ABOUT THE UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON

Founded in 1861, the University of Washington is one of the oldest state-assisted institutions of higher education on the Pacific coast. From its original site on a 10-acre tract of wooded wilderness that is now located in downtown Seattle, the campus has grown to comprise 703 acres of trees, landscape, and buildings. Located between the shores of Lake Washington and Lake Union, it is in a residential section of the city that long has been considered one of the most attractive in the nation. Two additional campuses, one south of Seattle in Tacoma, and one north in Bothell, were opened in 1990.

Enrollment at the University in autumn quarter 2014 was more than 54,000, including its campuses in Bothell and Tacoma, of which 39,000 were undergraduates and the balance were in professional and graduate programs. Seventy-five percent of the undergraduates enter as freshmen from Washington high schools or as transfer students from Washington community colleges or other colleges and universities in the state. The grade-point average for the regularly admitted freshman class entering in autumn quarter 2014 was 3.75. In 2014, the teaching faculty of the University numbered nearly 4,600 members.

ROLE AND MISSION OF THE UNIVERSITY

Founded 4 November 1861, the University of Washington is one of the oldest state-supported institutions of higher education on the Pacific coast. The University is comprised of three campuses: the Seattle campus is made up of seventeen schools and colleges whose faculty offer educational opportunities to students ranging from first-year undergraduates through doctoral-level candidates; the Bothell and Tacoma campuses, each developing a distinctive identity and undergoing rapid growth, offer diverse programs to upper-division undergraduates and to graduate students.

The primary mission of the University of Washington is the preservation, advancement, and dissemination of knowledge. The University preserves knowledge through its libraries and collections, its courses, and the scholarship of its faculty. It advances new knowledge through many forms of research, inquiry and discussion; and disseminates it through the classroom and the laboratory, scholarly exchanges, creative practice, international education, and public service. As one of the nation's outstanding teaching and research institutions, the University is committed to maintaining an environment for objectivity and imaginative inquiry and for the original scholarship and research that ensure the production of new knowledge in the free exchange of facts, theories, and ideas.

To promote their capacity to make humane and informed decisions, the University fosters an environment in which its students can develop mature and independent judgment and an appreciation of the range and diversity of human achievement. The University cultivates in its students both critical thinking and the effective articulation of that thinking.

As an integral part of a large and diverse community, the University seeks broad representation of and encourages sustained participation in that community by its students, its faculty, and its staff. It serves both non-traditional and traditional students. Through its three-campus system and through educational outreach, evening degree, and distance learning, it extends educational opportunities to many who would not otherwise have access to them.

The academic core of the University of Washington is its College of Arts and Sciences; the teaching and research of the University's many professional schools provide essential complements to these programs in the arts, humanities, social sciences, and natural and mathematical sciences. Programs in law, medicine, forest resources, oceanography and fisheries, library science, and aeronautics are offered exclusively (in accord with state law) by the University of Washington. In addition, the University of Washington has assumed primary responsibility for the health science fields of dentistry and public health, and offers education and training in medicine for a multi-state region of the Pacific Northwest and Alaska. The schools and colleges of architecture and urban planning, business administration, education, engineering, nursing, pharmacy, public affairs, and social work have a long tradition of educating students for service to the region and the nation. These schools and colleges make indispensable contributions to the state and, with the rest of the University, share a long tradition of educating undergraduate and graduate students toward achieving an excellence that well serves the state, the region, and the nation.

NON-DISCRIMINATION POLICY

The University of Washington reaffirms its policy of equal opportunity regardless of race, color, creed, religion, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, age, marital status, disability, or status as a disabled veteran or Vietnam era veteran. This policy applies to all programs and facilities including, but not limited to, admissions, educational programs, employment, and patient and hospital services. Any discriminatory action can be a cause for disciplinary action. Discrimination is prohibited by Presidential Executive Order 11246 as amended; Washington State Gubernatorial Executive Orders 89-01 and 93-07; Titles VI and VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964; Washington State Law Against Discrimination RCW 49.60; Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972; State of Washington Gender Equity in Higher Education Act of 1989; Sections 503 and 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973; Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990; Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 as amended; Age Discrimination Act of 1975; Vietnam Era Veterans' Readjustment Act of 1972 as amended; other federal and state statutes, regulations; and University policy. Coordination of the compliance efforts of the University of Washington with respect to all of these laws and regulations is provided by the Equal Opportunity Office, Box 354560, 4045 Brooklyn Avenue Northeast, Seattle, WA 98195, 206-543-1830, eoaa@uw.edu.

Additional information concerning the equal opportunity and affirmative action policies and procedures, including complaint procedures, is in the UW Handbook, Vol. IV, part 1, chapter 2.

Information on reasonable accommodation for students with disabilities is available from the following offices: for classroom and academic-related accommodation, contact Disabled Resources for Students, 206-543-8924/V, 206-543-8925/TTY, uwdss@uw.edu; for other non-academic related information and accommodation, contact the Disability Services Office, 206-543-6450/V, 206-543-6452/TTY, dso@uw.edu.

ACCREDITATION

The University of Washington is accredited by the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges and is a member of the Association of American Universities. Individual schools and colleges are members of the various accrediting association in their respective fields.

Currently enrolled or prospective students should contact the Office of the Registrar to review accreditation documents for the University and the respective departments to review programmatic accreditation documents.

KEY TO SYMBOLS AND ABBREVIATIONS

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

Each course listing includes prefix, course number, title and credits. Each listing also may include general education designator(s), names of instructor(s), description of the course, prerequisite(s), and quarter(s) offered.

Specific information on courses offered in a particular quarter appears in the quarterly Time Schedule.

COURSE NUMBERS

100–299 Lower-division courses primarily for freshmen and sophomores.

300–499 Upper-division courses primarily for juniors, seniors, and postbaccalaureate (fifth-year) students. Graduate students may enroll in 300- and 400-level courses. When acceptable to the major department and the Graduate School, approved 400-level courses may be applied as graduate credit in the major field and approved 300-level courses may be applied in the supporting field(s).

500- Restricted to graduate students. (Courses numbered in the 500 and 600 series with a P before the course title denote professional courses for students in the schools of Dentistry and Medicine, and such courses may not be applied as graduate credit in the Graduate School.) Undergraduate, postbaccalaureate, and nonmatriculated students who wish to register for 500-level courses must obtain permission from the instructor of the class, departmental Chair, or other designated person.

Graduate School-restricted courses

Graduate courses numbered 600, 601, 700, 750, or 800 are restricted to students in the Graduate School. They appear by number and title only where applicable under the departmental course listings in this catalog. Descriptions for these courses are listed below.

- (PREFIX) 600 Independent Study or Research (*)

Individual readings or study, including independent study in preparation for doctoral examinations, research, etc. Prerequisite: permission of Supervisory Committee or graduate program advisor.

- (PREFIX) 600 Internship (3–9, max. 9)

Internship required of students in a graduate degree program. Prerequisite: permission of Supervisory Committee chair or graduate program advisor.

- (PREFIX) 700 Master's Theses (*)

Research for the master's thesis, including research preparatory or related thereto. Limited to premaster graduate students (i.e., those who have not yet completed the master's degree in their major field at the University of Washington). Prerequisite: permission of Supervisory Committee or graduate program advisor.

- (PREFIX) 750 Internship (*)

Internship required of all graduate students in the Doctor of Arts degree program.

- (PREFIX) 800 Doctoral Dissertation (*)

Research for the doctoral dissertation and research preparatory or related thereto. Limited to graduate students who have completed the master's degree or the equivalent, or Candidate-level graduate students. Premaster students initiating doctoral dissertation research should register for 600. Prerequisite: permission of Supervisory Committee or graduate program advisor.

CREDIT DESIGNATION

- ART 100 (5) 5 credits are received for the quarter.
- ART 100 (5-) Course may take longer than one quarter to complete or is the first course in a hyphenated sequence. Credit is earned, but may not be applied toward graduation until the entire sequence is completed. If not part of a hyphenated sequence, repeated registration may be necessary. An N grade is received until the final grade is submitted.
- ART 100 (2, max. 8) 2 credits per quarter; course may be repeated up to four times to earn a maximum of 8 credits.
- ART 100 (1–5) Up to 5 credits may be taken in a given quarter. Specific number is determined in consultation with instructor of adviser. When a maximum is not stated, course is not repeatable.
- ART 100 (1–5, max. 15) Up to 5 credits may be taken in a given quarter. Course may be repeated to a maximum of 15 credits.
- ART 100 (*, max. 10) Credit to be arranged per quarter; course may be repeated to a maximum of 10 credits.

- ART 100 (3/5) 3 or 5 credits are earned in a given quarter. Specific amount is determined by school or college offering the course. The Time Schedule may indicate 3 credits, 5 credits, or 3 or 5 credits. Credits may vary by section.
- ART 100 (3/5, max. 15) 3 or 5 credits are earned in a given quarter. Course may be repeated to earn a maximum of 15 credits.
- ART 700 (*) Credit is to be arranged with school or college offering the course. No maximum stated. Only 600-, 700-, and 800-level courses do not require a maximum.

UNDERGRADUATE GENERAL EDUCATION

REQUIREMENT DESIGNATORS

- VLPA Visual, Literary, and Performing Arts (Areas of Knowledge requirement)
- I&S Individuals & Societies (Areas of Knowledge requirement)
- NW The Natural World (Areas of Knowledge requirement)
- QSR Quantitative, Symbolic, or Formal Reasoning
- DIV Diversity
- C English Composition

Courses marked C may be used for the English Composition requirement or the additional-writing (W-course) requirement, but not both; none may count for the Area of Knowledge requirements. Courses marked QSR may be used for both the QSR requirement and an Area of Knowledge requirement, if one is listed. Courses marked with more than one Areas of Knowledge designator (VLPA, I&S, and/or NW) may be used for any one of the areas indicated, but not for more than one.

BACKGROUND REQUIRED

Prerequisites Courses to be completed or conditions to be met before a student is eligible to enroll in a specific course.

FRESHMAN APPLICANTS

Definition of Freshman Status

Apply as a freshman if any of the following statements describe you.

- You plan to enter the UW right after graduating from high school.
- You are in Washington State's Running Start Program and you plan to enter the UW right after graduating (regardless of how many college credits you have earned or will earn).
- You have never attended college since leaving high school (regardless of your age or whether you ever graduated).

Admission Policy

Selecting the Freshman Class

The University of Washington seeks students who can benefit from its wealth of academic and cultural opportunities and contribute to its amazing energy and rich diversity of experience. Choosing students from a very able group of applicants requires a selection process that looks beyond grades and standardized tests. While these factors are important, they tell only part of an applicant's story. The University uses an individualized application review more typically found at smaller, private universities and colleges. In addition to grade-point average (GPA) and test scores, the University takes into account many aspects of an applicant's achievements and personal history.

Academic Preparation and Performance

While the UW looks at many factors in reviewing applications for admission, academic preparation and performance are still primary. Indicators of preparation and performance include:

- An overall strong level of academic achievement as demonstrated by GPA, rigor of curriculum, standardized test scores, and academic distinctions
- Taking advantage of college-preparatory courses during high school, such as Advanced Placement (AP), International Baccalaureate (IB), Running Start, or college in the high school; or core subjects beyond the minimum required for college entrance
- Taking full academic advantage of the senior year
- Demonstrating a positive grade trend
- Demonstrating habits associated with independent intellectual growth such as self-guided reading, engagement with other cultures, or research activities
- Demonstrating exceptional artistic talent and achievement

Personal Achievements and Characteristics

In addition to academic preparation and performance, personal achievements and characteristics can also indicate promise to benefit from and contribute to the University of Washington. These include:

- Demonstrating a commitment to community service and leadership
- Exercising significant responsibility in a family, community, employment, or through activities
- Attaining a college-preparatory education in the face of significant personal adversity, economic disadvantage, or disability
- Demonstrating cultural awareness or unique perspectives or experiences
- Demonstrating notable tenacity, insight, originality, or creativity

The entire application, including the Writing Section and Activities Log, is important in the individualized application review. Because the University receives about 23,000 freshman applications every year, this process takes time to complete. The University takes great care in assessing applications and does not rush the selection of future students. While this process requires patience on the part of many applicants, the benefit is that each applicant is reviewed as an individual. Applications for 2011 may be submitted between October 1 and December 15, 2010. An admission decision will be mailed to all freshman applicants between March 15 and 31, 2011.

College Academic Distribution Requirements (CADR)

To be eligible for full admission consideration, applicants must present the following:

1. Submit official admission test scores from either SAT Reasoning Test or ACT with Writing.
2. Completion of a college-preparatory course of study to include the following high school credits*:
 - a. 4 high school credits of English
 - b. 2 high school credits of a single world language
 - c. 3 high school credits of mathematics: algebra, geometry, and preferably trigonometry (a fourth high school credit of mathematical analysis or calculus is recommended for students preparing for majors in the sciences or engineering)
 - d. 3 high school credits of social science
 - e. 2 high school credits of science including one laboratory science course in biology chemistry or physics

- f. 1 senior-year math-based quantitative course
- g. 0.5 high school credits of the fine, visual, or performing arts
- h. 0.5 high school credits of electives taken from the above areas

* One high school credit represents a standard full year of high school coursework

Because these are admission requirements, all CADR must be satisfactorily completed before the first quarter of enrollment at the UW. Almost all applicants will have satisfied these requirements through high school coursework, which is generally defined as that completed in grades 9–12. There are, however, several ways to satisfy CADR at the college level. In general, five quarter credits (or three semester credits) at the college level equals one credit of high-school study. If you completed a portion of these requirements in high school, you can supplement high school courses with college course work. For example:

High School:	3 credits of English
Community college:	5-credit English composition or literature course is equivalent to one high-school year
Total:	4 credit high school requirement satisfied

Grading Restrictions

In general, you must attain at minimum a passing grade (including 'D') to satisfy a CADR. Also acceptable is a grade of 'Pass' in a course taken on a 'Pass/Not Pass' basis. However, if you are completing CADR through college course work you are strongly encouraged to choose a letter or numerical grade, because you may later want to apply CADR courses towards requirements for your major or University or college graduation requirements, for which grading restrictions pertain.

Applicants using a college course to satisfy the mathematics CADR: specific restrictions on grading apply. See the Mathematics section.

English Composition/Literature

1. IF TAKEN IN HIGH SCHOOL

Four high school credits of study are required, at least three of which must be in college-preparatory composition or literature.

- One of the four credits may be satisfied by courses in drama as literature, public speaking, debate, journalistic writing, business English, or English as a Second Language (ESL).
- Courses that are generally not acceptable include those identified as remedial or applied (e.g., acting, basic English skills, developmental reading, library, newspaper staff, remedial English, review English, vocabulary, yearbook/annual).

2. IF SATISFIED BY COLLEGE COURSE WORK

College course work must be at the 100 level or higher. For the composition/literature component, generally any course with an English or Writing prefix is acceptable.

- One of the four credits may be satisfied by a college course in speech, drama as literature, journalistic writing, business English, ESL, or engineering/technical writing.
- Courses such as developmental or speed reading, vocabulary, or remedial English are not acceptable.
- English courses are considered equivalent to ESL unless taken in Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, the United Kingdom, or the U.S.

3. APPLICANTS WHOSE FIRST LANGUAGE IS NOT ENGLISH

Although the four-credit English high school course requirement cannot be waived, there are some alternatives for meeting the English subject requirement for U.S. citizens, permanent residents or refugees

- whose first language is not English or,
- who attended school in a non-English speaking country.

English-speaking countries are defined as Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, the United Kingdom, or the U.S.

ALTERNATIVE ONE (Applicants with Test Scores)

To fulfill the English core subject requirement under this alternative, both A and B must be satisfied.

A: Test Score Requirement

Submit one of the following official test scores by the application closing date:

- SAT Critical Reading 430
- ACT English 17

Other tests (e.g., Test of English as a Foreign Language [TOEFL] or IELTS) cannot be used to meet this requirement.

B: Coursework Requirement

A total of four years of study are required.

- Composition or literature courses in the student's first language may satisfy up to three years of the requirement.
- English composition or literature courses taken in Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, the United Kingdom, or the U.S. may satisfy up to four years of the requirement.
- These courses may satisfy no more than one year of the requirement:
 - English, if taken outside of Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, the United Kingdom, or the U.S.
 - ESL taken in the U.S.
 - Courses in drama as literature, public speaking, debate, journalistic writing, or business English that were completed in Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, the United Kingdom, or the U.S.

ALTERNATIVE TWO (Applicants with 60 or more college quarter credits)

All three of the following conditions (A, B, and C) must be satisfied:

- A. A minimum of 60 transferable quarter credits from a regionally accredited college or university in the U.S. or from an accredited college or university in Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, or the United Kingdom must be completed at the time of application. Transcripts showing 60 completed credits must be submitted by the application closing date.
- B. A minimum of two college-level English composition courses, for a minimum of six credits, taken at a regionally accredited college or university in the U.S., or from an accredited college or university in Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, or the United Kingdom. All college-level English composition and literature courses must be completed with a minimum cumulative grade-point average (GPA) of 3.00 (B) and must be recorded on a transcript at the time of application.
- C. Additional English Course Work Requirements

The remaining two units of the requirement may be satisfied by any combination of course work from among the following options:

- 1. Up to two units may be satisfied by high school English composition or literature courses from high schools where the primary language of instruction is English.
- 2. Up to two units may be satisfied by composition or literature courses in the student's first language (when the first language is not English) for coursework completed in educational systems other than the U.S., Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, or the United Kingdom.

- 3. Only one unit (year) of the requirement may be satisfied by one of the following:
 - English courses taken in countries where English is NOT recognized as the primary language of instruction.
 - ESL courses taken in the U.S.
 - Courses in drama as literature, public speaking, debate, journalistic writing, or business English that were completed in Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, the United Kingdom, or the U.S.
- 4. Up to two units may be satisfied by additional college-level English composition or English literature courses from a regionally accredited college or university in the U.S., or from an accredited college or university in Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, or the United Kingdom.

Mathematics

1. IF COMPLETED IN HIGH SCHOOL

Three high school credits are required, at least at the level of algebra, geometry, and second-year algebra.

- An algebra course completed in the last year of junior high school may partially satisfy the requirement if the second-year algebra is completed in secondary school.
- Arithmetic, pre-algebra, business math, and statistics will not count toward the requirement.

2. IF SATISFIED BY COLLEGE COURSE WORK

If your high school preparation in mathematics was insufficient, you must complete one of the courses listed below:

- A course in intermediate algebra — At UW Extension, as well as at many community colleges in Washington, MATH 098 is the necessary course. The course must be completed with a grade of 'C' (2.0) or better, even though it does not transfer to the UW as college credit and the grade earned in the course is not used in computing the transfer GPA.
- MATH 104 (Trigonometry) or its equivalent — The course must be completed with a grade of 'C' (2.0) or better.
- MATH 107 (Mathematics: A Practical Art) or its equivalent — The course must be completed with a grade of 'C' (2.0) or better.
- Mathematics courses with intermediate algebra as a prerequisite (except statistics courses) — This includes any higher-level math courses such as elementary functions, calculus, and beyond.

Social Science

1. IF COMPLETED IN HIGH SCHOOL

Three high school credits are required in history or in any of the social sciences, e.g., anthropology, contemporary world problems, economics, geography, government, political science, psychology, sociology.

Credit for religion courses, consumer economics, student government, or community service will not count towards the requirement.

2. IF SATISFIED BY COLLEGE COURSE WORK

Courses in the social sciences-e.g., anthropology, economics, ethnic studies, history, philosophy, political science, psychology, sociology-will count toward the requirement.

World Languages

1. IF COMPLETED IN HIGH SCHOOL

Two high school credits are required. The two credits must be completed in the same language.

Note: The world language requirement will be considered satisfied for applicants who complete their education through the 7th grade in school(s)

1. where English was not the language of instruction and
2. in countries other than Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, the United Kingdom, and the U.S.

International applicants who entered the U.S. education system prior to the 8th grade must satisfy the foreign language requirement.

Any natural language that has been formally studied may be used to satisfy this requirement, including American Sign Language (ASL, the language of the deaf community), and languages no longer spoken, such as Latin and ancient Greek. However, neither computer 'languages' nor forms of deaf signing aside from ASL are acceptable.

A world language course taken in the eighth grade may satisfy one credit of the requirement if the second-year course is completed in high school.

2. IF SATISFIED BY COLLEGE COURSE WORK

For purposes of admission, each 5-quarter-credit course of language in college is considered equivalent to one high school credit. Applicants who have never studied a world language will need to complete ten quarter credits of a single world language. However, an applicant who studied French for one credit in high school needs to complete only the second quarter (e.g., FREN 102) or the second semester of a first-year language sequence. Of course, you may prefer to begin with 101 to refresh your memory.

Lab Science

1. IF COMPLETED IN HIGH SCHOOL

A minimum of two credits of laboratory science are required. At least one of the two credits must be in biology, chemistry, or physics. Students typically take this full year course in two successive high school semesters. Additionally, at least one of the two years of laboratory science must be an algebra-based science course. The principles of technology courses taught in Washington State high schools may apply toward the laboratory science requirement. Additionally, courses identified by the school district as a laboratory science courses—e.g., astronomy, environmental science, geological science, genetics, marine science—may also apply toward the additional credit of laboratory science requirement.

2. IF SATISFIED BY COLLEGE COURSE WORK

College science courses with a lab will count toward the laboratory science portion of the requirement. Any course in astronomy, atmospheric science, biological structure, biology, botany, chemistry, environmental science (but not environmental studies), genetics, geology, oceanography, physical anthropology, physical geography, physics, or zoology will count toward the second-year requirement, as will introductory courses in biological or physical science.

Fine, Visual, or Performing Arts

1. IF COMPLETED IN HIGH SCHOOL

One-half credit is required in the fine, visual, or performing arts, to be chosen from art appreciation, band, ceramics, choir, dance, dramatic performance and production, drawing, fiber arts, graphic arts, metal design, music appreciation, music theory, orchestra, painting, photography, print making, or sculpture.

Courses that do NOT satisfy this requirement include architecture, color guard, creative writing, drafting, drill team, fashion design, foreign languages, interior design, sewing, speech, web design or graphics, woodworking, and year-book.

2. IF SATISFIED BY COLLEGE COURSE WORK

Two quarter credits (or 2 semester credits) chosen from any of the following subjects will satisfy the requirement:

- Art, art history, cinema/filmmaking, dance, music, or photography;
- Any course in drama except drama as literature courses.
- Courses in architecture are generally not accepted, except for those in architectural history.

Academic Electives

1. IF COMPLETED IN HIGH SCHOOL

Academic electives are courses in any of the six core subject areas — English, Mathematics, Social Science, World Languages, Lab Science, and the Arts — beyond the minimum number of credits specified. An additional half-credit is required.

2. IF SATISFIED BY COLLEGE COURSE WORK

Three quarter credits (2 semester credits), chosen from any of the six subject areas, satisfy this requirement.

High School Students Enrolled in Dual-Credit Programs

The Running Start Program allows academically qualified 11th- and 12th-graders the opportunity to enroll in certain Washington colleges for college credit. College in the High School, which may go under names such as dual enrollment or dual credit, allows high school students to take college courses while enrolled at their local high school and receive college credit.

ADMISSION

Dual-enrollment applicants are evaluated for admission on the same basis as other freshman applicants: academic preparation and performance; and personal achievement and characteristics. See Requirements/Freshman/Review.

- You must satisfy the College Academic Distribution Requirements (CADR).
- You must submit scores from SAT Reasoning Test or ACT with Writing. Dual-enrollment applicants are evaluated for admission on the basis of both quantitative (including high school and college grades and admission test scores) and qualitative factors.

APPLICATION PROCEDURES

- If you are applying for summer or autumn quarter after you graduate from high school, use the freshman application and apply by the freshman application deadline, December 15, regardless of the number of college credits you have taken or will have taken. All materials to complete the application file must be submitted or postmarked by the deadline.
- The the Honors Program priority date for scholarship consideration is November 15.
- If you are starting college after you leave high school, apply as a transfer student.

Recommendations for Academic Planning

We encourage dual-enrollment applicants—particularly those with a significant number of college credits—to begin their academic planning as early as possible to ensure that they make the most of their college credit. The Transfer Admission & Planning booklet will be helpful in this regard, especially the academic planning section.

- Keep in mind that you have established a college record. Grades you earn now could affect admission to the University and to your intended major.
- If you anticipate entering the UW with 90 or more transferable credits, please know that you will be expected to declare a major at the end of your first quarter at the UW or request an extension from your adviser.

Two online tools will help you look ahead toward UW requirements—for your intended major and for graduation—while still completing course work at the college you are now attending:

- For transferable courses at Washington State community colleges and transfer credit policies, get to know the Equivalency Guide.
- Consult the Academic Planning Worksheets, to help you prepare for your intended major and UW graduation requirements.

Transfer Credit Policy

In general, it is UW policy to accept college credits earned at institutions fully accredited by their regional accrediting association for colleges and universities, provide that such credits have been earned through university-level courses appropriate to the student's degree program at the UW. Exceptions are noted under Notable Restrictions on Transfer Credit and Courses Receiving No Credit in the Transfer Credit section of the catalog.

Scholarships

You may be considered for freshman scholarships as long as you do not enroll in another degree-seeking program after leaving high school and before enrolling at the UW. December 1 is the application deadline for freshman admission.

Homeschooled Applicants

Homeschooled students bring unique qualities to our campus, and we welcome their interest in the University of Washington. The Office of Admissions provides these guidelines to help homeschooled applicants become eligible for admission consideration.

College Academic Distribution Requirements (CADR)

All freshman and transfer applicants are required to meet minimum academic distribution requirements as set by the Washington State Higher Education Coordinating (HEC) Board and the faculty of the University of Washington. These requirements are explained in detail elsewhere.

Test Score Requirements

- CADR subjects completed at a high school or regionally accredited college do not require test score validation.
- CADR subjects completed through homeschooled coursework require validating test scores.

The UW does not have an established list of predetermined minimum scores but reviews each homeschooled applicant in light of their unique educational history. All applicants are assessed holistically in the context of the UW's comprehensive review process.

Examination Options
Scores from ACT with Writing or SAT Reasoning Test are required of all freshman applicants and may also serve as a validation option for some CADR subjects.
CADR
English	SAT Reasoning Test or ACT with Writing
Mathematics	SAT Reasoning Test or ACT with Writing
Lab Science:	ACT with Writing or SAT Subject Test or Advanced Placement (AP)
Validation is required for at least one of the following: Biology, Chemistry, or Physics.

	Examination Options Scores from ACT with Writing or SAT Reasoning Test are required of all freshman applicants and may also serve as a validation option for some CADR subjects.
CADR
World Languages	UW proficiency examination results for subject area (Comparable proficiency exam from another regionally accredited college or university may be an option; contact UW Admissions Office in advance.) SAT Subject Test or Advanced Placement (AP)
Social Science	No additional test required.
Fine Visual & Performing Arts	No additional test required.

Required Documents

Transcripts

An official homeschool transcript is required for all home-schooled coursework. It should include a summary of subjects completed for each year (grades 9-12) of homeschool study. For each subject, the following must be included:

- Course title,
- Course level (for example, 1st-year Spanish, Algebra II, etc.),
- Duration of study (beginning and ending dates),
- Short description of course content, and
- Grade for performance (or comparable qualitative assessment).

To be considered official, the homeschool transcript must be signed by the teacher of record; this may be a parent. Official transcripts are also required for any coursework completed at other high schools or regionally accredited colleges. All official transcripts, including college transcripts, must be submitted by the appropriate application deadline.

Test Scores

Everything you need to know about how to submit scores from SAT Reasoning and ACT with Writing is at admit.washington.edu/Apply/Freshmen/TestScores.

Applicants with College Coursework: Freshman vs. Transfer Application

Freshman

If you are applying for admission for the summer or autumn quarter immediately following your high school graduation, apply using the freshman application, regardless of the number of college credits you have taken, are taking, or will have taken.

Transfer

If you will have completed college coursework and will be applying for a quarter beyond the autumn immediately following high school graduation, use the transfer application.

College Credit

In general, the UW awards credit for academic, college-level course work completed through regionally accredited colleges. See the section on Transfer Credit Policies below.

English Language Proficiency Requirement

Enrollment Requirement

All new freshman and transfer students must satisfy an English language proficiency requirement upon enrolling at the Seattle campus of the University of Washington. Applicants should review the English language proficiency requirement section of the catalog so they will know what to expect when they enroll at the UW.

Admission Requirement

- U.S. Applicants: Proof of English language proficiency is not an admission requirement
- International Applicants: Minimum test scores are required to be considered for admission. Applicants should read more about the admission process in the International Applicants section of the catalog.

