Gandhi’s Search for the Perfect Diet

Eating with the World in Mind

NICO SLATE

Mahatma Gandhi redefined nutrition as a holistic approach to building a more just world. What he chose to eat was intimately tied to his beliefs. His key values of nonviolence, religious tolerance, and rural sustainability developed in coordination with his dietary experiments. His repudiation of sugar, chocolate, and salt expressed his opposition to economies based on slavery, indentured labor, and imperialism.

Gandhi’s Search for the Perfect Diet sheds new light on important periods in Gandhi’s life as they relate to his developing food ethic: his student years in London, his politicization as a young lawyer in South Africa, the 1930 Salt March challenging British colonialism, and his fasting as a means of self-purification and social protest during India’s struggle for independence. What became the pillars of Gandhi’s diet—vegetarianism, limiting salt and sweets, avoiding processed food, and fasting—anticipated many of the debates in twenty-first-century food studies and presaged the necessity of building healthier and more equitable food systems.

“A wonderful book that focuses on the issue of Gandhi’s obsessive preoccupation with diet reform and food in general, pointing out how intricately meshed were the Mahatma’s ideas and practices concerning eating, morality, ethics, and political activism.” —JOSEPH ALTER, author of Gandhi’s Body: Sex, Diet, and the Politics of Nationalism

“Nico Slate’s fascinating account reveals Gandhi as an evidence-based, self-experimenting nutrition guru who tried one diet after another—vegan, raw, calorie restriction—in his quest for physical and spiritual health. Above all, Slate explains Gandhi’s use of fasting as a political means to inspire India to achieve independence.” —MARION NESTLE, author of Unsavory Truth: How Food Companies Skew the Science of What We Eat

“Slate’s book is an engaging foray into the details of Gandhi’s dietary obsessions, leaving readers to judge for themselves whether a ‘perfect diet’ is attainable or even desirable.” —JULIE GUTHMAN, author of Weighing In: Obesity, Food Justice, and the Limits of Capitalism
Dakota Sioux artist Mary Sully was the great-granddaughter of respected nineteenth-century portraitist Thomas Sully, who captured the personalities of America’s first generation of celebrities (including the portrait of Andrew Jackson immortalized on the twenty-dollar bill). Born on the Standing Rock reservation in 1896, she was largely self-taught. Steeped in the visual traditions of beadwork, quilling, and hide painting, she also engaged with the experiments in time, space, symbolism, and representation characteristic of early twentieth-century modernist art. And like her great-grandfather Sully was fascinated by celebrity: over two decades, she produced hundreds of colorful and dynamic abstract triptychs, a series of “personality prints” of American public figures like Amelia Earhart, Babe Ruth, and Gertrude Stein.

Sully’s position on the margins of the art world meant that her work was exhibited only a handful of times during her life. In Becoming Mary Sully, Philip J. Deloria reclaims that work from obscurity, exploring her stunning portfolio through the lenses of modernism, industrial design, Dakota women’s aesthetics, mental health, ethnography and anthropology, primitivism, and the American Indian politics of the 1930s. Working in a complex territory oscillating between representation, symbolism, and abstraction, Sully evoked multiple and simultaneous perspectives of time and space. With an intimate yet sweeping style, Deloria recovers in Sully’s work a move toward an anticolonial aesthetic that claimed a critical role for Indigenous women in American Indian futures—within and distinct from American modernity and modernism.

PHILIP J. DELORIA (Dakota descent) is professor of history at Harvard University and the author of Indians in Unexpected Places and Playing Indian. His most recent book, coauthored with Alexander I. Olson, is American Studies: A User’s Guide. He is a trustee of the Smithsonian Institution’s National Museum of the American Indian, where he chairs the Repatriation Committee; a former president of the American Studies Association; and an elected member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

“Makes available a unique and fascinating body of modern art that, as interpreted by the author, expands our understanding not only of Native American but also of American modernism during the first half of the twentieth century.” —RUTH PHILLIPS, professor of art history, Carleton University

“Mary Sully’s art stops you in your tracks. So do the interpretations offered by her great-nephew Phil Deloria. Deloria argues that Sully was a ‘native to modernism,’ an extraordinary early twentieth-century talent whose personality prints disrupt the categories of American Indian and modernist art genres. Once again, Deloria sets the bar for brilliant Indigenous scholarship that elevates our understandings of our shared—Indigenous and non-Indigenous—world.” —K. TSIANINA LOMAWAREMA, School of Social Transformation, Arizona State University

Hearts of Our People
Native Women Artists

Hearts of Our People: Native Women Artists explores the artistic achievements of Native women and establishes their rightful place in the art world. This landmark book includes works of art from antiquity to the present, made in a variety of media from textiles and beadwork to video and digital arts. It showcases artists from more than seventy-five Indigenous tribes to reveal the ingenuity and innovation that have always been foundational to the art of Native women.

Beautifully illustrated and enriched by the personal reflections, historical research, and artistic insights of leading scholars and artists in the field, Hearts of Our People: Native Women Artists pays tribute to the vital role and creative force of Native women artists, now and throughout time.

In her first book, Blonde Indian, Ernestine Hayes powerfully recounted her return to Juneau and to her Tlingit home after years of wandering. The Tao of Raven takes up the next, less explored question: once the exile returns, then what?

Using the story of Raven and the Box of Daylight (and relating it to Sun Tzu’s equally timeless Art of War) to deepen her reflection, Hayes denounces the obstacles and prejudices still facing Alaska Natives in their own land, while also recounting her own story of completing college in her fifties and becoming a professor and writer. Interweaving strands of memoir, contemplation, and fiction, she articulates an Indigenous worldview in which all things are connected, intergenerational trauma creates many hardships, and yet transformation is still possible. Now a grandmother, mindful of future generations, Hayes voices her own narrative alongside powerful thoughts about the resilience and complications of her Native community.

ERNESTINE HAYES (Tlingit) is professor of English at the University of Alaska Southeast and the 2016–2018 Alaska State Writer Laureate.

“A multilayered narrative of remarkable creativity, historical understanding, philosophical insight and empathy for all those who share the earth with us. . . . The Tao of Raven should be widely read, in and out of schools. . . . Ernestine Hayes is a gifted and gifting teacher, opening for us a box of light.”
—Anchorage Daily News

“In a lyrically intoxicating style, Ernestine Hayes crafts a . . . mesmerizing story-telling, an alternative world, that reveals as much, if not more, about how our society works, or does not work, for today’s Alaskan Native citizen.”
—Anchorage Press
Shapes of Native Nonfiction
Collected Essays by Contemporary Writers

Just as a basket’s purpose determines its materials, weave, and shape, so too does the purpose of an essay relate to its material, weave, and shape. Editors Elissa Washuta and Theresa Warburton ground this anthology of essays by Native writers in the formal art of basket weaving. Using weaving techniques such as coiling and plaiting as organizing themes, the editors have curated an exciting collection of imaginative, world-making lyric essays by twenty-seven contemporary Native writers from tribal nations across Turtle Island into a well-crafted basket.

Shapes of Native Nonfiction features a dynamic combination of established and emerging writers, including Stephen Graham Jones, Deborah Miranda, Terese Marie Mailhot, Billy-Ray Belcourt, Eden Robinson, and Kim TallBear. These and the other contributors’ ambitious, creative, and visionary work with genre and form demonstrate the slippery, shape-changing possibilities of Native stories. Considered together, they offer responses to broader questions of materiality, orality, spatiality, and temporality that continue to animate the study and practice of distinct Native literary traditions in North America.

ELISSA WASHUTA (Cowlitz) is assistant professor of creative writing at the Ohio State University. THERESA WARBURTON is a Mellon Postdoctoral Fellow in American studies and English at Brown University and assistant professor of English at Western Washington University.

CONTRIBUTORS: Siku Allooloo (Inuit/Haitian Taino), Byron F. Aspaas (Diné), Billy-Ray Belcourt (Driftpile Cree Nation), Laura Da’ (Eastern Shawnee), Alicia Elliott (Tuscarora), Ernestine Hayes (Tlingit Kaagwaantaan), Toni Jensen (Métis), Stephen Graham Jones, Joan Naviyuk Kane (Inupiaq), Adrienne Keene (Cherokee), Sasha LaPointe (Upper Skagit and Nooksack), Chip Livingston (mixed-blood Creek), Bojan Louis (Navajo Nation—Naakai Dine’é; Ashiihi; Ta’neezahnii; Bilgáana), Terese Marie Mailhot, Tiffany Midge (Standing Rock Sioux [Hunkpapa Lakota]), Deborah A. Miranda (Ohlone-Costanoan Esselen Nation), Ruby Hansen Murray (Osage), Natanya Ann Pulley (Diné), Eden Robinson (Haisla/Heiltsuk), Kim TallBear (Sisseton-Wahpeton Oyate), Theresa Warburton, Elissa Washuta (Cowlitz), and Michael Wasson (Nimiipuu/Nez Perce).

“The first collection of Native nonfiction organized with the explicit intent of highlighting Native writing as world-making, this book offers us nonfiction that reflects, interrogates, critiques, imagines, prays, screams, and complicates simplistic notions about Native peoples and Native lives.”
—MALEA POWELL, professor and chair, Department of Writing, Rhetoric, and American Cultures, and faculty in American Indian and Indigenous studies, Michigan State University
A distinctly Indigenous form of landscape representation is emerging in the creations of contemporary Indigenous artists from North America. For centuries, landscape painting in European art typically used representational strategies such as single-point perspective to lure viewers—and settlers—into the territories of the old and new worlds. In the twentieth century, abstract expressionism transformed painting to encompass something beyond the visual world, and later, minimalism and the Land Art movement broadened the genre of landscape art to include sculptural forms and site-specific installations.

In Shifting Grounds, art historian Kate Morris argues that Indigenous artists are expanding, reconceptualizing, and remaking the forms of the genre still further, expressing Indigenous attitudes toward land and belonging even as they draw upon mainstream art practices. The resulting works are rarely if ever primarily visual representations, but instead evoke all five senses: from the overt sensuality of Kay WalkingStick’s tactile paintings to the eerie soundscapes of Alan Michelson’s videos and Postcommodity’s installations to the immersive environments of Kent Monkman’s dioramas, this landscape art resonates with a fully embodied and embedded subjectivity.

In the works of these and many other Native artists, Shifting Grounds explores themes of presence and absence, connection and dislocation, survival and vulnerability, memory and commemoration, and power and resistance, illuminating the artists’ sustained engagement not only with land and landscape but also with the history of representation itself.

KATE MORRIS is associate professor in the Department of Art and Art History at Santa Clara University.

“Landscape in the work of Native artists is sophisticated, conceptually complex yet visually compelling and at times even seductive. Morris illuminates the many layers of meaning in their work through this insightful and intriguing exploration.” —KATHLEEN ASH-MILBY, National Museum of the American Indian
In the 1970s the Quinault and Suquamish, like dozens of Indigenous nations across the United States, asserted their sovereignty by applying their laws to everyone on their reservations. This included arresting non-Indians for minor offenses, and two of those arrests triggered federal litigation that had big implications for Indian tribes’ place in the American political system.

Tribal governments had long sought to manage affairs in their territories, and their bid for all-inclusive reservation jurisdiction was an important, bold move, driven by deeply rooted local histories as well as pan-Indian activism. They believed federal law supported their case.

In a 1978 decision that reverberated across Indian country and beyond, the Supreme Court struck a blow to their efforts by ruling in Oliphant v. Suquamish Indian Tribe that non-Indians were not subject to tribal prosecution for criminal offenses. The court cited two centuries of US legal history to justify their decision but relied solely on the interpretations of non-Indians.

In Reclaiming the Reservation, Alexandra Harmon delves into Quinault, Suquamish, and pan-tribal histories to illuminate the roots of Indians’ claim of regulatory power in their reserved homelands. She considers the promises and perils of relying on the US legal system to address the damage caused by colonial dispossession. She also shows how tribes have responded since 1978, seeking and often finding new ways to protect their interests and assert their sovereignty.

ALEXANDRA HARMON is professor of American Indian studies at the University of Washington. She is the author of Rich Indians: Native People and the Problem of Wealth in American History and editor of The Power of Promises: Perspectives on Pacific Northwest Indian Treaties.

“Harmon brilliantly explains how tribal nations have sought to assert sovereignty through the extension of civil and criminal jurisdiction over non-Indians living within the boundaries of their nations. Reclaiming the Reservation is precisely the kind of history that the field desperately needs.” —DANIEL M. COBB, author of Native Activism in Cold War America: The Struggle for Sovereignty

“Examines the landmark Supreme Court case Oliphant v. Suquamish from the Native American perspective and within the broader context of American Indian history. Harmon situates that infamous ruling and emphasizes Indian agency in the quest for meaningful self-rule.” —ANDREW H. FISHER, author of Shadow Tribe: The Making of Columbia River Indian Identity
The story Raven and the Box of Daylight, which tells how Raven transformed the world and brought light to the people by releasing the stars, moon, and sun, holds great significance for the Tlingit people of the Pacific Northwest coast. A new body of work by artist Preston Singletary (American, b. 1963) immerses readers in Tlingit traditions by telling this story through monumental glass works and installations.

Primarily known for his celebration of Tlingit art and design, Singletary explores new ways of working with glass inspired by Tlingit design principles. Tlingit objects were traditionally used to show wealth and tell stories by representing elements of the natural world, as well as the histories of individual families. By drawing upon this tradition, Singletary’s art creates a unique theatrical atmosphere, in which the pieces follow and enhance a narrative. Preston Singletary: Raven and the Box of Daylight includes texts that place Singletary’s work within the wider histories of both glass art and Native arts traditions—especially the art of spoken-word storytelling. Also included are a biography and an interview with the artist.

MIRANDA BELARDE-LEWIS (Zuni and Tlingit) is an independent curator based in Seattle. She has taught at Northwest Indian College and the University of Washington. JOHN DRURY is an artist and writer based in Brooklyn. He has taught glass art at the Pilchuck Glass School, UrbanGlass, and the Glass Furnace in Istanbul. His writings have appeared in Raw Vision and ArtNet, among other publications.
Understanding Northwest Coast Indigenous Jewelry

The Art, the Artists, the History

Indigenous hand-engraved jewelry from the Pacific Northwest Coast is among the most distinctive, innovative, and highly sought-after art being produced in North America today. But these artworks are more than just stunning—every bracelet, ring, and pendant is also the product of a fascinating backstory, a specialized set of techniques, and a talented artist.

With a clearly written text, a foreword by award-winning First Nations artist Corrine Hunt, and more than one hundred striking color photographs and sidebars, Understanding Northwest Coast Indigenous Jewelry illuminates the exquisite craft and the context in which it is practiced. Providing a step-by-step overview of various techniques, the book also introduces the specifics of formline design, highlights the traits of the most common animal symbols, offers tips for identification, and features biographies and works from over fifty of the coast’s best-known jewelers. Finally, it delves into the history of the art form, from the earliest horn and copper cuff bracelets to cutting-edge contemporary works and everything in between.

ALEXANDER DAWKINS is a co-owner of Lattimer Gallery, which specializes in contemporary Northwest Coast art and promotes the work of emerging artists. CORRINE HUNT (Gwa’wina) has been designing jewelry since 1985. In 2010, she codesigned the medals for the Olympic Winter Games. In 2011, she won the National Aboriginal Achievement Award for her artistic contributions and for serving as a role model to Indigenous youth. A member of the Raven Gwa’wina clan from Ts’akis, Vancouver Island, she now lives in Vancouver, British Columbia.

