The New Way
Protestantism and the Hmong in Vietnam
Tam T. T. Ngo

This is the story of how a spiritual radio program intended for another audience found listeners in Vietnam's remote northern highlands in the mid-1980s and started a religious movement. Now with some three hundred thousand followers, the New Way (Kev Cai Tshiab) reveals the complex politics of religion and ethnic relations in contemporary Vietnam.

Spectacle
Edited by Bruce Magnusson and Zahi Zalloua

These essays explore the dimensions of contemporary spectacles from the Arab Spring to spectatorship in Hollywood. Questioning the effects of spectacles on their observers, the authors ask: Are viewers transformed into depoliticized and passive consumers, or are they drawn in to cohesive communities?

Spectacle looks closely at the permeable boundaries between reality and fiction.

CULTURE, PLACE, AND NATURE

FORESTS ARE GOLD
Trees, People, and Environmental Rule in Vietnam
PAMELA D. MCELWEE
APRIL 2016

Forests Are Gold examines the management of Vietnam’s forests during the tumultuous twentieth century. Forest policy has rarely been about ecology or conservation for nature’s sake, but about managing citizens and society, a process McElwee terms “environmental rule.”

ANDean WATERWAYS
Resource Politics in Highland Peru
MATTiAS BORG RASMuSSEN

In this time of climate change and neoliberal expansion, shared waterways in the Peruvian highlands illustrate how water is becoming entangled in political, social, and cultural concerns. Andean Waterways traces how access to and control over water affects political and ecological relations as the glaciers recede.

CONJURING PROPERTY
Speculation and Environmental Futures in the Brazilian Amazon
JEREMY M. CAMPBELL

Since Brazil first encouraged large-scale Amazonian colonization, violence and confusion have often accompanied national policies. For Amazonian inhabitants (from highly capitalized ranchers to landless workers), property is a dynamic category that becomes salient in the making: it is conjured through papers, appeals to state officials, and the manipulation of landscapes and memories of occupation.
