington, and the staff and faculty serving Native American students, as well as to promote education and the self-determination of Indian tribal communities.

Section 1. Deliverables

A. The Native American Advisory Board will review its objectives and progress of its activities on an annual basis.

B. The Board will meet with the Vice President of the Office of Minority Affairs at least twice annually to review its findings and make recommendations on its Charge.

C. The Board may report its findings with the President of the University of Washington on an annual basis.

D. The Board will maintain on-going communications among off-campus Native American communities, on-campus students, staff, and faculty in fulfilling its mission(s).

E. The Board may hear and may make recommendations to resolve campus complaints in matters of students, staff, and faculty, or relations of the University with various Native American communities and Native American entities.

F. The Board may discuss and make recommendations on budgetary matters, but only when those meetings have been appropriately announced and made open to the public.

Section 2. Native American Education Affiliation

The Native American Advisory Board may affiliate itself with regional, state, or national education and or tribal education organizations or associations, to network and exchange information to promote the mission, goals, and objectives of the University of Washington.