CARLOS BULOSAN
INTRODUCTION BY MARILYN C. ALQUIZOLA AND LANE RYO HIRABAYASHI
$18.95 PB / 9780295993539

“Bulosan’s gripping memoir-novel of a young Filipino immigrant long ago secured its place in Asian American literature. . . . An outstanding introductory essay extends the historical discussion (and in some ways brings it full circle) in this third edition. . . . [Bulosan’s] call to action resonates with the same urgency today as it did seven decades ago.”—Pacific Northwest Quarterly

Citizen 13660
MINÉ OKUBO
INTRODUCTION BY CHRISTINE HONG

Desert Exile
_The Uprooting of a Japanese American Family_
YOSHIKO UCHIDA
INTRODUCTION BY TAJI M. YAMAMOTO
$18.95 PB / 9780295994758

“In _Desert Exile_ the happy life of a Japanese American family before [being removed to a] concentration camp makes their surrealistic nightmare experience after December 7, 1941, all the more inexplicable and horrifying.”—San Francisco Review of Books

Nisei Daughter
MONICA SONE
INTRODUCTION BY MARIE ROSE WONG
$18.95 PB / 9780295993553

“Rare is the book with staying power like that of Monica Sone’s _Nisei Daughter_. . . . The book also owes its appeal to the immediacy of its narrative, to its incisive, unsentimental portraits of family and friends, and finally, to the author’s own abundant humanity.”—Pacific Northwest Quarterly

Scent of Apples
_A Collection of Stories_
BIENVENIDO N. SANTOS
FOREWORD BY JESSICA HAGEDORN
$19.95 PB / 9780295995113

“Santos writes simply and skillfully of his countrymen who leave home for America, of the pain of separation, loneliness, longing, yesterday’s hopes and tomorrow’s dreams. His portraits of these gentle, courageous exiles are moving as he shows how each one struggles to make his way in the new land, trying to find a life far from his roots while sustained by the dream of a return home. . . . Santos gets to the heart of what it is like to be uprooted, alone, alien.”—Publishers Weekly

TOSHIRO MORI
INTRODUCTION BY XIAOJING ZHOU
$19.95 PB / 9780295994741

“Mori’s superbly structured short stories are . . . tender, evocative episodes of growing up as a Japanese American prior to World War II.”—San Francisco Chronicle
Pangs of Love and Other Writings

DAVID WONG LOUIE
Foreword by Viet Thanh Nguyen
Afterword by King-Kok Cheung

An apprentice sushi chef and a mysterious blue-eyed woman share a bottle of wine inside a climate-controlled otter tank. The Great Wall of China grumbles as workers forego construction to watch an imperial game of baseball. A young woman tries to imagine a future unsullied by her family’s history of untimely death.

First issued in 1991, Pangs of Love introduced David Wong Louie’s bold storytelling. The son of Chinese immigrants, he centered his stories around characters who are in conflict with their place in the world, disconnected from both American society and their own families. The depth of his portrayals renders their experiences of love, envy, loneliness, loss, and duty universal—inform by their heritage yet not confined by it. These twelve short stories and one essay swerve from the absurd to longing for love, understanding, or simply a morsel of food.

Pangs of Love and Other Writings makes Louie’s debut book available again, along with an additional short story and an extraordinary autobiographical essay, “Eat, Memory,” in which he reflects on life without food after throat cancer took away his ability to swallow. Pulitzer Prize—winner Viet Thanh Nguyen contributes a foreword elucidating Louie’s role in shaping contemporary Asian American literature, while an afterword by literary scholar King-Kok Cheung retraces the three phases of Louie’s career.

“[Louie] is elegant, funny, a touch spooky, and has as fine a hair-trigger control of alienation and absurdity as any of the best of his generation.”
—Los Angeles Times

“Louie sneaks up on his readers—his stories crystallize in explosions of pathos and wit.”—San Diego Tribune

“These stories are lovely.”—New York Newsday

“Rereading Louie’s stories affirms my sense that art matters and that writing matters, and that part of the evidence for this is how his stories read now as if they were written yesterday. They remain powerful, moving, relevant, urgent, and they persist in that way because of the author’s imagination, his capacity to tell a story, his wit and humor, his willingness to confront the darkness of the world and the twilight within ourselves.”—From the foreword by Viet Thanh Nguyen

Gardening with Native Plants of the Pacific Northwest

Third Edition

The Pacific Northwest abounds with native plants that bring beauty to the home garden while offering food and shelter to birds, bees, butterflies, and other wildlife. Elegant trilliums thrive in woodland settings. Showy lewissias stand out in the rock garden. Hazel and huckleberry number among the delights of early spring, while serviceberry and creek dogwood provide a riot of fall color. Gardening with Native Plants of the Pacific Northwest is the essential resource for learning how to best use this stunning array.

- Close to 1,000 choices of trees, shrubs, perennials, annuals, and grasses for diverse terrain and conditions, from Canada to California, and east to the Rockies
- 948 color photographs, with useful habitat icons
- Fully updated nomenclature, with an index of subjects and an index of plant names (common and scientific)
- New to this edition: chapters on garden ecology and garden science
- Appendix of Pacific Northwest botanical gardens and native plant societies
- Glossary of botanical, horticultural, and gardening terms

With enthusiasm, easy wit, and expert knowledge, renowned botanist Art Kruckeberg and horticulturist Linda Chalker-Scott show Northwest gardeners, from novice to expert, how to imagine and realize their perfect sustainable landscape.

“Native plants are generally drought tolerant, pest free, and loved by wildlife, making them great additions to any garden. This outstanding collaboration by two of the most renowned experts in the Pacific Northwest will help you choose and integrate natives that are perfectly suited for your garden; plus you will learn how to care for them to keep them looking great. Gardening with Native Plants of the Pacific Northwest rates my highly coveted Golden Brussels Sprouts Award. Oh, la, la!”—CISCOE MORRIS, former Seattle Times gardening columnist and author of Ask Ciscoe

ARThUR R. KRUCkEBERG (1920–2016) was professor of botany at the University of Washington for nearly four decades. He cofounded the Washington Native Plant Society and authored The Natural History of Puget Sound Country and Geology and Plant Life, as well as prior editions of Gardening with Native Plants of the Pacific Northwest. LINDA CHALKER-SCOTT is associate professor of horticulture and extension specialist at Washington State University. She cohosts the Garden Professors blog, and her books include The Informed Gardener, The Informed Gardener Blooms Again, and How Plants Work. RICHARD G. OLMSTEAD is professor of botany at the University of Washington and curator at the University of Washington Herbarium, Burke Museum.

Fishes of the Salish Sea

Puget Sound and the Straits of Georgia and Juan de Fuca

Fishes of the Salish Sea is the definitive guide to the identification and history of the marine and anadromous fishes of Puget Sound and the Straits of Georgia and Juan de Fuca. Featuring striking illustrations of the Salish Sea’s 260 fish species by noted illustrator Joseph Tomelleri, this comprehensive three-volume set details the ecology and life history of each species, as well as recounts the region’s rich heritage of marine research and exploration.

Beginning with jawless hagfishes and lampreys and ending with the distinctive Ocean Sunfish, leading scientists Theodore Pietsch and James Orr present the taxa in phylogenetic order, based on classifications that reflect the most current scientific knowledge. Illustrated taxonomic keys facilitate fast and accurate species identification. These in-depth, thoroughly documented, and yet accessible volumes will prove invaluable to marine biologists and ecologists, natural resource managers, anglers, divers, students, and all who want to learn about, marvel over, and preserve the vibrant diversity of Salish Sea marine life.

- Comprehensive accounts of 260 fish species
- Brilliant color plates of all treated species
- Illustrated taxonomic keys for easy species identification
- In-depth history of Salish Sea research and exploration

Pholidichthys

Pholis ornata: rays; and the upper part of the body and dorsal fin with a series of about 824

Description:
- Common names: Pholis schultzi, Red Gunnel, Sigouine Rouge
- Scientific name: Pholis ornata (girard 1854)
- Family: Pholidae
- Order: Blennioidei
- Distribution: Benthic species inhabiting bays, estuaries, and other quiet waters, it is found in tide pools and the intertidal zone. It is very tolerant of low salinity and often found in brackish or almost freshwater. Spawning occurs in the spring when females deposit eggs in the intertidal zone. The young settle to the bottom in very shallow water from spring to early autumn when temperatures are moderate. The adults inhabit a variety of environments, as well as the shelf and slope.

Every year, tens of thousands of people in the Pacific Northwest go razor clamming, an iconic (and often freezing) “beach-to-table” experience. David Berger was inspired to dig deeper, illuminating the science and history behind the perplexing rules that seek to keep the razor clam population healthy and the biomechanics that make these delicious bivalves so challenging to catch—while also joyfully taking part in what, for many clammers, is “personal therapy, family vacation, and the quintessential Northwest experience all rolled into one.”

In this lively history and celebration of the Pacific razor clam, Berger shares with us his love affair with the glossy, gold-colored Siliqua patula and gets into the nitty-gritty of how to dig, clean, and cook them using his favorite recipes. In the course of his investigation, Berger brings to light the long history of razor clamming as a subsistence, commercial, and recreational activity and shows the ways it has helped shape both the identity and the psyche of the Pacific Northwest.

“Whether you grab fresh razor clams at the fish counter or with a quick shovel at low tide, this book will take you delightfully, deliciously deep into the food culture, ecology, and local history of our ‘buried treasures.’”
—TOM DOUGLAS, Northwest chef and restauranteur

“Razor Clams delivers, whether it is a recipe for razor clam fritters you seek or refreshment for the soul. A must-read for Pacific Northwest newcomers and barnacled long-timers alike, Berger offers delight on every page.”

The Last Wilderness

Murray Morgan’s classic history of the Olympic Peninsula, originally published in 1955, evokes a remote American wilderness “as large as the state of Massachusetts, more rugged than the Rockies, its lowlands blanketed by a cool jungle of fir and pine and cedar, its peaks bearing hundreds of miles of living ice that gave rise to swift rivers alive with giant salmon.”

Drawing on historical research and personal tales collected along docks, forest trails, and waterways, Morgan recounts vivid adventures of the area’s settlers—loggers, hunters, prospectors, homesteaders, utopianists, murderers, profit-seekers, conservationists, Wobblies, and bureaucrats—alongside stories of coastal first peoples and striking descriptions of the peninsula’s wildlife and land.

Freshly redesigned and with a new introduction by poet and environmentalist Tim McNulty, this humor-filled saga and landmark love story of one of the most formidably beautiful regions of the Pacific Northwest will inform and engage a new generation of readers.

Journalist, educator, and historian Murray Morgan (1916–2000) authored more than twenty books, including Skid Road: An Informal Portrait of Seattle and Puget’s Sound: A Narrative of Early Tacoma and the Southern Sound. He worked for Time magazine and CBS News, hosted the Northwest radio show Our Town, Our World, and wrote for magazines ranging from Cosmopolitan to the Nation and the Saturday Evening Post. Tim McNulty is an award-winning poet, essayist, and nature writer based in the foothills of the Olympic Mountains. His natural history books include Olympic National Park: A Natural History and Washington’s Mount Rainier National Park. His work has received the Washington State Book Award and the National Outdoor Book Award.

“The name Murray Morgan is synonymous with Washington State history. Like all his works, The Last Wilderness is meticulously researched, yet delightfully conversational and entertaining. Morgan’s works are a treasure for history buffs not just in the Pacific Northwest, but everywhere.”

Seawomen of Iceland

Survival on the Edge

MARGARET WILLSON

When Margaret Willson, who once worked as a commercial deckhand herself, was told that no women in Iceland fished commercially, she was skeptical. In fact, she found, Icelandic women have done so from the earliest medieval times to the present, holding all positions—from skipper to engineer to deckhand to cook, and even captain, including the renowned Thurídur Einarsdóttir (1777–1863).

Based on extensive research, including discussions with hundreds of seafaring women who fished from the 1950s to the new millennium, Seawomen of Iceland is the first book-length study of this important, and yet largely invisible, group of women. Their voices form a narrative of adventure that resonates with universal motifs—of strength, determination, intelligence, and, above all, the knowledge of how to survive at sea.

MARGARET WILLSON is affiliate associate professor of anthropology and Canadian studies at the University of Washington. She is the author of Dance Lest We All Fall Down: Breaking Cycles of Poverty in Brazil and Beyond.

“Seawomen of Iceland is about tough work and tougher weather, about fishing through changing socioeconomic currents, and about the subtle—and not-so-subtle—roles gender plays in working lives.” —Anthropology of Work
Republic Café

Inspired by Alain Resnais’s Hiroshima mon amour, and sharing the spirit of Tomas Transtromer’s Baltics and Yehuda Amichai’s Time, Republic Café is a meditation on love during a time of violence, and a tally of what appears and disappears in every moment. Mindful of epigenetic experience as our bodies become living vessels for history’s tragedies, David Biespiel praises not only the essentialness of our human memory, but also the sanctity of our flawed, human forgetting.

A single sequence, arranged in fifty-four numbered sections, Republic Café details the experience of lovers in Portland, Oregon, on the eve and days following September 11, 2001. To touch a loved one’s bare skin, even in the midst of great tragedy, is simultaneously an act of remembering and forgetting. This is a tale of love and darkness, a magical portrait of the writer as a moral and imaginative participant in the political life of his nation.

DAVID BIESPIEL is a poet, critic, memoirist, and contributing writer to American Poetry Review, New Republic, the New York Times, Poetry, Politico, The Rumpus, and Slate. He is poet-in-residence at Oregon State University, faculty member in the Rainier Writers Workshop, and president of the Attic Institute of Arts and Letters. He has received NEA and Lannan fellowships and was a finalist for the National Book Critics Circle Balakian Award. His most recent book is The Education of a Young Poet. He has previously published three books in the Pacific Northwest Poetry Series: Wild Civility, The Book of Men and Women, and Charming Gardeners.

“I was unprepared for the true enormity of the scope of this remarkable, deeply moving, and consistently compelling new book. With Biespiel’s usual elegance and formal grace, Republic Café strikes me as being both expansive and profoundly forgiving of human acts, however horrible.”
—DAVID ST. JOHN, author of The Last Troubadour: New and Selected Poems

“Biespiel’s finest book of poems to date. Republic Café builds on his strengths as a lyric poet with a social conscience, a latter-day Romantic in a skeptical time. Republic Café is both personal and political, much in the manner of its evident forebear, Walt Whitman. This is a postmodernist’s Romanticism.”
—DAVID BAKER, author of Swift: New and Selected Poems

“David Biespiel reinvents poetry in Republic Café by mating a love poem with a historical narrative. A moment in time, a self within it—together the size of a pinprick—are revealed to be as infinite as the universe. Nothing escapes the net this poet casts out with his powerful form and original vision. Transcendent, mysterious, and as supernatural as it is completely human, this is poetry that transforms the reader.”
—LAURA KASISCHKE, author of Where Now: New and Selected Poems
Olmsted in Seattle
Creating a Park System for a Modern City

In the midst of galloping growth at the turn of the twentieth century, Seattle’s city leaders seized on the confluence of a roaring economy with the City Beautiful movement to hire the Olmsted Brothers landscape architecture firm to design a park and parkway system. Their 1903 plan led to a supplemental plan, a playground plan, numerous park and boulevard designs, changes to park system management, and a ripple effect, as the Olmsted Brothers were hired to design public and private landscapes throughout the region. The park system shaped Seattle’s character and continues to play a key role in the city’s livability today.

