WEYERHAEUSER ENVIRONMENTAL BOOKS
Edited by William Cronon

Windshield Wilderness
Cars, Roads, and Nature in Washington's National Parks
David Louter
Explores the relationship between automobiles and national parks, and how together they have shaped our ideas of wilderness. The author traces the history of Mount Rainier, Olympic, and North Cascade national parks, and considers what it means to view parks from the road and through a windshield.
2006. 288 pp., 30 illus., 6 maps, notes, biblog., index
0-295-98606-9 Cloth, $35.00

Public Power, Private Dams
The Hells Canyon High Dam Controversy
Karl Boyd Brooks
Following World War II, federal plans to build a mammoth new dam in Hells Canyon on the Snake River in Idaho were thwarted by a coalition of irrigators, private-power executives, and state politicians who wanted local control. The unintended result was the preservation of high deserts and mountain rivers from radical change.
2006. 250 pp., 26 illus., 2 maps, notes, biblog., index
0-295-98597-6 Cloth, $35.00

On the Road Again
Montana's Changing Landscape
William Wyckoff
Wyckoff reveals Montana's changing physical and cultural landscape by pairing photographs taken by state highway engineers in the 1920s and 1930s with photographs taken at the same sites today. The photo pairs and accompanying interpretive essays tell a vivid story of continuity and change.
2006. 200 pp., 116 illus., maps, biblog., index
0-295-98612-3 Paper, $26.95

National Park, City Playground
Mount Rainier in the Twentieth Century
Theodore R. Catton
This history of the park examines the evolving relationship between the mountain and its surrounding residents, from the late 1890s when the Pacific Forest Reserve became Mount Rainier National Park, and recounts the many controversies that affected its development.