Freshman Application Checklist

A complete application file for freshman admission must include:

- Application
- $60 nonrefundable application fee OR approved fee waiver
- Official test scores from SAT Reasoning Test or ACT with Writing
- Transcripts: Do not send unless you receive a request from the Office of Admissions. The application requires that you self-report your academic course work.
- Letters of Recommendation: Do not send.
- The Writing Section: a required and important part of your application for admission: admit.washington.edu/Apply/Freshmen/WritingSection.

Application Deadlines

All required materials, including official exam and test score results, must be received by the application deadline.

TRANSFER APPLICANTS

Definition of Transfer Status

Apply as a transfer student if all of the following statements describe you.

- You wish to enroll at the University of Washington to earn your first bachelor's degree.
- You are no longer in high school (regardless of how old you are or whether you graduated).
- You have completed, plan to complete, or will have completed any coursework at a regionally accredited college or university before you enroll at the University of Washington.

Admission Policy

Selecting the Transfer Class

The University seeks students who will enhance the intellectual and cultural vitality of the university community. Choosing students from an able group of applicants requires a selection process that looks beyond grades.

Minimum Requirements

Transfer applicants must meet the following minimum standards to be assured their application will receive a comprehensive review:

1. Completion of the College Academic Distribution Requirements (see Freshman Admission section for complete details)
2. Transfer GPA of 2.50 or better

3. Submission of scores on the SAT or ACT unless the applicant has earned at least 40 reasonably distributed transferable quarter-credits after high school graduation

Comprehensive Review

The Comprehensive Review is a holistic assessment of an applicant's academic performance and personal qualities and achievements. The comprehensive review includes the following assessment areas:

- Level of academic achievement including cumulative transfer GPA based on all transferable college-level courses attempted; rigor of curriculum; and consistency in course completion
- Well-defined academic goals
- Preparation for intended major
- Plan for timely completion of a bachelor's degree
- Completion of foreign language through the 103-level, or equivalent, when applying to Arts and Sciences or Social Work
- Evidence of a need to enroll at the UW and the availability of the applicant's intended academic program at other Washington public educational institutions
- Academic or artistic awards and achievements, community service, work experience, or research that demonstrates success or potential contributions to the University and community
- Improved grades after an extended absence from college or evidence of a new maturity in approaching college work
- Cultural awareness
- Perseverance in attaining higher education in spite of personal adversity, disability, or economic disadvantage
- Admission test scores, if provided

Enrollment Goals and Priorities

The University is committed to the following transfer goals and priorities to benefit students from Washington's community and technical colleges.

- Among community college transfer students, the highest admission priority will be given to those with academic associate degrees and those with 90 transferable credits taken in preparation for a professional academic major. Applicants with fewer than 90 credits may also be admitted when early transfer is advisable, but the number of such transfers remains small.
- The University accepts applicants who have completed fewer than 40 quarter credits (slightly less than one year of college) at the time of application. However, admission for these applicants is competitive and, due to enrollment pressures, priority is low.

English Language Proficiency Requirement

Enrollment Requirement

All new freshman and transfer students must satisfy an English language proficiency requirement upon enrolling at the Seattle campus of the University of Washington. Applicants should review the English language proficiency requirement section of the catalog so they will know what to expect when they enroll at the UW.

- $60 nonrefundable application fee OR approved fee waiver
- Academic Planning Worksheet for intended major
- Personal Statement
- Official high school transcript (if homeschooled, see Homeschool section)
- Official college or university transcript(s)
- Test scores (for applicants with fewer than 40 transferable credits)

* ATTN: Engineering Applicants and Computer Science Applicants Only. You may submit the paper application to the UW Admissions Office for spring quarter admission only if you are also applying for spring quarter direct entry to the programs listed below. To apply to the university, direct entry applicants to these programs should print the PDF version of the university application and submit the paper application and required documents prior to December 15. Direct entry applicants must also submit a departmental application to the program; check department websites for instructions.

The following departments admit new transfer students for spring quarter only:

- Bioengineering
- Chemical Engineering

The following departments admit new transfer students for spring and autumn quarters:

- Bioresource Science and Engineering
- Computer Science
- Computer Engineering
- Electrical Engineering
- Materials Science & Engineering
- Human Centered Design and Engineering
- Industrial and Systems Engineering

INTERNATIONAL APPLICANTS

An international student is anyone who needs an F-1 student visa or has any other type of temporary, non-immigrant visa. You are not considered an international student if you have US citizenship, US permanent residency, political asylum, refugee status, or an A, E, I, G, K, or V visa. The University of Washington accepts international student applications for either summer or autumn quarters. Admission to the University of Washington is competitive for international degree-seeking students. In recent years, the UW has offered admission to about 40% of international student applicants.

Admission Policy and Requirements

For admission consideration, the following requirements must be completed by the December 15 application deadline for freshman or the February 15 deadline for transfer and postbaccalaureates:

1. Complete the Application for International Undergraduates
2. Submit official English proficiency exam scores that meet the minimum admission requirement
3. Completion of the College Academic Distribution Requirements before enrolling at the University. The minimum requirements are as follows:
 - Composition/Literature 4 years
 - Mathematics 3 years
 - Social Science 3 years
 - World Languages 2 years
 - Lab Science 2 years
 - Fine, Visual, or Performing Arts 0.5 year

For additional details, go to admit.washington.edu/Admission/International/CADR

4. Submit official transcripts for all schools attended for grades 9–11 (or grades 10–12 if you have already graduated high school) and for all colleges and/or universities attended.

English Proficiency for Admission

All international students are required to submit English proficiency scores that meet the University's minimum requirement for admission consideration. Applicants must request official scores be sent directly to the UW from the testing agency for either the TOEFL or IELTS. Previous ESL or English composition courses, even when taken in the United States, will not satisfy the admission requirement. Students currently enrolled in US or Canadian schools are also required to submit official exam scores. Applicants who have not met the minimum English proficiency requirement by the application deadline or have not taken one of the English proficiency exams will not be considered for admission.

Exception. Non-U.S. citizens whose primary and secondary education took place in Australia, Canada, Great Britain, Ireland, New Zealand, or the US are exempt from this requirement. Students who were born in one of these countries but educated elsewhere are still required to satisfy the English proficiency requirement. SAT or ACT Scores. Although the SAT and ACT are not required for international student applicants, the University may consider the English proficiency requirement satisfied if you have achieved academic success in English writing or literature courses and have a minimum SAT critical reading score of 550 or an ACT English/Writing score of 22. Official SAT or ACT scores must be sent directly from the testing organization.

English Language Proficiency Requirement for UW Enrollment

All new freshmen and transfer students must satisfy an English language proficiency requirement upon enrolling at the University. This requirement is separate from the admission requirement for international students. English composition, literature, or ESL courses taken at the secondary or college level will not satisfy the English language proficiency requirement for UW enrollment.

Applicants who are offered admission to the UW and have qualifying exam scores or meet one of the other alternatives will have satisfied this requirement. New students entering the UW without a qualifying test score, will be required to take an English language proficiency screening test before registering for classes. Students who do not achieve the minimum score on the screening test will be directed to participate in a mandatory advising program and/or to complete courses through the Academic English Program (AEP). At least one AEP course will be required each quarter until all mandatory AEP classes are completed. An extra fee is charged for each AEP course in addition to regular tuition.

Test Score Requirements

Test Title	Minimum Requirement for Admission to UW Seattle	Score Needed for English Language Proficiency Exemption Upon UW Enrollment
TOEFL Internet-based	76	92
TOEFL Paper-based	540	580
IELTS	6.0	7.0

The most competitive applicants will demonstrate a higher level of English proficiency and have test scores that exempt them from enrolling in UW's Academic English Program (AEP).

Selecting International Students for Admission

All international students for a given year are reviewed to determine which applicants meet minimum requirements and have the strongest overall academic background. In selecting students for admission, the University considers the overall academic record, the rigor of a student's curriculum, the education system where the student has studied, test scores, personal achievements, educational goals, academic preparation, special talents, and a student's personal background as seen through the personal statement. Admission will be offered to as many highly qualified students as space allows and to those applicants who will most benefit from and contribute to the University's educational resources.

International Application Checklist

A complete application file for transfer admission must include:

- Application
- $75USD nonrefundable application fee
- Official scores from English proficiency exam
- Academic Credentials (transcripts)
- Official secondary school transcripts
- Official transcripts from each college, university, or other post-secondary institution attended

POSTBACCALAUREATE APPLICANTS

Admission Policy

Postbaccalaureate is a highly competitive status, reserved for students who are working toward a second bachelor's degree or preparing for entrance to graduate or professional school. Only a small number of applicants are admitted every quarter as postbaccalaureates because the University's primary commitment is to undergraduates who are completing the first bachelor's degree. The primary factors in the admission decision are the Statement of Purpose, the applicant's academic record from the first bachelor's degree, and any relevant postbaccalaureate course work.

Postbaccalaureate Application Checklist

A complete application file consists of:

- Application, available online
- $60 nonrefundable application fee via Visa, MasterCard or electronic check
- Statement of Purpose
- One official transcript from each college or university attended

Statement of Purpose

A Statement of Purpose, required of all postbaccalaureate applicants, is a critical part of your application for admission and is a required part of your admission file. Statements of Purpose and all other documents submitted are reviewed by the Postbaccalaureate Review Committee (PRC). Applicants will be notified in writing of the final decision after evaluation of transcripts and the Statement of Purpose.

The Statement of Purpose will be evaluated as part of the admission decision. Content as well as form (spelling, grammar, punctuation) will be considered.

Applicants are expected to answer the following questions in their statements:

- Why are you pursuing further studies? How did you reach the decision to go into your particular field? What are your long term academic and professional goals? Be as specific as possible.
- If you are preparing to enter a second undergraduate, graduate, or professional program (such as medical, dental, or law school), what courses do you intend to take? If, on the other hand, you are ready to begin work in your major immediately, you do not need to list all of the courses comprising the major.
- For how many academic quarters do you plan to enroll? Why is it necessary for you to enroll at the UW? Do other four-year universities or community colleges offer what you need at this time? Can you meet your goal as a non-matriculated student, attending classes through UW Educational Outreach? (If you are planning to take specific courses in preparation for a graduate or professional program, be aware that access to courses in a particular quarter is not guaranteed.)
- If you are seeking admission to an undergraduate program with selective admission criteria: are you assured departmental admission? Your statement will be strengthened by a letter of support from the department. We recommend that applicants preparing for graduate school meet with an adviser in the department for an assessment of their chances for future admission. It is your responsibility to contact directly the program(s) you are interested in well before applying for admission to the University. Please be aware that post-baccalaureate applicants who are not accepted to their major of choice will not be admitted to the University.
- If you feel your undergraduate GPA is low: why might it be an unreliable indicator of your academic potential? Those students with postbaccalaureate course work on record, be it from a community college, four-year school, or graduate program, may use this opportunity to point out subsequent high performance if it is relevant to their academic plans at the UW.

TRANSFER CREDIT POLICY

General Policy

To students pursuing a first bachelor’s degree, the Office of Admissions awards transfer credit according to the guidelines discussed here. Admissions reserves the right to accept or reject credits earned at other institutions of higher education. In general, it is University policy to accept credits earned at institutions fully accredited by their regional accrediting association for colleges and universities, provided that such credits have been earned through university-level courses appropriate to the student’s degree program at the University of Washington (UW). Exceptions are noted below.

State Policy on Inter-college Transfer and Articulation

The UW subscribes to the statewide Policy on Inter-College Transfer and Articulation Among Washington Public Colleges and Universities, endorsed by the public colleges and universities of Washington as well as by the State Board for Community and Technical College Education, and adopted by the Higher Education Coordinating Board. The policy deals with the rights and responsibilities of students, and the review and appeal process in transfer-credit disputes.

Class Standing

A student’s class standing is determined by the total number of transfer credits awarded by the UW, not by the number of years of college study or by the completion of an associate degree.

Standing	Credit total
Freshman	0–44 credits
Sophomore	45–89 credits
Junior	90–134 credits
Senior	135+ credits

Satisfying UW graduation requirements depends not only on the number of credits completed—a minimum of 180 for most programs—but also on completing all College and major requirements.

Quarter vs. Semester Credits

Colleges and universities that operate on a semester system award semester credit. The UW awards quarter credit. To convert quarter credits to semester credits, multiply by two-thirds. To convert semester to quarter credits, multiply by 1.5. For example, a student who has earned 30 credits at an institution on a semester calendar would earn 45 quarter credits at the UW.

Applying Transfer Credit to Degree Requirements

Before a student first registers for classes at the University of Washington, s/he should meet with an academic adviser to plan a program of study. The adviser determines how the transfer credits shown on the transfer-credit evaluation may be used to meet UW degree requirements. For example, suppose that Admissions awards a student 120 transfer credits, but only 100 of those credits can be applied toward graduation requirements for that student’s degree program. If selective credits are needed, credits that do not apply toward specific requirements may still be applied toward the minimum number of total credits required for graduation.

Alternative Credit Options

The UW does not award credit for work or life experience; however, two avenues exist for obtaining credit. Both situations require a formal approval process and a fee of $25 per course.

- Once enrolled at the UW, students may explore the possibility of obtaining departmental approval for transfer of credit earned through coursework taken at a non-regionally accredited institution.
- Students may arrange to challenge specific UW courses via credit by examination if the same knowledge has been gained through independent study outside a formal educational setting.

For course work taken at an unaccredited institution, contact Admissions. For credit by examination for independent study completed outside a formal educational setting, contact the Graduation and Academic Records Office, ugradoff@uw.edu.

Transfer Credit Limit

The University allows a maximum of 90 credits of lower-division transfer course work to be applied toward a UW degree. Of the 180 credits required for graduation from the University (some majors require more than 180), a maximum of 90 lower-division transfer credits are allowed. Upon enrolling at the UW, students with a lower-division credit total that exceeds 90 will see a difference between the “total credits earned” and the “total credits allows” on their UW record under the Summary of Transfer Credit following the course by course “Detail of Transfer Credit.”

Additionally, a maximum of 135 total transfer credits are allowed toward the 180-credit total. Therefore, a student transferring 135 or more credits must complete a minimum of 45 more credits in residence at the UW.

Despite these restrictions, all transferable credit are listed under the Detail of Transfer Credit and, with an adviser’s approval, may be used to satisfy individual requirements for graduation. It may be helpful to think of transfer credits as a “bank account” of credits from which applicable credits may be drawn. All transferable credits remain in the bank, but no more than 90 lower-division credits and no more than 135 total transfer credits may be “withdrawn” in order to be applied toward the 180 (or more) credits required for a degree.

Extension Credit from Other Schools

Extension credit, including correspondence courses, earned at other schools may not exceed 45 credits. Military credit is included in this 45-credit limit.

Foreign Language Courses

Students who complete two or more years of a foreign language in high school and then go on to complete an entry-level language course in the same language (e.g., FRENCH 101) before transferring to the UW are eligible to receive transfer credit. However, students who complete an entry-level course after their transfer to the UW will not receive college credit.

Military Credit

Credits earned for courses completed through in Armed Forces Training Schools (AFTS) and through USAFI and DANTES may not exceed 30 credits. Official transcripts (or DD-214 or DD-295 forms) will be evaluated after a student enrolls at the UW. No credit is awarded for Military Occupational Specialty (MOS) programs.

Native Language

First-year (elementary) or second-year (intermediate) foreign-language credit is not granted either by examination or by course completion in a student’s native language. “Native language” is defined as the language spoken in the student’s home during the first six years of his or her life and in which he or she received instruction through the seventh grade.

Out-of-Sequence Courses

Credit is not awarded for prerequisite courses in mathematics or foreign languages completed after a more advanced course has been completed. For example, students will not be awarded credit for Spanish 102 if taken after Spanish 103.

Overlapping Content

If a department considers two of its courses to have overlapping content, credit will be awarded for only one. For example, credit is granted for either PHYS 114 or PHYS 121.

Physical Education

No more than three quarter credits will be allowed for physical-education activity courses.

Restricted Transfer Credit

Transfer credit will not generally be awarded for vocational or technical courses. However, a maximum of 15 quarter credits will be awarded in transfer for college-level vocational-technical courses when they have been allowed as electives within the 90 credits comprising an academic associate degree from a Washington community college. Courses in this category are those that ordinarily provide specialized training for an occupation (e.g., allied health, bookkeeping, electronics, or physical therapy assistant). When allowed, these credits will apply only toward the elective credit component of a baccalaureate degree at the UW. Such courses are not included in the transfer GPA.

Senior Residency Requirement

To be recommended for a first bachelor's degree, a student must complete 45 of the last 60 credits as a matriculated student at the UW campus where the degree is to be awarded.

Appeal Procedure

If not all courses transfer as the student had anticipated, and it is not evident to the academic adviser is unable to answer questions about an individual student's transfer credit award, the student should first consult with an admissions specialist in the Office of Admissions. If appropriate, further appeal can be directed to the UW Transfer Officer in the Admissions Office.

The Direct Transfer Agreement (DTA)

The public community colleges and baccalaureate colleges and universities in Washington have adopted an inter-institutional transfer agreement. The agreement applies to the applicability of transfer credit from community colleges to baccalaureate institutions; the DTA is not an admission agreement. The DTA Associate Degree Guidelines developed by the Intercollege Relations Commission (ICRC) outline an acceptable transfer curriculum, which serves as the foundation of the DTA associate degrees offered at each community college. In general, transfer students who have been awarded a qualifying DTA associate will be eligible to transfer to a baccalaureate institution with junior standing and will have completed lower division general education requirements.

The University of Washington subscribes to the Direct Transfer Agreement as follows:

- Students will be assigned junior standing upon admission.
- The UW transfers credit on a course-by-course basis. However, approved DTA degree-holders may use transfer courses toward the UW Areas of Knowledge requirements comparable to those the community college used toward DTA associate degree distribution requirements—even if those courses would not otherwise be allowed toward specific Areas of Knowledge requirements at the UW—if doing so is to the student's advantage.
- The UW's College of Arts and Sciences agrees that transfer students from Washington community colleges who complete approved associate degree programs will be considered to have satisfied the College's general education and proficiency requirements with the following provisos:

1. Students who have completed the minimum of 45 credits of distribution (15-15-15) as part of their DTA degree will be required to take an additional 5 credits in each area plus an additional 15 credits drawn from their choice of one or more of the three areas in order to satisfy the Arts and Sciences Areas of Knowledge requirement.
2. Up to 15 credits in the student's major may be applied towards the 75-credit Areas of Knowledge requirement.
3. Students who complete first-year language courses as a part of the transfer degree distribution requirement, and later use that foreign language to satisfy the Arts and Science language proficiency requirement (see item 4), may NOT use those foreign language credits towards the Arts and Science Areas of Knowledge requirement.
4. Students will be required to complete foreign language study through the 103-level or to demonstrate language proficiency at the 103-level through an examination.
5. Ten credits in courses emphasizing writing (W-courses or English composition) are required in addition to the 5-credit English composition requirement. W-courses must have attributes as defined by Arts and Sciences. If not completed as part of the transfer degree, this requirement must be completed at the University.

Note: Additional courses taken at the UW to fulfill general education or proficiency requirements may be upper division courses; students will not be required to complete additional lower division courses at the UW.

ADVANCED PLACEMENT PROGRAM (COLLEGE BOARD)

AP Credit Policies

Although AP scores range from 1 to 5, all UW departments that award credit require a minimum score of 3 or 4. In some cases, students must consult a UW departmental adviser for evaluation after entering the University.

NOTE: AP test results may be submitted only for courses taken in high school and for tests taken during or within 6 months of leaving high school. AP test results may not be used to waive admission requirements.

INTERNATIONAL BACCALAUREATE PROGRAM

Policy Overview

In most cases, five quarter credits (or more) are granted for Higher Level subjects in which a grade of 5 or higher is earned. Students who earn an IB diploma may be awarded up to 45 quarter credits for a combination of subject grades and 15 general education credits distributed equally among the three Areas of Knowledge (general education) areas: Visual, Literary, and Performing Arts (VLP), Individuals and Societies (I&S), and The Natural World (NW). No credit is awarded for Standard Level subject grades. Consult the Higher Level Subjects table for detailed information about credit awards in particular disciplines.

REGISTRATION POLICIES

Full-time Requirements

You should register for 12 or more credits to be considered full-time if you are an undergraduate or professional student. If you are a graduate student, you should register for 10 or more credits. It is important to note that differing criteria and standards for full-time enrollment exist for eligibility in certain programs. Consult the Financial Aid Office for its requirements on satisfactory student progress. The tuition schedule does not reflect full-time credit requirements for loan deferments, teaching assistantships or other programs.

Class Attendance

If you do not attend regularly scheduled class meetings during the first week of the quarter, you are subject to being dropped at the discretion of the teaching department to allow enrollment space for other students. Affected courses should be identified in the Time Schedule and/or posted in departmental offices. Do not assume that departments will automatically drop you from the course if you do not attend. If you are not going to go to class, you should drop the course through the registration system. Students who are registered for a course section but do not attend will be assigned a failing grade by the instructor. You may not attend a University course in which you have not been officially registered after the first two weeks of the quarter.

An instructor may allow you to attend his or her class only if your name appears on the official class list from Office of the Registrar. A faculty member may attend informally with the approval of the instructor.

Satisfactory Progress

If you are pursuing a baccalaureate degree, you are expected to make satisfactory progress toward the attainment of that degree and are expected to enter a major and graduate after completion of a reasonable number of credits.

NOTE: Individual departments may have additional satisfactory progress requirements.

The 105-Credit Rule

Undergraduates must declare a major by the time they have earned 105 credits or a hold will be placed on their registration until they either declare a major, or meet with an adviser and receive a pre-major extension. The hold is placed on the student record when 105 or more credits have been completed. Transfer students who are admitted to the University with 105 or more credits are expected to declare a major before their second quarter at the UW, or obtain an extension from an adviser.

You will be granted a pre-major extension if your adviser decides that you are pursuing a reasonable goal, and have a good chance of gaining admission to your intended major. The extension will be granted for the number of quarters it should take you to complete the admission requirements of your major.

If your adviser feels that your choice of major is unrealistic, he or she will deny your request for an extension. You will not be allowed to register for subsequent quarters until you can present a reasonable degree plan. Since the intent of the rule is not to drop you from the University but to encourage you to meet with an adviser and plan for an attainable goal, if you need time to consider your options you will usually be given one or two quarters to do so, and then may be allowed additional time if necessary to meet the admission requirements of your new major.

You will receive a warning letter from the University as you approach 105 credits, if you have not yet declared a major. If you complete 105 credits and are still a pre-major, the registration system will not let you register for the next quarter. To avoid registration delays, meet with the appropriate adviser at least one quarter before you complete 105 credits.

The 210-Credit Rule

The University's satisfactory progress policy requires students to complete their undergraduate degree programs within 30 credits beyond the minimum required for the degree. Because most degrees require 180 credits, students generally must complete their programs by the time they earn 210 credits. Undergraduates who have completed over 210 credits will be notified by e-mail the third week of the quarter that a hold is being placed on their registration due to lack of satisfactory progress. Students ineligible to graduate will be permitted to register for succeeding quarters only if they receive approval from their department and college after filing a graduation plan. Approval to enroll beyond 210 credits may not extend beyond two additional quarters.

Students receiving satisfactory progress registration holds should immediately contact their departmental academic adviser to file a graduation application or to initiate a satisfactory progress appeal.

Postbaccalaureate Students

Postbaccalaureate students are expected to be either preparing for admission into a degree program, seeking an additional baccalaureate degree, or working toward a certificate. If you are admitted as "postbaccalaureate undeclared," you must declare a major by the time you have earned 30 credits beyond your last degree. Once a degree objective has been declared, you must make progress toward that degree as evidenced by courses satisfactorily completed. College advisers may grant extensions beyond the 30-credit limit.

Excessive Course Repeats and/or Drops

The Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards may terminate your enrollment if you have demonstrated lack of academic progress as evidenced by excessive course repeats, course drops, or University withdrawals and cancellations. You may be reinstated with the approval of your college and the Committee. EOP students may be reinstated in consultation with the Office of Minority Affairs.

Registration Tampering

A student who tampers or attempts to tamper with the registration records of another student, including but not limited to dropping courses and adding courses, may be subject to disciplinary sanctions as defined in the Student Conduct Code (WAC 478-120).

Registration Abuse

The registration system is provided for the sole express purpose for students to register themselves into sections. Any use of the registration system other than for this purpose is considered abuse of the system. Such abuse includes, but is not limited to, selling one's seat in a class or otherwise registering for a section that one has no intention of taking.

To help conserve University resources and ensure the registration system is available to all, students are locked out of Web Registration after a specific number of excessive transactions are made per day. This threshold is sufficient for students' regular use and should not interfere with typical use. The use of robots and other automated tools to submit registration requests is expressly forbidden.

If your account is locked out for excessive use, you must wait until the registration system removes the lockout (within 24 hours). The Office of the Registrar is unable to override a locked account.

GRADING SYSTEM

Standard Grading System

The UW uses a numerical grading system, with certain exceptions in the schools of Dentistry, Law, and Medicine. Instructors may report grades from 4.0 to 0.7 in 0.1 increments and the grade 0.0. The number 0.0 is assigned for failing work or if a student does not officially withdraw. Grades in the range 0.6 to 0.1 may not be assigned. Grades reported in this range are converted by the Office of the University Registrar to 0.0. Numerical grades may be considered equivalent to letter grades as follows:

Letter	Number	Note
A	4.0–3.9
A-	3.8–3.5
B+	3.4–3.2
B	3.1–2.9
B-	2.8–2.5
C+	2.4–2.2
C	2.1–1.9
C-	1.8–1.5
D+	1.4–1.2
D	1.1–0.9
D-	0.8–0.7	Lowest passing grade.
E	0.0	Academic failure. No credit earned.

Additional information on grades and scholarship rules may be obtained from the Graduation and Academic Records Office, 264 Schmitz.

The following letter grades also may be used:

- N In Progress — Indicates that the student is making satisfactory progress and a final grade will be given at the end of the quarter the work is completed. Used only for thesis, research, and hyphenated courses (courses not completed in one quarter) and courses numbered 600, 601, 700, 750, and 800. An “N” grade carries with it no credit or grade until a regular grade is assigned.
- I Incomplete — An Incomplete is given only when the student has been in attendance and has done satisfactory work until within two weeks of the end of the quarter and has furnished proof satisfactory to the instructor that the work cannot be completed because of illness or other circumstances beyond the student’s control. A written statement of the reason for the giving of the Incomplete, listing the work which the student will need to do to remove it, must be filed by the instructor with the head of the department or the dean of the college in which the course is given.

To obtain credit for the course, an undergraduate student must convert an Incomplete into a passing grade no later than the last day of the next quarter. For Spring Quarter, the following quarter is considered to be Fall Quarter. The student should never reregister for the course as a means of removing the Incomplete. An Incomplete grade not made up by the end of the next quarter is converted to the grade of 0.0 by the Office of the University Registrar unless the instructor has indicated, when assigning the Incomplete grade, that a grade other than 0.0 should be recorded if the incomplete work is not completed. The original Incomplete grade is not removed from the permanent record.

An instructor may approve an extension of the Incomplete removal deadline by writing to the Graduation and Academic Records Office no later than the last day of the quarter following the quarter in which the Incomplete grade was assigned. Extensions, which may be granted for up to three additional quarters, must be received by the Office of the University Registrar before the Incomplete has been converted into a failing grade.

In no case can an Incomplete received by an undergraduate be converted to a passing grade after a lapse of one year.

In no case shall an Incomplete on the record at the time a degree is granted be subsequently changed to any other grade.

An Incomplete grade does not count for registered hours nor in computation of grade-point averages.

For DL-suffix courses that do not follow the quarter schedule, an Incomplete shall be given only when the student has done satisfactory work to within two weeks of the maximum term for completion of the course, as specified at the time of registration. In order to obtain credit for the course, a student must convert an Incomplete into a passing grade by the end of the quarter following the one in which the Incomplete was given. All other provisions and deadlines of subsections a. through d. shall also apply.