Transit
The Story of Public Transportation in the Puget Sound Region

Ever since the first streetcars rumbled through the streets of Seattle in 1884, public transportation in the Puget Sound region has been a wild roller-coaster ride, replete with scandals, triumphs, and momentous turning points. A complete rail transit system crisscrossed the region during the trolley days, only to be dismantled by 1941. After seventy years of turmoil—and traffic congestion—a new system, Sound Transit, arose in its place. The story is not just about trolleys, trains, and buses—it is also about the making and breaking of mayors and the way that Seattle, Tacoma, and Everett developed from the 1880s to today.

Sculpture on a Grand Scale

Jack Christiansen’s Thin Shell Modernism

The Kingdome, John (“Jack”) Christiansen’s best-known work, was the largest freestanding concrete dome in the world. Built amid public controversy, the multipurpose arena was designed to stand for a thousand years but was demolished in a great cloud of dust after less than a quarter century.

Many know the fate of Seattle’s iconic dome, but fewer are familiar with its innovative structural engineer, Jack Christensen (1927–2017), and his significant contribution to Pacific Northwest and modernist architecture. Christiansen designed more than a hundred projects in the region: public schools and gymnasiums, sculptural church spaces, many of the Seattle Center’s 1962 World’s Fair buildings, and the Museum of Flight’s vast glass roof all reflect his expressive ideas. Inspired by Northwest topography and drawn to the region’s mountains and profound natural landscapes, Christiansen employed hyperbolic paraboloid forms, barrel-vault structures, and efficient modular construction to echo and complement the forms he loved in nature. Notably, he became an enthusiastic proponent of using thin shell concrete—the Kingdome being the most prominent example—to create inexpensive, utilitarian space on a large scale.

Tyler Sprague places Christiansen within a global cohort of thin shell engineer-designers, exploring the use of a remarkable structural medium known for its minimal use of material, architecturally expressive forms, and long-span capability. Examining Christiansen’s creative design and engineering work, Sprague illuminates Christensen’s legacy of graceful, distinctive concrete architectural forms, highlighting their lasting imprint on the region’s built environment.

“Jack Christiansen pioneered new possibilities in structural engineering and architecture for decades, yet his work is largely unknown due in part to his intentional lack of self-promotion. Tyler Sprague’s definitive book follows the arc of Christiansen’s extraordinary career and glean lessons for designers, builders, and historians alike.” —JOHN OCHSENDORF, professor of engineering and architecture, MIT

Seattle Style: Fashion/Function highlights how elegance and practicality coexisted and converged in Seattle wardrobes, providing new insights into local clothing, ranging from couture, to outdoor gear, to denim. The book features over fifty garments and accessories from the Museum of History & Industry (MOHAI) collection, revealing captivating stories about the city’s sartorial spirit.

Organized into four main sections, Seattle Style surveys key influences on local clothing. “Nature and Place” explores the relationship with our environment and garments designed for outdoor adventures; “Growth and Aspiration” tells stories about how clothing options expanded as Seattle became increasingly metropolitan; “Northwest Casual” takes a deeper look at the city’s affinity for casualwear and its leadership in the casual clothing industry; and “Innovators and Rule Breakers” celebrates Seattle’s creative problem solvers and nonconformists. Alone, few of these elements are unique to Seattle, but woven together, a distinct local story emerges.

Seattle Style: Fashion/Function is the most significant work yet compiled on dress and the clothing history of the Seattle area and is a companion to the exhibition at MOHAI.

CLARA BERG is collections specialist for costumes and textiles at MOHAI. LULY YANG is a multi-award-winning artist, businesswoman, and internationally known Seattle-based fashion designer.

WESTERN HISTORY ASSOCIATION

When newcomers first arrived on the shores of Puget Sound in the 1850s, they hastened to assemble the familiar cohort of cattle, horses, pigs, chickens, and other animals that defined European agriculture. This, in turn, contributed to the dispossession of the Native residents in what would become Seattle. However, just as various animals were used to create a Euro-American city, the elimination of these same animals from the city was key to the creation of the new middle-class neighborhoods of the twentieth century. As dogs and cats came to symbolize home and family, Seattleites’ relationship with livestock became distant and exploitative, demonstrating the deep social contradictions that characterize the modern American metropolis.

Throughout Seattle’s history, people have sorted animals into categories and into places as a way of asserting power over animals, other people, and property. In The City Is More Than Human, Frederick Brown explores the dynamic, troubled relationship humans have with animals. In so doing he challenges us to acknowledge the role of animals of all sorts in the making and remaking of cities.

Frederick L. Brown holds a PhD in history from the University of Washington and works as a historian for the National Park Service.

“For the Seattle history buff it’s a must read; for the urbanist it broadens the sense of what the city is, who it’s for, and how critters are partners in shaping urban life.” —KNUTE BERGER, Crosscut

Defending Giants

The Redwood Wars and the Transformation of American Environmental Politics

American icons, paragons of grandeur and endurance, giant redwoods are also symbols of conflict and negotiation, remnants of environmental battles over the limits of industrialization, profiteering, and globalization.

Since the middle of the nineteenth century, logging operations have eaten away at the redwood forest, particularly the ancient giant redwoods. Today, such trees occupy a mere 120,000 acres. Their existence is testimony to the efforts of activists to rescue them from destruction. Very few conservation battles have endured longer or with more violence than on the North Coast of California, behind what locals call the Redwood Curtain.

Defending Giants explores the long history of the Redwood Wars, which pitted workers and environmental activists against the rising tide of globalization and industrial logging in a complex war over endangered species, sustainable forestry, and, of course, the fate of the ancient redwoods. Ultimately, the Clinton administration sidestepped Congress and the courts to negotiate an innovative compromise, which transformed American environmental politics by shifting the balance of power away from Congress and into the hands of the executive branch.

DARREN FREDERICK SPEECE is a history teacher and assistant dean of students at Sidwell Friends School.

“We need more histories of important examples of nonviolent resistance and creative campaigning, and Defending Giants is a much-needed model of careful and serious reporting and analysis that fills this void. It also brings back to life the story of some of the most committed and capable environmentalists I’ve ever known, people who worked on a scale as epic as the forests they fought for.” —BILL MCKIBBEN, author of The End of Nature

“The finest book written on the history of American environmentalism in the last five years. . . . Defending Giants is an outstanding contribution.” —H-Environment

 “[A] wonderfully written, extremely engaging story. Speece continually pushes his history in a variety of important directions. It is these broader connections, linking ecologies and economies, locals, lawyers, and loggers, and a relatively small forest in northern California to the nation’s capital in Washington, D.C., that make Defending Giants an important book.” —American Historical Review
Faith and Empire
Art and Politics in Tibetan Buddhism

Faith and Empire explores the dynamic intersection of politics, religion, and art in Tibetan Buddhism. At the heart of this dynamic is the force of religion to claim political power. Covering the Tibetan, Tangut, Mongolian, Chinese, and Manchu empires from the seventh to the early twentieth century, this volume illuminates how Tibetan Buddhism presented both a model of universal sacral kingship and a tantric ritual technology to physical power. Tibetans also used the mechanism of reincarnation as a means of succession, a unique form of political legitimacy that they brought to empires to the east. Images were a primary means of political propagation, integral to magical tantric rites and embodiments of power. Through the lens of Tibetan Buddhism’s potent historic political role in Asia, Faith and Empire seeks to place Himalayan art in a larger global context and shed light on an important but little-known aspect of power in the Tibetan tradition.

Working with the Ancestors

Mana and Place in the Marquesas Islands

EMILY C. DONALDSON

Throughout the Marquesas Islands of French Polynesia, forest spirits share space with ancestral ruins and active agricultural plots, affecting land use and heritage preservation. As their efforts to establish UNESCO World Heritage status continue, Marquesans grapple with questions about when sites should be preserved intact, when neglect is an appropriate option, and when deterioration resulting from local livelihoods should be accepted.

In Working with the Ancestors Emily Donaldson considers how Marquesan perceptions of heritage and mana, or sacred power, have influenced the use of land in the islands and how both cultural and environmental sustainability can be achieved. The Marquesas’ relative geographical isolation and ecological richness are the backdrop for the confluence of international heritage preservation and sustainability efforts that affect both resources and Indigenous peoples. Donaldson demonstrates how anthropological concepts of embodiment, alienation, place, and power can inform global resource management, offering a new approach that integrates analyses of policy, practice, and heritage.

EMILY C. DONALDSON is adjunct faculty in the Department of Anthropology at Saint Michael’s College and the University of Vermont.

Living with Oil and Coal

Resource Politics and Militarization in Northeast India

Dolly Ki KoN

The nineteenth-century discovery of oil in the eastern Himalayan foothills, together with the establishment of tea plantations and other extractive industries, continues to have a profound impact on life in the region. In the Indian states of Assam and Nagaland, everyday militarization, violence, and the scramble for natural resources regulate the lives of Naga, Ahom, and Adivasi people, as well as migrants from elsewhere in the region, as they struggle to find peace and work.

Anthropologist Dolly Kikon uses in-depth ethnographic accounts to address the complexity of Northeast India, a region between Southeast Asia and China where boundaries and borders are made, disputed, and maintained. Bringing a fresh and exciting direction to borderland studies, she explores the social bonds established through practices of resource extraction and the tensions these relations generate, focusing on people’s love for the landscape and for the state, as well as for family, friends, and neighbors. Living with Oil and Coal illuminates questions of citizenship, social justice, and environmental politics that are shared by communities worldwide.

DOLLY KIKON is senior lecturer in the Anthropology and Development Studies Program at the University of Melbourne. She is the author of Life and Dignity: Women’s Testimonies of Sexual Violence in Dimapur (Nagaland) and Experiences of Naga Women in Armed Conflict: Narratives from a Militarized Society.

Climate Change and the Art of Devotion

Geoaesthetics in the Land of Krishna, 1550–1850

SUGATA RAY

In the enchanted world of Braj, the primary pilgrimage center in north India for worshippers of Krishna, each stone, river, and tree is considered sacred. In Climate Change and the Art of Devotion, Sugata Ray shows how this place-centered theology emerged in the wake of the Little Ice Age (ca. 1550–1850), an epoch marked by climatic catastrophes across the globe. Using the frame of geoaesthetics, he compares early modern conceptions of the environment and current assumptions about nature and culture.

A groundbreaking contribution to the emerging field of eco–art history, the book examines architecture, paintings, photography, and prints created in Braj alongside theological treatises and devotional poetry to foreground seepages between the natural ecosystem and cultural production. The paintings of deified rivers, temples that emulate fragrant groves, and talismanic bleeding rocks that Ray discusses will captivate readers interested in environmental humanities and South Asian art history.

SUGATA RAY is associate professor of South and Southeast Asian Art at the University of California, Berkeley.

“A bold and ambitious project that takes on a sweeping range of issues across both the humanities and social sciences. Ray brings core Indian material into dialogue with current conversations about the relationship between the human and nonhuman, between materiality and immateriality, and climate change and visual culture. The book serves as a challenge to future scholars to expand the range of their own conversations.” — TAMARA SEARS, author of Worldly Gurus and Spiritual Kings: Architecture and Asceticism in Medieval India
Mountain Temples and Temple Mountains

Architecture, Religion, and Nature in the Central Himalayas

From approximately the third century BCE through the thirteenth century CE, the remote mountainous landscape around the glacial sources of the Ganga (Ganges) River in the Central Himalayas in northern India was transformed into a region encoded with deep meaning, one approached by millions of Hindus as a primary locus of pilgrimage.

Nachiket Chanchani’s innovative study explores scores of stone edifices and steles that were erected in this landscape. Through their forms, locations, interactions with the natural environment, and sociopolitical context, these lithic ensembles evoked legendary worlds, embedded historical memories in the topography, changed the mountain range’s appearance, and shifted its semiotic effect. Mountain Temples and Temple Mountains also alters our understanding of the transmission of architectural knowledge and provides new evidence of how an enduring idea of India emerged in the subcontinent.

Nachiket Chanchani is associate professor in the Departments of the History of Art and Asian Languages and Cultures at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor.

“A very contemporary view of sacredness as something constructed, changing, and developing over time, Mountain Temples and Temple Mountains gives a compelling picture of the infusion of Sanskrit culture into the Central Himalayas and the growing mythological importance of the Himalayas in far-flung parts of India.” —ADAM HARDY, author of Theory and Practice of Temple Architecture in Medieval India

“An ambitious and engaging book that encourages readers to consider how this geographically challenging and stunningly beautiful region gradually emerged as a sacred landscape with some of South Asia’s most important Hindu pilgrimage sites located in its farthest reaches.” —CRISPIN BRANFOOT, Reader in the History of South Asian Art and Archaeology, SOAS University of London

Unruly Figures
Queerness, Sex Work, and the Politics of Sexuality in Kerala

Navaneetha Mokkil

The vibrant media landscape in the southern Indian state of Kerala, where kiosks overflow with magazines and colorful film posters line roadside walls, creates a sexually charged public sphere that has a long history of political protests. The 2014 “Kiss of Love” campaign garnered national attention, sparking controversy as images of activists kissing in public and dragged into police vans flooded the media.

In Unruly Figures, Navaneetha Mokkil tracks the cultural practices through which sexual figures—particularly the sex worker and the lesbian—are produced in the public imagination. Her analysis includes representations of the prostitute figure in popular media, trajectories of queerness in Malayalam films, public discourse on lesbian sexuality, the autobiographical project of sex worker and activist Nalini Jameela, and the memorialization of murdered transgender activist Sweet Maria, showing how various marginalized figures stage their own fractured journeys of resistance in the post-1990s context of globalization.

By bringing a substantial body of Malayalam-language literature and media texts on gender, sexuality, and social justice into conversation with current debates around sexuality studies and transnational feminism in Asian and Anglo-American academia, Mokkil reorients the debates on sexuality in India by considering the fraught trajectories of identity and rights.

NAVANEETHA MOKKIL is assistant professor at the Centre for Women’s Studies at Jawaharlal Nehru University. She is the coeditor of Thinking Women: A Feminist Reader.
In the early 2000s, as India was emerging as a global superpower, a key development project off the southern Indian coast was thwarted by intense opposition. The construction of a new shipping canal angered Hindu nationalists who sought to protect what they saw as the land bridge built by Hanuman and his monkey army in the Indian epic Ramayana. Environmentalists also protested against the canal, claiming that it severely threatened a fragile and globally important ecosystem. As the controversy grew, the religious and environmental arguments converged, reflecting the evolving relationship between science and religion that marks the hypernationalism of the contemporary Hindu right.

Through this case study and others, Banu Subramaniam exposes the limitations of the “universality” of science, to reveal how science in postcolonial contexts is always locally inflected and modulated. Evoking the rich mythology of comingled worlds, where humans, animals, and gods transform each other and ancient history, Subramaniam demonstrates how Hindu nationalism sutures an ideal past to technologies of the present by making bold claims about the scientific basis of Vedic civilization and deploying this narrative to consolidate caste, patriarchal, and Hindu power. Moving beyond a critique of this emerging bionationalism, she explores the generative possibility of myth and story, interweaving compelling new tales of fictionalized beings like the avatars of Hindu mythology into a rich analysis that animates alternative imaginaries and other worlds of possibilities.

BANU SUBRAMANIAM is professor of women, gender, and sexuality studies at University of Massachusetts, Amherst, and author of Ghost Stories for Darwin: The Science of Variation and the Politics of Diversity, winner of the 2016 Ludwik Fleck Award from the Society for the Social Studies of Science.

