Letter from the Editor

For over half a century, the University of Washington Press has published award-winning scholarship in Asian studies.

Our Asian studies list includes established series devoted to China, Korea, and Southeast Asia, as well as independent volumes on countries across Asia, from Japan to Pakistan. New initiatives include our Classics of Chinese Thought translation series and our multidisciplinary Global South Asia series. Our major disciplinary emphases are in anthropology, social history, and gender studies. Running through these fields are strong cross-currents in environmental studies, visual culture, social justice, religion, intellectual history, urban studies, and cultural studies. In addition to analytical works, we have published award-winning translations of Asian literature, which enable Anglophone readers to experience more directly cultures in other times and places and to appreciate the richness and longevity of Asian civilization.

In this “Asian century,” our university’s strength in Asian studies and our state’s location on the Pacific Rim – with long-established Asian immigrant populations and extensive Asian trade – impel us to reaffirm our commitment to this vibrant and critically important field.

We seek the best book projects in our established fields and scan the horizon for writing on emerging topics by a new generation of scholars. We look forward to reaching a growing readership worldwide with books about Asia.

ALDO AND JEANNE SCAGLIONE PRIZE FOR A TRANSLATION OF A SCHOLARLY STUDY OF LITERATURE
“'A complete, stylistically graceful, and frequently witty translation of the model sayings and short dialogues on philosophy, ethics, and rhetoric by the ... Chinese author Yang Xiong [53 BCE–18 CE]. Nylan’s thoughtful introduction and substantial original scholarly apparatus, including footnotes, glossary, bibliography, as well as a chronology of dynasties, contextualize the work for the anglophone reader.’”

Zuo Tradition / Zuozhuan
Commentary on “The Spring and Autumn Annals,” Three Volumes
Translated and introduced by Stephen Durrant, Wai-yee Li, and David Schaberg

These volumes contain China’s first great work of history, which consists of two interwoven texts: The Spring and Autumn Annals (Chunqiu, a terse annalistic record) and a vast web of narratives and speeches that add context and interpretation to the Annals. Completed about 300 BCE, it has shaped notions of history, justice, and the significance of human action in the Chinese tradition. This unabridged, scholarly translation supersedes James Legge’s masterful but now outdated 1895 English translation.

July 2016. 2,400 pp., bilingual Chinese and English texts, extensive annotation, supplementary material
$240.00 hardcover, 9780295999159
Across eighteenth-century China a wide range of common people forged government documents or pretended to be officials or other agents of the state. This examination of case records and law codes traces the legal meanings and social and political contexts of small-time swindles that were punished as grave political transgressions.

“Examines a wide range of subjects, from narrative literature to cultural history, and from medicine as an episteme and medicine as a social institution. Schonebaum particularly focuses on the circulation of infectious diseases as a point of reference to the changing notion of body, disease, hygiene, medical technology, and socioeconomic dynamics of early modern China. This is a groundbreaking work.”

“Binbin Yang’s pathbreaking study of Qing women writers’ self-empowerment as female exemplars (lieni) takes the field of women’s culture in late imperial China to a whole new level. In addition to exploring women’s previously well-known talent in poetry, Yang engages with a diverse range of texts by women in unexpected genres – such as genealogy writing, medical treatises, and inscriptions to autobiographical paintings – to reveal the lived realities of these writing heroines. A stunning achievement.”

On Cold Mountain
A Buddhist Reading of the Hanshan Poems
PAUL ROUZER
A CHINA PROGRAM BOOK
Rouzer discusses some seventy poems of the iconic Chinese poet from a Buddhist perspective and examines how texts by Jack Kerouac, Gary Snyder, and Jane Hirshfield respond to the East Asian Buddhist tradition.

“A refreshing look at a text that has been known as a sort of ‘Buddhist Poetry’ in East Asia for centuries but has only recently been seen anew via its unexpectedly large readership in the now-cosmopolitan Chan/Zen world. Rouzer reexamines what is Buddhist, and what is poetic . . . with intriguing insights and close reading.”

The Letter to Ren An and Sima Qian’s Legacy
STEPHEN DURRANT,
WAI-YEE LI, MICHAEL NYLAN, AND HANS VAN ESS
Sima Qian (first century BCE), is China’s earliest and best-known historian, and his “Letter to Ren An” is the most famous letter in Chinese history. This study provides a full translation of the letter and explores textual history and ideas about friendship, loyalty, factionalism, and authorship and their far-reaching implications for the study of China.