- S Satisfactory grade for courses taken on a satisfactory/not-satisfactory basis — An S grade is automatically converted from a numerical grade of 2.0 or above for undergraduates. The grade S may not be assigned directly by the instructor, but is a grade conversion by the Office of the University Registrar. Courses so graded can only be used as free electives and cannot be used to satisfy a University, college, or department course requirement. S is not computed in GPA calculations.
- NS Not-satisfactory grade for courses taken on a satisfactory/not-satisfactory basis — A grade less than 2.0 for undergraduates is converted to NS. NS is not included in GPA calculations. No credit is awarded for courses in which an NS grade is received.
- CR Credit awarded in a course offered on a credit/no-credit basis only or in courses numbered 600, 601, 700, 750, and 800 — The minimum performance level required for a CR grade is determined, and the grade is awarded directly, by the instructor. CR is not computed in GPA calculations.
- NC Credit not awarded in a course offered on a credit/no-credit basis only or in courses numbered 600, 601, 700, 750, and 800 — The grade is awarded directly by the instructor and is not included in GPA calculations.
- W Official withdrawal or drop from a course after the fourteenth calendar day of the quarter through the seventh week — to be followed by a number representing the week in which the course was dropped. An official withdrawal is not computed in GPA calculations. Students who do not officially drop a course(s) will receive a grade of 0.0. For DL-suffix courses that do not follow the quarter schedule, the grade W shall be assigned to any course dropped after the fourteenth calendar day after the start of the course and more than two weeks before the end of the maximum term for completion of the course, as specified at the time of registration. The date of withdrawal shall be noted on the transcript.
- HW Hardship Withdrawal — Grade assigned when a student is allowed a hardship withdrawal from a course after the fourteenth calendar day of the quarter. HW grades are not computed in GPA calculations.

Nontraditional Grading Options

Credit/No Credit-Only as a Course Option

With appropriate departmental review and approval, a course may be offered on a credit/no credit-only basis. The standard for granting credit in credit/no credit-only courses under this option is the demonstration of competence in the material of the course to the instructor’s satisfaction.

Satisfactory/Not-Satisfactory Grading Option

You may elect to take certain courses on a satisfactory/not satisfactory (S/NS) basis.

When registering through Personal Services on MyUW, select the Grade Option box to select S/NS grading option. The S/NS grade option can be elected through the day shown on the academic calendar for the current quarter. NO EXCEPTIONS. A $20 fee is charged beginning the eighth calendar day of the quarter.

As an undergraduate, a course in which an S is earned may not be used to satisfy any department, college, or University requirement, except that the credits may be applied to the minimum of 180 credits required for graduation. Each instructor will report numerical grades to the Registrar, who will convert satisfactory grades (2.0 or greater) to S, and unsatisfactory grades (less than 2.0) to NS for the student’s transcript. No more than 25 S/NS credits may apply toward an undergraduate degree.

If you are a graduate student and earn grades of 2.7 or above, you will receive a grade of S while 2.6 or below are recorded as NS. With the approval of your graduate program adviser or the Supervisory Committee Chairperson, you may elect to take any course for which you are eligible outside of your major academic unit on an S/NS basis.

In cases of withdrawal, the W is recorded. Neither S nor NS is included in the grade-point average.

Grade-Point Average (GPA)

The University’s cumulative GPA is based solely on courses taken in residence at the UW; this includes some, but not all, courses taken through UW Extension. The UW transcript also reflects grades for UW Extension course work that is not residence credit, and the grades for credit by examination. These latter grades do not affect the University cumulative GPA.

Computation of GPA

The GPA for graduation is computed by dividing the total cumulative grade points by the total graded credits attempted for courses taken in residence at the University. Grade points are calculated by multiplying the number of credits by the numeric value of the grade for each course. The sum of the grade points is then divided by the total graded credits attempted. Courses elected on an S/NS basis are counted as follows: Satisfactory grades are printed on the permanent record as an S and do not count in the quarterly or cumulative GPA, but they do count as credits earned toward graduation. Not-satisfactory grades, NS, do not count in the quarterly and cumulative GPA and do not count as credits earned toward graduation.

Course	Credits	Grade	Grade Points
CLAS 205	3	CR
OCEAN 101	5	2.7	= 13.5
HIST 111	5	4.0	= 20.0
SCAND 100	2	3.3	= 6.6

Total credits earned toward graduation 15

Total graded credits attempted 12 40.1

GPA = $40.1 \div 12 = 3.34$

The total graded credits attempted, not the credits earned toward graduation, are used in computing the GPA.

EXAMPLE 2

ENGL 121	5	2.3	= 11.5

OCEAN 101	5	0.0	= 0.0
SPHSC 100	3	2.7	= 8.1
ART 121	5	I	= 0.0

Total credits earned toward graduation 8

Total graded credits attempted 13 19.6

GPA = $19.6 \div 13 = 1.51$

The student attempted 18 credits, but only 13 are graded, because the Incomplete (I) is not computed in the GPA. The 0.0 for OCEAN 101 is computed in the GPA, but no credit is awarded toward graduation.

If the work in ART 121 is not made up by the end of the next quarter, the I is converted to a numeric grade and the GPA is recomputed.

Repeating Courses

Undergraduates

With the approval of the academic department offering the course, an undergraduate may repeat a course once. Both the original grade and the second grade are computed in the GPA but credit is allowed only once. Veterans receiving benefits must receive approval from the Veterans Center before a course is repeated.

Graduates

Graduate students may repeat any course. Both the original grade and the second grade are computed in the GPA. Subsequent grades will not be included, but will appear on the permanent record. The number of credits earned in the course will apply toward degree requirements only once. Veterans receiving benefits must receive approval from the Veterans Center before a course is repeated.

Grading Procedures

Change of Grade

Except in case of error, no instructor may change a grade that he or she has turned in to the Registrar. Grades cannot be changed after a degree has been granted.

Grade Appeal Procedure

A student who believes he or she has been improperly graded must first discuss the matter with the instructor. If the student is not satisfied with the instructor's explanation, the student, no later than ten days after his or her discussion with the instructor, may submit a written appeal to the chair of the department, or in a nondepartmental college, to the dean, with a copy of the appeal also sent to the instructor. Within ten calendar days, the chair or dean consults with the instructor to ensure that the evaluation of the student's performance has not been arbitrary or capricious. Should the chair believe the instructor's conduct to be arbitrary or capricious and the instructor declines to revise the grade, the chair (or the dean in a nondepartmental school or college), with the approval of the voting members of his or her faculty, shall appoint an appropriate member, or members, of the faculty of that department to evaluate the performance of the student and assign a grade. The dean and Provost should be informed of this action.

Once a student submits a written appeal, this document and all subsequent actions on this appeal are recorded in written form for deposit in a department or college file.

Grade Reports

Grades are not mailed. You may display and print a grade report through MyUW.

PROCEDURES AND FEES

The University and its colleges and schools reserve the right to change the fees, the rules, and the calendar regulating admission and registration; the instruction in and the graduation from the University and its various divisions; and any other regulations affecting the student. The University also reserves the right to withdraw courses and programs at any time.

It is the University's expectation that all students follow University regulations and procedures as they are stated in the General Catalog. Appeals may be filed with the student's dean or with the Vice Provost for Student Life in non-academic matters. Students are expected to observe the standards of conduct contained in the Student Conduct Code (WAC 478-120).

Registration

www.washington.edu/students/reg/regelig.html

Instructions for registration are available on MyUW (myuw.washington.edu). Notification is e-mailed to each student quarterly with information about registration for the next quarter.

Registration Period I

www.washington.edu/students/reg/addpolicy.html

Designed to accommodate currently registered matriculated students and students eligible to register under the Quarter Off Eligibility Policy, Registration Period I occurs during the latter half of the quarter preceding the quarter for which the student is registering. However, currently enrolled students registering for autumn quarter do so in spring quarter.

Registration Period II

Registration occurs after Registration Period I closes and is intended primarily to accommodate new and returning students. Continuing students who fail to register during Registration Period I may register during this period. Students who have not completed their initial registration by the end of this period (update and selection of address information, insurance/optional charges, and ASUW membership) are charged a Late Registration Fee.

Registration Period III

All students may register or make course changes during this period. Dropped courses do not appear on the transcript. Students are charged a Change of Registration service fee for registration changes made after Period III. One fee is charged for all changes occurring during the same day. A tuition forfeiture is charged for total credit reductions after Period III if applicable. See Fee Forfeiture section.

Late Add Period

All students may register or make registration changes during this period. All added courses require an entry code or faculty number. A Change of Registration service fee is charged.

Unrestricted Drop Period

www.washington.edu/students/reg/wdpolicy.html

Courses dropped during this period will not appear on the transcript. A Change of Registration fee is charged.

Late Course Drop Period (Annual Drop)

Students may drop one course each academic year (autumn through summer quarters) after the fourteenth calendar day of the quarter through the seventh week of the quarter. A course drop will be recorded on the transcript with a W followed by the number of the week of the drop (W3-W7). A Change of Registration service fee is charged.

Credits Required for Full- or Half-Time Status Requirements

Some agencies require that a student have full-time status to receive maximum benefits. To be classified as a full-time student by the University, a professional or undergraduate student must register for and complete at least 12 credits per quarter and a graduate student must register for and complete at least 10 credits per quarter. To be classified as a half-time student by the University, a professional student must register for at least 6 credits per quarter and a graduate student must enroll for at least 5 credits per quarter.

Restrictions on Attending Classes

www.washington.edu/students/reg/regpol.html

No person, other than a faculty member attending informally with the approval of the instructor, may attend a University course in which that person has not been registered.

An instructor may allow a student to attend his or her class only if the student's name is on the official class list from the Office of the Registrar. An unregistered student may attend through the fourteenth calendar day of the quarter if the student is on an official wait list for the course.

Adding Courses/Permission Guidelines

www.washington.edu/students/reg/regopt.html

For reasons of public safety and instructional quality, it is important to limit course enrollment to the approved classroom capacity. The Office of the Registrar monitors course enrollment and accepts student registration in fully enrolled courses according to the following guidelines:

1. Through the second week of the quarter, departments may choose to overload courses up to 115% of the room capacity to offset anticipated student course drops and withdrawals as demonstrated by past registration activity. Students must secure entry codes from instructors or departments to add closed courses. However, if enrollment is at 115% of room capacity, registration requests are denied. Students should be informed when receiving entry codes to overload courses that registration is not guaranteed if enrollment exceeds 115% of room capacity. If centralized room-capacity records do not correctly reflect the actual seating capacity, notification should be made to the Room Assignments/Time Schedule Office in the Office of the Registrar.
2. Students may add courses during the Late Add Period or through the twenty-first calendar day of the quarter. Adds after the seventh calendar day of the quarter require an entry code or faculty number. Departments may also add students to departmental courses during this period through departmental registration screens. To add courses after this period, students must submit a faculty-approved Late Add Petition form to the Registration Office.
3. A course may not be changed to or from an audit registration after the first two weeks of the quarter. See below for transcript entry.

Dropping a Course

www.washington.edu/students/reg/wdpolicy.html

Students dropping a course during the first two weeks of a quarter shall have no entry on their permanent academic transcript. If all courses are dropped, then a complete withdrawal date is recorded on the transcript.

A course drop made during the third through the seventh weeks of the quarter is recorded on a student's transcript with a W grade and a number designating the week of the quarter in which the course drop was transacted. Only one drop after the fourteenth day of a quarter is permitted each academic year (autumn through summer quarter).

A student who does not officially drop a course through the registration system or the offering department is given a grade of 0.0.

Students receiving or applying for financial aid should check with the Office of Student Financial Aid, 105 Schmitz, 206-543-6101, before dropping a class because it may affect their eligibility.

Complete Withdrawal from the University for a Registered Quarter

www.washington.edu/students/reg/wdoffleave.html

Once registered, a student must officially withdraw if he or she later chooses not to attend the University for the registered quarter. Official withdrawal must be made by the fifth day of the quarter for the student to avoid further financial obligation (see Tuition, Fees, and Special Charges for refund information on withdrawals).

1. To withdraw from a quarter, students may complete a Withdrawal form and submit it in person to the Registration Office, 225 Schmitz, or write to the Registration Office, Box 355850, Seattle, WA 98195-5850. Withdrawal forms are available at advising offices and the Registration Office. An official withdrawal is effective the day it is received in the Registration Office, or if submitted by mail, the date of the postmark.
2. Students who drop the last course on their schedules will be considered withdrawn for the quarter. Students who drop courses beginning the eighth calendar day of the quarter are charged a Change of Registration service fee per day for any course drops.
3. Submission of a graduate On-Leave application does not constitute official withdrawal from the University.
4. Refer to the grading section in the Graduate School: Graduate Study section.
5. Students receiving veterans' benefits should immediately notify the Veterans Center of withdrawal.
6. Students with a scholarship or loan awarded through the University should notify Student Fiscal Services.
7. Students who withdraw due to conscription into the armed forces or who are called to active duty military service may be entitled to either a full refund of tuition and fees or academic credit, depending on when in the quarter official withdrawal occurs. Students should contact the Registration Office for complete information.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Address Change

www.washington.edu/students/reg/address.html

Students are responsible for notifying the Office of the Registrar when their address changes. Individual addresses may be viewed and updated through MyUW. A confirmation message will be sent to the student's e-mail address. The mailing of notices to the last address on record constitutes official notification.

Residence Classification Requirements

www.washington.edu/students/reg/residency.html

Residence classification information is available from the Graduation and Academic Records Office, 264 Schmitz.

Student Identification Cards

www.washington.edu/students/reg/id.html

All new students should go to the Husky Account and ID Card Center, Ground Floor, Odegaard Library, to be issued a permanent student identification card. Photo identification (such as a driver's license, state ID card, or passport) is required to obtain a student ID card. Returning students who have not retained a previous ID card should obtain a new one. The student ID card is used for a variety of campus services. It is the student's means of identifying his or her status as a student at the University.

Registered students whose ID cards have been lost or stolen can have them replaced at the Student ID Card Center. Students who request such replacement are charged a nonrefundable fee. Replacement of cards made invalid by changes in a student's name or rendered unusable by normal wear and tear is provided without charge upon return of the original card to the Husky Account and ID Card Center. Two pieces of identification (one with a photo) are required to obtain a replacement card.

Cards that have been tampered with or misused may be confiscated by the University agency or department involved, and the incident may be referred to the Office of the Vice Provost for Student Life for appropriate University action.

Transcripts

www.washington.edu/students/reg/transcripts.html

Official copies of student academic records at the UW must bear the official seal of the University, the signature of the Registrar, and the date of issue.

Transcript Fee

A charge of $9, paid to the Transcript Office in advance, is required for each transcript.

Transcripts from Other Schools

A transcript covering a student's previous secondary and college education that has been submitted to the University as a requirement for admission becomes part of the official file and is not returned to the student. Any student who desires transcripts of his or her course work undertaken elsewhere must order official transcripts from the institution. The University does not issue or certify copies of transcripts from other institutions.

Veterans and Children of Totally Disabled Veterans and Personnel in the Armed Forces

Information on educational benefits and tuition reduction programs for veterans and their dependents is available from the Veterans' Center, 520 Schmitz. Veterans and members of the armed forces who apply for admission to the University are subject to the same minimum requirements as regular students and are expected to enroll in accordance with University requirements.

The University's academic programs of study are approved by the Washington State Higher Education Coordinating Board's State Approving Agency (HECB/SAA) for enrollment of persons eligible to receive educational benefits under Title 38 and Title 10 USC.

TUITION, FEES, AND SPECIAL CHARGES

Estimated Expenses

The cost of a student's education at the University varies, the amount depending on his or her classification, status as resident or nonresident, and field of study. In computing college costs, a student should consider such additional expenses as insurance coverage, books, and laboratory supplies. Personal expenses (e.g., clothing, laundry, recreation, and transportation), which vary with each individual, as well as between-quarter expenses, should not be overlooked.

Definitions

- Lives Away from Home — All single undergraduate students without dependents (spouse or children) who are living away from parents' home; undergraduate married students without children, whose spouses are also students.
- Non-Traditional — Undergraduates who have children; married students whose spouses are not also enrolled students.
- Tuition and Fees — Figures presented here are for full-time enrollment, i.e., 10–18 credits per quarter; however, for purposes of financial aid eligibility, full-time is defined as 12 or more credits.

Tuition is due quarterly by Friday of the third week of the quarter. The following figures are prepared and updated each year by the Office of Student Financial Aid and reflect modest, but adequate, probable costs for students attending the University during the nine-month academic year. They should be used only as a guide in determining the year's expenses.

- Room and Board — The Office of Student Financial Aid uses a figure of $8,701 in determining students' financial need. This figure includes food, utilities, and housing. It is higher than the figure of $8,169 charged by Housing & Food Services (for double-room occupancy and preferred dining allowance) because it includes the cost of meals not covered in the campus dining plan.

For students living on campus, room and board is paid quarterly. The first payment, approximately $2,200, is due on September 1 for autumn quarter, except for financial aid recipients, who pay after aid is dispersed.

New Undergraduates — New Student Enrollment and Orientation Fee

As a new undergraduate, you must return the Enrollment Confirmation Form and the $272 nonrefundable New Student Enrollment and Orientation Fee (NSEOF) to confirm your intention to enroll at the University of Washington.

If you have applied for financial aid and you and your family cannot afford the $272 NSEOF, you may apply for a fee deferral. Write to the Office of Admissions; include your name, student number, phone number, and reason for the deferral. Send your letter, along with the Enrollment Confirmation Form. Any deferral will be conditional on the verification of your financial aid status.

Returning Undergraduates, Graduates and Professional Students — $100 Enrollment Confirmation Deposit

Returning undergraduates, new graduate students, and new students in a professional program are required to confirm his or her intention to enroll by paying a nonrefundable $100 Enrollment Confirmation Deposit (not required of students admitted summer quarter). The $100 is applied toward tuition and fees assessed for the quarter for which the student is determined to be admissible and subsequently enrolls. A student who pays the fee for a given quarter but does not register in that quarter is not entitled to a refund except by petition in the situation listed below.

1. A new or returning matriculated student who is unable to obtain courses required for the completion of the degree or certificate program, or courses which are determined by an appropriate academic adviser to be acceptable alternate courses. A written verification from the appropriate academic adviser must be attached to this petition. Such requests for refund must be submitted by Friday of the second week of the quarter. A new or returning matriculated student who, after meeting with an appropriate academic adviser, determines that the program for which admission was granted differs substantially from what the student was led to expect based upon earlier available information. This petition for refund must be submitted before the student registers for courses and in no case later than the first day of the quarter for which admission has been granted. A written verification from the appropriate academic adviser must be included.

2. A new or returning student who applies by the prescribed deadline for financial aid administered by the University's Office of Student Financial Aid, and who cannot be awarded financial aid adequate to his or her needs as determined by that office, and who is therefore unable to attend the University. This petition and a copy of the Notice of Award and Acceptance must be submitted no later than two weeks after receipt of notice of the financial aid award.
3. A new or returning student who is unable to attend the University because of pregnancy, disability, or death, or because of being called involuntarily into the military service of the United States or into civil duty. Documentation is required.

Fee Payment

f2.washington.edu/fm/sfs/

An obligation to pay tuition and fees in U.S. dollars is incurred when a student registers. A fee statement is mailed to the student's address on file with the Office of the Registrar.

Payment of this obligation is due by Friday of the third week of the quarter. Nonpayment of tuition and fees by the due date results in a charge of $120 for late payment. For balances under $150, the late fee is $50. There is no late fee for balances under $50. One-half of tuition is assessed when registration is canceled for nonpayment of tuition and fees. The Student Guide should be consulted for fees and fee payment schedule applicable to summer quarter only.

When the payment is not in conformance with the tuition and fee billing, specific instructions on how the payment is to be applied must accompany the payment. In the absence of instructions, the University makes a reasoned interpretation of the student's intent and accounts for the funds accordingly. The student number must be specified on all payments.

Fees listed above do not apply to students registered through UW Professional and Continuing Education.

Special Course and Laboratory Fees

The amounts listed above cover normal University charges for course registration. Some courses, however, have extraordinary expenses associated with them, and in such cases the University may charge additional fees in amounts that approximate the added instructional or laboratory costs.

Other Fees

- Auditors: There is no reduction in fees for auditors.
- Admission Application Fees: Graduate, $45 (online); Medicine, Dentistry, $35; Law, $50. Former students returning in the same classification, $60.
- On-Leave Registration Fee: This fee of $35, charged to graduate students only, provides for a maximum on-leave period of four successive academic quarters or any part thereof and is not refundable.
- Late Registration/Reregistration Fees: A late registration service charge of $25 is assessed when a student registers after the last scheduled day of Period II registration and through the fourteenth day of the quarter. Students registering after the fourteenth day pay a $75 Late Registration Fee. Waiver or refund of the Late Registration Fee may be petitioned in the Registration Office. Waiver or refund of the $75 reregistration fee may be petitioned in the Student Fiscal Services Office.

- Change of Registration Service Fee: A charge of $20 is made for any number of add, drop, or change transactions processed during a given day beginning the eighth calendar day of the quarter.
- Transcript Fees: A charge of $9, paid to the Transcript Office in advance, is required for each transcript.
- Replacement Fees: Duplicate diploma, $20; student identification card, $10.
- U-PASS Fee: The U-PASS is valid on all Metro and Community Transit routes at all times and provides parking privileges to carpoolers, riding privileges to vanpool and Night Ride passengers, and merchant discounts. The quarterly fee of $80 (subject to change) is included on the tuition bill.

All fees are subject to change without notice.

Cancellation of Tuition

Registered students must pay full tuition and fees. Tuition may be canceled or reduced if a student makes an official withdrawal or drops a course during the period specified by state statute. Refunds are given when a cancellation or reduction results in an overpayment.

Continuing Students

1. A student who withdraws on or before the seventh calendar day of the quarter does not pay tuition.
2. A student who withdraws after the seventh calendar day through the thirtieth calendar day of the quarter must pay one-half tuition.
3. A student who withdraws after the thirtieth calendar day must pay full tuition.

New and Returning Students

1. A student who withdraws on or before the seventh calendar day forfeits the $300 New Student Enrollment and Orientation fee or the $100 Enrollment Confirmation Deposit but does not pay the regular tuition.
2. A student who withdraws after the seventh calendar day through the thirtieth calendar day of the quarter must pay one-half tuition. The $100 Enrollment Confirmation Deposit is applied toward payment of tuition.
3. A student who withdraws after the thirtieth calendar day of the quarter must pay full tuition. The $100 Enrollment Confirmation Deposit is applied toward payment of tuition.

Fee Forfeiture

A student who does not completely withdraw but drops one or more courses may be eligible for lower tuition, depending on the total number of credits remaining after the course drop and on the time period when the drop was made. Tuition for students making a course drop on or before the seventh calendar day of the quarter is determined by the total credits remaining. Tuition for students making a course drop after the seventh calendar day through the thirtieth calendar day of the quarter is computed on the total credits remaining plus one-half the difference between the old tuition and the new tuition. There is no cancellation or reduction in tuition for courses dropped after the thirtieth calendar day of the quarter.

Fee Refund

When a fee payment is made by check, a waiting period is required before a refund can be authorized. An application for refund may be refused, unless it is made during the quarter in which the fees apply. A student who withdraws for disciplinary reasons forfeits all rights to refund or cancellation of any portion of his or her fees.

Financial Obligations

The Comptroller is authorized to place a hold (administrative) on the records of any student who fails to pay amounts due the University.

Until this hold is cleared, the University (1) does not release the student's record or any information based upon the record, (2) does not prepare transcripts or certified statements, and (3) denies registration.

In cases of serious financial delinquency, the Comptroller, with the consent of the Associate Registrar, may order that a student's registration be canceled and that privileges of attendance be withdrawn.

An administrative hold or cancellation also may occur when a student has not complied with other University rules, procedures, or obligations. The hold may be placed on the student's record by the authorized University office responsible for enforcement of the rule, procedure, or obligation involved. The student is not permitted to register for any subsequent quarter or to obtain a transcript of his or her record or a certified statement except on the written release of the office that placed the hold.

Tuition Exemptions and Reductions

www.washington.edu/students/reg/tuition_exempt.html

Faculty, Staff, and Washington State Employee Tuition Exemption Programs

Eligible faculty, staff, and state employees admitted to the University may request an exemption for a maximum of 6 credits each quarter under these tuition exemption programs. Applicable tuition will be charged for credits that exceed the 6-credit limit. Because such students are registered on a space-available basis, they must register after other students. The quarterly Time Schedule lists registration dates when students enrolling under these exemption programs may register. Eligibility information may be obtained from either the Professional & Organizational Development Office, or the Registration Office.

"Access" Program for Older Adults

www.washington.edu/students/reg/access.html

The UW allows Washington residents who are 60 years of age or older to audit certain courses on a space-available basis. Students who attend the University under the Access Program are limited to two courses per quarter. There is a nominal registration fee. As auditors, students do not receive credit, participate in discussions, complete laboratory work, or take examinations.

Tuition Reductions

The following categories of students may be eligible for reduced tuition and fees. Students in these categories may contact the offices shown for information or to obtain an application. The reductions are established by legislative mandate and may be revoked by the legislature at any time.

STUDENT LIFE AND STUDENT SERVICES

Freshman Convocation

Freshman Convocation is an academic ceremony involving the President of the University, other administrators, student leaders, and members of the Board of Regents and the faculty, to welcome and honor new freshmen and their families. It is held annually on the Sunday preceding the first day of autumn quarter. The President presides over the ceremony, which features remarks by a distinguished member of the faculty. Neither tickets nor reservations are required for the Convocation. Formal invitations are mailed in mid-August. A no-host brunch, which requires tickets, is held in the Student Union Building (HUB) and precedes the Convocation.

Student Health Insurance Program

An accident and sickness insurance plan is available to matriculated University students (Seattle campus) and dependents on a voluntary basis. A student may enroll in the plan at the time of registration through the seventh calendar day of each quarter. The appropriate premium is paid by the quarterly tuition due date. Brochures describing the insurance eligibility, coverage, and costs are available at the Office of Business Services and Student Insurance, Hall Health Primary Care Center, and the HUB.

The University also sponsors a field-trip accident insurance plan. Application forms may be requested from the Risk Management Office, 22 Gerberding, Box 351276, (206) 543-3419.

Insurance for Foreign Students

All students from foreign countries are required to have a health-and- accident insurance policy in force while registered at the University. This may be achieved by purchasing either the student accident and sickness insurance offered through the University or other coverage, proof of which must be furnished to the International Services Office and for which an insurance waiver must be obtained. To avoid cancellation of registration, international students must pay tuition and either pay for the University-sponsored insurance or have a waiver on file by the tuition due date.

International Services Office

The International Services Office provides assistance to international students, scholars, and faculty in meeting

United States Immigration and Naturalization Service regulations dealing with such matters as maintaining lawful status, extensions of stay, transfers of schools/programs, and working authorizations. The office also provides a formal orientation to the campus and community for new international students and visiting faculty; advice and counsel for educational, financial, and personal problems; and dissemination of important and timely information through newsletters and workshops. The office is located in 459 Schmitz, (206) 543-0841.

UW Veterans' Center

The Veterans' Center, 520 Schmitz, assists students eligible for veterans' educational benefits.

Office of Student Financial Aid

The Office of Student Financial Aid, 105 Schmitz, administers federal, state, and private financial aid programs designed to help form of grant aid, scholarships, long-term loans that must be repaid after leaving school, and work opportunities. Information describing the different programs, eligibility criteria, and application procedures may be viewed at www.washington.edu/students/osfa or may be obtained by calling (206) 685-9535. To be eligible for financial aid, an individual must be a citizen or permanent resident of the United States and be admitted to the University as a matriculated, degree-seeking student. Priority consideration is given to students who apply before the University's financial aid application deadline of February 28 (e.g., February 28, 2014, for the academic year beginning in September 2014).

The Office of Student Financial Aid also administers a short-term loan program for full-time students who find themselves in temporary financial difficulty. University students may take advantage of the short-term loan program without applying for financial aid.

Student Legal Services

Student Legal Services (SLS) provides legal advice, counseling, negotiating, and court representation in many civil and criminal matters. All currently enrolled undergraduate and graduate students at UW Seattle are eligible for a free initial consultation. If additional services are needed, there is an hourly charge, plus an office supply fee. Students are responsible for court costs, if any. The office is staffed by third-year law students supervised by licensed attorneys.

Student Publications

The Daily is published Monday-Friday throughout the academic year and is distributed in the mornings on campus without charge. During summer quarter, The Daily is published once a week. Any student with an interest in journalism may serve on The Daily staff.

Student Union Facilities

The Husky Union Building (Student Union Building) and the South Campus Center are the principal centers of student activities and programs on the campus.

Husky Union Building

The Husky Union Building (HUB), located in the center of campus, is currently undergoing renovation, to reopen in autumn quarter 2012. Most of the offices that resided in the HUB have relocated to Condon Hall during construction.

South Campus Center

The South Campus Center, located on the shore of Portage Bay, serves as the central meeting place for students and faculty on the southern end of campus. Facilities and services similar to those in the HUB are available and include meeting and conference rooms, display cases, a hair-styling shop, amusement games, a cash machine, a branch of the University Book Store, a newsstand, and lounges with beautiful views of Portage Bay.