“At a time when nationalism and populism are flourishing, Subramaniam draws on her unique expertise at the intersection of the life sciences and studies of identity politics to help readers understand how it is that science and religion have become bedfellows in Hindu nationalist ideology.” —KATH WESTON, author of Animate Planet: Making Visceral Sense of Living in a High-Tech Ecologically Damaged World
Beyond nostalgic tea industry ads romanticizing colonial Ceylon and the impoverished conditions that beleaguer Tamil tea workers are the stories of the women, men, and children who have built their families and lives in line houses on tea plantations since the nineteenth century. The tea industry’s economic crisis and Sri Lanka’s twenty-six-year-long civil war have ushered in changes to life and work on the plantations, where family members now migrate from plucking tea to performing domestic work in the capital city of Colombo or farther afield in the Middle East. Using feminist ethnographic methods in research that spans the transitional time between 2008 and 2017, Mythri Jegathesan presents the lived experience of these women and men working in agricultural, migrant, and intimate labor sectors.

In Tea and Solidarity, Jegathesan seeks to expand anthropological understandings of dispossession, drawing attention to the political significance of gender as a key feature in investment and place making in Sri Lanka specifically, and South Asia more broadly. This vivid and engaging ethnography sheds light on an otherwise marginalized and often invisible minority whose labor and collective heritage of dispossession as “coolies” in colonial Ceylon are central to Sri Lanka’s global recognition, economic growth, and history as a postcolonial nation.

MYTHRI JEGATHESAN is assistant professor of anthropology at Santa Clara University.

“Examines the lives of women residing (and often working) on tea plantations in Sri Lanka’s central highlands, with emphasis on how the prevailing cultural norms and labor relations limit and disempower them.”—MICHELLE GAMBURD, author of The Golden Wave: Culture and Politics after Sri Lanka’s Tsunami Disaster

“Using compelling stories, impressive fieldwork, and thorough archival research, Mythri Jegathesan explores the desires of contemporary plantation workers and their efforts to pursue social and economic dignity.”—CAITRIN LYNCH, author of Juki Girls, Good Girls: Gender and Cultural Politics in Sri Lanka’s Global Garment Industry
In Kashmir’s frigid winter a woman leaves her door cracked open, waiting for the return of her only son. Every month in a public park in Srinagar, a child remembers her father as she joins her mother in collective mourning. The activist women who form the Association of the Parents of the Disappeared Persons (APDP) keep public attention focused on the 8,000 to 10,000 Kashmiri men disappeared by the Indian government forces since 1989. Surrounded by Indian troops, international photojournalists, and curious onlookers, the APDP activists cry, lament, and sing while holding photos and files documenting the lives of their disappeared loved ones. In this radical departure from traditionally private rituals of mourning, they create a spectacle of mourning that combats the government’s threatening silence about the fates of their sons, husbands, and fathers.

Drawn from Ather Zia’s ten years of engagement with the APDP as an anthropologist and fellow Kashmiri activist, Resisting Disappearance follows mothers and “half-widows” as they step boldly into courts, military camps, and morgues in search of their disappeared kin. Through an amalgam of ethnography, poetry, and photography, Zia illuminates how dynamics of gender and trauma in Kashmir have been transformed in the face of South Asia’s longest-running conflict, providing profound insight into how Kashmiri women and men nurture a politics of resistance while facing increasing military violence under India.

Ather Zia is assistant professor of anthropology and gender studies at the University of Northern Colorado. She is the founder-editor of Kashmir Lit, an online journal of Kashmiri and diaspora writing, and the cofounder of Critical Kashmir Studies, an interdisciplinary network of scholars working on the Kashmir region.

“Extreme violence has disfigured life in Kashmir for over three decades. Ather Zia’s Resisting Disappearance is an empathetic and deeply political demonstration of the many ways in which Kashmiri women suffer, mourn, and memorialize those they have lost. It is also, crucially, an account of the creativity with which these women have—within the constraints of state and local power—fought back.” —Suvir Kaul, author of Of Gardens and Graves: Kashmir, Poetry, Politics
Bhakti and Power
Debating India’s Religion of the Heart

Bhakti, a term ubiquitous in the religious life of South Asia, has meanings that shift dramatically according to context and sentiment. Sometimes translated as “personal devotion,” bhakti nonetheless implies and fosters public interaction. It is often associated with the marginalized voices of women and lower castes, yet it has also played a role in perpetuating injustice. Barriers have been torn down in the name of bhakti, while others have been built simultaneously.

Bhakti and Power provides an accessible entry into key debates around issues such as these, presenting voices and vignettes from the sixth century to the present and from many parts of India’s cultural landscape. Written by a wide range of engaged scholars, this volume showcases one of the most influential concepts in Indian history—still a major force in the present day.

Marrying for a Future

Transnational Sri Lankan Tamil Marriages in the Shadow of War

SIDHARTHAN MAUNAGURU

The civil war between the Sri Lankan state and Tamil militants lasted more than three decades and led to mass migration, mainly to India, Canada, and Europe. In Marrying for a Future, Sidharthan Maunaguru argues that the social institution of marriage has emerged as a critical means of building alliances between dispersed segments of Tamil communities, allowing scattered groups to reunite across national borders, fostered by key participants in and elements of the marriage process, such as wedding photographers, marriage brokers, legal documents, and transit places.

Marrying for a Future contributes to transnational and diaspora marriage studies by looking at the temporary spaces through which migrants and refugees travel in addition to their home and host countries. It provides a new conceptual framework for studies on kinship and marriage and addresses a community that has been separated across borders as a result of war.

SIDHARTHAN MAUNAGURU is assistant professor in the South Asian Studies Programme and the Department of Sociology at the National University of Singapore.

“Reveals a whole new dimension of transnational marriage by documenting the role of marriage brokers and ‘marriage packagers’ and the tragic dilemmas that sometimes arise from marriages in which one spouse is an immigrant.” —ISABELLE CLARK-DECÈS, author of The Right Spouse: Preferential Marriages in Tamil Nadu

Sensitive Space

Fragmented Territory at the India-Bangladesh Border

JASON CONS

Enclaves along the India-Bangladesh border have posed conceptual and pragmatic challenges to both states since Partition in 1947. These pieces of India inside of Bangladesh, and vice versa, are spaces in which national security, belonging, and control are shown in sharp relief. Through ethnographic and historical analysis, Jason Cons argues that they are key locations for rethinking the production of territory in South Asia today. Sensitive Space examines the ways that these areas mark a range of anxieties over territory, land, and national survival and lead us to consider why certain places emerge as contentious, and often violent, spaces at the margins of nation and state.

JASON CONS is assistant professor of anthropology at the University of Texas at Austin.

“[Con’s] rich ethnographic material reveal[s] the complexities of postcolonial sovereignty, insecurity, and precarity. The result is a highly readable, theoretically acute, and sharply insightful work.” —Journal of Asian Studies

Tang dynasty (618–907) China hummed with cosmopolitan trends. Its capital at Chang’an was the most populous city in the world and was connected via the Silk Road with the critical markets and thriving cultures of Central Asia and the Middle East. In Empire of Style, BuYun Chen reveals a vibrant fashion system that emerged through the efforts of Tang artisans, wearers, and critics of clothing. Across the empire, elite men and women subverted regulations on dress to acquire majestic silks and au courant designs, as shifts in economic and social structures gave rise to what we now recognize as precursors of a modern fashion system: a new consciousness of time, a game of imitation and emulation, and a shift in modes of production.

This first book on fashion in premodern China is informed by archaeological sources—paintings, figurines, and silk artifacts—and textual records such as dynastic annals, poetry, tax documents, economic treatises, and sumptuary laws. Tang fashion is shown to have flourished in response to a confluence of social, economic, and political changes that brought innovative weavers and chic court elites to the forefront of history.

BuYun Chen is assistant professor of history at Swarthmore College.

“An outstanding and groundbreaking book. BuYun Chen argues that during the Tang dynasty, as today, fashion both tracks and influences changes in society. Empire of Style makes many contributions to the study of Chinese material culture and social history.” —SUZANNE CAHILL, author of Warriors, Tombs, and Temples: China’s Enduring Legacy

“Surviving Tang textiles, figurines, and paintings provide Chen with wonderful source material for this fluently written study of Tang fashion.” —PATRICIA BUCKLEY EBREY, author of Accumulating Culture: The Collections of Emperor Huizong
Mouse vs. Cat in Chinese Literature
Tales and Commentary

In literatures worldwide, animal fables have been analyzed for their revealingly anthropomorphic views, but until now little attention has been given to the animal tales of China. The complex, competitive relationship between rodents (vilified as thieves of grain) and the felines with whom they are perennially at war is explored in this presentation of Chinese tales about cats and mice. Master translator Wilt Idema situates them in an overview of animal tales in world literature, in the Chinese literary tradition as a whole, and within Chinese imaginative depictions of animals.

The tales demonstrate the animals’ symbolism and their unusually prominent—and verbal—role in the stories. These readings depict cats and mice in conflict, in marital bonds, and in litigation—most centrally in a legal case of a mouse against a cat in the underworld court of King Yama. Many of the stories adopt the perspective of the mice as animals merely trying to survive, while also recognizing that cats are natural hunters.

This entertaining volume will appeal to readers interested in Chinese literature and society, comparative literature, and posthumanist consideration of human-animal relations.

WILT L. IDEMA is professor emeritus of Chinese literature at Harvard University. He is the author of Chinese Vernacular Fiction: The Formative Period, coauthor of The Red Brush: Writing Women of Imperial China, and translator of Two Centuries of Manchu Women Poets: An Anthology and other works of traditional Chinese literature. HAIYAN LEE is professor of East Asian languages and cultures and of comparative literature at Stanford University. She is the author of Revolution of the Heart: A Genealogy of Love in China, 1900–1950 and The Stranger and the Chinese Moral Imagination.

The White Lotus War
Rebellion and Suppression in Late Imperial China

Yingcong Dai

The White Lotus War (1796–1804) in central China marked the end of the Qing dynasty’s golden age and the fatal weakening of the imperial system itself. What started as a local rebellion grew into a serious political crisis, as the central government was no longer able to operate its military machine.

Yingcong Dai’s comprehensive investigation reveals that the White Lotus rebels would have remained a relatively minor threat if not for the Qing’s ill-managed response. Dai shows that the officials in charge of the suppression campaign were half-hearted about the fight and took advantage of the campaign to pursue personal gains. She challenges assumptions that the Qing relied upon local militias to exterminate the rebels, showing instead that the hiring of civilians became a pretext for misappropriation of war funds, resulting in the devastatingly high cost of the war. Mishandled demilitarization of the militiamen prolonged the hostilities when many of the dismissed troops turned into rebels themselves. The war’s long-term impact presaged the beginning of the Qing’s disintegration in the mid-nineteenth century and eruptions of the Taiping Rebellion and other uprisings.

The White Lotus War will interest students and scholars of late imperial and modern Chinese history, as well as history buffs interested in the warfare of the early modern world.

Yingcong Dai is professor of history at William Paterson University. She is the author of The Sichuan Frontier and Tibet: Imperial Strategy in the Early Qing.

State Power in China, 900–1325

EDITED BY PATRICIA BUCKLEY EBREY AND PAUL JAKOV SMITH

This collection provides new ways to understand how state power was exercised during the overlapping Liao, Song, Jin, and Yuan dynasties. Using a set of case studies, the contributors examine large questions concerning dynastic legitimacy, factional strife, the relationship between the literati and the state, and the value of centralization. How was state power exercised? Why did factional strife periodically become ferocious? Which problems did reformers seek to address? Could subordinate groups resist the state? How did politics shape the sources that survive?

The essays explore key elements of state power, ranging from armies, taxes, and imperial patronage to factional struggles, officials’ personal networks, and ways to secure control of conquered territory. The contributors draw on new sources as well as historical perspectives to illuminate the institutional side of state power while confronting evidence of instability and change—of ways to gain, lose, or exercise power.

PATRICIA BUCKLEY EBREY is professor of history at the University of Washington. She is the author of Accumulating Culture: The Collections of Emperor Huizong. PAUL JAKOV SMITH is professor of history at Haverford College. He is coeditor of The Song-Yuan-Ming Transition in Chinese History. The other contributors are Elad Alyagon, Song Chen, Charles Hartman, Li Huarui, Tracy Miller, Jaeyoon Song, and Cong Ellen Zhang.

Heroines of the Qing

Exemplary Women Tell Their Stories

BINBIN YANG

Heroines of the Qing introduces an array of Chinese women from the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries who wrote themselves as the heroines of their exemplary stories. Traditionally, “exemplary women” (liennü)—heroic martyrs, chaste widows, and faithful maidens, for example—were written into dynastic histories for their adherence to female virtue by Confucian family standards. However, their lives were often distorted by moral and cultural agendas. Binbin Yang shows how these exemplars crossed boundaries—of gender, but also of knowledge, economic power, political engagement, and cultural authority—that were typically closed to women. Yang examines the strategies they used in various writing genres and highlights their skillful negotiation with, and appropriation of, the values of female exemplarity for self-empowerment.

BINBIN YANG is assistant professor of Chinese at the University of Hong Kong.

“Binbin Yang’s pathbreaking study of Qing women writers’ self-empowerment as female exemplars takes the field of women’s culture in late imperial China to a whole new level. . . . A stunning achievement.” —GRACE FONG, author of Herself an Author: Gender, Agency, and Writing in Late Imperial China

The Nuosu Book of Origins
A Creation Epic from Southwest China

The Nuosu people, who were once overlords of vast tracts of farmland and forest in the uplands of southern Sichuan and neighboring provinces, are the largest division of the Yi ethnic group in southwest China. Their creation epic plots the origins of the cosmos, the sky and earth, and the living beings of land and water. This translation is a rare example in English of Indigenous ethnic literature from China.

Transmitted in oral and written forms for centuries among the Nuosu, The Book of Origins is performed by bimo priests and other tradition-bearers. Poetic in form, the narrative provides insights into how a clan- and caste-based society organizes itself, dictates ethics, relates to other ethnic groups, and adapts to a harsh environment. A comprehensive introduction to the translation describes the land and people, summarizes the work's themes, and discusses the significance of The Book of Origins for the understanding of folk epics, ethnoecology, and ethnic relations.

Bronze and Stone
The Cult of Antiquity in Song Dynasty China

Despite China's long tradition of venerating the past as the ultimate source of cultural authority, the discourse of antiquity prior to the Song period (960–1279) demonstrated little concern for ancient objects. With a focus on physical artifacts of the past, Song intellectuals began a new discipline, “the study of bronze and stone” (jinshixue), that generated collections of items such as bronze vessels and bells, stone steles, and ink rubbings of inscriptions carved or cast on objects.

This first comprehensive study in English of the Song antiquarian movement and how it refashioned the distant past uses textual and material evidence to examine this development, which has had long-lasting influence on Chinese intellectual history and on the preservation of material objects. In addition to collecting and comparing artifacts, Song antiquarians compiled extensive catalogs that included drawings, measurements, and meticulous descriptions. These studies have contributed to the way history has been documented since the eleventh century and serve as a basis for archaeology of the modern period.

Bronze and Stone contextualizes the Song antiquarian movement among previous Chinese engagements with antiquity, subsequent popular interest in ancient objects, and world antiquarianism.

