1) Call to order

Watts called the meeting to order at 11:00 a.m.

2) Review of the minutes from February 28th, 2017

The minutes from February 28th, 2017 were approved as written.

3) Chapter 21 – where does “full-time” have to be changed to “50% or greater on an annual or multiyear appointment?”

Relating to the FCFA draft Class A legislation on lecturer voting rights (yet to be considered by the Senate Executive Committee and faculty senate), Watts explained he looked carefully through other sections of the Faculty Code to locate uses of the word “full time” specifically associated with lecturers. He noted he has prepared a brief document for the council to review that includes each of the relevant uses of that language (Exhibit 1). He commented that he specifically focused on code language that relates to the FCFA’s discussion/legislation of lecturers. It was noted uses of the term “part time” (lecturers) will also need to be located in the code and reviewed.

Before reviewing the document, the Provost’s Lecturer Appointment Guidelines (UW Academic HR website) were displayed to answer a few preliminary questions relating to lecturer appointment procedures. It was noted the guidelines state that part time lecturers who are competitively recruited may be appointed to annual or multiyear appointments. As a clarification, non-competitively hired lecturers may not be appointed to multiyear terms.

The council reviewed the document and discussed the uses of the term “full time” (lecturers) with the intention of devising replacement language where necessary to bring language in line with the newly developed draft Class A legislation (Exhibit 1):

❖ #1: It was decided use of the title “full time lecturer” should be changed to “lecturer with an annual or multiyear appointment at 50% or greater,” while use of the term “part time lecturer” should be replaced with “lecturer with less than a 50% appointment.” It was noted the phrase “with exceptions to be reviewed by the Provost” should be kept, and the term “full time” should remain in reference to artist in residence.

There was a clarification that a lecturer appointed for a single quarter is classified as a “part time lecturer,” even under the new draft FCFA legislation. Watts noted Class A legislation could be utilized to make the above changes.

- #2: It was decided “full time senior lecturer” should be changed to “senior lecturer with an annual or multiyear appointment at 50% or greater.”

  After some discussion, members noted the council should address in the future why the five year term limit was created for senior and principal lecturers.

  There was some discussion of the idea to create a three year appointment (or another multiyear appointment) for appropriately titled lecturers that includes a review every year (aka. a “continual” three year appointment). It was noted the topic should be discussed again by the council in the future.

  Watts noted Class A legislation could be utilized to make the above changes.

- #3: It was decided use of the title “full time lecturer” should be changed to “lecturer with an annual or multiyear appointment at 50% or greater.” After some brief discussion, Watts noted he would like to table action on item 3 until a similar search for the term “part time” (relating to lecturers) in the Faculty Code is carried out.

- #4: It was decided use of the title “full time lecturer” should be changed to “lecturer with an annual or multiyear appointment at 50% or greater.” After discussion it was noted the item needs to be postponed as it relates to career path, and tweaking the language requires further deliberation in that regard. It was noted part time lecturers cannot be promoted because of the existing language in Faculty Code Chapter 24-41.C. (also within Exhibit 1). It was noted Item 3 will affect how item 4 is modified, as well.

- 24-41.E: It was decided the reference does not require an amendment.

- 24-57.C: The item was tabled as members noted it connects to ongoing discussions of the career path for lecturers.

  Watts noted he would work on replacement code language where designated above as well as search for references to “part time” (lecturers) in the Faculty Code to facilitate a similar analysis in a future meeting.

4) Fitting lecturers properly into the code

Dhavan explained a small group of FCFA members discussed the notion of improving the career track for lecturers at the UW via changes to the Faculty Code. The group found there is nothing in the Faculty Code that triggers a review for promotion for part time or full time lecturers, as their appointments are defined and meant to culminate after a certain period. She explained in thinking about devising language for triggering a promotion review, two questions need to be answered:

I. Does the amount of years where a lecturer at 50% or greater become eligible for promotion need to be defined?

II. If a promotion decision is denied, does the lecturer in question have to resign, or may they stay in their current title and position (“up and out” model vs. “up and stay” model).

A member suggested the council may want to consider a more fixed and clear promotion pathway specifically for promotion of senior and principal lecturers. He noted promotion in relation to the lecturer category is complicated as their use is so varied (especially given duration of appointment), and it seems nearly impossible to frame language defining at what point they should be considered/reviewed for senior or principal lecturer.

There was some discussion of the point (e.g. how many years) wherein it becomes abusive to keep a lecturer in a certain position indefinitely. A member questioned if there are easy lines that can be drawn to differentiate between people who are used occasionally/their appointment is not their primary job versus the group of people who want to have a long relationship with their unit. A member brought up that the council already made a division in this regard between lecturers on quarter-to-quarter appointments versus lecturers on annual or multiyear appointments.

Katz noted he would like to focus on the triggering of promotion review as one piece that could be added to the Faculty Code to improve career path for lecturers at the university. A member suggested the distinction be between lecturers on annual and quarterly appointments versus multiyear appointments, as the latter represents a serious commitment from the department. A member noted competitive hiring should be tied into the language so that promotion eligibility would be available to “competitively-hired lecturers on multiyear appointments.” There was some discussion of how the term “competitively hired” is not currently included in the Faculty Code, and perhaps similar but alternate language might be used instead.

Discussion subsided due to time constraints.

5) Good of the order

Nothing was stated for the good of the order.

6) Adjourn

Watts adjourned the meeting at 12:30 p.m.
