Dear Colleagues:

We are writing to ask you to serve on an important committee, the Strategic Roadmap Working Team that will be responsible for driving the development of the University of Washington's Strategic Roadmap for Information Management and Administrative Systems.

The goals of this initiative are challenging, ambitious, and exciting. The Strategic Roadmap will define a vision and outline an action plan for the future of UW information management and administrative systems. The scope includes administrative systems, information management, and governance. The project will be completed by spring, 2008, in five phases:

- Assessing the current environment
- Evaluating trends and best practices
- Defining a vision
- Analyzing the gap
- Recommending an action plan

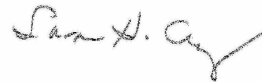

As a member of the Roadmap Working Team, you will be directly involved in each phase and play a key role in making this project a success. You will build a foundation for the future of information management and administrative systems at the UW.

The kick off meeting is scheduled for October 10, 2007, 1:00 pm to 5:00 pm, in the Parrington Hall Commons. This meeting should already be on your calendar, and we look forward to seeing you there!

Thank you in advance for your involvement in the Strategic Roadmap Project.