Improvised City

Architecture and Governance in Shanghai, 1843–1937

For nearly one hundred years, Shanghai was an international treaty port in which the extraterritorial rights of foreign governments shaped both architecture and infrastructure, and it merits examination as one of the most complex and influential urban environments of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Improvised City illuminates the interplay between the city’s commercial nature and the architectural forms and practices designed to manage it in Shanghai’s three municipalities: the International Settlement, the French Concession, and the Chinese city.

This book probes the relationship between architecture and extraterritoriality in ways that challenge standard narratives of Shanghai’s built environment, which are dominated by stylistic analyses of major landmarks. Instead, by considering a wider range of town halls, post offices, municipal offices, war memorials, water works, and consulates, Cole Roskam traces the cultural, economic, political, and spatial negotiations that shaped Shanghai’s growth. Improvised City repositions Shanghai within architectural and urban transformations that reshaped the world over the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. It responds to growing academic interest in the history of modern and contemporary Chinese architecture and urbanism; the ongoing, shifting relationship between sovereignty and space; and the variegated forms of urban exceptionality—such as special economic zones, tax-free trading spheres, and commercial enclaves—that continue to shape cities.

Cole Roskam is associate professor of architectural history at the University of Hong Kong.

“An important contribution to the growing literature related to Shanghai’s architectural and urban history. Impressive in its scope, research depth, and clear articulation of key events, people, and places that epitomize Shanghai’s remarkable metamorphoses.” —Jeffrey W. Cody, senior project specialist, Building and Sites Department, Getty Conservation Institute

“Roskam explores the formative role of architecture in establishing and transforming the cultural and political foundations of the foreign concessions in Shanghai.” —Peter J. Carroll, author of Between Heaven and Modernity: Reconstructing Suzhou, 1895–1937
Beyond Death
The Politics of Suicide and Martyrdom in Korea

Suicide and martyrdom are closely intertwined with Korean social and political processes. In this first book-length study of the evolving ideals of honorable death and martyrdom from the Chosón dynasty (1392–1910) to contemporary South Korea, interdisciplinary essays explore the changing ways in which Korean historical agents have considered what constitutes a sociopolitically meaningful death and how the surviving community should remember such events.

Among the topics covered are the implications of women’s chaste suicides and men’s righteous killings in the evolving Confucian-influenced social order of the latter half of the Chosón dynasty; changing nation-centered constructions of sacrifice and martyrdom put forth by influential intellectual figures in mid-twentieth-century South Korea, which were informed by the politics of postcolonial transition and Cold War ideology; and the decisive role of martyrdom in South Korea’s interlinked democracy and labor movements, including Chun Tae-il’s self-immolation in 1970, the loss of hundreds of lives during the Kwangju Uprising of 1980, and the escalation of protest suicides in the 1980s and early 1990s.

Top-Down Democracy in South Korea

Although South Korea is widely heralded as a successful new democracy—buttressed by a politically engaged public—elections have done less than expected to force political parties to reorganize their elitist structures. In Top-Down Democracy in South Korea, Erik Mobrand demonstrates that political elites, contrary to theoretical expectations, have responded to freer and fairer elections by entrenching rather than abandoning exclusionary practices and forms of party organization.

Retelling South Korea’s political development from 1945 through the end of dictatorship in the 1980s and into the twenty-first century, Mobrand challenges the view that the origins of the postauthoritarian political system lie in a series of popular movements that eventually undid repression. He argues that we should think about democratization not as the establishment of an entirely new system, but as the subtle blending of new formal rules with earlier authority structures, political institutions, and legitimizing norms.

ERIK MOBRAND is associate professor in the Graduate School of International Studies at Seoul National University.

Mapping Chinese Rangoon

Place and Nation among the Sino-Burmese

JAYDE LIN ROBERTS

Mapping Chinese Rangoon is both an intimate exploration of the Sino-Burmese, people of Chinese descent who identify with and choose to remain in Burma/Myanmar, and an illumination of twenty-first-century Burma during its emergence from decades of military-imposed isolation. This spatial ethnography examines how the Sino-Burmese have lived between states, cognizant of the insecurity in their unclear political status but aware of the social and economic possibilities in this gray zone between two oppressive regimes.

For the Sino-Burmese in Rangoon, the labels of Chinese and Tayout (the Burmese equivalent of Chinese) fail to recognize the linguistic and cultural differences between the separate groups that have settled in the city—Hokkien, Cantonese, and Hakka—and conflate this diverse population with the state actions of the People’s Republic of China. This first English-language study of the Sino-Burmese examines the concepts of ethnicity, territory, and nation in an area where ethnicity is inextricably tied to state violence.

The New Way

Protestantism and the Hmong in Vietnam

TÂM T. T. NGÔ

In the mid-1980s, a radio program with a compelling spiritual message was accidentally received by listeners in Vietnam’s remote northern highlands. The communication, created in the Hmong language by the Far East Broadcasting Company, was aimed at war refugees in Laos, but the Vietnamese Hmong related the content to their expectation of salvation by a Hmong messiah-king who would lead them out of subjugation, and they appropriated the message for themselves. Today, the New Way (Kev Cai Tshiab) has some three hundred thousand followers in Vietnam.

Tâm T. T. Ngô reveals the politics of religion and ethnic relations in contemporary Vietnam and the interplay between local and global forces, socialist and postsocialist state building, Cold War and post–Cold War antagonisms, Hmong transnationalism, and evangelical expansionism.

TÂM T. T. NGÔ is a research fellow in the Department of Religious Diversity at the Max Planck Institute for the Study of Religious and Ethnic Diversity in Germany.

“A great achievement. . . . Ngô has become the first academic to publish English-language research about this topic based on ethnographic methods, which is no mean feat given the government restrictions placed on academic research in upland Vietnam.”—Southeast Asian Studies

The Rebecca and Jack Benaroya Collection

STEFANO CATALANI, ARUNA D’SOUZA, ROCK HUSHKA, AND TINA OLDKNOW

This book celebrates the generous promised gift of over three hundred works from the collection of Rebecca and Jack Benaroya to the Tacoma Art Museum. Rebecca and Jack built their collection over the course of thirty-five years, starting in 1980 with Dale Chihuly’s blown glass Tomato Red Basket Set. The couple followed their passions and acquired seminal works from some of the Northwest artists and international artists who transformed the Pilchuck Glass School into a world-renowned center for innovation and experimentation. These artists include Olga de Amaral, Howard Ben Tré, Sonja Blomdahl, Kenneth Callahan, Joey Kirkpatrick and Flora C. Mace, Kyohei Fujita, Morris Graves, Paul Horiiuchi, Stanislav Libenský and Jaroslava Brychtová, William Morris, Ginny Ruffner, Bertil Vallien, and more. Their works are generously reproduced in full color and accompanied by scholarly essays by Stefano Catalani, Aruna D’Souza, Rock Hushka, and Tina Oldnow.

STEFANO CATALANI is executive director of the Gage Academy of Art in Seattle. ARUNA D’SOUZA writes about modern and contemporary art for 4Columns and is the author of Whitewalling: Art, Race, & Protest in 3 Acts. ROCK HUSHKA is chief curator and curator of contemporary and Northwest art at Tacoma Art Museum. TINA OLDKNOW is former senior curator of modern and contemporary glass at the Corning Museum of Glass in Corning, New York.

Gordon Walker

A Poetic Architecture

GRANT HILDEBRAND

Gordon Walker’s (b. 1939) highly unusual design process has yielded an extensive architecture of extraordinary quality; he is a unique figure in the American architectural movement and in the history of the Pacific Northwest. This personal and professional biography contributes both to our understanding of the breadth of viable design processes and, in a broader sense, to regional and architectural history.

Gordon Walker, a 1962 graduate of the University of Idaho, was cofounder of Olson Walker Architects (now Olson Kundig), worked with NBBJ in Seattle and San Francisco, and practiced in his own name for twelve years before joining Mithun Architects as a consulting principal. His work embraces the American west coast from Davis, California, to the Canadian border. He has designed over thirty residences (and built several with his own hands); a host of buildings and plans for universities throughout the Northwest and California; and myriad commercial buildings, remodels, restaurants, and parks. He has been an educator and mentor, teaching at the Universities of Idaho and Washington. In addressing all of its determinants simultaneously in plan, section, and elevation, Gordon Walker has, for half a century, created an architecture of exceptional merit.

GRANT HILDEBRAND is an architect, professor of architecture at the University of Washington for forty years, and author of ten books on architecture.
Heaven and Earth in Chinese Art

Treasures from the National Palace Museum, Taipei

This publication presents some of the highest artistic achievements in Chinese history. Drawing on the exceptional collection of the National Palace Museum in Taipei, Heaven and Earth in Chinese Art: Treasures from the National Palace Museum, Taipei celebrates the rich heritage of Chinese culture through the ancient Chinese concept of tian ren he yi—unity or harmony between heaven, nature, and humanity.

As expressed by Song dynasty scholar Zhang Zai (1020–77), who developed this concept of unity, “nature is the result of the fusion and intermingling of the vital forces (qi) that assume tangible forms. Mountains, rivers, rocks, trees, animals, and human beings are all modalities of energy-matter, symbolizing that the creative transformation of the Tao [Dao] is forever present.” Similar expressions of this unity are common to the three major philosophical and religious traditions of Daoism, Confucianism, and Buddhism that form the foundation of the Chinese belief system.

Heaven and Earth in Chinese Art includes over eighty artworks of outstanding beauty covering paintings, calligraphy, illustrated books, bronzes, ceramics, and jade and wood carvings.

The National Palace Museum in Taipei holds one of the finest selections of Chinese art in the world. Once held in imperial collections inside Beijing’s Forbidden City, many of the treasures were transferred to Taiwan during the unrest of the 1940s and have rarely traveled since.

YIN CAO is curator of Chinese art at the Art Gallery of New South Wales. Her most recent exhibitions and publications are Tang: Treasures from the Silk Road Capital and A Silk Road Saga: The Sarcophagus of Yuhong. DR KARYN LAI is associate professor of philosophy in the School of Humanities and Languages at the University of New South Wales. She is the author of Learning from Chinese Philosophies and Introduction to Chinese Philosophy.
Imants Tillers

Journey to Nowhere

ELITA ANSONE, GRAHAM COULTER-SMITH, MARK LEDBURY, IAN MCLEAN, AND IMANTS TILLERS

For the renowned artist Imants Tillers, whose career spans more than four decades of prolific creative practice, this “journey to nowhere” is neither a homecoming nor a departure, but a fertile and thought-provoking meeting of worlds. The son of Latvian parents who were displaced during the Second World War, Tillers was born in Sydney, Australia, where he spoke Latvian before English and long felt the pull of a distant culture. Displacement, diaspora, and an awareness of the complex weave of cultures mark all his work, from his experiments with installation in the 1970s and trailblazing appropriations in the 1980s to the holistic system of modular (canvasboard) paintings.

ELITA ANSONE is an art historian and head of the Collections Department at Arsenals at the Latvian National Museum of Art. GRAHAM COULTER-SMITH is author of Deconstructing Installation Art and The Postmodern Art of Imants Tillers. MARK LEDBURY is Power Professor of Art History and director of the Power Institute at the University of Sydney. IAN MCLEAN is Hugh Ramsay Chair of Australian Art History at the University of Melbourne. IMANTS TILLERS is an artist who believes that artists should be not only seen but also heard.

Photography and Dissemination

GEORGEY BATECHEN

An engaging and provocative account of photography’s first commercial applications in England and their global implications. This book addresses a persistent gap in the study of photography’s history, moving beyond an appreciation of single breakthrough works to consider the photographic image’s newfound reproducibility and capacity for circulation through newsprint and other media in the nineteenth century.

Indonesian Splendour / Indische pracht
Four Centuries of Fascination for the Flora of Indonesia / Vier eeuwen fascinatie voor de flora van Indonesie

DENNIS A-TJAK AND BEA BROMMER

Bilingual English / Dutch

Indonesia’s flora—with more than 45,000 plant varieties—is one of the most abundant in the world. Photographer Dennis A-Tjak has been making a name for himself as the portraitist of old flower varieties from countries that the Dutch East India Company traded with during the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. What fascinates him most about these varieties is that some of them have been passed on from generation to generation. A-Tjak has developed his own style for photographing old flower varieties, and the hyper-realistic photographs exude perfection, drama, and elegance. They are surprising, sometimes disconcertingly abstract, but every one of them is delightful to look at.

DENNIS A-TJAK trained at the Rietveld School of Art and Design. BEA BROMMER is the author of To My Dear Pietermelleitje: Grandfather and Granddaughter in VOC Time, 1710–1720.
Lotty’s Bench

The Persecution of the Jews of Amsterdam Remembered

GERBEN POST

August 26, 1945: Lotty Veffer arrived in Amsterdam. She was the only member of her family to have survived the war. Her parents and younger sister Carla had been gassed in Sobibor. There was no heartfelt welcome for her, and eventually she was forced to spend her first night back “home” in Amsterdam on a park bench on the Apollolaan. In September 2017, the ninety-six-year-old Lotty was honored with her own monument, a bench on the exact same spot where she had spent that first night. Lotty passed away on July 27, 2018.

In Amsterdam alone there are more than eighty monuments created to remember the Holocaust. There are still many more locations that tell parts of the story: buildings, squares, and streets that were once silent witnesses to the darkest page in the city’s history. The ninety-five vignettes in Lotty’s Bench explore these monuments and locations to make clear how inextricably Amsterdam’s history is linked to the persecution of its Jews.

GERBEN POST works for the Anne Frank Foundation as an educator and historian. He also organizes walking tours through the old Jewish neighborhoods of Amsterdam.

The Kwee Family of Ciledug

Family, Status, and Modernity in Colonial Java

PETER POST

With May Ling Thio

This book, based upon a unique private collection of photographs and home movies of one Peranakan Chinese elite family, aims to bring the private lives of the modern Peranakan Chinese elite in colonial Java to the fore and asks to what extent ideas about progress and development have affected their worldview and lifestyles.

The existing Western images and perspectives focus mainly on the nexus between the Westerners and the native population, sharing one common theme: none of them visualized the Chinese as “carriers of modernity” or “agents of change.” This representation did not fit the public consciousness and general research paradigms in which change, progress, and modernity were mainly attributed to the Western presence in the region. The Kwee family photo albums give the opportunity to redress the balance, thereby offering a new perspective on the social dynamics of late-colonial Java.

PETER POST is senior researcher at the Niod Institute for War, Holocaust, and Genocide Studies in Amsterdam.
The Timeless Heritage of Thailand

JIM WAGEMAN
Foreword by William Chapman

From artifacts of ancient pre-Thai civilizations to achievements of the Thai kingdom in the early twentieth century, the enduring vestiges and persistent vitality of Thai heritage continue to entice visitors, residents, and researchers.

Photographer and author Jim Wageman traveled to both well-known and little-visited sites throughout Thailand to capture images that convey the breadth and intricacy of the country’s heritage. Wageman presents his images in a gorgeous layout that is matched by solid, well-researched captions and explanations. Beautiful and incisive, The Timeless Heritage of Thailand is an outstanding compendium for anyone fascinated by the treasures of Thailand’s cultural heritage.

JIM WAGEMAN is an award-winning former art director and designer at leading illustrated-book publishers and former director of graphic design at New York’s Museum of Modern Art. WILLIAM CHAPMAN is interim dean of the School of Architecture, University of Hawai‘i at Manoa.

