ABOUT THE NCFDD

The National Center for Faculty Development and Diversity provides around-the-year access to an external mentoring community to support the success of University of Washington faculty, post-docs, and graduate students. The NCFDD offers concrete, empirically-tested strategies for increasing productivity through, for example, online training workshops facilitated by experts on faculty development and the “Monday Motivator” weekly newsletter.

The University of Washington is an institutional member of the National Center for Faculty Development and Diversity, designed to provide professional development tools for all UW faculty, post-docs, and graduate students!

BENEFITS INCLUDE

- Intensive online training and mentoring
- Tips and techniques on securing external research funding
- Professional development online workshops
- Access to multi-week courses each term
- Access to moderated monthly writing challenges

MORE INFORMATION ABOUT NCFDD RESOURCES IS AVAILABLE AT WWW.FACULTYDIVERSITY.ORG.

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON

ACTIVATE YOUR UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON MEMBERSHIP ACCOUNT!

You can activate your UW institutional account with NCFDD by self-registering online at: http://www.facultydiversity.org/UW

You will receive a welcome email from NCFDD confirming your account activation, at which point you will be able to access its resources.

Please direct any questions about registration to Norma Rodriguez, Director, Office for Faculty Advancement, at normar@uw.edu.