A Thriving Modernism
The Houses of Wendell Lovett and Arne Bystrom
Grant Hildebrand and T. William Booth
This lavishly illustrated book celebrates the careers of Wendell Lovett and Arne Bystrom, and their contributions to modernism and to the architectural legacy of the Pacific Northwest. Lovett’s manipulation of space, light, and mechanistic detail yields a richness undreamed of in early modernism, while Bystrom’s delight in wood as inspiration is comparable to that of ancient Oriental crafts.

Vanishing British Columbia
Michael Kluckner
The old buildings and historic places of British Columbia form a kind of “roadside memory,” a tangible link with stories of settlement, change, and abandonment that reflect the great themes of Western history. This lovely volume is a record of these places in watercolor paintings and the stories they tell, and an argument for stewardship of regional history in the face of urbanization and globalization.

Place of Learning, Place of Dreams
A History of the Seattle Public Library
John Douglas Marshall
“Marshall has done a bang-up job of explaining exactly what it takes to create a major metropolitan library system in a little under a century and a half…. Written with verve and clarity, [this book] gives equal due to both the crises endured and the good works achieved by the Seattle Public Library. And in doing so, it is deeply informative about the foibles and aspirations of our city.” – The Seattle Times

Sustainable Design Solutions from the Pacific Northwest
Edited by Vikram Prakash
Chair, Department of Architecture, University of Washington
This series spotlights innovative design achievements by Pacific Northwest architects whose work promotes core principles of sustainable development. Reflecting cross-disciplinary inspirations and strongly influenced by the Northwest’s climate and landscape, the pioneering buildings and projects profiled in this series share a common interest in aesthetic and social goals, efficient use of technology, and a profound respect for the natural world and its ecological systems.

Toward a New Regionalism
Environmental Architecture in the Pacific Northwest
David Miller
By focusing on the Pacific Northwest, this book provides essential lessons to architects and students on how sustainable architecture can and should be shaped by the unique conditions of a region. It discusses environmental strategies that work in the region, organized according to nature’s most basic elements-earth, air, water, and fire–and critical case studies by Northwest architects illustrate some of the best environmental design work in North America.

Studio at Large
Architecture in Service of Global Communities
Sergio Palleroni with Christina Merkelbach
Foreword by Bryan Bell
This book documents the international community studios organized by Sergio Palleroni and his colleagues in marginalized communities in Mexico, Cuba, India, and Africa, and in migrant labor camps and Indian reservations in the American West. These studios serve as models for making architectural education relevant to urgent social problems, helping communities mobilize indigenous resources and social capital to develop long-term sustainable practices that protect cultural identity, dignity, and stability.

Sweet Cakes, Long Journey
The Chinatowns of Portland, Oregon
Marie Rose Wong

Drawing on immigration and other records, Wong chronicles the history of Portland's Chinatowns from their early beginnings in the 1850s until the repeal of the Chinese Exclusion Act in the 1940s. She clarifies the role that the early Chinese immigrants played in determining their own community destiny and the development of their Chinatown in urban form and vernacular architectural expression.

Architecture and Tourism in Italian Colonial Libya

Brian L. McLaren

Through the lens of tourism, this volume shows how Italian authorities in Libya made use of the contradictory forces of modernity and tradition to both legitimize their colonial enterprise and construct a vital tourist industry. McLaren argues that the "modern" and the "traditional" were entirely constructed by the colonial authorities, balancing the need to project an image of a modern and efficient network of travel and accommodation with the necessity of preserving the characteristic qualities of the indigenous culture.

The Landscape of Stalinism: The Art and Ideology of Soviet Space

Edited by Evgeny Dobrenko and Eric Naiman

This wide-ranging cultural history explores the expression of Bolshevik Party ideology through the lens of landscape, or, more broadly, space. In painting, architecture, literature, cinema, and song, images of landscape were enlisted to help mold the masses into joyful, hardworking citizens of a state with a radiant, utopian future. The contributors show how Soviet space was sanitized, coded, and ‘sold’ as an ideological product. "...Compelling and original."

The Transformation of Islamic Art during the Sunni Revival
Yasser Tabbaa
The transformation of Islamic architecture and ornament during the eleventh and twelfth centuries signaled profound cultural changes in the Islamic world. Yasser Tabbaa explores with exemplary lucidity the geometric techniques that facilitated this transformation, and investigates the cultural processes by which meaning was produced within the new forms. “Tabbaa deserves much credit for successfully bringing history back into the study of the architecture of the near and Middle East in this amply illustrated and elegant book.” – Journal of the Society of Architectural Historians 2001. 224 pp., 85 illus., notes, bibliog., index 0-295-98133-4 Paper, $25.00s

Shaping the Lotus Sutra
Buddhist Visual Culture in Medieval China
Eugene Wang
Challenging long-held assumptions about Buddhist art, Eugene Wang treats it as a window to an animated and spirited world. By tracing formal impulses in medieval Chinese picture-making, he pieces together a wide range of visual evidence and textual sources to reconstruct the medieval Chinese cognitive style and mental world. The book is ultimately a history of the Chinese imagination.