Gender and the Path to Awakening

Hidden Histories of Nuns in Modern Thai Buddhism

MARTIN SEEGER

In Gender and the Path to Awakening, Martin Seeger lays out the nuances and varying conceptions of female renunciation in modern Thai Buddhism. Centered on long-term textual and ethnographic research on six remarkable female practitioners, Seeger considers trends and changes over the last 140 years in the practices of female renunciants and their devotees. He also investigates understandings of female sainthood in Thai Buddhism, its expressions in material culture, and the importance of orality and memory in Thai Buddhist epistemology.

Supported by interviews and careful study of sermons, hagiographies, and hitherto untranslated and rare Thai sources, this book examines the social backgrounds, modes of expression, veneration, and historical contexts of Thai women pursuing the Buddhist ideal. Rich in ethnographic detail and with additional grounding in foundational Indian Buddhist texts, this book offers new insights into the complexities of female renunciation and gender relations in modern Thai Buddhism.

MARTIN SEEGER is associate professor of Thai Studies at the University of Leeds. From 1997 to 2000 he was an ordained monk in northern Thailand.

Short Stories

SITOR SITUMORANG

Translated by Harry Aveling

Sitor Situmorang, one of the most celebrated Indonesian literary voices of the twentieth century, claimed that all his work dealt with a single theme—“love and wanderlust,” which are “two aspects of one and the same experience.” His remarkable short stories are celebrations of modern life, dealing with subjects such as seeking, belonging, identity, masculinity, and sensual interaction with the world at large. The characters are both introspective and physical, the settings sparse but evocative, the circumstances ordinary yet unexpected.

HARRY AVELING is professor in the School of Languages, Literatures, Cultures and Linguistics at Monash University.

Oceans of Longing

Nine Stories

SITOR SITUMORANG

Translated by Harry Aveling, Keith Foulcher, and Brian Russell Roberts

Born into a high-status family of the Batak ethnic group indigenous to North Sumatra, Sitor Situmorang (1924–2014) was a Dutch-educated Indonesian nationalist who experienced firsthand the transition from the Dutch East Indies of his youth to the modern Indonesia of his adulthood.

The stories in this collection are a window into the world of a writer dedicated to exploration and change but resolutely attached to the land, people, and stories of his homeland. Set variously in western Europe, post-independence Jakarta, and the modernizing communities of North Sumatra, the stories live in the “perpetual tension between the urge to wander and a longing for origins.”

HARRY AVELING is professor in the School of Languages, Literatures, Cultures and Linguistics at Monash University. KEITH FOULCHER is an honorary associate at the University of Sydney. BRIAN RUSSELL ROBERTS is associate professor of English at Brigham Young University.
A Kind of Solitude

Stories

DARIEL SUAREZ

Set in Cuba, largely after the fall of the Soviet Union, these eleven stories explore themes of isolation and preservation in the face of widespread poverty and sociopolitical oppression. From a chronically ill santero refusing medical care to a female-fronted heavy-metal band risking it all to emerge from Havana's underground, Dariel Suarez, in his daring debut, portrays the harsh reality, inherent humor, and resilient heart of a people whose stories should be known.

DARIEL SUAREZ currently resides in Boston, where he is the director of Core Programs and faculty at GrubStreet. He is the author of the poetry chapbook In the Land of Tropical Martyrs.
The Appointment

The Tale of Adaline Carson

JOHN KEEBLE

The action of this novel takes place in the West, but it is not a “Western”; and though its central focus is the life of Adaline Carson, daughter of the famed frontiersman Kit Carson, it is also not a biography. Set in the time of the California gold rush, it is a detailed and graphic elegy for America’s wide-open plains, rivers, and mountains and the people who lived in and passed through them, for both good and ill. It is a clear-eyed vision of how greed, love, frontier mastery, and the beset Native tribes contended for control of this stupendous immensity, and how one young woman and her father were taken up in the resulting maelstrom that has become our history.

JOHN KEEBLE is the author of seven previous books, including Yellowfish, Broken Ground, and The Shadows of Owls. He is also author of Out of the Channel, the definitive study of the Exxon Valdez disaster.

“The Appointment takes us on a vivid and compelling, precisely rendered journey into Western history and lights up an underworld of interfamily responsibilities.” —WILLIAM KITTREDGE

The Knowable Emotions

Poems

HEIKKI HUOTARI

Heikki Huotari’s poems oscillate between intense moments of scientific clarity and absurdist pirouettes that remind us that, while the “world” may be a dance of entropic chaos screened by a thin veneer of rational apology, the universe is largely a laughing matter. His work is absolute proof that Surrealism is not dead.

HEIKKI HUOTARI attended the graduate writing program at the University of Massachusetts for one year and then went on to a doctorate in mathematics. He became a professor and held down a corner of the “study of statistical inference and the shape of the related metric spaces.” Upon retirement from academia in 2012, he went straight back to poetry. His books include Tooth and Shoe and Fractal Idyll.
Pantheon

PHILIP MEMMER

Philip Memmer’s Pantheon is a collection of dramatic monologues written from the perspectives of imaginary gods. But these are not the usual mythological suspects: the voices here include such unlikely deities as the God of Error, the God of Skunks, the God of Shrugs, and the God of Lullabies. Whether their concerns are profound or ridiculous, and whether they speak with love or disdain, they share one thing in common: the faithful, mortal human to whom they speak.

PHILIP MEMMER is the author of four previous collections of poems, including The Storehouses of the Snow: Psalms, Parables, and Dreams; Lucifer: A Hagiography, winner of the 2008 Idaho Prize for Poetry; Threat of Pleasure, winner of the 2008 Adirondack Literary Award; and Sweetheart, Baby, Darling. Twice a Hawthornden Fellow, he is executive director of the YMCA’s Downtown Writers Center in Syracuse, New York, and also serves as associate editor for Tiger Bark Press.

American Loneliness

ROY BENTLEY

American Loneliness is peopled with the famous and the not-so-famous. It is a book tenanted by the Wright Brothers and Nettie Potter Bentley, Joseph Kennedy and James Brown and Jay Gatsby. America, as presented, bests brave women and men alike: “My mother is comfortable with fury. She accepts it. / Like she accepted the contents of the pockets of her / dead brothers, miscellanea handed her in a morgue. / She is a woman who does not defer readily to men.” Roy Bentley shows us the world as a kind of Wright Flyer soaring above an Ohio field, the hoped-for miracle we let be enough for now.

ROY BENTLEY is the author of Walking with Eve in the Loved City, a finalist for the Miller Williams Poetry Prize, and Starlight Taxi, which won the Blue Lynx Poetry Prize. His other books include The Trouble with a Short Horse in Montana, Any One Man, and Boy in a Boat. He has received fellowships from the Florida Division of Cultural Affairs, the Ohio Arts Council, and the NEA.
Smokes

YURI IZDRYK

Translated by Roman Ivashkiv and Erin Moure

Yuri Izdryk’s poetry explodes with existential contemplations regarding love, identity, nature, society, and even God. All of his poems play with language that encompasses incessant punning rhymes, Joycean multilingual puns, ludic shifts of tone and register, and scintillating intertextual games. In creating a sophisticated soundscape where sound drives meaning, Izdryk reinvigorates the rhyming tradition in Ukrainian poetry. To a North American reader, the poems—which are all short riffs—evoke styles of rap, hip-hop, or jazz. The translators of this selection of Izdryk’s work emphasize his zany rhythms to capture his deft play with both modernity and tradition, and his vigorous gallows humor.

YURI IZDRYK was born in western Ukraine, in Kalush, Ivano-Frankivsk region, in 1962. One of Ukraine’s most original and playful voices, Izdryk is a writer, musician, and visual and performance artist.

Sweetclover

SHANN RAY

Grounded in the physical while asking metaphysical questions, the poems in Sweetclover detail love, wilderness, fracture, and fusion. They speak of wildflowers, the slant of a collarbone, the flight feathers of predatory birds, and the eye of winter. American Book Award–winner Shann Ray’s affinity for Montana landscapes and the intimate heart of the beloved challenges the age of enfragement with delight in those we are graced to know.

SHANN RAY grew up in Montana and Alaska and spent part of his childhood on the Northern Cheyenne reservation. He is the author of American Masculine, Forgiveness and Power in the Age of Atrocity, American Copper, and Balefire. A systems psychologist focusing on the psychology of men, he lives in Spokane with his wife and three daughters and teaches leadership and forgiveness studies at Gonzaga University.

Radiation King

JASON GRAY

Ten years in the making, Radiation King, the second full-length collection by poet Jason Gray, takes us to the beginning and the possible futures of the atomic world we created at the start of the twentieth century. In a time when the Cold War has heated back up, his intense lyric poems engage a past filled with Civil Defense and radioactive quack cures and a future that could bring a radioactive wasteland or limitless energy. Gray’s poems explore the world from the smallest atom of hydrogen to the giant Pillars of Creation in the Eagle Nebula and find that the only thing that will save us is love for one another.

JASON GRAY is the author of Photographing Eden, winner of the 2008 Hollis Summers Prize. He has also published two chapbooks, How to Paint the Savior Dead and Adam and Eve Go to the Zoo.
Announcing RavenSpace!

RavenSpace is an innovative initiative for digital publishing in Indigenous studies, created by UBC Press and the University of Washington Press. It provides a new model and online platform for collaborative authorship and publishing, meeting the standards of peer-reviewed academic publishing and respecting Indigenous protocols for the ownership, access, and use of cultural heritage and traditional knowledge. Designed to engage multiple audiences, RavenSpace will offer tools for authors, educators, students, knowledge holders, and scholars.

This publishing initiative is made possible thanks to a grant from the Andrew W. Mellon Foundation.

As I Remember It

Teachings (ʔəms tɑʔɑw) from the Life of a Sliammon Elder

ELSIE PAUL, WITH DAVIS MCKENZIE, PAIGE RAIBMON, AND HARMONY JOHNSON

Meet Elder Elsie Paul and discover her stories, family history, and teachings—ʔəms tɑʔɑw—in a multi-media, online book that captures the wit and wisdom of her storytelling.

Raised by her grandparents on their ancestral territory on the Sunshine Coast, Elsie Paul of the Tla’amin Nation spent most of her childhood surrounded by the ways, teachings, and stories of her people. As her adult life unfolded against a backdrop of colonialism and racism, she drew strength and guidance from the teachings she had learned. In As I Remember It, she shares this traditional knowledge with a new generation in an engaging style and innovative format.

With this immersive online publication, readers can learn about the Sliammon language, listen to Elsie tell her stories, and watch short animations of legends and events. They can navigate by theme—Colonialism, Community, Territory, Healing & Medicine—explore the contents through interactive maps, browse the audio and visual galleries, or make use of the instructional materials designed for teachers and students.

This media-rich, multi-path book offers a rare glimpse into the life of a Coast Salish woman and the history and lifeways of her people. The inaugural book to be produced in RavenSpace, this open access online publication will be available on the platform in April 2019.

laʔamun (Tla’amin) Elder ELSIE PAUL is one of the last surviving mother-tongue speakers of the Sliammon language. She is the recipient of the Canadian Historical Association’s Lifetime Achievement Award and received an honorary doctorate degree from Vancouver Island University in 2010 in recognition of a lifetime of effort dedicated to supporting First Nations well-being. DAVIS MCKENZIE is Elsie Paul’s grandson and works as a professional communicator. PAIGE RAIBMON is professor of history at the University of British Columbia. HARMONY JOHNSON is Elsie Paul’s granddaughter and has served in a number of policy and executive roles in BC First Nations organizations.

Vancouverism

LARRY BEASLEY

Until the 1980s, Vancouver was a typical midsized city. But after the city hosted Expo 86, something extraordinary happened. This otherwise unremarkable urban center was transformed into an inspiring world-class city celebrated for its liveability, sustainability, and competitiveness. This book tells the story of the urban planning phenomenon called “Vancouverism” and the philosophy and practice behind it. Writing from an insider’s perspective, Larry Beasley, a former chief planner of Vancouver, traces the principles that inspired Vancouverism and the policy framework developed to implement it.

LARRY BEASLEY is the Distinguished Practice Professor of Planning at the University of British Columbia and the founding principal of Beasley and Associates.

The Nature of Canada

EDITED BY COLIN M. COATES AND GRAEME WYNN

Intended to delight and provoke, these short, beautifully crafted essays, enlivened with photos and illustrations, explore how humans have engaged with the Canadian environment and what those interactions say about the nature of Canada. Tracing a path from the Ice Age to the Anthropocene, some of the foremost stars in the field of environmental history reflect on how Canadians as a nation have idolized and found inspiration in nature even as fishers, fur traders, farmers, foresters, miners, and city planners have commodified it or tried to tame it. Their insights are just what is needed as Canada attempts to reconcile the opposing goals of prosperity and preservation.

COLIN M. COATES is the author of The Metamorphoses of Landscape and Community in Early Quebec. GRAEME WYNN is the author of Canada and Arctic North America: An Environmental History and the president of the American Society for Environmental History.

CONTRIBUTORS: Jennifer Bonnell, Claire E. Campbell, Colin M. Coates, Julie Cruikshank, Ken Cruikshank, Michèle Dagenais, Joanna Dean, Stephen J. Hornsby, Arn Keeling, Tina Loo, Heather E. McGregor, Steve Penfold, Liza Piper, John Sandlos, and Graeme Wynn.
At the Bridge
James Teit and an Anthropology of Belonging

WENDY WICKWIRE

At the Bridge chronicles the story of James Teit, a prolific ethnographer who, from 1884 to 1922, worked with and advocated for the Indigenous peoples of British Columbia and the northwestern United States. Whereas his contemporaries, including famed anthropologist Franz Boas, studied Indigenous peoples as members of “dying cultures,” Teit worked with them as members of living cultures resisting colonial influence over their lives and lands. Whether recording stories, mapping place-names, or participating in the chiefs’ fight for fair treatment, he made their objectives his own. Wickwire’s beautifully crafted narrative accords Teit the status he deserves, consolidating his place as a leading and innovative anthropologist in his own right.

WENDY WICKWIRE is professor emerita in the Department of History at the University of Victoria.

Saving the Nation through Culture
The Folklore Movement in Republican China

JIE GAO

The Modern Chinese Folklore Movement coalesced at National Peking University between 1918 and 1926. A group of academics, inspired by Western thought, tried to revitalize the study of folklore to stave off post-war disillusionment with Chinese elite culture. By documenting this phenomenon’s origins and evolution, Jie Gao opens a new chapter in the world history of the folklore movement. Largely unknown in the West and underappreciated in China, the Chinese branch failed to achieve its goal of reinvigorating the nation. But it helped establish a modern discipline, promoting a spirit of academic independence that continues to influence Chinese intellectuals today.

JIE GAO is assistant professor of history at Murray State University in Kentucky.

Flawed Precedent
The St. Catherine's Case and Aboriginal Title

KENT MCNEIL

In 1888, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council ruled in the St. Catherine’s case. This precedent-setting decision would define the legal contours of Aboriginal title in Canada for almost a hundred years. In Flawed Precedent, preeminent legal scholar Kent McNeil examines the trial and its context in detail, demonstrating how erroneous assumptions and prejudicial attitudes about Indigenous peoples and their land use influenced the case. He also discusses the effects the decision had on law and policy until the 1970s, when its authority was finally questioned in Calder and in other key rulings. McNeil has written a compelling account of a landmark case that undermined Indigenous land rights for almost a century.

KENT MCNEIL is an Emeritus Distinguished Research Professor at Osgoode Hall Law School, York University.