Student Activities and Organizations

Student Activities Office

The services provided by the Student Activities Office (SAO) include assisting student organizations in understanding University policies and procedures, providing technical help in the planning and conduct of student events, and furnishing information and assistance in order that they may represent themselves and their interests in an effective manner. Advisers are available to assist students involved in group activities with budget and program planning, advertising, orientation to campus resources, and leadership and organizational skill development. Underlying the SAO service functions is a desire to provide an environment in which students can learn from their experiences in extracurricular activities as a supplement to their classroom experiences. Additional information about the services is available from the Student Activities Office, 232 HUB, (206) 543-2380.

Student Organizations

Students at the University are encouraged to become active in at least one of the campus's approximately 450 voluntary student organizations, which include honorary, professional, and social organizations; service clubs; activity groups; and religious and fraternal organizations. Voluntary student organizations that register with the University receive various benefits and services to assist their respective activities. Additional information is available from the Student Activities Office, 232 HUB, (206) 543-2380.

Associated Students of the University of Washington

The Associated Students of the University of Washington (ASUW) is a voluntary, nonprofit association of students designated by the University Board of Regents to carry out a variety of student activities and to represent student interests. In order to vote in ASUW elections, hold ASUW office, or be employed by the ASUW, a student must be a member of the ASUW. Membership is open to all students by providing an affirmative answer on the University registration form each quarter.

The ASUW's annual budget is supported by the services and activities fee paid as part of tuition and from program revenue. The government of the ASUW is headed by an eleven-member board of directors elected by the student body each year, and one representative from the Graduate and Professional Student Senate. The ASUW maintains agencies and service groups to provide students with a varied program of activities during the school year and nominates students for service on a number of University committees. ASUW services include the Experimental College, a bicycle repair shop, and an ongoing film and entertainment series. Questions regarding the ASUW and its services should be directed to either the ASUW Office, 121/131 HUB, (206) 543-1780, or the Student Activities Office, 232 HUB, (206) 543-2380.

Recreational Sports

The Department of Recreational Sports Programs provides a comprehensive program of more than seventy sports and fitness activities designed to meet the diverse needs and interests of students. To provide this service, the department manages recreation facilities that include the Intramural Activities Building (IMA), Golf Driving Range, Waterfront Activities Center (canoe rentals), outdoor facilities (Denny Field and tennis courts), Hutchinson Hall swimming pool and locker rooms, and the practice Climbing Rock. Programs and facilities are open to students with a valid student identification card (Husky card). For additional information visit the Recreational Sports website at depts.washington.edu/ima/.

Student Rights and Responsibilities

Student Conduct Code

The University Board of Regents has adopted a Student Conduct Code, which applies to both the academic and nonacademic conduct of students while they are attending the University. The Code specifies standards of conduct, jurisdiction for hearing disciplinary matters, and due-process procedures. Students may obtain copies of the code through either their advisers or the Office of the Vice Provost for Student Life, 101 Gerberding Hall.

Computer Use Policy

All faculty, staff, and students who use any computer at the University are responsible for using computer resources in an ethical and legal manner. For example, it is not appropriate to share computer accounts or use them for commercial purposes, to send unwanted e-mail, or to distribute copyrighted software, music, or images. Those who do not follow the rules could lose their UW computing privileges. For detailed information see www.washington.edu/itconnect/policy/.

University Policy on Student Education Records

A copy of the University's policy on a student's right to inspect his or her education records and the University's responsibility to maintain the confidentiality of such records is located at each departmental reference station. The policy is filed under the Washington Administrative Code 478-140-010. Copies of the policy are available at the Registration Office, 225 Schmitz.

Sexual Harassment Complaint Procedure

Students, staff, faculty, and other users of University services who have a concern or complaint regarding sexual harassment may contact either the University Ombudsman, (206) 543-6028, or the University Complaint Investigation and Resolution Office, (206) 616-2028. Personnel in these offices provide assistance in resolving concerns and complaints. Also, University staff may contact their human resources representative about sexual harassment concerns.

Office of Minority Affairs and Diversity

Fostering diversity is the ongoing work of the entire University, but it is a special responsibility of the Office of Minority Affairs and Diversity (OMAD). To this end, OMAD provides a variety of services to undergraduates from underrepresented and economically and educationally disadvantaged backgrounds. These services include a statewide Recruitment and Outreach Office whose staff provides assistance with the admissions and financial aid process in high schools and community colleges throughout Washington state. Through its Counseling Center, OMAD offers academic advising, financial aid advocacy, housing assistance, and other services related to life on campus. OMAD's services are available mainly to students who, following admission, are invited to become members of the Educational Opportunity Program (EOP). Participation in EOP is limited to students who are U.S. citizens or permanent residents, with priority given to Washington state residents. OMAD's other services are open to EOP participants and other students as resources permit.

The Office of the Vice President for Minority Affairs and many of OMAD's services are located on the third floor of Schmitz Hall. For information about OMAD's program locations and services, call (206) 685-0774.

Residence Halls

Students like the convenience of living in the residence halls (being close to classes and having access to a variety of dining options), but that's just the beginning. Those who live on campus are part of a community that offers opportunities for fun, friendships, personal development and academic success.

Safety and Security

The University of Washington is a relatively safe place; however, it can be subject to the same problems as the surrounding urban community. The following information describes programs and policies established to protect your safety and well-being.

Residence Hall Patrol

Plainclothes University Police patrol the halls each night from 7 p.m. to 5 a.m. Officers are fully commissioned and have the same authority as other law enforcement officers. RDs and RAs are on duty to handle security issues from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. and RDs are on duty 24 hours a day on weekends and holidays.

Locked Halls

Residence halls are locked 24 hours a day, except those with food service operations, which remain open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. The residence hall desks are staffed from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday—Friday, 8 a.m.—5 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Fire Safety

The fire alarms for all residence halls comply with City of Seattle high-rise fire codes. The systems consist of area-sensitive and building heat and smoke detectors. Each student room contains a smoke/heat detector. Sprinkler systems exist in Terry, Lander, McCarty, McMahon, Haggett and Hansee Halls. Sprinkler systems will be added to Mercer Hall by autumn 2004. All heating and ventilating fans within a facility are interlocked with the fire alarm system for that facility. The system is hardwired directly into the University Police Department, which notifies the City of Seattle Fire Department if problems arise. The University of Washington's Environmental Health and Safety (EHS) department conducts a comprehensive annual inspection of all physical fire safety attributes. In addition, HFS is subject to random inspection by the City of Seattle Fire Department, and semiannual fire drills are conducted in every hall.

Other Safety Measures

- All residence hall rooms have peepholes.
- Women's restrooms are locked.
- Residence hall keys are high-security keys; duplicate keys can only be made using factory equipment.
- Throughout the year residents receive information about safety issues, and Resident Advisers offer programs on personal safety, property protection, emergency procedures and related topics.

Undergraduate Study

www.washington.edu/uaa/

The University of Washington established the Office of Undergraduate Academic Affairs (UAA) in 1992 (as the Office of Undergraduate Education) in order to make undergraduate education a more visible and central part of the University's work and purpose. UAA offers opportunities and resources for students and their families, faculty members, and academic departments and programs. UAA's unique mission of ensuring excellence in undergraduate teaching and learning is critical to the University's commitment to providing students a rich academic experience.

Intercollege Programs

The following programs, described in detail in other sections of the catalog, are administered by the Office of Undergraduate Academic Affairs.

Individualized Studies

www.washington.edu/students/gencat/academic/individualstudies.html

Individualized Studies provides students an opportunity to obtain an individually designed interdisciplinary degree through the College of Arts and Sciences. Students may also pursue a major in one of several existing interdisciplinary programs. Requirements for the Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science degree are shown in the Arts and Sciences section of this catalog.

Undergraduate Majors

www.washington.edu/students/ugrad/advising/majmenu.html

To graduate from the UW, students must complete one of the majors listed below. In many cases, the student need not make a final choice until the beginning of the junior year, although programs with considerable mathematics and science (e.g., engineering and premedicine) include lock-step requirements that must be started early on if the student expects to finish in four years.

Students can enter some majors directly (e.g., those in Ocean and Fishery Sciences, most in Forest Resources, and some in Arts and Sciences), but most students start out as premajors. As premajors, they take courses to fulfill general requirements and admission requirements for the major. Many majors require one or two years of pre-admission course work, although a few require more. Admission to many majors is competitive, which means students may not be accepted even if they complete all the prerequisite course work, depending on their grades and other factors.

The General Catalog shows requirements for all majors, but students should see an adviser to ask about changes, course sequences, or new options.

Satisfactory Progress

Students admitted to the University to pursue baccalaureate degrees are expected to make satisfactory progress toward the attainment of the degree and are expected to enter a major and to graduate after completion of a reasonable number of credits. By the time undergraduate students have completed 105 credits, they must either be accepted in their major or have their premajor status extended temporarily by an adviser. Extensions are normally granted only to students who are in the final phases of completing admission requirements for a major to which they have a reasonable chance of acceptance.

Students who do not either declare a major or have their premajor status extended by the time they have earned 105 credits will have a "hold" placed against registration for the following quarter. Students must normally graduate with their first baccalaureate degree by the time they have completed 30 credits beyond the credits required for the first degree or concurrent degrees. Departmental advisers may grant extensions beyond the 30-credit limit.

Postbaccalaureate students are expected to be either preparing for admission into a degree program, seeking an additional baccalaureate degree. Students admitted as "postbaccalaureate undeclared" must declare a major by the time they have earned 30 credits beyond their last degree, and once a degree objective has been declared, must make progress toward that degree as evidenced by the courses they have completed satisfactorily. Advisers may grant extensions beyond the 30-credit limit.

The Faculty Council on Academic Standards may terminate a student's enrollment if the student demonstrates lack of academic progress as evidenced by excessive course repeats, course drops, or University withdrawals and cancellations. The student may be reinstated with the approval of the student's college and the council. EOP students may be reinstated in consultation with the Office of Minority Affairs and Diversity.

Undergraduate Minors

Undergraduate students have the option of completing a minor. Minors require the completion of at least 25 credits, 15 of which must be taken in residence at the UW. There are no departmental admission requirements for minors. Students may declare an approved minor when they have earned 90 credits or more. A cumulative GPA of 2.00 is required for courses within the minor. Some departments do not offer minors. Requirements for minors established as of spring 2002 are shown in the academic programs section of this catalog. A list of currently offered minors is available at the Undergraduate Gateway Center, 171 Mary Gates Hall.

Undergraduate Degrees

The UW grants the following degrees upon satisfactory completion of appropriate programs of study in the departments, schools, and colleges:

- Bachelor of Arts B.A.
- Bachelor of Arts in Business Administration B.A.B.A.
- Bachelor of Clinical Health Services B.C.H.S.
- Bachelor of Fine Arts B.F.A.
- Bachelor of Landscape Architecture B.L.Arch.
- Bachelor of Music B.Mus.
- Bachelor of Science B.S.
- Bachelor of Science in Aeronautical and Astronautical Engineering B.S.A&A.
- Bachelor of Science in Bioengineering B.S.Bio.E.
- Bachelor of Science in Chemical Engineering B.S.Ch.E.
- Bachelor of Science in Civil Engineering B.S.C.E.
- Bachelor of Science in Computer Engineering B.S.Comp.E.
- Bachelor of Science in Construction Management B.S.C.M.
- Bachelor of Science in Electrical Engineering B.S.E.E.
- Bachelor of Science in Engineering B.S.E.
- Bachelor of Science in Health Information Administration B.S.H.I.A.
- Bachelor of Science in Human Centered Design B.S.H.C.D.E.
- Bachelor of Science in Industrial Engineering B.S.I.E.
- Bachelor of Science in Informatics BSIInfo

- Bachelor of Science in Materials Science and Engineering BSMSE
- Bachelor of Science in Mechanical Engineering BSME
- Bachelor of Science in Medical Technology BSMedTech
- Bachelor of Science in Nursing BSNurs

Freshmen Interest Groups

A FIG consists of 20–25 freshmen who have similar academic interests and share the same cluster of three or four courses for their first quarter at the UW. The FIG provides both a social support network and a learning community. More than 100 FIGs are offered in the autumn, spanning a range of topics and interests.

Freshman Seminars

Taught by faculty members, many nationally and internationally recognized leaders in their fields, these seminars meet once a week, are limited to 15 students, and are graded credit/no credit. Students can establish a rapport with a professor while learning about different fields of study, all in a low-pressure academic setting.

The University Honors Program offers the best of both worlds: the combined riches of a small learning community and the inexhaustible resources of a large research university.

Phi Eta Sigma

A national freshman honor society with more than 300 chapters and 500,000 lifetime members. The UW chapter focuses on community service, campus service, and membership services.

University Honors Program

The University Honors Program provides a special learning context for high-achieving students looking for a rigorous and enhanced educational experience.

Most Honors students enter the Full College Honors Program as incoming freshmen. This Honors option is a four-year track through our program consisting of an Honors Core followed by Departmental Honors and results in a degree earned "With College Honors." The rest of our students participate only in Departmental Honors (which students enter once they enter their department). Completion of Departmental Honors alone results in a degree earned "With Distinction."

The University Honors Program assists and encourages students to find ways to enrich their education and to create an experience that facilitates their long-term goals. Honors seeks to enhance the already rich experience available at the University of Washington by bringing students and the best opportunities of a large research university into close contact.

Honors students benefit from unique opportunities such as:

- Personalized and Comprehensive Honors Advising
- Small, Intensive, Interdisciplinary Honors Classes
- Continuous Contact with Honors Faculty
- Assistance in Finding Appropriate Research and Internship Opportunities
- Bonderman Honors Travel Fellowship
- Mary Gates Research Grants
- Mary Gates Leadership Grants
- Honors Peer Advisers
- Honors Computer Lab

CLUE

The Center for Learning and Undergraduate Enrichment (CLUE) is a free late-night study center. It is designed to provide supplementary educational opportunities for and enhance the academic achievement of all UW undergraduates. The program places a strong emphasis on creating a rich learning community while supporting freshmen, sophomore, and transfer students who are enrolled in many of the UW's crucial lower-division courses. CLUE services include drop-in help sessions for subjects like chemistry, math, biology, writing, economics, and foreign languages; evening discussion and review sessions with TAs and fellow students; and exam reviews for a variety of courses.

Computing Resources

UW students have access to computers, e-mail, the Internet (in campus labs or from home), MyUW, and other online resources, training, and Web services for publishing. You don't need to buy your own computer, although it's recommended. Regardless of your major or future career plans, learning how to navigate campus computing resources—and to make the most of them—will be a significant part of your UW education.

Educational Opportunity Program

EOP provides educational opportunity and creates greater cultural diversity within the University. The program is open to underrepresented minority students from American Indian, Native American, African-American, Hispanic, and Asian/Pacific Islander backgrounds, and to economically disadvantaged students of all ethnicities whose parents do not have 4-year college degrees. EOP services include academic and personal counseling, advocacy and support with financial aid and housing, placement testing, academic tutoring, and special instruction.

Libraries

The University of Washington Libraries received the 2004 Excellence in Academic Libraries Award, which recognizes the top university research library in the country. UW Libraries rank 12th among North American research libraries. Here are some more numbers: 5.9 million volumes, 6.9 million items in microform, and more than 50,000 periodical titles. Impressive, but what does all of this mean to you? Simple: the chance to explore to the fullest extent of your interest and imagination. And in the process, you'll be acquiring valuable skills for navigating and analyzing information. There's no more important skill in the 21st century.

Women's Center

Located in historic Imogen Cunningham Hall, the Women's Center offers classes, workshops, and events. The Re-Entry Program offers free services to women and men who are considering returning to the University after a significant time away or who, for whatever reason, feel they need additional support and advice in making the transition into higher education.

The Graduate School: Graduate Study

www.grad.uw.edu

The University of Washington offers more than 110 graduate degrees through 370 graduate programs across all three UW campuses and online, from master's degrees for people launching or continuing their careers to doctoral degree programs for those pursuing academic, research or professional careers. The Graduate School manages graduate education from application through graduation for all UW degree programs, with the exception of the M.D., D.D.S., J.D. and Pharm.D. A list of graduate degrees offered is below.

Guided by the dean and vice provost, the Graduate School serves approximately 14,000 graduate students a year. The Graduate School processes nearly 30,000 applications and grants about 4,300 degrees each year, in addition to ensuring compliance with the University's policies concerning graduate education.

Interdisciplinary Programs

The Graduate School is home to several interdisciplinary degree programs, including a master's degree in Museology and Ph.D.s in Urban Design and Planning, Neuroscience and Molecular and Cellular Biology. Interdisciplinary programs draw together faculty from various disciplines to create new fields of study and provide research and education.

Student Success and Diversity

The Graduate School creates endowments and oversees fellowships and awards totaling approximately $11 million a year. To help programs attract students, the Graduate School provides about $1.3 million a year in recruitment funding. In addition, GO-MAP (the school's Graduate Opportunities & Minority Achievement Program) awards about $600,000 a year to approximately 25 departments so they can recruit graduate students from diverse backgrounds. The Seattle chapter of Achievement Rewards for College Scientists Foundation (ARCS) is a steadfast supporter of graduate education at the UW as its members fund approximately 90 fellowships worth more than $500,000 yearly, which aids graduate programs in offering multi-year financial commitments to top recruits.

In support of the University's outreach, recruitment and retention of ethnic minority and other underrepresented graduate students, GO-MAP presents networking and professional development opportunities for graduate students throughout the academic year, in collaboration with graduate programs and campus units. GO-MAP's recruitment efforts include sponsoring a series of Prospective Student Days, in which admitted graduate students visit the Seattle campus as they weigh the UW's offer of admission. The National Name Exchange is a UW Graduate School-coordinated database involving more than 50 institutions nationwide that share names of 7,000 exceptional minority undergraduates who are interested in graduate study.

The Graduate School's Core Programs offers professional development and support for graduate students in the form of workshops, events and online content, such as guides covering how to find a mentor, select a lab and look for a job in academia. Grad School Prep is a for-credit course offered most quarters for undergraduates and returning students who are considering graduate school. The course addresses how to identify graduate programs that fit students' goals and how to craft strong applications.

Quality and Assessment

Academic program reviews ensure that the UW continues to offer innovative, high quality education by reviewing each program – undergraduate and graduate – every 10 years through a streamlined process that encourages strategic planning and can be linked to national accreditation reviews.

The Center for Teaching and Learning is a collaboration of the Graduate School, UW Libraries and Undergraduate Academic Affairs that brings together individuals, departments and communities to share best practices and evidence-based research on teaching, learning and mentoring. The center offers training to graduate students who are teaching assistants and research assistants, as well as supports and promotes innovation in teaching among the faculty.

Public Scholarship and Outreach

The Graduate School's public lecture series, funded by the Jessie and John Danz, Walker-Ames and Mary Ann and John D. Mangels endowments, shares the UW's academic expertise with general audiences through lectures that are promoted in collaboration with the UW Alumni Association. Lecturers have included educator Geoffrey Canada, author Amy Tan, astrophysicist Neil deGrasse Tyson and statistician Nate Silver.

The UW Press produces award-winning books – for general and academic audiences – that highlight UW research in fields such as the environment, Asian American studies and the built environment. The Press publishes many books on the history, culture and geography of the Pacific Northwest and Seattle.

The Graduate School advocates for graduate education and graduate students on campus and throughout the state through raising money for fellowships and student support, producing online reports on issues and trends in graduate education and highlighting the impact our graduate students and alumni are making in their communities and our state, region and world.

Because the following professional doctoral degrees offered by the University are not considered to be graduate degrees, they are not administered through the Graduate School: Doctor of Medicine (MD), Doctor of Dental Surgery (DDS), Juris Doctor (JD), and Doctor of Pharmacy (PharmD).

GRADUATE ADMISSIONS

Additional program information is available on the World Wide Web at www.grad.washington.edu.

The University of Washington reaffirms its policy of equal opportunity regardless of race, color, creed, religion, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, age, marital status, disability, or status as a disabled veteran or Vietnam-era veteran in accordance with University policy and applicable federal and state statutes and regulations.

Application to the UW through the Graduate School is available for three types of students:

A graduate student is someone who has been admitted to a specific program and is working toward a master's or doctoral degree, or earning a school administrator's credential.

A visiting graduate student plans to transfer a limited number of graduate credits earned at the UW to another institution where he or she is actively pursuing a graduate degree. A certificate of status signed by the home institution is required. The application and certificate are available at www.grad.washington.edu/admissions/visiting.shtml. Individual departments may require additional materials, such as transcripts, GRE/GMAT scores, a statement of purpose or a list of desired course work.

Graduate non-matriculated students are taking courses without seeking a graduate degree. They may apply a maximum of 12 credits to degree requirements at a later time.

Admission to the UW is necessarily a selective process. The prospective student must hold a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university in this country or an equivalent degree from a foreign institution. The student's record should be a strong one with an average grade of "B" or a 3.00 grade-point, or better.

The primary criterion and the priority for admission of new applicants into a graduate program is the applicant's ability, as decided by the appropriate faculty, to complete the graduate program expeditiously with a high level of achievement. One aspect of meeting this criterion is the matching of interests between applicants and faculty. Additional factors may be used in developing a pool of qualified applicants for admission to the Graduate School. Weights given these and other factors vary among graduate degree programs. No factor will confer admission on an academically unqualified applicant. These factors include, but are not limited to, the following:

1. Priority for admission of applicants into a graduate degree program based upon the applicant's apparent ability, as determined by the University, to complete the program with a high level of achievement.
2. No practice may discriminate against an individual because of race, color, creed, national origin, sex, sexual orientation, age, marital status, disability, or status as a disabled veteran or Vietnam era veteran.
3. Sustained efforts shall be made to recruit qualified applicants who are members of groups that are underrepresented in certain disciplines.
4. All applicants to a degree-offering unit shall be processed through the same set of procedures to assure that all applicants are evaluated on their individual merits.
5. Tests and criteria for admission should relate to the actual requirements of the graduate program. Reasonable accommodation for testing conditions may be made to compensate for relevant disabilities.
6. Additional factors may be used in developing a pool of qualified applicants for admission to the Graduate School. Weights given these and other factors may vary among graduate degree programs. No factor will confer admission on an academically unqualified applicant. These factors include, but are not limited to, the following:
 - a. Grades earned, especially for subjects in or closely related to the field of the applicant's proposed graduate work.
 - b. Scores on the Graduate Record Examination (GRE) verbal, quantitative and analytical tests, on the GRE advanced test, on other tests related to the applicant's field, and on other aptitude tests which may be required.
 - c. Personal interviews of the applicant by the department admissions committee.
 - d. The career objectives of the applicant and the extent to which the graduate degree program may be expected to prepare the applicant for those objectives.
 - e. Written and oral recommendations from persons who are qualified to evaluate the applicant's academic record and promise.
 - f. The applicant's degree objective (i.e., master's degree, doctoral degree, or a master's followed by a doctoral degree).
 - g. Activities or accomplishments; educational goals; prior employment experience; living experiences, such as growing up in a disadvantaged or unusual environment; special talents.
 - h. Academic accomplishments in light of the applicant's life experiences and special circumstances. These experiences and circumstances may include, but are not limited to disabilities, low family income, first generation to attend college, need to work during college, disadvantaged social or educational environment, difficult personal and family situation or circumstances, and refugee status or veteran status.

Importance given to these factors will vary among degree programs.

Each academic program at the UW has a graduate program coordinator who is responsible for providing advice, guidance, and assistance to applicants, as well as to students working toward graduate degrees. Prospective graduate students are urged to contact the graduate program coordinator in their program of interest for information about any aspect of graduate study, including research, curriculum, faculty, and financial support in the form of teaching and research assistantships, grants, and scholarships. Information about graduate programs is available at www.grad.washington.edu.

Admission Process

Information about the application process for both graduate and graduate non-matriculated status must be obtained directly from the department. Visiting graduate applicants should go to www.grad.washington.edu/admissions/visiting.shtml for application information. It is very important to submit all application documents in time to meet departmental deadlines as these will supersede graduate admissions deadlines.

Registration

After successful applicants have been offered admission, the registration office sends a request for an enrollment confirmation deposit to indicate the intent to register. This nonrefundable deposit will apply toward the first quarter's tuition.

Once admitted, graduate students are expected to maintain registered or on-leave status until the degree is conferred. (See section on continuous enrollment.)

Financial Aid for Graduate Students

Students applying for fellowships, traineeships, and assistantships or associateships must make certain that complete transcripts and other credentials are on file by Feb. 15 (earlier submission of applications and supporting documents is urged by all departments and required by some). Awards and appointments are usually made about April 1. Application forms may be obtained by writing to the graduate program advisor of the appropriate department.

Fellowships, Traineeships, and Scholarships

A limited number of fellowships, traineeships, and scholarships is available through individual departments to outstanding students in fields of study leading to advanced degrees. Application forms may be obtained from the graduate program advisors in the departments.

The Graduate School and the UW Libraries have collaborated to provide the Graduate Funding Information Service (GFIS) for UW graduate students (and faculty) who are seeking any type of general research funding for use at the UW. Located in the Research Commons, Allen Library, South Wing, the service works to provide resources for outside funding opportunities to graduate students at the master's and doctoral levels who have been admitted to or who are attending the UW.

The service offers workshops and individual consultations to help students explore resources for potential funding. The service does not provide search services or money directly to students, but does guide students to resources (print, database, or web-based) and helps students better understand how to use these resources.

To set up a consultation, email gfis@u.washington.edu. For drop-in office hours and funding seminar schedules, check www.lib.washington.edu/gfis/events.html.

Work Study Graduate Assistantships

Graduate students who are eligible for the need-based college work-study program may qualify for work study graduate assistantships in teaching or research. Students must submit financial aid applications to the Office of Student Financial Aid by the Feb. 28 to be considered for these positions. Information is available from the Office of Student Financial Aid.

Employment Opportunities

The campus offers other job opportunities for graduate students. Students may apply directly to the department in which they hope to work or check the Career Center's Husky Jobs website careers.washington.edu/HuskyJobs/Students. Students seeking part-time employment must be enrolled and on campus before they may obtain jobs.

Advisory positions in University residence halls paying room and board are available for graduate students. Additional information may be obtained from the Housing and Food Services Human Resources Office, 305 Schmitz Hall, hfsjobs@uw.edu.

Spouses of students also may apply for regular full- and part-time University employment. Job listings are posted at www.washington.edu/admin/hr/jobs/

Loans

Long-term educational loans are available to graduate students through the Federal Perkins Student Loan, the Federal Direct PLUS, and the Federal Direct Unsubsidized Stafford Loan programs. For more detailed information on these loan programs, visit the Office of Student Financial Aid www.washington.edu/students/osfa/. An application form for these programs (the Free Application for Federal Student Aid, or FAFSA) is available at www.fafsa.gov. The priority filing date is Feb. 28 for the following autumn quarter. The Office of Student Financial Aid may be reached at osfa@uw.edu or www.washington.edu/students/osfa/.

Students should meet the priority filing date even if they have not yet been admitted to the Graduate School.

Short-term emergency loan funds also are available through the Office of Student Financial Aid. For information, see their website at www.washington.edu/students/osfa/gradaid/short.term.loans.html

GRADUATE DEGREE POLICIES

Usually focused on a specific field of knowledge, graduate study is conducted through a variety of means, including lectures, seminars, independent advanced study, special reading courses, internships and participation in research. Graduate programs leading to the master of arts, master of science or doctor of philosophy degrees emphasize the development of the student's ability for independent scholarly work and the creation of new knowledge through research. Practice-oriented programs, which ordinarily lead to the degree of master or doctor in a particular professional field, emphasize preparation of the student for professional practice at the frontiers of existing knowledge.

Many masters and all doctoral programs (excluding practice doctorates) culminate in the presentation of a thesis or dissertation conveying the results of the independent study and research carried out by the student. A master's thesis contributes to knowledge, reviews or critiques the state of knowledge in a field, creates a new design or composition, or represents some other appropriate kind of independent contribution. A doctoral dissertation must set forth a significant contribution to knowledge or understanding in the student's field, be presented in scholarly form and demonstrate that the student is competent to engage independently in the pursuit of solutions to important problems. The student must defend the doctoral dissertation in a final examination conducted by a faculty committee and open to all other graduate faculty members. A member of the graduate faculty from some other discipline participates as an official representative of the Graduate School, including various major evaluations such as the general examination and final examination.

Graduate Program Coordinator

The graduate student's initial work at the University is guided by the graduate program coordinator in his or her field. The coordinator must be a senior tenured member of the graduate faculty and is the official representative of the academic unit that offers the graduate degree program. The graduate program coordinator maintains familiarity with policies and procedures of the Graduate School and provides overall coordination of graduate activities within the unit.