State Power in China, 900–1325
EDITED BY PATRICIA BUCKLEY EBREY
AND PAUL JAKOV SMITH
A CHINA PROGRAM BOOK
This volume examines large questions concerning dynastic legitimacy, factional strife, the relationship between the literati and the state, and the value of centralization in the overlapping Liao, Song, Jin, and Yuan dynasties. Drawing on new sources, research methods, and historical perspectives, the contributors illuminate the institutional side of state power while confronting evidence of instability and change.

The Social Life of Inkstones
Artisans and Scholars in Early Qing China
DOROTHY KO

A STUDY OF THE WEATHERHEAD EAST ASIAN INSTITUTE, COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY

An inkstone is an instrument for grinding ink, a collectible object of art, a token of exchange between friends or sovereign states, and an inscriptive surface on which texts and images are carved and reproduced. In illuminating the people involved in making, using, collecting, and writing about the inkstone, this study shows the powerful emotional and technical investments that such a small object engendered.

The Edge of Knowing
Dreams, History, and Realism in Modern Chinese Literature
ROY BING CHAN

MODERN LANGUAGE INITIATIVE BOOKS

This provocative study explores the relationship between the rhetoric of dreams and realist literary practice in twentieth-century Chinese literature. Writers’ interest in dreams reflects the influence of Western ideas about psychology, but also reveals both utopian desires for revolutionary change and lingering traditional Chinese philosophical notions regarding dreams.

Confucian Image Politics
Masculine Morality in Seventeenth-Century China
YING ZHANG

MODERN LANGUAGE INITIATIVE BOOKS

This first book-length study of early modern Chinese politics from the perspective of critical men’s history shows how images – the Donglin official, the Fushe scholar, the turncoat figure – were created, circulated, and contested to serve political purposes.

Rural China on the Eve of Revolution
Sichuan Fieldnotes, 1949–1950

G. William Skinner
Edited by Stevan Harrell and William Lavey
Afterword by Zhijia Shen

G. William Skinner was described in his obituary in American Anthropologist as “the world’s most influential anthropologist of China.” Skinner was doing field research in rural Sichuan when, in late January 1950, the People’s Liberation Army forced him to leave the countryside for the city of Chengdu. His recently discovered detailed fieldnotes and photographs document daily life, social structure, and the advance and eventual takeover of Communist forces.

Rural Origins, City Lives
Class and Place in Contemporary China

Roberta Zavoretti

Rural Origins, City Lives interrogates basic assumptions about migrant workers in China. Drawing on fieldwork in Nanjing, Zavoretti argues that many rural-born urban-dwellers are—contrary to state policy and media portrayals—heterogeneous in their employment, lifestyle, and aspirations. She finds that class formation, not residence status, is key to understanding inequality in contemporary China.

Chinese Encounters in Southeast Asia
How People, Money, and Ideas from China Are Changing a Region

Edited by Pál Nyíri and Danielle Tan

Investigates the effects of China’s recent rise as a major economic and political actor on its proximate neighbors in Southeast Asia. Multidisciplinary contributions provide a fine-grained analysis to counter the state-centered, top-down view of Chinese engagements in Southeast Asia. They demonstrate the ways in which Southeast Asian government officials, business people, workers, and peasants negotiate asymmetry, circumvent hegemony, and embrace, resist, or manipulate the terms dictated by Chinese capital.

New and Forthcoming

Transforming Patriarchy
Chinese Families in the Twenty-First Century
EDITED BY GONÇALO SANTOS AND STEVAN HARRELL

Patriarchy is no longer a default setting for Chinese families. Daughters-in-law openly berate their fathers-in-law. Companies sell filial-piety insurance. Many people live together before marriage. The contributors to Transforming Patriarchy grapple with the cultural causes and implications of social changes that are altering and even reversing gender assumptions.

Educating the Chinese Individual
Life in a Rural Boarding School
METTE HALSKOV HANSEN
NEW IN PAPERBACK

Hansen paints a complex picture of the emerging “neo-socialist” educational system and shows how individualization of students both challenges and reinforces state control of society.