Incorporating Culture
How Indigenous People Are Reshaping the Northwest Coast Art Industry
SOLEN ROTH

Fragments of culture often become commodities when the tourism and heritage business showcases local artistic and cultural practice. But what happens when local communities become more involved in this cultural marketplace? Incorporating Culture examines how Indigenous artists and entrepreneurs are cultivating more equitable relationships with the companies that reproduce their designs on everyday objects. Moving beyond assumptions that cultural commodification is necessarily exploitative, Solen Roth illustrates the processes by which Indigenous peoples have been asserting control over the Northwest Coast art industry.

SOLEN ROTH is a cultural anthropologist currently working as a postdoctoral researcher at the Université de Montréal School of Design.

Shaping the Future on Haida Gwaii
Life beyond Settler Colonialism
JOSEPH WEISS

Too often Indigenous peoples have been portrayed as being without a future, destined either to disappear or assimilate into settler society. This book asserts quite the opposite: Indigenous peoples are not in any sense “out of time” in our contemporary world. Shaping the Future on Haida Gwaii shows how Indigenous peoples not only continue to have a future but are at work building many different futures—for themselves and for their non-Indigenous neighbors. Through the experiences of the Haida First Nation, this book explores these possible futures in detail, demonstrating how Haida ways are at the heart of contemporary strategies for addressing the dilemmas that come with life under settler colonialism.

JOSEPH WEISS is assistant professor of anthropology at Wesleyan University.

A Queer Love Story
The Letters of Jane Rule and Rick Bébout
EDITED BY MARILYN R. SCHUSTER
Foreword by Margaret Atwood

A Queer Love Story presents the first fifteen years of letters between Jane Rule—novelist and the first widely recognized “public lesbian” in North America—and Rick Bébout, journalist and editor with the Body Politic. Rule lived in a remote rural community on Galiano Island, British Columbia. Bébout resided in and was devoted to Toronto’s gay village. Both were transplanted Americans. At turns poignant, scintillating, and incisive, their exchanges include ruminations on queer life and the writing life even as they document the most pressing LGBT issues of the ‘80s and ‘90s.

MARILYN R. SCHUSTER was the Andrew W. Mellon Professor in the Humanities at Smith College and is the author of Passionate Communities: Reading Lesbian Resistance in Jane Rule’s Fiction.
One Hundred Years of Struggle
The History of Women and the Vote in Canada
JOAN SANGSTER

The achievement of the vote in 1918 is often celebrated as a triumphant moment in the onward, upward advancement of Canadian women. Joan Sangster looks beyond the shiny rhetoric of anniversary celebrations and Heritage Minutes to show that the struggle for equality included gains and losses, inclusions and exclusions, depending on a woman’s race, class, and location within the nation. She travels back in time to tell a more inclusive story for a new generation and exposes not only the fissures of inequality but also their weaknesses in the face of resistance, optimism, and protest—an inspiring legacy that still resonates.

JOAN SANGSTER is Vanier Professor in the Department of Gender and Women’s Studies and director of the Frost Centre for Canadian Studies and Indigenous Studies at Trent University.

A Frontier Made Lawless
Violence in Upland Southwest China, 1800–1956
JOSEPH LAWSON

In the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, the region of Liangshan in southwest China was plagued by violence. Indigenous Nuosu peoples clashed with Han migrant communities, the Qing and Republican states, and local warlords. The first English-language history of Liangshan, A Frontier Made Lawless, challenges the view that ongoing violence was the result of population pressures, opium production, and the growth of local paramilitary groups. Instead, Joseph Lawson argues that the conflict resulted from the lack of a common framework for dealing with property disputes, compounded by the repeated destabilization of the region by turmoil elsewhere in China.

JOSEPH LAWSON is a lecturer in Chinese history at Newcastle University.

Grey Zones in International Economic Law and Global Governance
EDITED BY DANIEL DRACHE AND LESLEY A. JACOBS

Since the 2008 economic meltdown, market-driven globalization has posed new challenges for governments. This volume introduces the concept of “grey zones” of global governance, where state policy and market behavior interact with respect to trade, the environment, food security, and investment. Grey zones allow for the bending of international rules, which both promotes uniformity in many areas of public life and facilitates diverse forms of capitalism in market societies, enabling governments to balance national and global economic benefits.

DANIEL DRACHE is professor emeritus of political science and a senior research fellow at the Robarts Centre for Canadian Studies at York University. LESLEY A. JACOBS is professor of law and society and political science at York University.

What We Are, When We Are
Kaj smo, ko smo

CVETKA LIPUŠ
Translated by Tom Priestly

Working within a postmodern style, these rhythmic and melodious poems originally written in Slovenian by Cvetka Lipuš and translated here by Tom Priestly, blend the real with the surreal, dull urban lives with dreams. Lipuš, known for the lexical beauty of her work, dwells on topics of time and space, which she handles in an almost revolving, irreverent manner. Priestly captures the maze-like characteristic of her verse and carefully reconstructs the sonoric beauty of the work in its original language.

CVETKA LIPUŠ is the author of seven collections of poetry in Slovenian. Kaj smo, ko smo, for which Lipuš received the Prešeren Foundation Award, was short-listed for the Veronika Prize, the most prestigious poetry prize in Slovenia. TOM PRIESTLY is professor emeritus in the Department of Modern Languages and Culture Studies at the University of Alberta.

FALL 2018 HIGHLIGHTS

Art in Seattle’s Public Spaces
From SoDo to South Lake Union
JAMES RUPP AND MIGUEL EDWARDS
$29.95 PB / 9780295744087
“The perfect guide for those wanting to discover the evolution of the city’s public realm through the ideas and works of artists and collectors.”—CATH BRUNNER, director, Public Art 4Culture

Concrete Mama
Prison Profiles from Walla Walla, Second Edition
ETHAN HOFFMAN AND JOHN A. MCCOY
Introduction by Dan Berger
$34.95 PB / 9780295743981
“An intensely human portrait of the inhumane practice of caging. In their powerful images and text, McCoy and Hoffman document the end of one era in the history of incarceration in America and the crushing onset of another. With Dan Berger’s brilliant introduction, the return of this classic is an important contribution to the critique of the prison today.”—REGINA KUNZEL, author of Criminal Intimacy

Flora of the Pacific Northwest
An Illustrated Manual
C. LEO HITCHCOCK AND ARTHUR CRONQUIST
EDITED BY DAVID E. GIBLIN, BEN S. LEGLER, PETER F. ZIKA, AND RICHARD G. OLMSTEAD
$75.00s HC / 9780295742885
Flora of the Pacific Northwest, first published in 1973, became an instant classic for its innovative style of providing species descriptions in the identification keys and for its comprehensive illustrations of nearly all treated taxa (species, subspecies, and varieties). This completely revised and updated edition captures the advances in vascular plant systematics over the decades since publication of the first edition.

Proud Raven, Panting Wolf
Carving Alaska’s New Deal Totem Parks
EMILY L. MOORE
$39.95 HC / 9780295743936
Among Southeast Alaska’s best-known tourist attractions are its totem parks, showcases for monumental wood sculptures by Tlingit and Haida artists. Although the art form is centuries old, the parks date back only to the Great Depression, when the US government reversed its policy of suppressing Native practices and paid Tlingit and Haida communities to restore older totem poles and move them into parks designed for tourists. Moore shows how Tlingit and Haida leaders used this promotion of Native art to assert their cultural and political rights.

Flora and Fauna of the Pacific Northwest Coast
COLLIN VARNER
$34.95 PB / 9780295744643
An extensive, easy-to-follow resource guide to the plant and animal life of the vast and diverse bioregion stretching from Juneau, Alaska, south to coastal British Columbia, Washington, Oregon, and down to California’s San Francisco Bay. Encompassing over eight hundred native and invasive species, and including more than two thousand color photos, this is the most complete book of its kind on the market.

Staying Healthy Abroad
A Global Traveler’s Guide
CHRISTOPHER SANFORD, MD
$19.95 PB / 9780295744384
“In thirty years of traveling to some eighty countries, all I can say is: I wish Christopher Sanford had written Staying Healthy Abroad decades earlier. He distills lots of potentially confusing information and his medical advice is bolstered by his own deep experience in remote locales.”—CARL HOFFMAN, New York Times–bestselling author of The Last Wild Men of Borneo, Savage Harvest, and The Lunatic Express

Woke Gaming
Digital Challenges to Oppression and Social Injustice
EDITED BY KISHONNA L. GRAY AND DAVID J. LEONARD
$30.00s PB / 9780295744179
“Agroundbreaking and important book for anyone who cares about the future of media. Through case studies and smart analysis it offers much-needed critical intervention into our understanding of gaming and game culture.”—T. L. TAYLOR, author of Raising the Stakes: E-Sports and the Professionalization of Computer Gaming

Before Yellowstone
Native American Archaeology in the National Park
Douglas H. Macdonald
$29.95 PB / 9780295742205

“This carefully crafted, well-researched book serves as an important introduction to the body of information collected by archaeologists in Yellowstone National Park. Before Yellowstone provides a comprehensive, integrated overview of human occupation for the last 11,000 years and will be useful to anyone interested in the cultural history of the Greater Yellowstone region.”—Beth Horton, park archaeologist, Yellowstone National Park

Early Rock Art of the American West
The Geometric Enigma
Ekkehart Malotki
Ellen DiSSANAYAKE
$34.95 PB / 9780295743815

“Definitely the best book on the subject of rock art ever written. Full of fascinating images and ideas, it tackles hard questions and discusses them in a balanced, objective manner.”—Desmond Morris, author of The Naked Ape

Firebrand Feminism
The Radical Lives of Ti-Grace Atkinson, Kathy Sarachild, Roxanne Dunbar-Ortiz, and Dana Densmore
BreAnne Fahs
$29.95 PB / 9780295743165

“At a time when feminism would prefer to forget about its radical past, Breanne Fahs does the hard work of dragging it back out from the shadows. Her writing remembers forgotten and neglected women, and their ideas for a wild transformation of society, and it is increasingly vital. Firebrand Feminism is no nostalgia tour; it is a white-hot reminder that we can and should and will change the world.”—Jessa Crispin, author of A Tale for the Time Being

High-Tech Housewives
Indian IT Workers, Gendered Labor, and Transmigration
Amy Bhatt
$30.00s PB / 9780295743554

Through in-depth interviews, Bhatt explores the complex factors that shape IT transmigration and settlement, looking at Indian cultural norms, kinship obligations, friendship networks, gendered and racialized discrimination in the workplace, and inflexible and unstable visa regimes that create worker vulnerability. Bhatt highlights women’s experiences as workers and dependent spouses who move as part of temporary worker programs.

John Okada
The Life and Rediscovered Work of the Author of No-No Boy
Edited by Frank Abe, Greg Robinson, and Floyd Cheung
$29.95 PB / 9780295743516

“A moving, comprehensive, and wonderfully readable tribute to a pioneer of Asian American literature. John Okada is part eulogy, part pedagogy, part literary excavation, and part scholarly compendium. These editors, scholars, and writers have created a monument that will keep John Okada’s work relevant and his legacy alive.”—Ruth Ozeki, author of A Tale for the Time Being

Uplake
Restless Essays of Coming and Going
Ana Maria Spagna
$18.95 PB / 9780295743226

“These vivid essays are powerfully rooted in the physical landscape and the body’s capacities and limitations. Nature and narrator perform a graceful dance of advance-and-retreat, a pas de deux filled with tenderness, wisdom, and rueful insight.”—Phillip Lopate, author of A Mother’s Tale

We Are Dancing for You
Native Feminisms and the Revitalization of Women’s Coming-of-Age Ceremonies
Cutcha Risling Baldy
$30.00s PB / 9780295743448

“I am here. You will never be alone. We are dancing for you.” So begins Cutcha Risling Baldy’s deeply personal account of the revitalization of the women’s coming-of-age ceremony for the Hoopa Valley Tribe.

Native Seattle
Histories from the Crossing-Over Place, Second Edition

Coll Thrush
Foreword by William Cronon
$24.95 PB / 9780295741345

This updated edition of Native Seattle brings the Indigenous story to the present day and puts the movement of recognizing Seattle’s Native past into a broader context. Native Seattle focuses on the experiences of local Indigenous communities on whose land Seattle grew, accounts of Native migrants to the city, and the development of a multi-tribal urban community, as well as the role Native Americans have played in the narrative of Seattle.

Northwest Coast Indian Art
An Analysis of Form, 50th Anniversary Edition

Bill Holm
$30.00 PB / 9780295994277

This is Bill Holm’s classic introduction to the fundamental principles of the art of Northwest Coast Indians. Painted and carved wooden screens, chests and boxes for storage and cooking, dishes, rattles, crest hats, and ceremonial paraphernalia reveal a rare artistic virtuosity and document the unique involvement of these craftspeople with their environment.

Olympic National Park
A Natural History, Fourth Edition

Tim McNulty
$29.95 PB / 9780295743288

Renowned for its old-growth rain forest, wilderness coast, and glaciated peaks, Olympic National Park is a living laboratory for ecological renewal, especially as the historic Elwha River basin regenerates in the wake of dam removal. In this guide to the park, McNulty invites us into the natural and human history of these nearly million acres and reminds us that though “the mountains and rivers remain ‘timeless,’ our understanding of the lifeforms that inhabit them—and the effects our actions have on their future—is an ongoing, ever deepening story.”

Puget’s Sound
A Narrative of Early Tacoma and the Southern Sound

Murray Morgan
Introduction by Michael Sean Sullivan
$27.95 PB / 9780295744230

“A history bubbling with personalities and moments that take us from George Vancouver eyeballing this wilderness to the evolution of modern Tacoma and southern Puget Sound. Morgan was more than our best historian, he was a genuine living embodiment of the best of what we have to offer—a funny, wise, and optimistic man willing to stick his entire arm into a muddy hole in hopes of a geoduck.”

—Jim Lynch, author of Truth Like the Sun
Seattle on the Spot
The Photographs of Al Smith
QUITN’NITA COBBINS, PAUL DE BARROS, HOWARD GISKE, JACQUELINE E. A. LAWSON, AND AL BUTCH SMITH JR.
$29.99 HC / 9780692885093
Al Smith’s photography chronicled the jazz clubs, family gatherings, neighborhood events, and individuals who made up Seattle’s African American community in the mid-twentieth century. Seattle on the Spot features highlights from Smith’s legacy along with reflections from historians, scholars, friends, and family members.

Seattle Walks
Discovering History and Nature in the City
DAVID B. WILLIAMS
$18.95 PB / 9780295741284
“Seattle Walks draws an important connection between our past and present. David’s inviting words will inspire you to lace up your shoes and explore unique Seattle neighborhood landscapes by foot.”—LISA QUINN, executive director, Feet First

Skid Road
An Informal Portrait of Seattle
MURRAY MORGAN
INTRODUCTION By MARY ANN GWINN
$18.95 PB / 9780295743493
“Over more than half a century, no one has written a better book about Seattle. I keep looking for something, but Skid Road has our soul down cold.”—TIMOTHY EGAN, author of The Worst Hard Time

The Spokane River
Edited by Paul Lindholdt
$24.95 PB / 9780295743134
“The Spokane River is a beautiful biography of a legendary western river. Like the best life stories, The Spokane River surprises and enthralls, probing into the past and beneath the surface to reveal the complicated personality of a beloved place.”—KATHLEEN DEAN MOORE, author of Great Tide Rising: Toward Clarity and Moral Courage in a Time of Planetary Change

Too High and Too Steep
Reshaping Seattle’s Topography
DAVID B. WILLIAMS
$18.95 PB / 9780295999401
“Williams does a marvelous job of evoking the cityscape that used to be. He clues us in to the spirit of civic ambition that drove Seattle’s geographical transformations. He methodically chronicles the stages by which its regrade, canal and landfill projects were accomplished. And he’s meticulous about placing his readers on present-day street corners where they can, with some sleight of mind, glimpse the hills, lake shores and tide flats that vanished.”—MICHAEL UPCHURCH, Seattle Times

Walking Washington’s History
Ten Cities
JUDY BENTLEY
$19.95 PB / 9780295996684
Walking Washington’s History: Ten Cities, a follow-up to Judy Bentley’s bestselling Hiking Washington’s History, showcases the state’s engaging urban history through guided walks in ten major cities. Using narrated walks, maps, and historic photographs, Bentley reveals each city’s aspirations.