Graduate Courses

Graduate courses are intended for, and ordinarily restricted to, either students enrolled in the Graduate School or graduate non-matriculated students, and are given numbers from 500 through 801. Some courses at the 300 and 400 levels are open both to graduates and to upper-division undergraduates. Such courses, when acceptable to the supervisory committee and the Graduate School, may be part of the graduate program. The Graduate School accepts credit in approved 300-level courses for the minor or supporting fields only. Courses at the 300 level are not included in the calculation of grade-point average (GPA) and will not apply toward the minimum Graduate School requirement of 18 graded credits for the master's or doctoral degree. Approved 400-level courses are accepted as part of the major, as well as minor or supporting fields. Undergraduate research (499) is not accepted as part of the graduate program. Graduate School Memorandum 36 offers additional information on graduate courses. With the exception of summer, students are limited to a maximum of 10 credits per quarter of any combination of courses numbered 600, 700 or 800.

Repeating Courses

Graduate students may repeat any course. Both the first and second grades will be included in the cumulative GPA. Subsequent grades will not be included, but will appear on the permanent record. The number of credits earned in the course will apply toward degree requirements only once.

Grading System for Graduate Students

In reporting grades for graduate students, graduate degree-offering units shall use the system described herein. Grades shall be entered as numbers, the possible values being 4.0, 3.9, . . . and decreasing by one-tenth until 1.7 is reached. Grades below 1.7 will be recorded as 0.0 by the Registrar and no credit is earned. A minimum of 2.7 is required in each course that is counted toward a graduate degree. A minimum cumulative grade-point average of 3.0 is required for graduation.

Numeric Grade-Point Equivalent	Letter Grade
4.0	A
3.8	A-
3.4	B+

Numeric Grade-Point Equivalent	Letter Grade
3.1
2.9
2.8	B-
2.4	C+
2.0	C
1.9
1.8
1.6–0.0	E

The following letter grades also may be used:

- I Incomplete. An Incomplete may be given only when the student has been in attendance and has done satisfactory work to within two weeks of the end of the quarter and has furnished proof satisfactory to the instructor that the work cannot be completed because of illness or other circumstances beyond the student's control. To obtain credit for the course, a student must successfully complete the work and the instructor must submit a grade. In no case may an Incomplete be converted into a passing grade after a lapse of two years or more. An incomplete received by the graduate student does not automatically convert to a grade of 0.0 but the "I" will remain as a permanent part of the student's record.
- N No grade. Used only for hyphenated courses and courses numbered 600 (Independent Study and Research), 601 (Internship), 700 (Thesis), 750 (Internship), and 800 (Dissertation). An N grade indicates that satisfactory progress is being made, but evaluation depends on completion of the research, thesis, internship, or dissertation, at which time the instructor or Supervisory Committee Chairperson should change the N grade(s) to one reflecting the final evaluation.
- S/NS Satisfactory/Not-Satisfactory. A graduate student, with the approval of the Graduate Program Coordinator or Supervisory Committee Chairperson, may elect to be graded S/NS in any numerically-graded course for which he or she is eligible. If a student does not so elect, then he/she will be graded on a numerical basis. If approval is granted the student must elect the S/NS option either when registering or no later than the end of the seventh week of the quarter. The instructor shall submit a numeric grade to the Registrar, who shall convert grades of 2.7 and above to S and grades lower than 2.7 to NS.
- CR/NC Credit/No Credit. With the approval of the faculty in the academic unit, any course may be designated for grading on the CR/NC basis by notice in the appropriate Time Schedule. For such courses, the instructor will submit a grade of CR or NC to be recorded by the Registrar's Office for each student in the course at the end of the quarter. All courses numbered 600, 601, 700, 750 and 800 may be graded with a decimal grade, a CR/NC or N at the instructors' option.
- W Withdrawal. Refer to the University of Washington timeschedule or homepage at www.washington.edu/students/reg/wdoffleave.html.
- HW Hardship withdrawal. Grade assigned when a graduate student is allowed a hardship withdrawal from a course after the seventh week of the quarter. Unofficial withdrawal from a course shall result in a grade of 0.0.

The grade W and HW count neither as completed credits nor in computation of grade-point average.

Graduate students who withdraw from the University (dropping all courses for the quarter) during the first week of two consecutive quarters (Summer Quarter excepted) will not be eligible to register as a continuing graduate student for the third quarter. Such graduate students must reapply as former graduate students returning to the University. For example, if a graduate student withdraws during the first week of Spring Quarter and Autumn Quarter, he or she must reapply as a returning former graduate student for Winter Quarter.

Of the minimum credits required for a graduate degree, a graduate student must show numerical grades in at least 18 quarter credits of course work taken at the University of Washington. These numerical grades may be earned in approved 400-level courses and 500-level courses.

A graduate student's grade-point average will be calculated entirely on the basis of number grades in 400- and 500-level courses. The grades of S, NS, CR, NC, and N will be excluded, as will all grades in courses numbered 600, 601, 700, 750, and 800, and in 100- and 200- level courses.

The graduate student may petition the Dean of the Graduate School to modify the procedures described above. The petition should be accompanied by comments and recommendations from the Graduate Program Coordinator or Supervisory Committee Chairperson.

Scholarship

A cumulative GPA of 3.00 or above is required to receive a degree from the Graduate School. A graduate student's GPA is calculated entirely on the basis of numeric grades in 400- and 500-level courses. The grades of S, NS, CR, NC, and N are excluded, as are all grades in courses numbered 600, 601, 700, 750, and 800, and in courses at the 100, 200, and 300 levels.

Failure to maintain a 3.00 GPA, either cumulative or for a given quarter, constitutes low scholarship and may lead to a change-in-status action by the Graduate School. Failure to maintain satisfactory performance and progress toward a degree may also result in a change-in-status action by the Graduate School.

For more information, see Graduate School Memorandum 16: grad.washington.edu/policies/memoranda/memo16.shtml

Withdrawal Policy

Refer to the University of Washington Time Schedule for procedures and dates, or look on the Web at www.washington.edu/students/reg/wdoffleave.html

Language Competency Requirements and Examinations

Competence in one or more languages in addition to English is desirable for all fields of advanced study and is often required, especially in the scholarly and research-oriented programs leading to the degrees of Master of Arts, Master of Science, and Doctor of Philosophy.

Requirements for foreign-language competence are established by the graduate faculty in the unit offering the graduate program. Language competence in certain languages other than English (i.e., languages that may have special significance to the field) may be specified as helpful or desirable or may be required. Students should consult the graduate program coordinator for information and advice about desirable or required competence in foreign languages.

When appropriate, students are urged to establish foreign language competence as undergraduates before entering the Graduate School or as early as possible in their graduate careers. The University's language-competence requirements in French, German, and Spanish may be satisfied by successful completion of the standardized examinations given by the Educational Assessment Office. Other foreign language examinations are also given at the UW.

It is assumed that citizens of certain English-speaking countries who are admitted to the Graduate School are competent in the English language; citizens of non-English-speaking countries must demonstrate a satisfactory command of English, both for admission and for appointment as teaching assistants.

Refer to Graduate School Memorandum No. 8, English Language Competence for Admission to the Graduate School (www.grad.washington.edu/policies/memoranda/memo08.shtml) and Graduate School Memorandum 15, Conditions of Appointment for TAs Who Are Not Native Speakers of English (www.grad.washington.edu/policies/memoranda/memo15.shtml) for more information.

Enrollment Requirement

The enrollment requirement for the master's degree is 36 credits, 30 of which must be taken at the University of Washington.

For the doctoral degree, the enrollment requirement is 90 credits, 60 of which must be taken at the University of Washington. With the approval of the degree-granting unit, an appropriate master's degree from a regionally accredited institution may substitute for (30 credits) of enrollment. Doctoral Study requires an immersion in an academic field and its intellectual community. Degree-granting units may require a period of full-time and/or on-site study.

Only courses numbered 400, 500, 600, 700, and 800 can be applied to enrollment or course credit in the major field for advanced degrees (please see the Graduate Courses policy regarding courses numbered 499). Courses numbered 300 are not applicable to enrollment or course credit toward advanced degrees except when applied by permission of the graduate program coordinator or supervisory committee toward the graduate minor or supporting courses. Courses numbered below 300 are not applicable to enrollment or course credit for advanced degrees.

Full-Time Enrollment

Full-time quarterly enrollment for graduate students is 10 credits.

Final Quarter Registration

A student must maintain registration as a full- or part-time graduate student at the University for the quarter the master's degree, the candidate certificate, or doctoral degree is conferred. A student who does not complete all degree requirements by the last day of the quarter must be registered for the following quarter.

Continuous Enrollment and Official On-Leave Requirement

Policy

To maintain graduate status, a student must be enrolled on a full-time, part-time, or official on-leave basis from the time of first enrollment in the Graduate School until completion of all requirements for the graduate degree. (Summer quarter on-leave enrollment is automatic for all graduate students who were either registered or officially on-leave during the prior spring quarter.) Any student who fails to register for classes or on-leave status after being admitted to the UW will need to be approved for reinstatement by his or her program to regain active student status within the Graduate School. Failure to maintain either continuous enrollment or on-leave status constitutes evidence that the student has resigned from the Graduate School.

Registration is required to take the master's final examination or doctoral general or final examinations. Students may either be registered or eligible to use the graduate registration waiver fee for filing the request for master's degree, submitting a thesis or dissertation, and receiving the degree.

To be eligible for on-leave status, the student must have registered for, and completed, at least one quarter as a graduate student at the University of Washington immediately prior to going on-leave; international students must complete three consecutive quarters (see international graduate students section below).

Any student who has registered for a quarter may NOT submit a petition for on-leave status form directly to the registration office for that quarter unless he/she officially withdraws from all courses before the first day of the quarter. Students who have been registered for even one day of a quarter are deemed to have status for the quarter and will be eligible to register for classes or apply for on-leave for the following quarter. (Spring enables registration for summer or autumn.) The student's email account will be active for the quarter, but library privileges will not be maintained once courses are dropped.

The procedure for going on leave is online at www.grad.washington.edu/policies/memoranda/memo09.shtml.

If a student who is in on-leave status registers in any other status, i.e., matriculated, non-matriculated, graduate non-matriculated, it will terminate their official on-leave status for that quarter, even if they subsequently drop those courses.

Readmission

A student previously registered in the Graduate School who has failed to maintain graduate student status, but wishes later to resume studies, must for reinstatement to the Graduate School by the published closing dates. If the student is reinstated by the department, registration will occur during the usual registration period.

The Graduate School allows a maximum of six years to complete requirements for a master's degree and 10 years for a doctoral degree. Periods spent on-leave or out of status are included.

Concurrent Degree Programs

Concurrent programs are defined as a pair of programs that may be pursued at the UW by a post-baccalaureate student resulting in completion of the requirements for either two graduate degrees or a graduate and a professional degree. Rather than sequentially completing first one degree and then the other, the student's time and the University's resources may be conserved by arrangements that permit the student to proceed in a coordinated way toward completion of the degree programs. Graduate School policy allows for both formal and informal concurrent degree programs, as described below.

Formal Concurrent Degree Programs

Graduate School policy defines a formal concurrent degree program as a curriculum established by two participating academic units resulting in completion of two graduate degrees, or a graduate and a professional degree. These specific programs must be formally approved by the Graduate School, and students in formal concurrent degree programs are designated by unique program codes.

The two types of formal concurrent degree programs are as follows:

1. Graduate/Professional Degrees

Examples of formal graduate/professional concurrent degrees:

- School of Dentistry: DDS/Master's or Doctoral degree

- School of Law: JD/Master's or Doctoral degree
- School of Medicine: M.D./Master's or Doctoral degree
- School of Pharmacy: PharmD/Master's or Doctoral degree

The graduate program coordinators are the primary representatives of the professional schools, and the graduate degree requirements for the master's degree are those which are in effect at the time the degree is awarded. All program and Graduate School minimum requirements must be met by appropriate graduate courses. It is the responsibility of the student to submit a written list of courses which apply toward the graduate degree at the time the student applies for the master's degree. This list must be approved by both programs.

Requirements for the doctoral degree are those which are in effect at the time the degree is awarded with the understanding that only approved graduate courses will be applicable.

2. Graduate/Graduate degrees

Examples of formal graduate/graduate concurrent programs:

- Master of Health Administration/Master of Business Administration
- International Studies/Epidemiology
- Master of Arts in International Studies/Master of Public Health

To earn two master's degrees in a formal concurrent degree program, a student must complete at least the equivalent of two Graduate School minimum degree requirements of 36 credits each for a minimum total of 72 credits. If one or both of the participating programs require more than the minimum of 36 credits, those additional credits may be "shared" and applied to both degrees. Further, a maximum of 12 credits from one master's program, earned beyond the 36 credit minimum, may be applied in the second master's program towards the Graduate School minimum of 36 credits required. In this case, the minimum number of additional credits for the second degree, with the 12 approved credits, is 24. In all cases the total minimum required credits remains 72. For formal concurrent degree programs, both programs must approve the shared credits counting toward both degrees. A formal concurrent degree program may allow a shared thesis as described within the formal concurrent degree proposal. The proposing programs should follow the best practices guidelines developed by the Graduate School Council (Concurrent Degrees Shared Thesis Best Practices) and articulate these in the proposal sent to the Graduate School.

For formal PhD/masters concurrent programs, up to 12 credits earned toward a PhD may be counted toward a master's degree in another program with the approval of both degree-offering units.

The student is responsible for submitting a list of courses which apply toward each respective degree at the time he or she files an application for the master's degree or schedules the general examination. This list must be approved by both programs.

Informal Concurrent Degree Programs

Students may pursue two degrees from different departments simultaneously in an informal concurrent degree program. These programs have not been approved as formal concurrent programs and do not have unique program codes, but students have flexibility to "share" coursework, given the approval of both programs.

Current graduate students wishing to pursue an informal concurrent degree program must go to apps.grad.uw.edu/applForAdmiss/ and submit an application and fee for the second program.

Graduate School Memorandum 35: Concurrent Degree Programs contains additional information. grad.washington.edu/policies/memoranda/memo35.shtml.

Master's Degree

Summary of Requirements

- A student must satisfy the requirements for the degree that are in force at the time the degree is to be awarded.
- Total credits required for the degree program must be completed.
- All courses numbered 400-799 that are numerically graded 2.7 and above, or have a grade of satisfactory (S) or credit (CR) count toward total credits. 499 courses are not counted in the total credits.
- At least 18 credits must be in courses numbered 500 and above.
- 18 credits must be numerically graded in department approved 400-level courses accepted as part of the major and in 500-level courses. This excludes 499 and transfer credits.
- No more than six graduate level quarter credits can be transferred from other academic institutions to count toward the credit total.
- No more than 12 UW graduate non-matriculated credits can be applied to the credit total.
- No more than 12 credits derived from any combination of UW graduate non-matriculated credits and transfer credits can be applied to the credit total.
- If a student repeats a non-repeatable class, only one set of credits counts toward the credit total.
- A minimum cumulative GPA (grade point average) of 3.00 is required for a graduate degree at the University.
- The master's degree request must be filed.
- If the master's degree request is filed during weeks 10 and 11, it is not accepted. The system is closed.
- In summer quarter, any master's degree request filed in weeks eight and nine is not accepted. The system is closed.
- All degree requirements must be completed within six years.
- The six-year timeframe begins on the first day of the quarter in which the student — coded as either a graduate non-matriculated student (department code with class 6) or as a graduate student (department code with class 8) — uses a course to satisfy degree requirements in the department to which he or she is admitted.
- Only UW graduate non-matriculated credits taken within the six-year time frame may be applied toward the credit total.
- Quarters spent on-leave and out of status are counted in the six years.
- A student must maintain registration through the end of the quarter in which the degree is conferred or, if eligible, pay the graduate registration waiver fee within 14 days following the last day of the quarter in which all degree requirements were met.
- Thesis track students are required to take a minimum of nine thesis credits in their credit total.
- Thesis track students are required to submit an electronic copy of an acceptably formatted thesis and the supervisory committee approval form to the Graduate School no later than the last day of the quarter. www.grad.washington.edu/students/etd/.

Second Master's Degree Requirement

A second master's degree may be earned at the UW by completing an additional separate set of requirements. Please refer to Concurrent Degree Programs earlier in this section and to Graduate School Memorandum No. 35 (grad.washington.edu/policies/memoranda/memo35.shtml) for more specific information.

Transfer Credit

A student working toward the master's degree may petition the dean of the Graduate School for permission to transfer to the University of Washington the equivalent of a maximum of six quarter credits of graduate level course work taken at another recognized academic institution. These credits may not have been used to satisfy requirements for another degree. The petition must include a recommendation from the graduate program coordinator and an official transcript indicating completion of the course work. Transfer credits are not entered on the UW transcript.

University of Washington students who are within six credits of completing their undergraduate degree, and who have met the requirements for admission to the Graduate School, may register the quarter immediately preceding admission to Graduate School for up to six credits in 500-level courses in addition to their remaining six credits of required undergraduate work. The graduate program which has admitted the student must approve registration for the courses. The student, after admission to the Graduate School, must file a petition with the dean of the Graduate School to transfer the six credits. The student must also provide a letter or email from Graduations and Academic Records stating that these credits have not been applied toward the undergraduate degree.

Approved transfer credits are applied toward the total credit count only for the master's degree. (Transfer credits are not applicable toward a doctoral degree.) The 18 quarter credits of numerically graded course work, and 18 quarter credits of 500-level-and-above course work may not be reduced by transfer credit.

Credit taken as an undergraduate non-matriculated student or post-baccalaureate student at the UW may not be transferred to a graduate program. Credit by advanced credit examinations is not transferable.

Thesis Program

The master's thesis should be evidence of the graduate student's ability to carry out independent investigation and to present the results in clear and systematic form. Thesis track students are required to submit an electronic copy of an acceptably formatted thesis and the supervisory committee approval form to the Graduate School no later than the last day of the quarter (www.grad.washington.edu/students/etd/) or by the deadline specified in the graduate registration waiver fee. The faculty in the graduate program may require that the student present an additional copy for its own use. The Graduate School publishes online format guidelines for theses and dissertations (www.grad.washington.edu/students/etd/). These guidelines should be read thoroughly before the student begins writing the thesis. The thesis must meet all format requirements before being accepted by the Graduate School. A thesis adviser is available in the Graduate School for consultation during the thesis preparation process.

Non-thesis Programs

The faculty in some graduate programs have arranged programs of study for the master's degree that do not require the preparation of a thesis. These non-thesis programs normally include a more comprehensive plan of course work for more extensive examinations than are required in thesis programs, or they may include some approved research activity in lieu of a thesis.

Final Examination for Master's Degree

As soon as is appropriate, the faculty in the student's graduate program appoints a supervisory committee, consisting of two to four members. The chair and at least one-half of the total membership must be members of the graduate faculty. (See Graduate School Memorandum 13 grad.washington.edu/policies/memoranda/memo13.shtml.) The committee chairperson arranges the time and place of the final examination, the results of which must be reported to the Graduate School by the last day of the quarter (last day of finals week) in which degree requirements are met. The examination may be oral or written, and all members of the supervisory committee must certify its results. If the examination is not satisfactory, the committee may recommend to the dean of the Graduate School that the student be allowed to take another examination after a period of further study. A student must be registered the quarter in which any required exam or presentation occurs.

Application for Master's Degree

Students apply for the master's degree on at www.grad.washington.edu/mygrad/student.htm. The online application period commences on the first day of each quarter and closes on Sunday (midnight Pacific Time) of the ninth week of the quarter (eighth week during summer quarter). If degree requirements are not met in the requested quarter, students must complete another degree request for the quarter in which they expect to complete requirements. Students will receive an email confirming receipt of their master's degree request. The filing of the application is the responsibility solely of the student. When the application is received, the student's record is reviewed in the Graduate School. All requirements for the degree must be met by the end of the current quarter if the application is to be approved. Registration must be maintained for the entire quarter in which application for the degree is made. If a student should withdraw during the quarter, the application becomes void and a new one must be submitted at the appropriate time.

Master of Arts for Teachers

Master's degree programs for experienced teachers, which focus upon the fields of knowledge normally taught in the common school and the community college, provide alternatives to the research-oriented master of arts and master of science degree programs, which emphasize particular fields of knowledge.

Doctoral Degree

The doctoral degree is by nature and tradition the highest certificate of membership in the academic community. As such, it is meant to indicate the presence of superior qualities of mind and intellectual interests and of high attainments in a chosen field. It is not conferred merely as a certificate to a prescribed course of study and research, no matter how long or how faithfully pursued. All requirements and regulations leading to the doctoral degree are devices whereby the student may demonstrate present capacities and future promise for scholarly work.

Summary of Requirements

In order to qualify for the doctoral degree, it is the responsibility of the student to meet the following Graduate School minimum requirements:

- Completion of a program of study and research as planned by the graduate program coordinator in the student's major department or college and the supervisory committee. At least 18 credits of course work at the 500 level and above must be completed prior to scheduling the general examination.
- Presentation of 90 credits, 60 of which must be taken at the University of Washington. With the approval of the degree-granting unit, an appropriate master's degree from an accredited institution may substitute for 30 credits of enrollment.
- Numerical grades must be received in at least 18 quarter credits of course work taken at the UW prior to scheduling the general examination. The Graduate School accepts numerical grades in approved 400-level courses accepted as part of the major, and in all 500-level courses. A minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00 is required for a graduate degree at the University.

- Creditable passage of the general examination.
- Registration as a graduate student is required the quarter the exam is taken and candidacy is conferred.
- Preparation of and acceptance by the dean of the Graduate School of a dissertation that is a significant contribution to knowledge and clearly indicates training in research. Credit for the dissertation ordinarily should be at least one-third of the total credit. The candidate must register for a minimum of 27 credits of dissertation. At least one quarter must come after the student passes the general examination. With the exception of summer quarter, students are limited to a maximum of 10 credits per quarter of dissertation (800).
- Creditable passage of a final examination, which is usually devoted to the defense of the dissertation and the field with which it is concerned. The general and final examinations cannot be scheduled during the same quarter. Registration as a graduate student is required the quarter the exam is taken and the degree is conferred.
- Completion of all work for the doctoral degree within 10 years. This includes quarters spent on-leave or out of status, as well as applicable work from the master's degree from the UW.
- Registration maintained as a full- or part-time graduate student at the University for the quarter in which the degree is conferred (see detailed information under final quarter registration).
- A student must satisfy the requirements that are in force at the time the degree is to be awarded.

Appointment of Doctoral Supervisory Committee

A supervisory committee is appointed by the dean of the Graduate School to guide and assist a graduate student working toward a doctoral degree and is expected to evaluate a student's performance throughout a program. A supervisory committee should be appointed no later than four months prior to a general examination. Appointment of a supervisory committee indicates that the graduate faculty in a student's field finds a student's background and achievement a sufficient basis for admission into a program of doctoral study and research. "Preliminary" examinations, if required, should be completed prior to a request for appointment of a supervisory committee. If preliminary examinations are not an academic unit's requirement, it is appropriate to request appointment of a supervisory committee during a student's first year of study. See Graduate School Memorandum 13: Supervisory Committees for Graduate Students, grad.washington.edu/policies/memoranda/memo13.shtml.

Admission to Candidacy for Doctoral Degree

A general examination may be scheduled if: (a) the student has completed 60 credits (some of these credits may be taken the same quarter of the exam); (b) all required program examinations that do not need Graduate School approval have been completed and; (c) all members of the supervisory committee agree that the student's background of study and preparation is sufficient and have approved the student to schedule a general examination. At least four members of a supervisory committee — including the chair, Graduate School representative, and one additional graduate faculty member — must be present at the examination.

If the general examination is satisfactory, the supervisory committee members who participate at the examination sign the warrant and return it to the student's graduate program by the last day of the quarter. If an examination is unsatisfactory, a supervisory committee may recommend that the dean of the Graduate School permit up to a maximum of two additional re-examinations after a period of additional study. Any members of a supervisory committee who do not agree with the majority opinion are encouraged to submit a minority report to the dean of the Graduate School.

The student must be registered as a graduate student during the quarter that he or she takes the general examination. When the Graduate School approves candidacy, a student is identified and designated as a candidate for the appropriate doctoral degree and is awarded a candidate certificate. After achieving candidate status, a student ordinarily devotes his or her time primarily to completing research, writing the dissertation and preparing for the final examination.

A candidate certificate and the doctoral degree may not be awarded the same quarter.

Candidate's Certificate

A candidate certificate is formal recognition of the completion of a very significant step towards a doctoral degree. Students who have passed a general examination and have completed all requirements for a doctoral degree, except a final examination and Graduate School acceptance of a dissertation, are awarded a candidate certificate. Candidacy is conferred on the last day of a quarter, and certificates are issued by Graduation and Academic Records approximately four months after this date.

Dissertation and Final Examination

A candidate must present a dissertation demonstrating original and independent investigation and achievement. A dissertation should reflect not only a mastery of research techniques, but also ability to select an important problem for investigation, and to deal with it competently.

Normally, a dissertation is written in English. However, if there are circumstances that warrant a dissertation be written in another language, approval must be received from the dean of the Graduate School via petition.

The Graduate School publishes online formatting guidelines for theses and dissertations (www.grad.washington.edu/students/etd/) and students should familiarize themselves with the requirements before they begin. A dissertation must meet these format requirements before being accepted by the Graduate School. Thesis and dissertation advisers are available in the Graduate School to answer questions.

A final examination may be scheduled if: (a) a student passed a general examination in a previous quarter; (b) a reading committee is officially established with the Graduate School; (c) the reading committee has read an entire draft of the dissertation and; (d) the entire supervisory committee has agreed that the student is prepared and has approved the student to schedule a final examination. At least four members of a supervisory committee — including the chair, Graduate School representative, and one additional graduate faculty member — must be present at the examination.

If the final examination is satisfactory, the supervisory committee members who participate at the examination sign the warrant and return it to the student's graduate program by the last day of the quarter. Any members of a supervisory committee who participate at an examination, but do not agree with the majority opinion, are encouraged to submit a minority report to the dean of the Graduate School. If an examination is unsatisfactory, a supervisory committee may recommend that the dean of the Graduate School permit a second examination after a period of additional study.

Registration as a graduate student is required the quarter that a final examination is taken and the quarter the dissertation is submitted. The degree is conferred the quarter in which the student's dissertation is accepted by the Graduate School.

Publication of Doctoral Dissertations

Part of the obligation of research is publication of the results and, in the case of doctoral research, this means microfilm publication of the dissertation. This is a Graduate School requirement, in addition to any previous or planned publication of any or all of a dissertation, and provides worldwide distribution of the work. A candidate signs a publication agreement when a dissertation is presented to the Graduate School. Publication in microfilm does not preclude other forms of publication.

Individual PhD Program

The Graduate School maintains the individual Ph.D. program for exceptionally able students whose objectives for study are of an interdisciplinary nature that cannot be met within one of the University units authorized to grant the Ph.D. The program is intended for dissertation topics that require supervision from two or more of the disciplines in which the University offers the Ph.D. It is not intended as a mechanism for offering the Ph.D. within units that do not have their own authorized Ph.D. programs.

A graduate student may apply to the individual Ph.D. program when he or she has completed the master's degree, or has been admitted to the Graduate School and has completed at least three quarters of full-time work at the UW, and has carefully planned an appropriate program of studies.

Proposals, including GRE scores, are due by Dec. 15 of each year. Decisions on admission are made by May 31 of the following year. Information and application materials for the individual Ph.D. program are available at www.grad.washington.edu/students/interdisciplinary/iphd/index.shtml.

The departments and schools of the College of Arts and Sciences offer nearly 100 curricula leading to the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Fine Arts, Bachelor of Music, and Bachelor of Science, as well as graduate study leading to master's and doctoral degrees.

UNDERGRADUATE STUDY

Graduation Requirements

A liberal arts education entails mastery of certain basic skills, exposure to a broad range of academic disciplines, and concentration in a particular field of knowledge. To be awarded a baccalaureate degree a student in the College must fulfill requirements in the following areas: Language Skills, Reasoning and Writing in Context, Areas of Knowledge, and a Major (see table below). All required courses must be taken for a numerical grade. In addition, the student must present at least 90 credits outside the major department and must meet minimum GPA requirements as specified below. Detailed information on graduation requirements is provided in the University of Washington (Seattle) Student Planner, a copy of which is given to each entering student.

