Odegaard Writing and Research Center

Free resources for Graduate Students!
https://depts.washington.edu/owrc/ - owrc@uw.edu

Writing Help

Tutoring
Four Locations: (1) Odegaard Undergraduate Library, (2) Allen Library Research Commons, (3) Health Sciences Library, and (4) College of Education. We can help with refining cover letters and resumes/CVs, writing fellowship applications, drafting teaching statements, preparing conference presentations, drafting seminar papers, revising articles for publication, and more! Research librarians are also available to help you in all stages of the research process.

Writing Group for Long-term Projects
We are proud to open a shared space for graduate students to work on their projects. The main goal of this program is to form a group, with a graduate tutor facilitator, to sit in an air-conditioned room and simply write together. See our website for days and location.

Teaching Help

Tutoring
You can refer your students to us for tutoring at the same four locations for any piece of writing. You can also visit a tutor to help with designing teaching documents such as assignment prompts, syllabuses, learning objectives, in-class activities, and more!

Peer Review Workshops
The OWRC can come to your class or TA section and facilitate a peer review workshop. Workshops can be tailored to your specific assignment(s) and learning objective(s).

Targeted Learning Communities
Targeted Learning Communities offers support to ELL students in writing- and reading-intensive courses. You can encourage students to form tutor-facilitated groups of 3-5 to support learning in your course or TA section.