“An ethnographically rich and stimulating study. . . . Will attract a wide readership in educational studies, but will also appeal to audiences in sociology and anthropology who are interested in social change and youth culture in contemporary China.” – China Quarterly

Literati Storytelling in Late Medieval China

MANLING LOO

NEW IN PAPERBACK

Shows how, through storytelling, literati explored their own changing place in a society that was making its final transition from hereditary aristocracy to a meritocracy ostensibly open to all.

“A masterful study of a rich corpus of narrative material . . . a major contribution to our understanding of later Tang literary and social history.”
– Ronald Egan, Stanford University

Studies on Ethnic Groups in China

Xinjiang and the Modern Chinese State

JUSTIN M. JACOBS

This riveting narrative views modern Chinese political history from the perspective of Han officials who were tasked with governing Xinjiang. It tracks Xinjiang political history through the Bolshevik revolution, the warlord years, Chinese civil war, and the large-scale Han immigration, as well as the efforts of the exiled government in Taiwan to claim the loyalties of Xinjiang refugees.

In the Circle of White Stones

GILLIAN G. TAN

This narrative of subsistence on the Tibetan plateau describes the life-worlds of people in a region traditionally known as Kham who move with their yaks from pasture to pasture, depending on the milk production of their herd for sustenance. Gillian Tan conveys a spare beauty that honors the stillness and rhythms of nomadic life, as well as addressing the community’s powerful relationship with a Buddhist lama and their interactions with external agents of change.

Urbanization in Early and Medieval China

Gazetteers for the City of Suzhou

Translated and Introduced by Olivia Milburn

Presents translations of three gazetteers written during the Han, Tang, and Northern Song dynasties, documenting the dramatic changes that occurred as Suzhou experienced enormous political and social upheavals over nine centuries. The book also traces the development of the gazetteer genre, the history of urban planning in China, and what we know about the early development of Suzhou from other texts and archaeological research.

Emperor Hirohito and the Pacific War
NORIKO KAWAMURA

Drawing on previously unavailable primary sources, Noriko Kawamura traces Emperor Hirohito’s actions from the late 1920s to the end of the war, analyzing the role he played in Japan’s expansion. She shows that he was by no means a pacifist, but neither did he favor the reckless wars advocated by Japan’s military leaders.

“This is an eye-opening book. . . . Kawamura’s research reveals the real Hirohito.”

The Chosŏn state (1392-1910) is typically portrayed as a rigid society because of its hereditary status system, slavery, and Confucian gender norms. However, The Emotions of Justice contends that the state’s recognition of won, the sense of being wronged, permitted subjects of different genders and statuses to interact in the legal realm. The book illuminates the intersection of law, emotions, and gender in premodern Korea.

The Gender of Caste
Representing Dalits in Print
CHARU GUPTA

Caste and gender in India have long been addressed in standard ways: a presumptive maleness pervades studies of Dalits (“untouchables”) and feminist studies of colonial India assume upper-caste-ness. The Gender of Caste uses print as a critical tool to examine the depictions of Dalits by colonizers, nationalists, reformers, and Dalits themselves, showing how gender differences were critical in patterns of domination and subordination.

Writing the South Seas
Imagining the Nanyang in Chinese and Southeast Asian Postcolonial Literature
BRIAN BERNARDS
MODERN LANGUAGE INITIATIVE BOOKS
Postcolonial literature about the South Seas, or Nanyang, examines the history of Chinese migration, localization, and interethnic exchange in Southeast Asia, where Sinophone settler cultures evolved independently by adapting to their “New World” and mingling with native cultures. Writing the South Seas explains why Nanyang encounters, neglected by most literary histories, should be considered crucial to the national literatures of China and Southeast Asia.

Humanizing the Sacred
Sisters in Islam and the Struggle for Gender Justice in Malaysia
AZZA BASARUDIN
DECOLONIZING FEMINISMS
Basarudin demonstrates how Sunni women activists in Malaysia are fracturing institutionalized Islamic authority by generating new understandings of rights and redefining the moral obligations of their community. By weaving together women’s lived realities, feminist interpretations of Islamic texts, and Malaysian cultural politics, this book illuminates a localized struggle of claiming rights.