Requirement*	Credits
Language Skills	5–20	English composition (5 credits) Foreign language (0–15 credits, depending on placement or high school background)
Reasoning and Writing in Context	15	Quantitative/symbolic reasoning (QSR) (5 credits) Additional writing (W) courses (10 credits)
Areas of Knowledge	75	General-education courses to include at least 20 credits in each of the following three areas: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Visual, Literary, & Performing Arts (VLPa)• Individuals & Societies (I&S)• The Natural World (NW)
Major	50–90	An area of specialization, usually in a single department
Minor (optional)	25–35	An additional area of specialization
Electives	varies	Free choice; as many credits as necessary to bring the total to 180

Language Skills

To receive a degree from the College of Arts and Sciences, students whose first enrollment in college (whether at the UW or elsewhere) was in autumn quarter 1985 or later are required to complete 5 credits of English composition with a minimum grade of 2.0. They must also complete coursework through the end of the first-year college sequence in a foreign language, with at least a 2.0 in the third-quarter course, or demonstrate equivalent proficiency through one of the following: successful completion of the third-year or higher level of high school language instruction (effective autumn 2009); by passing an examination; or by receiving a passing grade in a qualifying course beyond the first-year level. Credits used for these two requirements (including the entire first year of foreign language, if taken) cannot also be applied to the Areas of Knowledge requirements described below.

Reasoning and Writing in Context

Students who first entered college autumn quarter 1985 or later must complete a minimum of 5 credits in Quantitative or Symbolic Reasoning (QSR) and 10 credits of additional composition courses or courses that emphasize the development of writing skills in the context of an academic discipline (W courses). QSR and writing courses, if they apply, can also be counted toward Areas of Knowledge or major requirements. The writing requirement is in addition to the English composition requirement mentioned in the preceding paragraph.

Areas of Knowledge

The Areas of Knowledge requirement is the means by which the student develops a breadth of knowledge. Undergraduate courses are currently divided broadly into three categories: Visual, Literary, & Performing Arts; Individuals & Societies; and the Natural World. Each student must select at least 20 credits in courses from each of the three fields and an additional 15 credits from any courses in the three fields. Of the 75 total credits required, 15 may be from courses in the student's major department.

Course Designators

The following symbols, included in course descriptions in this catalog, indicate which, if any, of the above requirements are fulfilled by certain courses:

- VLPa -- Visual, Literary, & Performing Arts (Area of Knowledge requirement)
- I&S -- Individuals & Societies (Area of Knowledge requirement)
- NW -- The Natural World (Area of Knowledge requirement)
- QSR -- Quantitative and Symbolic Reasoning

Courses that meet the foreign-language requirement and the additional-writing requirement are not marked. The third-quarter (or second-semester) course in any language meets the language requirement, so long as the entire first-year sequence totals at least 12 credits (regardless of whether the student earned credit for the earlier parts of the sequence). Consult the quarterly Time Schedule for writing-intensive courses that meet the additional-writing requirement.

Major

In fulfilling the requirements for a major, the student engages in thorough study of a discipline or subject, aimed at developing knowledge in depth. This part of the student's program is determined by the department, school, or faculty committee with which the major study is pursued. Measured in academic credits, the "major" required of each student consists of 50 or more prescribed credits in a department of the College or a closely related group of departments. Descriptions of major programs are printed below.

Minor

Completion of a minor, available through many departments, is optional. Requirements are shown under individual department undergraduate programs, below, or in a minors handout available in the Undergraduate Gateway Center, 171 Mary Gates Hall. The following interdisciplinary minors are also offered: Disability Studies; Diversity; Education, Learning, and Society; Human Rights; Labor Studies; and Values in Society. Websites for these minors may be found in the alphabetical listing of Arts & Sciences degree programs.

Credits Required Outside Major Department

So that the student does not overspecialize, the College limits to 90 the number of credits from a single department that the student may elect to count in the 180 credits required for the baccalaureate degree. A department itself can require no more than 70 credits from courses within the department, and no more than 90 credits from within the department and related fields combined, as constituting its major program for the baccalaureate degree. Exceptions to these restrictions may be granted by the Dean.

GPA Required for Graduation

To be eligible to receive the baccalaureate degree, the student must achieve at least a 2.00 cumulative GPA in the major (some departments prescribe a higher minimum GPA for the major), as well as a 2.00 cumulative GPA for all work done in residence at the University.

Applying for Graduation

Students should apply for the baccalaureate degree no later than the first quarter of their final year. Seniors who apply by announced quarterly deadlines will receive Graduating Senior Registration Priority (GSP), allowing them to register first for the following quarter. GSP status is limited to two quarters.

All current and past UW students may graduate under the College requirements published in this catalog. Students may use the department requirements in effect at the time they are admitted to the major, if they graduate within 10 years of that time. Otherwise, the department may insist on more recent major requirements. Students wishing to fulfill a previous set of requirements should see an adviser for details and options. All responsibility for fulfilling graduation requirements rests with the student concerned.

Limits on Physical Education Courses Allowed Toward Graduation

A student graduating from the College of Arts and Sciences may count a maximum of three credits of 100-level physical-education activity courses taken at the University of Washington, or their equivalents at other collegiate institutions, as elective credits toward graduation. At present, physical-education courses are not offered at the University.

Graduate Study

Students who intend to work toward advanced degrees must apply for admission to the Graduate School and must meet the general requirements outlined in this General Catalog, as well as the requirements established by the graduate faculty in the department or unit offering the degree program. Graduate students must satisfy the requirements for an advanced degree in force at the time the degree is to be awarded.

American Ethnic Studies

Analyzes how contact with European gender customs influenced and altered traditional gender practices, especially in regard to women's social position and the roles of the third/ fourth genders in Native American communities.

AIS 442 Images of Natives in the Cinema and Popular Cultures (5) VLPA/I&S, DIV D. HART, L. ROSS Cultural examination of images of Native people in cinema and popular culture based on social science writings and films by or about Natives in the United States and Canada. Offered: jointly with GWSS 442.

AIS 443 Indigenous Films, Sovereign Visions (5) VLPA/I&S D. HART, L. ROSS Explores fiction, documentary, experimental film, and digital media by indigenous artists from around the world. Focuses on personal, political, and cultural expression. Issues include media and sovereignty movements, political economy, language revitalization, the politics of decolonization, and indigenous aesthetics. Offered: jointly with COM 443.

AIS 444 Criminality and "Deviance" in Native Communities (5) L. ROSS Seminar based on social science writings and biographies written by and about incarcerated Natives and "deviance" in Native communities in the United States and Canada. Offered: jointly with GWSS 444.

AIS 446 American Indian Economic History (5) I&S Harmon Surveys and analyzes the history of American Indians' economic challenges and strategies. Topics include the economic cultures of indigenous North American societies, the impacts of European colonization and U.S. government policies, and tribal strategies aimed at improving Indians' economic circumstances. Offered: jointly with HSTAA 446.

AIS 451 Critical Conversations in American Indian Studies (5, max. 10) D. MILLION Critical issues in American Indian studies. Topics vary.

AIS 461 First Nations Government and Politics in Canada (5) I&S Cote Focuses on First Nations government and politics in Canada. Examines development of First Nations political governing structures with an introduction to the values, perspectives, concepts, and principles in Native political cultures. Explores federal Indian policy in context of First Nations strategies to become self-governing. Offered: jointly with JSIS A 426.

AIS 465 First Nations Filmmaking in Canada (5) VLPA Cote Examines First Nations video production in Canada; how film is utilized as a medium for addressing issues significant to First Nations. First Nations filmmakers "decolonize" the screen by providing real and positive images of First Nations people that correspond to their cultural and social experiences. Offered: jointly with JSIS A 422.

AIS 466 Producing the Documentary Short (5) VLPA D. HART, L. ROSS Explores documentary theory, methods, and aesthetics. From humanities, social science, and indigenous studies perspectives, students critique a self-produced documentary, looking at methodology, perspective, and ethics. Students also explore pre-production, production, and post-production documentary techniques.

AIS 475 Special Topics in Indian Studies (1-5, max. 15) I&S Current research and readings in American Indian Studies content areas.

AIS 499 Independent Study (1-5, max. 15) VLPA/I&S Readings and/or research under faculty supervision.

AIS 501 Documentary Film/Video Research Methods in Native Communities (5) D. HART, L. ROSS Seminar exploring theoretical, methodological, and aesthetic issues when researching documentary film and video projects in Native American communities. Utilizes readings, screening, discussions, and a major research project to explore issues of documentary representation, ethics, and historiography.

First part of a two-quarter documentary production sequence. Offered: jointly with GWSS 510.

AIS 503 Documentary Theory, Form, and Practice (5) D. HART, L. ROSS Explores documentary theory and practice, utilizing readings and documentary filmmaking exercises. Students create short documentary sequences while investigating traditional and more experimental ideas about the non-fiction form; theories of representation, subject ethics, documentary authenticity, the intersection of fiction and non-fiction forms, documentary and performance, documentary and historiography.

AIS 590 Special Topics (1-5, max. 15) Offered by visitors or resident faculty as a one-time, in-depth study of special interest.

Anthropology

M32 Denny

Anthropology is the study of human beings in all their cultural diversity. It includes the study of human evolution, the archaeological record, language and culture, the relationship between humans and their environment, and cultural modes of being as these differ in time and space. In studying anthropology, students can better understand how to find ways to live together in today's world, respecting cultural diversity while building upon common human values.

The study of anthropology at the University of Washington is comprised of three sub-disciplines:

Archaeology is the study of the human past through investigation of material remains (artifacts, food remains, features, structures, etc.) and their relationships in space and time.

Biocultural anthropology focuses on understanding human variation through the study of the ecological, demographic, genetic, developmental, and epidemiological dimensions of modern human adaptation and its evolutionary basis.

Sociocultural anthropology is the study of human societies from the perspective of culture as a comparative frame.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

(206) 543-7772

The Department of Anthropology offers the following undergraduate programs:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in anthropology
- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in anthropology, with an option in medical anthropology and global health (MAGH), anthropology of globalization (AG), or in archaeological sciences (ASc)
- A minor in anthropology

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: ARCHY 205; BIO A 201; any additional 200-level ANTH course; and one from CS&SS 221/SOC 221/STAT 221, STAT 220, STAT 311, Q SCI 381, or ARCHY 495.

Department Admission Requirements

1. Minimum 15 ANTH/ARCHY/BIO A credits.
2. Minimum cumulative 2.50 GPA for ANTH/ARCHY/BIO A credits, with at a minimum 2.0 grade in each course.
3. Minimum cumulative 2.50 GPA for all prior college work, including transfer credits.

4. Transfer students must be admitted to the UW before they can apply.

Additional requirements for students applying to medical anthropology and global health (MAGH) or anthropology of globalization (AG) options.

Admission to the MAGH or AG options is competitive. Meeting minimum requirements for admission to the major does not guarantee admission to either option. Applications are available on the department website on the first day of the quarter. Application deadline is the second Friday of autumn, winter, or spring quarters. Students are notified of the admission decision by the end of week five of the quarter in which they apply.

See department advising office for additional requirements.

Admission to the archaeological sciences (ASc) option is not competitive and is open to all students accepted into the anthropology major. A passing grade in ARCHY 205 is required for admission to the archaeological sciences (ASc) option.

Major Requirements

55 credits as follows:

1. Core courses (20 credits): ARCHY 205, BIO A 201; any 200-level ANTH course; and one of the following: CS&SS 221/SOC 221/STAT 221, STAT 220, STAT 311, Q SCI 381, or ARCHY 495
2. 35 additional ANTH, ARCHY, and BIO A credits distributed across the subfields or concentrated as suits the interests of the student. 20 of these credits must be in upper-division (300- or 400-level) courses. Students may count one 100-level ANTH, ARCHY, or BIO A course toward the major, but are not required to do so.
 - a. The following AIS courses may apply toward this requirement: AIS 201, AIS 202, AIS 203, AIS 240, AIS 311, AIS 312, AIS 316, AIS 317, AIS 330, AIS 335, AIS 340, AIS 443. There is no limit on the number of AIS course that may apply to this requirement.
 - b. Maximum 12 credits (18 credits for departmental honors students) from ANTH 499, ARCHY 499, and BIO A 499 combined can be counted toward the major.
3. Additional major requirements:
 - a. Courses with a grade of 1.9 or lower do not count toward the major.
 - b. At least 25 credits in the major must be completed with a minimum 2.50 grade.
 - c. Transfer students must complete a minimum of 15 upper-division credits in anthropology at the UW.
4. Students may pursue either the general anthropology major or one of the three options shown below.

Medical Anthropology and Global Health (MAGH) Option: Requirements for the general anthropology major, as shown above, to include ANTH 215 and 15 credits from ANTH and BIO A courses approved for the MAGH option. A list of approved courses available at the department advising office (247 Denny) or on the department website.

Anthropology of Globalization (AG) Option: Requirements for the general anthropology major, as shown above, to include 20 credits from courses in ANTH, ARCHY, and BIO A approved for the AG option. A list of approved courses is available at the department advising office (247 Denny) or on the department website.

Archaeological Sciences (ASc) Option: Requirements for the general anthropology major, as shown above, to include at least 15 credits from ARCHY 372, ARCHY 373, ARCHY 465, ARCHY 467, ARCHY 480, ARCHY 481, ARCHY 482, ARCHY 483, ARCHY 484, ARCHY 486, ARCHY 495, BIO A 487, and at least 15 credits from courses approved for the ASc option. The list of approved courses is available on the department website or at the department advising office (247 Denny).

Minor

Minor Requirements: 30 credits (at least 15 credits at upper-division level) from courses with the following prefixes: ANTH, ARCHY, BIO A. ANTH 100 may be applied to the minor but is not required. (Certain AIS courses may apply toward this requirement. See departmental adviser for list.) Minimum 2.0 grade required in each course.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The study of anthropology develops skills in critical thinking, research, and writing, as well as technical skills specific to the different subfields (ethnographic field techniques, interpretation of data, statistical analysis, archaeological methods of data collection and interpretation). An undergraduate degree prepares students for many positions that involve working with people, as well as for academic studies in a variety of fields. Careers in anthropology can be developed through employment with government agencies, museums, teaching and research, private consulting firms, and nongovernmental organizations.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: Undergraduate students have access to the following facilities for classroom training in laboratory methods and for research experiences subject to faculty approval and supervision: the Burke Museum (ethnological, archaeological, natural history, and archival collection), Quaternary Research Center, Biodemography laboratory, Luminescence Dating laboratory, Electron Microscope laboratory, Cooperative, Geoarchaeology laboratory, Digital Imaging and Microscopy laboratory, Geographical Information System (GIS) Computer laboratory. In addition, the department co-sponsors with the Department of Geography a writing center offering undergraduate writing support for anthropology classes.
- Honors Options available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: The Department of Anthropology supports students who undertake community-based internships under faculty supervision.
- Department Scholarships:
 - The Brett E Baldwin Scholarship, for approximately $1,000, is awarded to an outstanding graduate or undergraduate majoring in anthropology.
 - The Wienker Prize for Best Undergraduate Essay. Four awards are given each year, one in each sub-discipline for the best essay in an undergraduate anthropology class, and one for the best senior honors thesis.
- Student Organizations/Associations: The Anthropology Club is run by and for students in the department.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator
M31 Denny Hall, Box 353100
(206) 685-1562

The department recognizes three principal subfields of anthropology within its faculty, programs, and curriculum: archaeology, biocultural anthropology, and sociocultural anthropology (including linguistic anthropology). The department offers three distinct PhD programs within the sub-disciplines. Additionally, the department has an informal program in environmental anthropology which applicants may pursue within one of the traditional PhD track programs. A concurrent degree program with Health Services offers an MPH/PhD. A PhD program in sociocultural anthropology with emphasis in ethnomusicology is offered in cooperation with the School of Music. The MA degree may be earned within the PhD programs. Graduate students are admitted to, and specialize in, their chosen subfields from the beginning of their graduate studies.

Admission Requirements

Applicants are admitted to begin study only during autumn quarter and are advised to have their application materials completed by the beginning of the prior January. A complete application file includes the online application to the Graduate School, official transcripts, the supplementary application to anthropology, three recommendations, a statement of purpose, and scores from the Graduate Record Examination (GRE). International students are required to take the TOEFL exam as well as the GRE.

Degree Requirements

For each of the respective graduate programs, completion of the core requirements and a reading knowledge of one foreign language are required. Under the guidance of a Supervisory Committee selected from the appropriate subfield, the student shapes an individual program. The major areas emphasized in the faculty and curriculum are the United States, Mexico, Africa, South Asia, Southeast Asia, China, Oceania, Middle East, and the post-Soviet states. The MA degree usually requires two years of graduate study; the PhD programs usually require at least three years beyond the master's level, including a year of independent field research and a year to organize field materials and write a doctoral dissertation. The MA degree can be earned only within the PhD programs as a thesis or non-thesis degree.

Financial Aid

Two multi-year recruitment fellowships are awarded to outstanding entering students. A limited number of teaching and research assistantships and hourly positions are offered primarily to advanced students. Applicants should apply for Foreign Language Area Studies Fellowships if qualified. Work-study positions may also be available for eligible graduate students.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

ANTH 541 Cultural Aspects of International Development (3) Emergence of development as an aspect of late colonialism and the decolonization process. Ways in which development came to visualize social change in sectoral terms like rural land use, cities, and education, while objectifying people in target groups. Relationships between development and modernity, and development and globalization.

ANTH 543 Seminar in Anthropology and Political Theory (5) Examines the role of political theory in contemporary anthropology. Designed to work through particular thinkers or constellations of thought that inform anthropological thinking today. Content dependent upon instructor, but may include such topics as Marx, Weber, and Durkheim; Foucault, the Anthropology of Reason; and Frankfurt School.

ANTH 549 Dance Performance Ethnography (3) McMains Theoretical and practical experience in dance and performance ethnography, ethnology, and oral history. Introduces theories and methods of ethnographic fieldwork, ethnographic writing, and ethnologic analysis. Focuses on dance methods and theories. Also discusses methods and theories applicable to other physical practices such as music, theatre, sports, and performance art. Offered: jointly with DANCE 550; W.

ANTH 550 Field Techniques in Ethnography (5) Techniques of collecting, ordering, and utilizing ethnographic data in the field. Problems of rapport, elicitation, observation, interpretation, and ethics. Credit/no-credit only.

ANTH 551 Research Design (5) Focuses on the basic components, format, and writing style of grant proposals. Works through various stages of proposal writing, including titles, abstracts, introduction, theoretical orientations, significance, methodology, data analysis, etc. Discusses funding sources, human subjects reviews, and preparing budgets. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

ANTH 552 Practicum in Ethnographic Research (3) Techniques of data recording, analysis, and writing for the field ethnographer. Not recommended for non-anthropology graduate students. Prerequisite: ANTH 550; ANTH 551.

ANTH 556 The Evolution of the Family (3) Biological evolution of species-specific behaviors and forms of sociality linked to human mating, reproduction, and parenting. Cultural evolution of human systems of kinship and marriage as fitness-maximizing adaptations to a wide range of habitats. Prerequisite: upper-division course in evolutionary theory, population genetics, behavioral ecology, primatology, or animal behavior.

ANTH 559 Seminar in Language and Culture (3, max. 9) Theoretical and methodological problems in language and culture.

ANTH 560 Discourse and Culture (5) Exploration of discourse and narrative as culturally constitutive activities. Critical examination of the social implications of cultural variation in discourse. Techniques of discourse analysis in anthropological research.

ANTH 561 Seminar in Methods and Theories (3, max. 9)

ANTH 562 Clinically Applied Anthropology (3) Anthropology as it relates to interdisciplinary delivery of culturally relevant healthcare. Cultural variation in illness beliefs and behavior, types of healing practices, illness prevention, social support networks. Prerequisite: graduate standing, permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with NURS 562.

ANTH 565 Theory of Sociocultural Anthropology (5) First core-course sequence for the beginning graduate student in sociocultural anthropology in which the development of theory is analyzed and emphasis is placed on the relation between theory and a growing body of ethnographic data. Prerequisite: graduate standing in anthropology or permission of instructor.

ANTH 566 Theory of Sociocultural Anthropology (5) Second core-course sequence for the beginning graduate student in sociocultural anthropology in which the development of theory is analyzed and emphasis is placed on the relation between theory and a growing body of ethnographic data. Prerequisite: ANTH 565.

ANTH 567 Theory of Sociocultural Anthropology (5) Third core-course sequence for the beginning graduate student in sociocultural anthropology in which the development of theory is analyzed and emphasis is placed on the relation between theory and a growing body of ethnographic data. Prerequisite: ANTH 566.

ANTH 569 Special Topics in Sociocultural Anthropology (3-5, max. 15) Delineation and analysis of a specific topic or set of related topics in sociocultural anthropology.

ANTH 570 Environmental Anthropology (5) Current issues in the study of human environment interaction from a cross-cultural perspective: ecological adaptation and maladaptation; ethnoecology and indigenous knowledge; anthropogenic environmental change; political ecology of "development;" interrelations of cultural and biological diversity; conflicts over indigenous land use and property rights, environmental justice, resource conservation, and sustainability.

ANTH 572 Environmental Anthropology Research Methodology Colloquium (2, max. 10) Environmental anthropology research methodology and practice. Presentations by faculty and advanced students, hands-on exercises, and extensive discussion. Students at various stages in the program learn practical details of current methods. Limited to environmental anthropology PhD students. Credit/no-credit only.

ANTH 573 Current Issues in Environmental Anthropology (2, max. 10) Presentation and discussion of current research and scholarly literature in environmental anthropology and related fields. Prerequisite: graduate standing in any field of anthropology or permission of instructor. Credit/no-credit only.

ANTH 574 Culture, Society, and Genomics (3) B. MCGRATH Examines social and cultural issues of human genome sequencing and control of genetic expression. Attitudes and behaviors toward health, illness, and disability are studied using historical, contemporary, and cross-cultural case study material. Offered: jointly with NURS 582/PHG 521; Sp.

ANTH 575 Cultural Construction of Illness: Seminar in Medical Anthropology (5) Historical and comparative examination of depression, neurasthenia, somatization, hypochondriasis, and hysteria. Anthropology of psychosomatics and psychiatry, including cultural analysis of selected biomedical, indigenous folk medical, and popular common-sense conceptualizations of illness.

ANTH 578 Special Topics in the Anthropology of Institutions (5) Explores theoretical issues.

ANTH 580 Presenting Research Effectively (2) Designed to help advanced graduate students develop the ability to present research projects effectively in a variety of formats relevant to the academic job-search process (c.v., job letter, interview, etc). Faculty and alumni speakers share information, advice, and guidance regarding the job-search and the various paths toward meaningful employment. Credit/no-credit only.

ANTH 581 Dissertation Writing (3) Students experiment with different styles of anthropological writing. They apply writing techniques and styles to their own material. Students peer review for one another. Credit/no-credit only.

ANTH 583 Africa Living with HIV/AIDS (5) Examines the epidemiological, historical, political-economic, and social-cultural dimensions of Africa living with HIV/AIDS and the current challenges and debates in international HIV/AIDS policy and programming. Various approaches and analytical models help students grasp the complicated and multiple effects, responses, conditions, and debates surrounding the African HIV/AIDS pandemic.

ANTH 584 Ways of Speaking (5) Theory and literature of the ethnography of communication, with special emphasis on the descriptive-comparative approach to culturally patterned styles of communicative conduct. Offered: jointly with COM 584.

ANTH 590 Seminar in Museum Theory and Administration (5) Examination of principles of administrative theory and museum operations. Administrative structures and policies, management theory, board issues, organizational conflicts, planning issues, collection concerns, financial constructs, professional standards, and museum/community relations from an organizational and management perspective. Recommended: MUSEUM 580. Offered: jointly with MUSEUM 590.

ANTH 599 Effective Teaching of Anthropology (1) Class required of all graduate students who accept teaching assistantships: instruction in teaching methods and issues, e.g., professional ethics, preparing and delivering lectures, leading discussion groups, test writing and grading, diversity in the classroom. Credit/no-credit only.

ANTH 600 Independent Study or Research (*-)

ANTH 700 Master's Thesis (*-) Credit/no-credit only.

ANTH 800 Doctoral Dissertation (*-) Credit/no-credit only.

Archaeology

ARCHY 101 Exploring Archaeology (5) I&S Introduces perspectives from archaeology on the long term history of the diversity and the dynamics of human life. Examines how archaeologists gather and use data and how that information is relevant to contemporary society. Concepts and methods introduced through readings focus around a theme that varies such as environmental issues, warfare, and migration.

ARCHY 105 The Human Past (5) I&S Explores human cultural and biological evolution: how ancestors 2,500,000 years ago were like us but still different, Neanderthals and their extinction, social/economic revolutions from foraging to farming to states and empires, setbacks, failures, relationships with social and natural environments, and the role of technology. Examines the astonishing variety of adaptations humans have made.

ARCHY 109 Archaeology in Film (5) I&S B. MARWICK Deals with depictions of archaeology by and for non-archaeologists and implication of those depictions at the intersection of archaeology, the human past, and popular culture.

ARCHY 205 Principles of Archaeology (5) I&S J. FITZHUGH Techniques, methods, and goals of archaeological research. Excavation and dating of archaeological materials. General problems encountered in explaining archaeological phenomena.

ARCHY 212 THE ARCHEAOLGY OF EGYPT (5) I&S

ARCHY 269 Special Topics in Archaeology (3-6, max. 12) I&S Investigation of special topics in archaeology focusing on developing basic analytical, practical, and numerical skills.

ARCHY 270 Field Course in Archaeology (12) I&S Introduction to field acquisition of archaeological data through survey and excavation. On-going field projects; recovery and recording techniques. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 272 Short Field Course in Archaeology (5) I&S/NW Learn how archaeologists detect human occupation on the landscape by surveying, excavating, and crating evidence of the past. Students learn from start to finish the process of archaeological field investigation. Location may change from year to year. Recommended: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 299 Archaeological Laboratory Techniques (1-3, max. 12) I&S Laboratory procedures geared to one specific archaeological research project. Archaeological collection, its processing and curation, how archaeological materials are processed, and how significance is determined. No more than 5 credits may be used toward an anthropology major. Prerequisite: either ARCHY 105 or ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 303 Archaeology of Africa and Eurasia (5) I&S Explores African and Eurasian prehistory from beginnings of human culture to rise of states and empires. Examines first tools made by humans, spread of humans out of Africa, origins of agriculture, and rise of state society. Covers Africa, Near East, Egypt, China, India, Europe. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 304 Archaeology of the Americas (5) I&S Explores the history of earliest Americans, beginning with crossing of land bridge between Asia and North America and eventual spread over the Americas. Highlights prehistory and best examples of western hemisphere's states and empires. Covers Mexico, Yucatan, Peru, southwestern and eastern United States, Washington. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 309 Archaeology of Mainland Southeast Asia (5) I&S B. MARWICK Covers the archaeology of mainland Southeast Asia from the first colonization by hominins to the appearance of written texts, especially in Thailand, Cambodia, Laos, Vietnam, and Myanmar. Emphasizes methods of acquiring archaeological data and addressing current controversies about mainland Southeast Asia prehistory. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 319 Archaeology of Australia (5) I&S B. MARWICK Archaeology of Australia with an emphasis on understanding of the evidence and interpretation of both singular events and long-term processes in prehistory. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 320 Archaeology of the Northwest Coast (5) I&S Origins, development, and variation of Pacific Northwest cultures, focusing particularly on Washington. Adaptations to maritime and interior environments. Artifacts from a variety of archaeological sites. Technological, functional, and historical significance of Northwest artifacts. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 325 Archaeology of Island Southeast Asia and the Pacific (5) I&S P. LAPE History of the human occupation of the South Pacific Islands, especially Indonesia, Philippines, Micronesia, Melanesia, and Polynesia. Focus on current debates about human migrations, long distance maritime trade, political structures, culture contact, and colonialism. Emphasis on the analysis of the primary archaeological and documentary data. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 369 Special Problems in Archaeology (3-6, max. 12) I&S Delineation and analysis of a specific problem or related problems in archaeology focusing on developing research and scholarly communication skills.

ARCHY 372 Archaeological Field Recording Techniques (5) I&S M. LLOBERA Teaches hands-on archaeological field techniques. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205; ARCHY 373, which must be taken concurrently.

ARCHY 373 Principles of Archaeological Field Recording (3) I&S M. LLOBERA Provides students the theoretical, technical, and mathematical basis for using different recording and mapping devices (e.g. Total stations, DGPS, GIS) used in archaeology. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205; ARCHY 372, which must be taken concurrently.