Waterway
The Story of Seattle’s Locks and Ship Canal
DAVID B. WILLIAMS, JENNIFER OTT, AND STAFF OF HISTORYLINK
$24.95 PB / 9781333245430
Why does a city surrounded by water need another waterway? Find out what drove Seattle’s civic leaders to pursue the dream of a Lake Washington Ship Canal for more than sixty years and what role it has played in the region’s development over the past century.

The Weather of the Pacific Northwest
CLIFFORD MASS
$29.95 PB / 9780295988474
“[The Weather of the Pacific Northwest] may be used to teach 101-level college courses, but it’s aimed at us, the weather-using public. There’s a sky-spotting index for armchair forecasters, easy-to-follow charts and diagrams, and some disaster lore to help illustrate what happens when low-pressure zones and jet stream deviations collide.”—Seattle Weekly

Bike Battles
A History of Sharing the American Road
JAMES LONGHURST
$24.95 PB / 9780295742663
“A measure of any book is whether it makes you think beyond its pages, and Bike Battles did just that for me. My dad used to tell me that if I got only one thing out of a book—an interesting fact, a point of view I hadn’t previously considered, something helpful to my life or just entertainment—the book was worth its cover price. By that standard Bike Battles is a bargain. It allowed me to see the last 150 years of riding in America like a mosaic on the wall.”—GRANT PETERSEN, Wall Street Journal

Environmental Justice in Postwar America
A Documentary Reader
EDITED BY CHRISTOPHER W. WELLS
FOREWORD BY PAUL S. SUTTER
$24.00s PB / 9780295743691
Environmental Justice in Postwar America is a powerful tool for introducing students to the US environmental justice movement and the sometimes tense relationship between environmentalism and social justice.

In Defense of Wyam
Native-White Alliances and the Struggle for Celilo Village
KATRINE BARBER
$24.95 PB / 9780295743585
Barber presents a remarkable alliance across the opposed Native and settler-descended groups, chronicling how the lives of two women leaders converged in a shared struggle to protect the Indian homes of Celilo Village.

The Organic Profit
Rodale and the Making of Marketplace Environmentalism
ANDREW N. CASE
FOREWORD BY PAUL S. SUTTER
$34.95 HC / 9780295743011
“The Organic Profit is a great read for anyone interested in knowing how the Rodales and Prevention Magazine helped bring organic foods from cult to mainstream and from pesticide-free produce to environmentally conscious lifestyles. This is biography, social history, and contemporary politics, all viewed through the lens of the fastest growing segment of the US food system.”—MARION NESTLE, author of What to Eat

Seismic City
An Environmental History of San Francisco’s 1906 Earthquake
JOANNA L. DYL
FOREWORD BY PAUL S. SUTTER
$34.95 HC / 9780295742465
“Dyl’s Seismic City is the best history of the San Francisco earthquake of 1906 you’ll ever read. Dyl demonstrates how wrongheaded it is to label this tragedy a ‘natural disaster,’ revealing the social and cultural underpinnings of one of the worst calamities in the history of the United States.”—ARI KELMAN, University of California, Davis

Unlikely Alliances
Native Nations and White Communities Join to Defend Rural Lands
ZOLTÁN GROSSMAN
FOREWORD BY WINONA LADUKE
$30.00s PB / 9780295741529
“When Indigenous peoples united with ranchers and farmers to stop the Keystone XL pipeline, they blazed an electrifying new path away from climate catastrophe. Such alliances to defend land and water have been taking shape for decades—and they have much more to teach us. Grossman draws out the key lessons from these stories with great skill and care.”—NAOMI KLEIN, author of This Changes Everything and The Shock Doctrine
American Indian Business
Principles and Practices

EDITED BY DEANNA M. KENNEDY, CHARLES F. HARRINGTON, AMY KLEMM VERBOS, DANIEL STEWART, JOSEPH SCOTT GLADSTONE, AND GAVIN CLARKSON

$25.00s PB / 9780295742090

This book provides an accessible introduction to American Indian businesses, business practices, and business education. It furthers the inclusion of Indigenous perspectives in the study of American business practices in general and demonstrates the significant impact that American Indians have had on business, as well as their cultural contributions to management, leadership, marketing, economic development, and entrepreneurship.

Chinook Resilience
Heritage and Cultural Revitalization on the Lower Columbia River

JON D. DAEHNKE

FOREWORD BY TONY A. JOHNSON

$25.00s PB / 9780295742267

Chinook Resilience is a collaborative ethnography of how the Chinook Indian Nation, whose land and heritage are under assault, continues to move forward and remain culturally strong and resilient.

Dismembered
Native Disenrollment and the Battle for Human Rights

DAVID E. WILKINS AND SHELLY HULSE WILKINS

$25.00s PB / 9780295741581

The first comprehensive examination of the origins and significance of tribal disenrollment, Dismembered examines this disturbing trend, which often leaves the disenrolled tribal members with no recourse or appeal. At the center of the issue is how Native nations are defined today and who has the fundamental rights to belong.

Network Sovereignty
Building the Internet across Indian Country

MARISA ELENA DUARTE

$25.00s PB / 9780295741826

“Duarte shows that tribal ownership and use of information and communication technologies have the potential to deepen the meaning and experience of tribal sovereignty, serving as a means to undermine colonialism.”—ANDREW NEEDHAM, author of Power Lines: Phoenix and the Making of the Modern Southwest

Power in the Telling
Grand Ronde, Warm Springs, and the Intertribal Relations in the Casino Era

BROOK COLLEY

FOREWORD BY DAVID G. LEWIS

$30.00s PB / 9780295743383

Colley’s engaging examination of these relationships and the polarization between the Warm Springs and Grand Ronde tribes ultimately focuses on giving voice to the Native peoples involved, exploring strategies for reconciliation and cooperation and emphasizing narratives of survival and resilience.
Enduring Conviction
Fred Korematsu and His Quest for Justice
LORRAINE K. BANNAI
$24.95 PB / 9780295742816

“Excellent… In Enduring Conviction, [Bannai] skillfully weaves the story of the landmark court case with Fred’s personal journey… Her elegant telling of the story of the incarceration and Fred Korematsu’s fight against it could not be more timely… Hopefully, the inspiration provided by Fred Korematsu may be an even more enduring response to injustice.”—Los Angeles Review of Books

The Hope of Another Spring
Takuichi Fujii, Artist and Wartime Witness
BARBARA JOHNS
FOREWORD BY ROGER DANIELS
INTRODUCTION TO THE DIARY BY SANDY KITA
$39.95 HC / 9780295999999

The Hope of Another Spring reveals the rare find of a large and heretofore unknown collection of art produced during World War II. The centerpiece of the collection is Fujii’s illustrated diary that historian Roger Daniels has called “the most remarkable document created by a Japanese American prisoner during the wartime incarceration.”

A Principled Stand
The Story of Hirabayashi v. United States
GORDON K. HIRABAYASHI WITH JAMES A. HIRABAYASHI AND LANE RYO HIRABAYASHI
$19.95 PB / 9780295994321

In 1942, University of Washington student Gordon Hirabayashi defied the curfew and mass removal of Japanese Americans on the West Coast and was convicted and imprisoned as a result. In A Principled Stand, Hirabayashi’s brother James and nephew Lane have brought together his prison diaries and voluminous wartime correspondence to tell the story of Hirabayashi v. United States, the Supreme Court case that in 1943 upheld and on appeal in 1987 vacated his conviction.

Queering Contemporary Asian American Art
EDITED BY LAURA KINA AND JAN CHRISTIAN BERNABE
FOREWORD BY SUSETTE MIN
AFTERWORD BY KYOO LEE
$40.00s PB / 9780295741376

These artist interviews, cutting-edge visual artworks, and critical essays explore contemporary currents and experiences within Asian American art, including the multiple axes of race and identity, queer bodies and forms, kinship and affect, and digital identities and performances.

A Time to Rise
Collective Memoirs of the Union of Democratic Filipinos (KDP)
EDITED BY RENE CIRIA CRUZ, CINDY DOMINGO, AND BRUCE OCCENA
FOREWORD BY AUGUSTO F. ESPIRITU
$30.00s PB / 9780295742021

These personal accounts document recruitment, organizing, and training in the KDP, with chapters on the struggle for justice for murdered KDP and union leaders Silme Domingo and Gene Viernes. These memoirs offer political insights and inspiring examples of personal courage that will resonate today.

War Baby / Love Child
Mixed Race Asian American Art
EDITED BY LAURA KINA AND WEI MING DARIOTIS
FOREWORD BY KEN A. ONO
$44.95 PB / 9780295992259

A provocative examination of hybrid Asian American identity through a collection of essays, artworks, and interviews at the intersection of critical mixed race studies and contemporary art.
Asian Studies

Bringing Whales Ashore
Oceans and the Environment of Early Modern Japan
Ja Kobi Na Arch
Foreword by Paul S. Sutter
$40.00s HC / 9780295743295

Drawing on a wide range of sources, from whaling ledgers to recipe books and grave-stones for fetal whales, Arch traces how the images of whales and byproducts of commercial whaling were woven into the lives of people throughout Japan.

Caring for Glaciers
Land, Animals, and Humanity in the Himalayas
Karine Gagné
$30.00s PB / 9780295744001

“The idea of morality serves as an axis for Gagné to bring together climate change, geopolitical tensions within and between nations, and the dilemmas of Indigenous peoples faced with the forces of nationalism and globalization.”—Benjamin Orlove, Columbia University

Creating the Universe
Depictions of the Cosmos in Himalayan Buddhism
Eric Huntington
$65.00s HC / 9780295744063

In Creating the Universe, Huntington presents examples of visual art and architecture, primary texts, ritual ideologies, and material practices—accompanied by extensive explanatory diagrams—to reveal the immense complexity of cosmological thinking in Himalayan Buddhism.

Flowering Plums and Curio Cabinets
The Culture of Objects in Late Chosón Korean Art
Sunglim Kim
$65.00s HC / 9780295743417

The social and economic rise of the chungin class during the late Choson period ushered in a world of materialism and commodification of painting and other art objects. Kim explores chungin artists and patronage of the visual arts as well as the role they played in preserving Korean art heritage in the twentieth century.

Shanghai Sacred
The Religious Landscape of a Global City
Benoît Vermander, Liz Hingley, and Liang Zhang
$30.00s PB / 9780295741680

Shanghai Sacred demonstrates how religions are lived, constructed, and thus inscribed into the social imaginary of the metropolis. Evocative photographs by Hingley enrich and interact with the narrative, making the book an innovative contribution to religious visual ethnography.

The Other Milk
Reinventing Soy in Republican China
Jia-Chen Fu
$30.00s PB / 9780295744032

“The Other Milk tells a fascinating story—how nutrition science transformed the place of soybeans in the Chinese diet from humble components of traditional cuisine to instruments of physical and social development, only to be replaced by dairy foods as markers of modernity. This book is a superb example of how cultural history, cuisine, science, and globalization intersect around one food—soybeans.”—Marion Nestle, author of Unsavory Truth: How Food Companies Skew the Science of What We Eat

The Social Life of Inkstones
Artisans and Scholars in Early Qing China
Dorothy Ko
$45.00s HC / 9780295999180

“A magical text. I have little doubt that The Social Life of Inkstones will become not only a point of reference but also a book that readers simply love.”—Jonathan Halt, author of Sensuous Surfaces: The Decorative Object in Early Modern China
American Sabor
Latinos and Latinas in US Popular Music / Latinos y latinas en la música popular estadounidense
MARISSOL BERRÍOS-MIRANDA, SHANNON DUDLEY, AND MICHELLE HABELL-PALLÁN
TRANSLATED BY ANGIE BERRÍOS-MIRANDA
$34.95 PB / 9780295742625
With side-by-side Spanish and English text, American Sabor traces the substantial musical contributions of Latinas and Latinos in American popular music between World War II and the present in five vibrant centers of Latin@ musical production: New York, Los Angeles, San Antonio, San Francisco, and Miami.

Ancient Ink
The Archaeology of Tattooing
EDITED BY LARS KRUTAK AND AARON DETER-WOLF
$60.00s HC / 9780295742823
The desire to alter and adorn the human body is universal. While specific forms of body decoration, and the underlying motivations, vary according to region, culture, and era, all human societies have engaged in practices designed to augment and enhance their natural appearance. Tattooing appears on human mummies by 3200 BCE and was practiced by ancient cultures throughout the world. Ancient Ink connects ancient body art traditions to modern culture through Indigenous communities and the work of contemporary tattoo artists.

Footprints of War
Militarized Landscapes in Vietnam
DAVID BIGGS
FOREWORD BY PAUL S. SUTTER
$34.95 HC / 9780295743868
“In this rich and innovative new book, David Biggs considers the spatial dimension of the war in Vietnam through an examination of the densely layered militarized landscapes around Huế. The result is a gem, a fluid, authoritative, compelling work that shows just how deep, complex, and long-lasting were ‘the footprints of war.’”—FREDRIK LOGEVALL, author of Embers of War: The Fall of an Empire and the Making of America’s Vietnam

High
Drugs, Desire, and a Nation of Users
INGRID WALKER
$24.95 PB / 9780295742328
Whether drinking Red Bull, relieving chronic pain with oxycodone, or experimenting with Ecstasy, Americans participate in a culture of self-medication, using psychoactive substances to enhance or manage our moods. Walker asks, Why do we endorse the use of some drugs and criminalize others? Why do we accept the necessity of a doctor-prescribed opiate but not the same thing bought off the street? This divided approach shapes public policy, the justice system, research, social services, and health care. And despite the decades-old war on drugs, drug use remains relatively unchanged.

Playing While White
Privilege and Power on and off the Field
DAVID LEONARD
$26.95 PB / 9780295741888
“Do Black lives matter in the world of sports? Leonard’s brilliant and thorough analysis of the institutionalized racism that is perpetuated in sport is one that we must all delve deeper into, and grapple with, as a society.”—MICHAEL ERIC DYSON, author of Tears We Cannot Stop: A Sermon to White America

Racial Ecologies
EDITED BY LEILANI NISHIME AND KIM D. HESTER WILLIAMS
$30.00s PB / 9780295743738
From the Flint water crisis to the Dakota Access Pipeline controversy, environmental threats and degradation disproportionately affect communities of color. Racial Ecologies explores activist strategies and creative responses, demonstrating that people of color have always been and continue to be leaders in the fight for a more equitable and ecologically just world.

Warnings against Myself
Meditations on a Life in Climbing
DAVID STEVENSON
$19.95 PB / 9780295742793
Reflective and literary, but also entertaining and funny, Stevenson’s accounts move across the great climbing locations of the western United States, with forays into the spires of the Alps, and slip freely in time from the author’s childhood, when he could not wait to head west, to his adulthood, with a wife and two sons, in which he still feels compelled by a longing to be on the heights.
