Language of the Geckos and Other Stories
Gary Yong Ki Pak
Gary Pak—author of The Watcher of Waipuna and Other Stories and the novels A Ricepaper Airplane and Children of a Fireland—has emerged as one of the most important Asian Hawaiian writers of our time. In this new collection, Pak expertly crafts a memorable cast of Hawai‘i’s Korean Americans, Chinese Americans, Japanese Americans, and Native Hawaiians in a novella and nine short stories that amplify our cross-cultural understanding of Hawaiian life today. Pak is the director of creative writing and associate professor of English at the University of Hawai‘i at Manoa.

No More Cherry Blossoms
“Sisters Matsumoto” and Other Plays
Philip Kan Gotanda
In these four plays, renowned playwright Philip Kan Gotanda explores the choices and challenges Japanese American women face. Although set in different decades of the twentieth century, the plays—“Sisters Matsumoto,” “The Wind Cries Mary,” “Ballad of Yachiyo,” and “Under the Rainbow”—are all absolutely modern in the human struggles they explore and resolve. “[Gotanda’s] work is graceful, elegant, open-hearted and economical. His intentions are serious, his ambitions are worthy and his observations about human nature are particularly acute. These are surprising, beautiful plays, deserving of both readers and audiences.” —Tony Kushner

American Knees
A Novel
Shawn Wong
Introduction by Jeffrey F. L. Partridge
Shawn Wong’s novel about relationships, sex, and family obligations met with high praise when it was first published in 1995. “Wong overturns the racial stereotypes perpetrated against Asians in this country, and he does so with humor to spare. . . . No one has more eloquently or joyfully asserted our belonging,” wrote a reviewer for the Los Angeles Times Book Review. “Shawn Wong adds a funny, sexy chapter to Asian American literature. . . . A multicultural comedy that relentlessly lampoons the incidents and incidentals of modern Asian American life.” —San Francisco Bay Guardian

Adios to Tears
The Memoirs of a Japanese-Peruvian Internee in U.S. Concentration Camps
Seiichi Higashide
Foreword by C. Harvey Gardiner
Preface by Elsa H. Kudo
Epilogue by Julie Small
Seiichi Higashide (1909-97) was a leader in the effort to obtain redress from the American government for the violation of the human rights of the Peruvian Japanese internees during World War II. His moving memoir tells the story of a bizarre and little-known episode in the history of World War II when he and other Latin American Japanese were forcibly deported to the U.S. 2000. 272 pp., 13 photos

And Justice for All
An Oral History of the Japanese American Detention Camps
John Tateishi
Foreword by Roger Daniels
At the outbreak of World War II, more than 115,000 Japanese American civilians living on the West Coast of the U.S. were rounded up and sent to desolate "relocation" camps, where most spent the duration of the war. In this poignant and bittersweet oral history, John Tateishi allows 30 victims of this trauma to speak for themselves. 1999. 288 pp., 26 photos

And the View from the Shore
Literary Traditions of Hawai‘i
Stephen H. Sumida
This study of a little-explored branch of American literature both chronicles and reinterprets the variety of patterns found within Hawai‘i’s pastoral and heroic literary traditions, covering two centuries of Hawai‘i’s culture since the arrival of Captain James Cook in 1778. “[Sumida’s book] is groundbreaking…[It] should interest anyone concerned about the survival of native and local traditions in the face of overwhelming odds.” – International Examiner

Asian America
Chinese and Japanese in the United States since 1850
Roger Daniels

“This well-conceived and excellently researched book provides readers with a comprehensive and timely chronicle of the common challenges and unique experiences of the two pioneer Asian American groups. Roget Daniels’ work provides a fresh approach to the study of the immigrant experience and the role of race and ethnicity in American life.” – History: Reviews of New Books 1989. 400 pp., illus., notes, biblio., index

Being Buddhist in a Christian World
Gender and Community in a Korean American Temple
Sharon A. Suh

“Suh has succeeded in crafting the story of a single Korean-American Buddhist temple (Sa Chal in Los Angeles) and drawing an engaging portrait of Buddhism lived ‘on the ground’ as a path to self-identity by Korean Americans. . . . This is an important book for those interested in seeing the immediate social implications of religious practice for a community under pressure.” – MultiCultural Review

Born in Seattle
The Campaign for Japanese American Redress
Robert Sadamu Shimabukuro

“An intimate portrait of the movement—the players and issues involved, the political landscape, and shifting alliances. . . . The Seattle Plan was the first concrete redress proposal and incorporated one key element of the redress legislation that finally passed in 1988—payment to individuals, rather than block grants to community agencies. Seattleites can be justifiably proud of the central role they played in the larger movement.” – Journal of Asian American Studies

Cebu
Peter Bacho

“Cebu is a darkly comic and often painfully graphic story of the moral and cultural dilemmas that face second-generation Filipino Americans in today’s urban environments. . . . There is a dark and brooding quality to the prose that is elegantly balanced by fiery flashes of poetic brilliance. This is an exceptional book, and Peter Bacho deserves to be recognized as a major voice in contemporary literature.” – MultiCultural Review

Chinese Students Encounter America
Qian Ning
Translated by T. K. Chu

“[Qian’s book] is not a sentimental paean, but an objective and vivid account of the lives of Chinese students who have become a significant presence on almost every university campus in [America]. In simple yet elegant terms, much the same as those used by Alexis de Tocqueville to describe the early United States to Europeans, Qian seems to undermine the rancorous literature of Chinese nationalism.” – New York Times

An Overview of World War II Japanese American Relocation Sites
Jeffery F. Burton, Mary M. Farrell, Florence B. Lord, and Richard W. Lord
New Foreword by Tetsuden Kashima

“No other book published so far includes all the different places covered here; nor do other books so thoroughly cover the minutiae of the internees’ daily life. The structures and artifacts remaining at each site are also documented, and the text is rounded out by historic and contemporary photographs, maps, diagrams, charts, tables, architectural drawings, and other information drawn from archives, reports, and memoirs. The result is a valuable and poignant study.” – Library Journal

Shirakawa
Stories from a Pacific Northwest Japanese American Community
Stan Flewelling
Preface by Gordon Hirabayashi
The White River Valley—a fertile crescent between Seattle and Tacoma, Washington—was called Shirakawa by the Japanese immigrants who arrived there as itinerant farmworkers in the late 19th century. This heavily illustrated book details how the first-generation Issei overcame waves of organized opposition to forge a viable, cohesive community, and the swift demise of that community after Pearl Harbor.