ARCHY 377 Archaeology of the Arctic (5) I&S J. FITZHUGH Archaeological history of the circumpolar arctic and sub-arctic from Pleistocene to the nineteenth century. Variability in human adaptation and social change in extreme cold environments such as Eurasian tundra, North Pacific rim, Beringia, and North American high arctic. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 378 Prehistory of the Arid West (5) I&S D. GRAYSON Archaeology of arid western North America, with particular emphasis on the earliest peoples of this region (and on the peopling of the New World in general), and on the prehistoric hunter-gathers of the Great Basin and Southwest. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 403 The Archaeology of Landscapes (5) I&S/NW M. LLOBERA Study of landscapes in archaeology. Methods for landscape research: historic maps, diaries, aerial photographs, geophysical and satellite imagery, etc. Archaeological landscape surveys: principles and limitations. Review of various theoretical approaches. Examination of key case studies, issues on landscape heritage, and indigenous landscapes. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 465 Public Archaeology (5) I&S P. LAPE Examines archaeology as practiced, regulated, represented, and paid for in the world outside of academia. Reviews the development of cultural resource management laws in the context of other social changes, investigates archaeology job opportunities outside of academia, and discusses how the public learns about and funds archaeology. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 466 Archaeology Honors Thesis ([1-9]-, max. 18) I&S Individual research under the direction of a thesis adviser, culminating in a senior honors thesis. Open only to upper-class students in departmental honors program.

ARCHY 467 Research Ethics in Archaeology: Conservation, Accountability, and Stewardship (5) I&S M. WYLIE Advanced survey of ethics issues that arise in archaeology including: accountability to descendent communities; professional codes of conduct; response to looting and commercial exploitation of the record; and the implications of a conservation ethic and principles of stewardship for archaeological practice.

ARCHY 469 Special Studies in Archaeology (3-6, max. 18) I&S Consideration in detail of specific archaeological topics, either methodological or substantive in content, of current interest. Offered occasionally by resident, new, or visiting faculty. For advanced undergraduates and graduate students. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 470 The Archaeology of Extinction (5) I&S D. GRAYSON Uses archaeological and paleoecological data to examine the argument that prehistoric peoples caused vertebrate extinction, from the late Ice Age extinction of ground sloths and saber-toothed cats in North America to the extinction of moas in New Zealand some 500 years ago.

ARCHY 480 Advanced Archaeological Analysis: Ceramics (6) I&S J. FEATHERS Surveys history of ceramic studies in archaeology and introduces analytical methods involving ceramic function, style, unit construction and sampling, use wear, and trade and exchange. Laboratory provides hands-on experience with prehistoric ceramics, and applies various techniques for studying composition, form, manufacturing methods, and firing strategies. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 481 Zooarchaeology (6) I&S D. GRAYSON Seminar on techniques and methods employed in analysis of faunal remains from a wide range of Pleistocene and Holocene settings, including archaeological sites, coupled with a laboratory focusing on identification of faunal remains from these settings. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 482 Geoarchaeology (3) I&S B. MARWICK Seminar on the identification, analysis, and interpretation of sediments and soils associated with archaeological remains. Covers geomorphology, geochemistry and geophysics in archaeology. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205; recommended: ARCHY 486, which may be taken concurrently.

ARCHY 483 Analyses of Stone Artifacts (6) I&S B. MARWICK Current approaches to lithic analysis, including types of information obtainable (technological, functional, social, ideological) and constraints affecting the formation and analysis of lithic assemblages. Lectures interspersed with application of methods under discussion to individual artifacts and to assemblages. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 484 Archaeological GIS (5) I&S M. LLOBERA Teaches students the basics of GIS through a series of hands-on tutorials using archaeological datasets, and provides them with a critical view of the application of this tool within the field of archaeology. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 486 Geoarchaeology Laboratory (3) I&S B. MARWICK Laboratory course covering a variety of geoarchaeological techniques, with experiments designed to illustrate major concepts. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205; ARCHY 482, which may be taken concurrently.

ARCHY 489 Archaeology Practicum (2-9, max. 15) I&S Faculty-supervised internships either on or off campus in organizations utilizing archaeological skills in academic or non-academic settings. Includes cultural resource management companies, government agencies, private non-profit organizations, tribal governments, and museums.

ARCHY 490 Museum Curation Practicum: Archaeology (1-5, max. 15) Application of museological training in curation of archaeological collections including ethnographic, geological, or zoological collection materials in the Burke Museum. Supervised work ranges from fundamental collection documentation and research to preventive conservation, storage, and other special curation projects.

ARCHY 495 Quantitative Archaeological Analytic Techniques (5) I&S M. LLOBERA Introduction to quantitative approaches to archaeological problems; data screening, numeric methods of classification and identification, graphical and computer-based seriation techniques, and the analysis of spatial patterning in artifact distributions. Prerequisite: ARCHY 205.

ARCHY 499 Undergraduate Research (*, max. 12)

ARCHY 508 Histories of Archaeological Theory and Practice (5) M. WYLIE Advanced history of archaeological theories and traditions of research practice. Topics include the formation of scientific and humanistic research traditions in anthropological archaeology; comparative global histories of archaeology; object biographies and histories of craft practice in emerging research traditions; and critical histories of inequality and marginality in archaeology.

ARCHY 509 Archaeology and Explanation (5) B. MARWICK Analytical and historical examination in archaeology and philosophy of science. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

ARCHY 520 Principles of Archaeological Theory (5) J. FITZHUGH Review of principles of archaeological theory. Student presentation of research on archaeological theory and seminar discussion or presentations. Open only to first-year graduate students in anthropology.

ARCHY 525 Archaeology of Island Southeast Asia and the Pacific (5) P. LAPE History of the human occupation of the South Pacific Islands, especially Indonesia, Philippines, Micronesia, Melanesia, and Polynesia. Focus on current debates about human migrations, long distance maritime trade, political structure, culture contact, and colonialism. Emphasis on the analysis of the primary archaeological and documentary data.

ARCHY 530 PREHISTORY OF THE NORTHWEST COAST (5)

ARCHY 560 Seminar in Archaeological Methods (5, max. 20) Basis, limitations, and applications of a particular archaeological analytical method, or closely related set of methods. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

ARCHY 561 Dating Methods in Archaeology (6) J. FEATHERS Theory and method of dating in archaeology. How archaeologists determine time, in both relative and absolute senses. Methodology of stratigraphy, seriation, radiocarbon dating, dendrochronology, obsidian hydration dating and other methods. Special emphasis on, and laboratory experience in, luminescence dating.

ARCHY 570 Seminar in Archaeological Theory (3-6, max. 18) Detailed consideration of a particular archaeological theory or closely related set of theories, including their methodological and epistemological bases.

ARCHY 574 Meta-archaeology: Philosophy and Archaeology (4) M. WYLIE Examines philosophical issues raised in and by archaeology, including theories of explanation and model building, analyses of evidential reasoning and hermeneutic interpretation, debates about ideals of objectivity and about science and values. Recommended: ARCHY 570. Offered: jointly with PHIL 574.

ARCHY 575 Archaeological Field Research Design (6) Nature of the archaeological record, and methods and techniques of field research, to illustrate range of data sources and modern techniques of general applicability. Practical experience in mapping, map interpretation, sampling design, remote sensing, photogrammetry, and research proposal writing. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

ARCHY 576 Designing Grant Proposals (5) D. GRAYSON Design and writing of grant proposals for archaeological research at both dissertation and senior investigator levels, with particular emphasis on National Science Foundation structure and requirements. Prerequisite: upper-level graduate standing and permission of instructor.

ARCHY 599 Teaching Archaeology (2-6, max. 12) Provides instruction in archaeological pedagogy. Includes syllabus development, text selection, lesson planning and delivery, lab section planning, assessment and grading strategies, technological support, staff management, and troubleshooting.

ARCHY 600 Independent Study or Research (*-) Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

ARCHY 601 Internship (3-10, max. 10) Credit/no-credit only.

Biocultural Anthropology

BIO A 100 Evolution and Human Behavior (3) NW Introduction to evolution by natural selection, examining the light it can throw on human biology and behavior in such areas as the nature of sex differences, sexual conflict, and conflict between parents and children. Does not fulfill major requirements. Offered: jointly with BIOL 108.

BIO A 101 Human Biological Diversity (5) NW P. KRAMER Exploration of human biological variation, including skin color, body form, blood groups, genetics, and reproductive strategies. Introduction to the theory of evolution through natural selection. Offered: A.

BIO A 201 Principles of Biological Anthropology (5) NW Evolution and adaptation of the human species. Evidence from fossil record and living populations of monkeys, apes, and humans. Interrelationships between human physical and cultural variation and environment; role of natural selection in shaping our evolutionary past, present, and future. Offered: AWSpS.

BIO A 269 Special Problems in Biocultural Anthropology (3-6, max. 12) I&S Explores a specific problem or set of problems in biocultural anthropology with a focus on understanding how the problem is framed and communicated using different theoretical and methodological frameworks.

BIO A 350 Men's Health across the Lifespan (5) I&S K. O'CONNOR Explores demographic, biological, epidemiological, psychological, sexual, sociological, cultural, and economic perspectives on the health of males.

BIO A 351 Principles of Evolutionary Medicine (5) NW B. DUNCAN, D. EISENBERG Introduces evolutionary theory and explores evolutionary causes of health and disease. Considers how natural selection and the legacies of our human, primate, and deeper ancestries have shaped our biology. Topics include mental disorders, aging, cancer, diet, obesity, diabetes, infectious diseases, racism, and health differences between human groups.

BIO A 355 Evolutionary Medicine (3) NW B. DUNCAN, D. EISENBERG Explores evolutionary causes of health and disease. Considers how natural selection and the legacies of our human, primate, mammalian and bacterial ancestries have shaped our biology. Topics include mental disorders, aging, cancer, diet, obesity, diabetes, infectious diseases, racism, and health differences between human groups. Prerequisite: either BIO A 201 or BIOL 180. Offered: jointly with BIOL 385.

BIO A 369 Special Issues in Biocultural Anthropology (2-6, max. 12) I&S Exploration and analysis of a specific issue in biocultural anthropology with a focus on critical analysis on methodological approaches and theoretical frameworks.

BIO A 370 Introduction to Primates (5) NW Origins, major evolutionary trends, and modern taxonomic relationships of the nonhuman primates. Their distribution and habitat in relation to behavioral and morphological adaptations and their status as endangered species. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 372 Uses and Abuses of Evolutionary Views of Human Behavior (5) I&S/NW Interaction of human behavior and biology as it has been interpreted within an evolutionary framework. Discusses various challenges to Darwinian theory, particularly Lamarckism and creationism. Topics include biological determinism as exemplified by racism, myths of human origins, the clash between biological and cultural determinism, and modern genetics and behavior.

BIO A 382 Human Population Biology (3) NW Explores human fertility and mortality, and their relationships to the size and structure of populations through time. Emphasizes the biological and cultural determinants of these life course events in evolutionary perspective. Introduces the quantitative tools needed to understand these phenomena, including formal demography, epidemiology, and population genetics. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 387 Ecological Perspectives on Environmental Stress, Adaptation, and Health (5) NW How human populations respond to environmental stressors in biological-behavioral terms and the relationship of this adaptational process to health. Nutritional, climatic, and sociocultural stress and associated patterns of birth, disease, and death throughout human history in hunting, gathering, farming, pre-industrial, and industrial societies. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 388 Human Fossils and Evolution (5-) NW P. KRAMER First of a two-part series. Evolution of human anatomy and behavior as adaptations to changing environments. Human fossils: their geological context, age, ecological setting used to reconstruct the evolution of our species during the last six million years of earth history. Prerequisite: either BIO A 201 or BIOL 180.

BIO A 389 Human Fossils and Evolution (-5) NW P. KRAMER Second of two-part series. Evolution of human anatomy and behavior as adaptations to changing environments. Human fossils: their geological context, age, ecological setting used to reconstruct the evolution of our species during the last six million years of earth history. Prerequisite: BIO A 388. Offered: S.

BIO A 423 Social Networks and Health (5) I&S S. GOODREAU Examines the many ways that social interactions positively and negatively influence our health, and vice versa.. Considers why such influences are important to understand, how one measures them, what recent research has shown, and explores how they relate to other health determinants, both biological and cultural.

BIO A 450 Biodemography Seminar (5) I&S/NW K. O'CONNOR Introduction to theory, methods, and literature of biodemography. Examines biological mechanisms underlying patterns of aging, mortality, fertility, and population growth and decline. Includes readings from anthropology, sociology, demography, evolutionary biology, molecular biology, and epidemiology. Covers prehistoric, historic, and modern human populations, and non-human model systems. Offered: W.

BIO A 455 Reproductive Ecology Laboratory Seminar (5) NW K. O'CONNOR Introduction to the theory and methods of laboratory-based research in reproductive ecology. Covers lab methods for reproductive hormone assays, and their application in anthropological, biodemographic, and epidemiological research. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 465 Nutritional Anthropology (3) I&S/NW Examines the interrelationships between biomedical, sociocultural, and ecological factors, and their influence on the ability of humans to respond to variability in nutritional resources. Topics covered include diet and human evolution, and nutrition-related biobehavioral influences on human growth, development, and disease resistance. Prerequisite: BIO A 201. Offered: jointly with NUTR 465.

BIO A 466 Biocultural Anthropology Honors Thesis ([1-9]-, max. 18) NW Individual research under the direction of a thesis adviser, culminating in a senior honors thesis. Open only to upper-class students in departmental honors program.

BIO A 469 Special Topics in Biocultural Anthropology (3-5, max. 15) NW Delineation and analysis of a specific problem or a more general area in biocultural anthropology. Offered occasionally by visiting or resident faculty.

BIO A 470 Evolution of Human Social Behavior (5) I&S Key concepts, research strategies, and debates concerning the processes and outcomes of human behavioral evolution. Emphasizes the complementarity of various methods and theories for understanding human biocultural evolution, including behavioral ecology, dual transmission theory, phylogenetic analysis, and evolutionary psychology. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 471 Evolutionary Perspectives on Parenting and Childcare (5) NW Examines the use of evolutionary principles to understand variation in parenting and childcare practices in modern, historic, and prehistory human populations. Contextualizes human parenting and childcare adaptations in a broadly comparative and theoretical perspective.

BIO A 473 Biological Adaptability of Human Populations (5) NW B. DUNCAN, D. EISENBERG Mechanisms enabling humans to maintain homeostasis in extreme environments: high altitude, heat, cold, nutritional deficiency, radiation. Adaptive process operating at levels of physiology, metabolism, and population, including the strategies of fertility and birth spacing. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 476 Sociocultural Ecology and Health (3) NW Sociocultural ecology of health/disease, focusing on humans as bioculturally integrated beings and on populations as biocultural units of adaptation. Examples of research on disease, both infectious and chronic, and patterns of morbidity and mortality, infant, maternal, old age, with particular attention to situations of sociocultural changes. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 477 Evolutionary Perspectives on Sex and Gender Roles (3) I&S/NW Critical examination of theories explaining the evolution of sex differences and associated gender roles. Consideration of gender differences in mate preferences, parental investment, subsistence, aggressiveness, and risk-taking. Stresses interactions between biology and culture. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 482 Human Population Genetics (5) NW, QSR S. GOODREAU, D. HOLMAN Micro-evolutionary changes in human populations. Effects of mutation, selection, inbreeding, gene flow, and genetic drift as causes of evolutionary change. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 483 Human Genetics, Disease, and Culture (5) NW D. EISENBERG Considers relationships among genetic aspects of human disease, cultural behavior, and natural habitat for a wide variety of conditions. Also considers issues of biological versus environmental determinism, adaptive aspects of genetic disease, and the role of cultural selection. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 484 Human Life Cycle (5) NW Human growth and physical/social development: fetal life to old age. Cultural, ecological, and evolutionary aspects of the life cycle. Population differences in age and sex related to morbidity and mortality. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 485 Research in Growth and Development (2, max. 8) NW Focus on topics relating to primate growth and development. Prerequisite: either BIO A 484, BIO A 495, or BIO A 496, any of which may be taken concurrently.

BIO A 486 Primate Socioecology (3) NW Focus on the variety of social systems exhibited by nonhuman primates and adaptive significance of these societies; social systems in terms of the present ecology and evolutionary past of the species; the function of communicatory gestures and vocalizations, tradition, kinship, and social roles in maintaining and structuring groups over generations; the relationship among mating systems, foraging strategies, ranging patterns, and ecological separation/resource partitioning and their contribution to species-typical social organization. Prerequisite: either BIO A 370 or PSYCH 418.

BIO A 487 Human and Comparative Osteology (5) NW Taylor Introduction to the vertebrate skeleton. The skeleton is described in detail and various methods of determining age and sex, as well as osteometry and modern statistical methods for handling such data, are presented.

BIO A 488 Primate Evolution (5) NW Major trends in nonhominid primate evolution through the Cenozoic. Discussion of the specimens, geological context, and age of the fossil taxa and their relationship to modern taxa. Practical experience in analyzing fossil material. Prerequisite: BIO A 201.

BIO A 491 Issues in Human Paleontology (5) NW P. KRAMER Addresses the relevance of the hominin fossil record in understanding the evolution of our species. Prerequisite: either BIO A 388.

BIO A 495 Growth and Development: Infancy (5) NW Genetic and environmental influences on growth and development from prenatal life through infancy. Includes exploration of methods for assessing development and comparisons of development in non-human primates with human development. Prerequisite: BIO A 370.

BIO A 496 Growth and Development: Adolescence and Reproductive Maturity (5) NW Genetic and environmental influences on growth and development during adolescence. Emphasis on the interaction of biological and social factors in attainment of reproductive maturity. Compares conditions of non-human primates with human conditions. Prerequisite: BIO A 370.

BIO A 499 Undergraduate Research (*, max. 12)

BIO A 502 Preceptorial Reading (6) For beginning graduate students who have not had adequate training in the study of primate principles and methods involved in the study of evolution, human genetics, and the evolution of modern populations. Not open to graduate students in the biocultural anthropology program. Offered: AWS.

BIO A 520 Human Behavioral Ecology (3-5) Principles and methods of evolutionary behavioral ecology, and critical examination of their application to human behavior in such areas as resource utilization, mating, parenting, life history, cooperation, and competition.

BIO A 525 Biocultural Research Methods and Study Design (5) B. DUNCAN Survey of basic conceptual issues in the design of empirical research, with special attention to problems that arise during anthropological fieldwork. Topics include defining data needs, sampling strategies, problems with co-funding, proposal writing, human subjects approval, and basic ethical issues in human biocultural research.

BIO A 526 Quantitative Methods and Modeling for Biocultural Anthropology (5) S. GOODREAU, D. HOLMAN Surveys the concepts, tools, and methods for developing quantitative models based on underlying biocultural processes. Introduces methods of testing models from observations collected in anthropological field studies. Oriented toward longitudinal research of fertility, mortality, disease dynamics, population genetics, and other biocultural processes.

BIO A 550 Skeletal Biology and Prehistoric Demography (5) K. O'CONNOR Composition and structure of calcified tissue. Analytical techniques and their contribution to interpretation of the archaeological record.

BIO A 568 Human Reproductive Ecology (3) D. HOLMAN A consideration of the determinants of fertility variation within and among traditional human societies. Biocultural and ecological perspectives on pubertal timing, nuptiality, duration of birth intervals, and reproductive senescence.

BIO A 569 Behavioral Ecology and Demography (5) Demographic analysis relevant to anthropological research on small populations. Use of data collected through local surveys, genealogical methods, and from other sources. Focuses on use of demography to analyze social and biological processes with adaptive and/or cultural-historical significance. Emphasizes theoretical approaches.

BIO A 584 Topics in Ecology and Adaptation (3, max. 9) Seminar dealing with various aspects of ecology and adaptation. Topics vary each quarter.

BIO A 588 Topics in Primate Evolution (3) Emphasis on fossil taxa and their importance in understanding the morphologies and distributions of members of modern taxa. Prerequisite: BIO A 488 and permission of instructor.

BIO A 590 Biological Anthropology Seminar (2, max. 18) Includes presentations by participants and guest lecturers of current literature and ongoing research in topics pertaining to human and nonhuman primate evolution, biology, anatomy, genetics variation, and behavior. Credit/no-credit only.

BIO A 591 Issues in Hominin Paleontology (5) P. KRAMER Addresses the relevance of the hominin fossil record in understanding the evolution of our species.

Applied and Computational Mathematical Sciences

C36 Padelford

Mathematics is the common language of modern science, engineering, and business. Techniques of mathematical modeling and data analysis are key instruments in the tool kit of modern practitioners and researchers in a wide array of disciplines. ACMS is an interdisciplinary program in the mathematical sciences that provides sound training in mathematical modeling, scientific computation, mathematical reasoning, and statistical analysis. The program is jointly administered by the Departments of Applied Mathematics, Computer Science and Engineering, Mathematics, and Statistics, offering students access to their combined resources. An ACMS major is an excellent stepping stone to a career in engineering and the physical, life, and management sciences.

The ACMS program offers a Bachelor of Science degree that builds on the strengths of the four mathematical sciences departments as well as the many quantitatively oriented departments across campus. All students complete a core set of courses developing basic skills in modeling, computation, mathematics, and statistics. Students choose one of the eight option areas listed below for further training and specialization.

- Biological and Life Sciences focuses on basic techniques of mathematical modeling and computing that are employed in the life sciences.
- Discrete Mathematics and Algorithms gives students a broad background in mathematics and computation with special emphasis on discrete mathematics and its application to optimization and algorithm design.
- Engineering and Physical Sciences: This option is an excellent choice for students with an interest in the physical world and classical areas of applied mathematics.
- Mathematical Economics: Students in this option obtain a firm foundation in applied and computational mathematics as well as a basic grounding in economic theory.
- Operations Research provides a firm foundation in the mathematical tools of operations research, particularly optimization and stochastic modeling.
- Scientific Computing and Numerical Algorithms focuses on the design, mathematical analysis, and efficient implementation of numerical algorithms for such problems.
- Social and Behavioral Sciences provides a foundation in commonly used statistical and computational techniques followed by flexibility in pursuing different sets of advanced courses.
- Statistics: This option is designed to introduce students to theory, methodology, and applications of statistics.

Bachelor of Science

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126, PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123, CSE 142, CSE 143

Program Admission Requirements

Applications are accepted at the beginning of each quarter. Admission is competitive. Admission decisions are based on grades in core courses and a student's overall academic record. Completion of minimum requirements does not guarantee admission. Minimum requirements: a GPA of at least 2.50 in the following courses, with a minimum grade of 2.0 in each course: CSE 142; MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126; one from MATH 300, MATH 307, MATH 308, AMATH 351, AMATH 352.

Major Requirements

90 credits as follows:

1. A minimum GPA of 2.50 for all courses counted toward the major; minimum grade of 2.0 in each course taken toward the major.
2. Core: 43 credits to include MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126; MATH 308; MATH 307 or MATH 351; MATH 390/STAT 390; CSE 142, CSE 143; AMATH 352; AMATH 381/ MATH 381, AMATH 383
3. Completion of one of the following options:
 - a. Biological and Life Sciences Option. 47 credits to include option core (27 credits): PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123; or BIOL 101 and BIOL 102 or BIOL 180 and BIOL 200; MATH 324, AMATH 353, AMATH 422, AMATH 423; and option electives (20 credits): outside area (12 credits or double major/double degree; see adviser for options) and 8 credits of approved courses at the 300 level or above, chosen from the four participating departments.
 - b. Discrete Mathematics and Algorithms Option. 47 credits to include option core and option electives. Option core: 33 credits for non-Computer Science and Engineering majors - PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123, MATH 300, MATH 394/STAT 394, CSE 373, CSE 417, and two of CSE 374, CSE 410, CSE 413, CSE 415; 9 credits for Computer Science/Computer Science and Engineering double major/double degree - MATH 394/STAT 394, CSE 421, CSE 431. Option electives: 14 credits for non-Computer Science and Engineering majors, 23 credits for Computer Science/Computer Science and Engineering double majors, to include 9 credits from MATH 407, MATH 408, MATH 409, MATH 461, MATH 462, or one of AMATH 481, AMATH 482, or AMATH 483. Remaining 15 credits from approved courses at the 300 level or above from the four participating departments.
 - c. Engineering and Physical Sciences Option. 47 credits to include option core (30 credits): PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123, MATH 324, AMATH 401, AMATH 402, AMATH 403; and option electives (17 credits): outside area (11 credits or double major/double degree; see adviser for options) and 6 credits of approved courses at the 300 level or above, chosen from the four participating departments.
 - d. Mathematical Economics Option. 47 credits to include option core and electives. Option core (27 credits): PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123 or ECON 200, ECON 201, ECON 300, MATH 300, MATH 327, MATH 407; and at least one of the following: MATH 408, STAT 423. Option electives: Either (1) or (2), below. (1) 20 credits including at least 15 credits from ECON 301, ECON 400, ECON 401, ECON 404, ECON 421, ECON 422, ECON 424, ECON 426, ECON 435, ECON 472, ECON 482, ECON 483, ECON 485, ECON 486; at least 5 additional credits at the 300 level or above from the four participating departments or from the department of Economics (taken from ECON courses listed above). (2) Complete a double major with a Bachelor of Science degree in Economics.
 - e. Operations Research Option. 47 credits to include option core and electives. Option core (30 credits): PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123, MATH 300, MATH

394/STAT 394, MATH 395/STAT 395; and at least two of the following: MATH 407, MATH 408, MATH 409. Option electives: Either (1) or (2), below. (1) 17 credits, including at least 6 credits from MATH 491/STAT 491, MATH 492/STAT 492, STAT 421, STAT 423; at least 8 credits from OPMGT 301, OPMGT 402, OPMGT 443, OPMGT 450, OPMGT 490, QMETH 450, QMETH 490, IND E 321, IND E 337, IND E 410, IND E 412, IND E 424, IND E 426, IND E 430, IND E 433, (with at least one course at the 400 level); at least 3 additional credits at the 300 level or above from the four participating departments or from the departments of Management Science and Industrial Engineering (taken from IND E courses listed above). (2) Complete a double degree in Management Science in the Foster School of Business or in Industrial Engineering in the College of Engineering.

- f. Scientific Computing and Numerical Algorithms Option. 47 credits to include option core (27 credits): PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123, MATH 300, MATH 327, two of MATH 464, MATH 465 AMATH 481, AMATH 482, or AMATH 483; and option electives (20 credits), to include 11 credits from the following: AMATH 301; AMATH 353 or MATH 309; CSE 373 or CSE 326; CSE 410; AMATH 401, AMATH 402, AMATH 403; MATH 407, MATH 408, MATH 409; MATH 427, MATH 428; remaining 9 credits from approved courses at the 300 level or above from the four participating departments.
- g. Social and Behavioral Sciences Option. 47 credits to include option core (31 credits): PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123, STAT 340, STAT 341, STAT 342, STAT 423; and option electives (16 credits): outside area (10 credits or double major/double degree; see adviser for options) and 6 credits of approved courses at the 300 level or above, chosen from the four participating departments.
- h. Statistics Option. 47 credits to include program core (37 credits): PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123, STAT 302, STAT 340, STAT 341, STAT 342, STAT 421, STAT 423; option electives (10 credits): approved courses at the 300 level or above, chosen from the four participating departments.

See adviser for additional information on program options, for possible substitutions, and for approval of elective choices noted above.

Continuation Policy

All students must make satisfactory academic progress in the major. Failure to do so results in probation, which can lead to dismissal from the major. For the complete continuation policy, contact the departmental adviser or refer to the department website.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The ACMS degree emphasizes the development of advanced skills in discrete and continuous mathematical modeling, computing and scientific computation, mathematical reasoning and analytic skills, and statistical reasoning and analytic skills. Students develop an expertise at an advanced level in an applications area. This set of skills provides the basis for careers in a wide array of quantitative disciplines including engineering; the physical, life, and social sciences; as well as business and management sciences. In addition, the ACMS program has developed partnerships with a number of departments on campus to facilitate the pursuit of double majors.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: The program has access to the combined instructional and research facilities of the four participating departments, as well as the Mathematics and Statistics library and the Math Study Center.

- Honors Options Available: College Honors (Completion of both Interdisciplinary Honors and Departmental Honors requirements). Departmental Honors (see adviser for requirements). For Interdisciplinary Honors, see University Honors Program.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: The program is provided with internship opportunities periodically, which are then passed on to students.
- Department Scholarships: None offered.
- Student Organizations/Associations: MAA Student Chapter, Actuarial Club, SIAM

Applied Mathematics

202 Lewis Hall

Applied mathematics is concerned with mathematical modeling and analysis of problems from the physical, biological, and social sciences, and from engineering.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

202 Lewis Hall, Box 353925

(206) 543-5493

The Department of Applied Mathematics offers the following undergraduate programs:

- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in applied and computational mathematical sciences, offered in cooperation with departments of Computer Science and Engineering, Mathematics, and Statistics. See Applied and Computational Mathematical Sciences (ACMS) for specific degree information. Advising for ACMS is available through the Department of Mathematics.
- A minor in applied mathematics.

Minor

Minor Requirements: 27 or more credits as follows:

1. MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 or equivalent
2. Four applied mathematics courses at the 300 level or above (excluding AMATH 400, AMATH 498, AMATH 499)
3. Minimum 2.0 grade required in each course.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator

Lewis Hall, Box 353925

(206) 543-5493

The Department of applied mathematics offers graduate programs of study leading to the degrees of Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy. These programs involve broad training in those mathematical methods and techniques that have been found useful in applications, in-depth study in at least one field of application, and opportunities to explore various specialized aspects of applied mathematics.

Master of Science, Applied Mathematics

The Master of Science degree is offered both on campus and online. Requirements are basically the same for both degrees. See adviser for possible exceptions.

Admission Requirements

1. Baccalaureate degree from a regionally accredited college or university in the U.S. or its equivalent from a foreign institution, either in mathematics with a strong background in applications such as physical, engineering, biological, or social sciences with a strong background in applications-oriented mathematics. Proficiency in coursework that includes: calculus, differential equations, linear algebra, and numerical analysis or scientific computing. Recommended: advanced calculus and real analysis.

2. Minimum 3.00 GPA
3. Graduate Record Examination (GRE) General test scores.
4. Proficiency in English: Applicants whose native language is not English must demonstrate English language proficiency. See Memo 8, Graduate School English Language Proficiency Requirements, for ways to demonstrate proficiency.

Degree Requirements

Minimum 36 credits, to include:

1. Core Courses (20 credits): AMATH 567, AMATH 568, and AMATH 569. (Substitution of any of these courses with AMATH 501, AMATH 502 and AMATH 503, respectively, is permitted.) Either AMATH 581 or AMATH 584.
2. Applied Mathematics Courses: Minimum 24 credits from the applied mathematics curriculum. Core courses are counted toward this requirement.
3. Minimum 9 numerically graded courses, including core courses listed above, with a minimum 3.20 cumulative GPA. One of these courses may be substituted with 4 credits of AMATH 500 or AMATH 600.
4. Final Examination: Oral presentation by the candidate in the presence of his or her graduate committee on a current topic of interest from the literature or on the results of original research. Students continuing in the AMATH PhD program satisfy the requirement by passing the PhD qualifying examination.
5. Program Plan: Filled out by the student, signed by the adviser, and approved by the graduate committee. For full-time students, no later than the end of the first quarter of registration. For part-time students, prior to the end of their first three quarters of registration.
6. Satisfactory Progress: Maintain a minimum 3.20 GPA. Full-time students (whether self-supporting or under full scholarship or assistantship support) should normally complete the requirements for an MS degree in one year.

Master of Science, Computational Finance and Risk Management

The Master of Science in computational finance and risk management (MS-CFRM) addresses the demand in the financial-services profession for advanced quantitative and computational finance skills, and next generation risk management competencies. Three degree options are available: general program (42 total credits), computing concentration (54 total credits), and risk management concentration (54 total credits).

Admission Requirements

1. Proficiency in coursework that includes calculus through partial differentiation, matrix algebra, and one-dimensional optimization. Probability and statistics equivalent to an upper-level undergraduate course or entry-level graduate course. A programming language such as Java or C++, or a mathematics or statistics programming language such as Matlab or R/S-PLUS.
2. Baccalaureate degree from a regionally accredited college or university in the U.S. or its equivalent from a foreign institution, with a minimum 3.00 GPA (on a 4.0 scale).
3. Graduate Record Examination (GRE), GMAT, or waiver petition

4. Proficiency in English: Applicants whose native language is not English must demonstrate English language proficiency. See Memo 8, Graduate School English Language Proficiency Requirements, for ways to demonstrate proficiency.

Degree Requirements

Minimum 42-54 credits, to include:

1. Core Courses (26 credits): CFRM 463, CFRM 540, CFRM 541, CFRM 542, CFRM 543, CFRM 544, CFRM 556, CFRM 558
2. CFRM program options:
 - a. General program: Remaining credits to be satisfied by available CFRM elective courses
 - b. Computing concentration: Remaining credits selected from: CFRM 510, CFRM 548, CFRM 551, CFRM 555, CFRM 557, CFRM 557, AMATH 583
 - c. Risk Management concentration: Remaining credits selected from: CFRM 545, CFRM 546, CFRM 547, CFRM 548, CFRM 552, CFRM 554
3. Final Examination: A written exam, to be completed after the third quarter of enrollment. Examination dates are determined by the department each quarter.
4. Satisfactory Progress: Maintain a minimum 3.20 GPA.

Doctor of Philosophy in Applied Mathematics

Admission Requirements

The Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) degree in applied mathematics is primarily a research degree, and is not conferred as a result of coursework completed. Granting of the degree is based on proficiency in applied mathematics, and the ability to carry out an independent investigation as demonstrated by completion of a doctoral dissertation. The dissertation must exhibit original mathematical contributions relevant to a significant area of application.

1. Completion of coursework equivalent to that described for the master's degree, with a minimum 3.40 GPA, and indication of the ability or potential to perform independent research
2. Graduate Record Examination
3. Three letters of recommendation sent directly to the department
4. Minimum score of 500 on the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) for applicants not citizens of the United States unless they meet one of the following criteria: citizens of Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, or the United Kingdom; or applicants holding bachelor's or advanced degrees from accredited institutions in the United States or in one of the countries listed above.
5. Students are considered for admission to the PhD program after completing AMATH 567, AMATH 568, AMATH 584, and AMATH 585 with a minimum grade of 3.4 in each course, as well as passing the preliminary examination.

Degree Requirements

Minimum 90 credits, to include:

1. Course Requirements: AMATH 567, AMATH 568, AMATH 569; either AMATH 581 or AMATH 584, AMATH 585, AMATH 586; three of AMATH 570, AMATH 571, AMATH 572, AMATH 573, AMATH 574, AMATH 575; Two relevant courses not from the AMATH curriculum; AMATH 600 (4 credits, 2 each with separate faculty members).
2. Minimum 13 Numerically Graded Courses: The entire course of study, including any exceptions, must be approved by the Graduate Program Coordinator and the student's adviser or faculty mentors.

3. Supervisory Committee: Formed no later than the end of spring quarter of the first year.
4. Qualifying Examination: Three written two-hour examinations, covering a core of undergraduate material necessary for successful completion of the PhD program.
5. General Examination: Oral examination administered by the student's Supervisory Committee, usually taken before the end of the third year.
6. Final Examination: Oral presentation of completed research in a seminar open to the public.
7. Satisfactory Performance and Progress: Satisfactory progress in coursework is based on grades, which are expected to be 3.4 or better. Satisfactory progress on examination requirements consists of passing the different examinations in a timely manner. Department funding is contingent on satisfactory progress.

Financial Aid

Both research and teaching assistantships are available to full-time students who qualify. In addition, fellowship funds for the study of applied mathematics are available and awarded on a competitive basis.

Research Facilities

The Department of Applied Mathematics maintains five mid-scale computer servers (12-cores and 24 GB RAM each). These are available to faculty, staff, students, and visitors via physical or remote access. All faculty and student accounts use Dropbox for backup and cloud access. Any member of the department may enroll in the departmental Dropbox teams account to obtain an additional 200 GB for backup purposes.

In addition to desktop computers, the department maintains five network printers, scanner facilities, six Bloomberg terminals, local laptops and projectors, camera and camcorders and other computing peripherals, including a conference room wired with a large-screen television and webcams for remote conferencing.

Licensing for commercial software packages such as Matlab, Maple and Mathematica, Microsoft products and Adobe, and media tools, is provided by the College of Engineering and the UW IT Department. In addition, the department makes use of many free and open source tools such as Python, Numpy, and Scipy, as well as mathematical software packages.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

Applied Mathematics

AMATH 301 Beginning Scientific Computing (4) NW Introduction to the use of computers to solve problems arising in the physical, biological, and engineering sciences. Application of mathematical judgment, programming architecture, and flow control in solving scientific problems. Introduction to MATLAB routines for numerical programming, computation, and visualization. Prerequisite: either MATH 125, Q SCI 292, or MATH 135. Offered: AWSpS.

AMATH 351 Introduction to Differential Equations and Applications (3) NW Introductory survey of ordinary differential equations; linear and nonlinear equations; Taylor series; and Laplace transforms. Emphasizes on formulation, solution, and interpretation of results. Examples drawn from physical and biological sciences and engineering. Prerequisite: MATH 125. Offered: AWSpS.

AMATH 352 Applied Linear Algebra and Numerical Analysis (3) NW Analysis and application of numerical methods and algorithms to problems in the applied sciences and engineering. Applied linear algebra, including eigenvalue problems. Emphasis on use of conceptual methods in engineering, mathematics, and science. Extensive use of MATLAB package for programming and solution techniques. Prerequisite: either MATH 126 or Q SCI 293. Offered: AWSpS.

AMATH 353 Fourier Analysis and Partial Differential Equations (3) NW Heat equation, wave equation, and Laplace's equation. Separation of variables. Fourier series in context of solving heat equation. Fourier sine and cosine series; complete Fourier series. Fourier and Laplace transforms. Solution of partial differential equations on infinite domains. D' Alembert's solution for wave equation. Prerequisite: either AMATH 351 or MATH 307. Offered: Sp.

AMATH 383 Introduction to Continuous Mathematical Modeling (3) NW Introductory survey of applied mathematics with emphasis on modeling of physical and biological problems in terms of differential equations. Formulation, solution, and interpretation of the results. Prerequisite: either AMATH 351 or MATH 307. Offered: AWS.

AMATH 401 Vector Calculus and Complex Variables (4) NW Emphasizes acquisition of solution techniques; illustrates ideas with specific example problems arising in science and engineering. Includes applications of vector differential calculus, complex variables; line-surface integrals; integral theorems; and Taylor and Laurent series, and contour integration. Prerequisite: either MATH 126 or MATH 136. Offered: A.

AMATH 402 Introduction to Dynamical Systems and Chaos (4) NW Overview methods describing qualitative behavior of solutions on nonlinear differential equations. Phase space analysis of fixed pointed and periodic orbits. Bifurcation methods. Description of strange attractors and chaos. Introductions to maps. Applications: engineering, physics, chemistry, and biology. Prerequisite: either AMATH 351 or MATH 307. Offered: W.

AMATH 403 Methods for Partial Differential Equations (4) NW Applications of partial differential equations; linear and quasilinear first order equations, characteristics, shocks; classification of linear second order equations; basic solution techniques for parabolic, elliptic, and hyperbolic equations; Green's functions and integral transform methods. Prerequisite: AMATH 401; either AMATH 351 or MATH 307. Offered: Sp.

AMATH 422 Computational Modeling of Biological Systems (3) NW Examines fundamental models that arise in biology and their analysis through modern scientific computing. Covers discrete and continuous-time dynamics, in deterministic and stochastic settings, with application from molecular biology to neuroscience to population dynamics; statistical analysis of experimental data; and MATLAB programming from scratch. Prerequisite: either MATH 307 or AMATH 351. Offered: W.

AMATH 423 Mathematical Analysis in Biology and Medicine (3) NW Focuses on developing and analyzing mechanistic, dynamic models of biological systems and processes, to better understand their behavior and function. Applications drawn from many branches of biology and medicine. Provides experiences in applying differential equations, difference equations, and dynamical systems theory to biological problems. Prerequisite: either AMATH 351 or MATH 307, MATH/STAT 390. Offered: Sp.

AMATH 481 Scientific Computing (5) Project-oriented computational approach to solving problems arising in the physical/engineering sciences, finance/economics, medical, social, and biological sciences. Problems requiring use of advanced MATLAB routines and toolboxes. Covers graphical techniques for data presentation and communication of scientific results. Prerequisite: AMATH 301; either AMATH 351 or MATH 307; either AMATH 352 or MATH 308. Offered: A.

AMATH 482 Computational Methods for Data Analysis (5) Exploratory and objective data analysis methods applied to the physical, engineering, and biological sciences. Brief review of statistical methods and their computational implementation for studying time series analysis, spectral analysis, filtering methods, principal component analysis, orthogonal mode decomposition, and image processing and compression. Prerequisite: AMATH 301; either AMATH 352 or MATH 308. Offered: W.

AMATH 483 High-Performance Scientific Computing (5) Introduction to hardware, software, and programming for large-scale scientific computing. Overview of multicore, cluster, and supercomputer architectures; procedure and object oriented languages; parallel computing paradigms and languages; graphics and visualization of large data sets; validation and verification; and scientific software development. Prerequisite: either CSE 142 or AMATH 301. Offered: Sp.

AMATH 490 Special Topics (1-5, max. 15) Topics of current interest in applied mathematics not covered by other undergraduate courses.

AMATH 498 Senior Project or Thesis (1-6, max. 6) Intended for Honors students and other advanced undergraduates completing a special project or senior thesis in applied mathematics. Offered: AWSpS.

AMATH 499 Undergraduate Reading and Research (1-6, max. 6) Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

AMATH 500 Special Studies in Applied Mathematics (*, max. 24) Lectures and discussions of topics of current interest in applied mathematics. May not be offered every quarter; content may vary from one offering to another. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

AMATH 501 Vector Calculus and Complex Variables (5) Emphasizes acquisition of solution techniques; illustrates ideas with specific example problems arising in science and engineering. Includes applications of vector differential calculus, complex variables; line-surface integrals; integral theorems; and Taylor and Laurent series, and contour integration. Prerequisite: either a course in vector calculus or permission of instructor.

AMATH 502 Introduction to Dynamical Systems and Chaos (5) Overview methods describing qualitative behavior of solutions on nonlinear differential equations. Phase space analysis of fixed pointed and periodic orbits. Bifurcation methods. Description of strange attractors and chaos. Introductions to maps. Applications: engineering, physics, chemistry, and biology. Prerequisite: either a course in differential equations or permission of instructor.

AMATH 503 Methods for Partial Differential Equations (5) Applications of partial differential equations; linear and quasilinear first order equations, characteristics, shocks; classification of linear second order equations; basic solution techniques for parabolic, elliptic, and hyperbolic equations; Green's functions and integral transform methods. Prerequisite: either AMATH 501 and a course in differential equations or permission of instructor.

AMATH 504 Mathematical Epidemiology (5) Focuses on the construction and analysis of mathematical models for infectious disease transmission and control. Emphasizes evaluation and comparison of vaccination programs. Applications are presented for a variety of diseases such as measles, rubella, smallpox, rabies, etc. Prerequisite: either a course in differential equations or permission of instructor. Offered: Sp, odd years.

AMATH 505 Introduction to Fluid Dynamics (4) Eulerian equations for mass-motion; Navier-Stokes equation for viscous fluids, Cartesian tensors, stress-strain relations; Kelvin's theorem, vortex dynamics; potential flows, flows with high-low Reynolds numbers; boundary layers, introduction to singular perturbation techniques; water waves; linear instability theory. Prerequisite: either a course in partial differential equations or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with ATM S 505/OCEAN 511; A, odd years.

AMATH 506 Applied Probability and Statistics (4) Discrete and continuous random variables, independence and conditional probability, central limit theorem, elementary statistical estimation and inference, linear regression. Emphasis on physical applications. Prerequisite: some advanced calculus and linear algebra. Offered: jointly with STAT 506.

AMATH 507 Calculus of Variations (5) Necessary and sufficient conditions for a weak and strong extremum. Legendre transformation, Hamiltonian systems. Constraints and Lagrange multipliers. Space-time problems with examples from elasticity, electromagnetics, and fluid mechanics. Sturm-Liouville problems. Approximate methods. Prerequisite: either AMATH 351 or MATH 307; MATH 324; MATH 327. Offered: W, odd years.

AMATH 509 Theory of Optimal Control (3) Trajectories from ordinary differential equations with control variables. Controllability, optimality, maximum principle. Relaxation and existence of solutions. Techniques of nonsmooth analysis. Prerequisite: real analysis on the level of MATH 426; background in optimization corresponding to MATH 515. Offered: jointly with MATH 509.

AMATH 512 Methods of Engineering Analysis (3) Applications of mathematics to problems in chemical engineering; vector calculus; properties and methods of solution of first and second order partial differential equations; similarity transforms, separation of variables, Laplace and Fourier transforms. Prerequisite: MATH 308, MATH 307 or AMATH 351, MATH 324, or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with CHEM E 512; A.

AMATH 514 Networks and Combinatorial Optimization (3) Mathematical foundations of combinatorial and network optimization with an emphasis on structure and algorithms with proofs. Topics include combinatorial and geometric methods for optimization of network flows, matching, traveling salesman problem, cuts, and stable sets on graphs. Special emphasis on connections to linear and integer programming, duality theory, total unimodularity, and matroids. Prerequisite: either MATH 308 or AMATH 352 any additional 400-level mathematics course. Offered: jointly with MATH 514.

AMATH 515 Fundamentals of Optimization (5) Maximization and minimization of functions of finitely many variables subject to constraints. Basic problem types and examples of applications; linear, convex, smooth, and nonsmooth programming. Optimality conditions. Saddlepoints and dual problems. Penalties, decomposition. Overview of computational approaches. Prerequisite: linear algebra and advanced calculus. Offered: jointly with IND E 515/ MATH 515.

AMATH 516 Numerical Optimization (3) Methods of solving optimization problems in finitely many variables, with or without constraints. Steepest descent, quasi-Newton methods. Quadratic programming and complementarity. Exact penalty methods, multiplier methods. Sequential quadratic programming. Cutting planes and nonsmooth optimization. Prerequisite: MATH 515. Offered: jointly with MATH 516.

AMATH 521 Special Topics in Mathematical Biology (5, max. 15) Special topics in mathematical biology. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. Offered: Sp.

AMATH 522 Introduction to Mathematical Biology (5) Modeling biological systems with differential and difference equations. Examples from: ecology (population growth, disease dynamics); biochemistry and cell biology; and neurobiology (Hodgkin-Huxley and neural networks). Methods include linear stability analyses, phase-plane analyses, and perturbation theory. Prerequisite: either a course in differential equations or permission of instructor.

AMATH 523 Mathematical Analysis in Biology and Medicine (5) Focuses on developing and analyzing mechanistic, dynamic models of biological systems and processes, to better understand their behavior and function. Applications drawn from many branches of biology and medicine. Provides experiences in applying differential equations, difference equations, and dynamical systems theory to biological problems. Prerequisite: either courses in differential equations and statistics and probability, or permission of instructor. Offered: W.

AMATH 524 Mathematical Biology: Spatiotemporal Models (5) Examines partial differential equations for biological dynamics in space and time. Draws examples from molecular and cell biology, ecology, epidemiology, and neurobiology. Topics include reaction-diffusion equations for biochemical reactions, calcium wave propagation in excitable medium, and models for invading biological populations. Prerequisite: either courses in partial differential equations and statistics and probability, or permission of instructor. Offered: Sp.

AMATH 532 Mathematics of Genome Analysis and Molecular Modeling (5) Covers genome analysis, including bioinformatics and molecular modeling in terms of molecular dynamics. Prerequisite: either AMATH 506 or permission of instructor. Offered: A.

AMATH 533 Neural Control of Movement: A Computational Perspective (3) Systematic overview of sensorimotor function on multiple levels of analysis, with emphasis on the phenomenology amenable to computational modeling. Topics include musculoskeletal mechanics, neural networks, optimal control and Bayesian inference, learning and adaptation, internal models, and neural coding and decoding. Prerequisite: vector calculus, linear algebra, MATLAB, or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with CSE 529; W.

AMATH 534 Dynamics of Neurons and Networks (5) Covers mathematical analysis and simulation of neural systems - single cells, networks, and populations - via tools of dynamical systems, stochastic processes, and signal processing. Topics include single-neuron excitability and oscillations; network structure and synchrony; and stochastic and statistical dynamics of large cell populations. Prerequisite: either CSE 528 or permission of instructor.

AMATH 535 Mathematical Ecology (5) Considers models, methods, and issues in population ecology. Topics include the effects of density dependence, delays, demographic stochasticity, and age structure on population growth; population interactions (predation, competition, and mutualism); and application of optimal control theory to the management of renewable resources. Prerequisite: either a course in differential equations or permission of instructor. Offered: Sp.

AMATH 536 Spatial Models in Ecology and Epidemiology (5) Considers models for growth and dispersal of biological populations. Topics include population persistence, climate-induced range shifts, and rates of spread of invading organisms. Considers reaction-diffusion equations, integrodifference equation, branching random walks, and other relevant classes of models. Prerequisite: either a course in partial differential equations or permission of instructor. Offered: Sp.

AMATH 567 Applied Analysis (5) Reviews applications of metric and normed spaces, types of convergence, upper and lower bounds, and completion of a metric space; Banach spaces and Hilbert spaces, bounded linear operators, orthogonal sets and Fourier series, and the Riesz representation theorem; and the spectrum of a bounded linear operator and the Fredholm alternative. Introduces distributions. Prerequisite: either a course in real analysis or advanced calculus, or permission of instructor. Offered: A.

AMATH 568 Advanced Methods for Ordinary Differential Equations (5) Survey of practical solution techniques for ordinary differential equations. Linear systems of equations including nondiagonal case. Nonlinear systems; stability phase plane analysis. Asymptotic expansions. Regular and singular perturbations. Prerequisite: either a course in differential equations or permission of instructor. Offered: W.

AMATH 569 Advanced Methods for Partial Differential Equations (5) Analytical solution techniques for linear partial differential equations. Discussion of how these arise in science and engineering. Transform and Green's function methods. Classification of second-order equations, characteristics. Conservation laws, shocks. Prerequisite: either a course in partial differential equations or permission of instructor. Offered: Sp.

AMATH 570 Asymptotic and Perturbation Methods (5) Asymptotics for integrals, perturbation, and multiple-scale analysis. Singular perturbations: matched asymptotic expansions, boundary layers, shock layers, uniformly valid solutions. Prerequisite: AMATH 567, AMATH 568, AMATH 569, or permission of instructor. Offered: A.

AMATH 572 Introduction to Applied Stochastic Analysis (5) Introduction to the theory of probability and stochastic processes based on differential equations with applications to science and engineering. Poisson processes and continuous-time Markov processes, Brownian motions and diffusion. Prerequisite: either courses in dynamical systems, statistics, and probability, or permission of instructor. Offered: Sp, even years.

AMATH 573 Coherent Structures, Pattern Formation and Solitons (5) Methods for nonlinear partial differential equations (PDEs) leading to coherent structures and patterns. Includes symmetries, conservation laws, stability Hamiltonian and variation methods of PDEs; interactions of structures such as waves or solitons; Lax pairs and inverse scattering; and Painlevé analysis. Prerequisite: either a course in partial differential equations or permission of instructor. Offered: A, odd years.

AMATH 574 Conservation Laws and Finite Volume Methods (5) Theory of linear and nonlinear hyperbolic conservation laws modeling wave propagation in gases, fluids, and solids. Shock and rarefaction waves. Finite volume methods for numerical approximation of solutions; Godunov's method and high-resolution TVD methods. Stability, convergence, and entropy conditions. Prerequisite: either AMATH 586 or permission of instructor. Offered: W.

AMATH 575 Dynamical Systems (5) Overview of ways in which complex dynamics arise in nonlinear dynamical systems. Topics include bifurcation theory, universality, Poincaré maps, routes to chaos, horseshoe maps, Hamiltonian chaos, fractal dimensions, Liapunov exponents, and the analysis of time series. Examples from biology, mechanics, and other fields. Prerequisite: either AMATH 502 or permission of instructor. Offered: Sp, odd years.

AMATH 579 Intelligent Control through Learning and Optimization (3) Design or near-optimal controllers for complex dynamical systems, using analytical techniques, machine learning, and optimization. Topics from deterministic and stochastic optimal control, reinforcement learning and dynamic programming, numerical optimization in the context of control, and robotics. Prerequisite: vector calculus; linear algebra; MATLAB. Offered: jointly with CSE 579.

AMATH 581 Scientific Computing (5) Project-oriented computational approach to solving problems arising in the physical/engineering sciences, finance/economics, medical, social, and biological sciences. Problems requiring use of advanced MATLAB routines and toolboxes. Covers graphical techniques for data presentation and communication of scientific results. Prerequisite: either a course in numerical analysis or permission of instructor.

AMATH 582 Computational Methods for Data Analysis (5) Exploratory and objective data analysis methods applied to the physical, engineering, and biological sciences. Brief review of statistical methods and their computational implementation for studying time series analysis, spectral analysis, filtering methods, principal component analysis, orthogonal mode decomposition, and image processing and compression. Prerequisite: either MATLAB and linear algebra or permission of instructor. Offered: W.

AMATH 583 High-Performance Scientific Computing (5) Introduction to hardware, software, and programming for large-scale scientific computing. Overview of multicore, cluster, and supercomputer architectures; procedure and object oriented languages; parallel computing paradigms and languages; graphics and visualization of large data sets; validation and verification; and scientific software development. Prerequisite: linear algebra; programming experience. Offered: Sp.

AMATH 584 Applied Linear Algebra and Introductory Numerical Analysis (5) Numerical methods for solving linear systems of equations, linear least squares problems, matrix eigen value problems, nonlinear systems of equations, interpolation, quadrature, and initial value ordinary differential equations. Prerequisite: either a course in linear algebra or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with MATH 584; A.

AMATH 585 Numerical Analysis of Boundary Value Problems (5) Numerical methods for steady-state differential equations. Two-point boundary value problems and elliptic equations. Iterative methods for sparse symmetric and non-symmetric linear systems; conjugate-gradients, preconditioners. Prerequisite: either AMATH 581, AMATH 584/MATH 584, or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with MATH 585; W.

AMATH 586 Numerical Analysis of Time Dependent Problems (5) Numerical methods for time-dependent differential equations, including explicit and implicit methods for hyperbolic and parabolic equations. Stability, accuracy, and convergence theory. Spectral and pseudospectral methods. Prerequisite: either AMATH 581, AMATH 584/MATH 584, AMATH 585/MATH 585, or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with ATM S 581/MATH 586; Sp.

AMATH 590 Special Topics (1-5, max. 30) Topics of current interest in applied mathematics. Offered: AWSpS.

AMATH 600 Independent Research or Study (*-) Credit/no-credit only.

AMATH 700 Master's Thesis (*-) Credit/no-credit only.

AMATH 800 Doctoral Dissertation (*-) Credit/no-credit only.

Computational Finance and Risk Management

CFRM 460 Mathematical Methods for Quantitative Finance (3) NW, QSR Covers selected mathematical methods needed to begin a master's program in quantitative finance. Topics include applications of calculus, linear algebra, and constrained optimization methods to fixed income, portfolio optimization, futures, options, and risk management.

CFRM 461 Probability and Statistics for Computational Finance (3) Covers basic concepts and methods of probability and statistical analysis and modeling for computational and quantitative finance. Coverage is carefully aligned with leading problems concerning prices and returns of individual assets and portfolios of assets. Key applications include financial risk management and portfolio performance analysis.

CFRM 462 Introduction to Computational Finance and Financial Econometrics (5) Zivot Covers probability models, data analysis, quantitative, and statistical methods using applications in finance, and introduction to and use of the R programming system for data analysis and statistical modeling. Offered: AS.

CFRM 463 R Programming for Quantitative Finance (1) Introduction to R Programming language for applications in quantitative finance. Intended for students with no prior exposure to R and prepares them with the computing skills needed to progress effectively in an MS degree program in computational finance.

CFRM 500 Special Studies in Computational Finance and Risk Management (1-6, max. 18) Lecture and discussions of topics of current interest in computational finance and risk management. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

CFRM 510 Financial Data Access and Analysis with SQL, VBA, and Excel (4) Provides skills in retrieving and manipulating financial data and in creating computational solutions to quantitative finance problems using SQL, VBA, and Excel. Also teaches skills in leveraging the powerful financial data modeling and analysis capabilities of R in conjunction with SQL, VBA, and Excel. Offered: A.

CFRM 540 Capital Markets and Data for Computational Finance (1) Golbeck Introduces students to the language and terminology of finance, capital markets, and data through selected textbook and financial news readings. Also teaches students how to access, manipulate, and analyze complex financial data from various repositories available through the internet.

CFRM 541 Investment Science (4) Martin, Tung Introduces the mathematical, statistical, and financial foundations of investment science. Topics include: Mean-Variance Portfolio Theory, efficient frontiers, expected tail loss, futures and forwards, no arbitrage and risk-neutral pricing, and binomial tree derivative pricing. Prerequisite: coursework in introductory probability and statistics, and advanced calculus. Offered: A.

CFRM 542 Financial Data Modeling and Analysis in R (4) Introduces the R statistical programming language for computational finance application. Focuses on use of R packages for quantitative finance and R scripts development for statistical analysis and modeling methods in key quantitative finance areas including factor modeling, financial time series, and portfolio analytics. Prerequisite: CFMR 541. Offered: A.

CFRM 543 Portfolio Optimization and Asset Management (4) Covers long-only and long-short portfolio optimization with real-world constraints and costs using industrial strength optimization software; classical mean-variance and modern mean-versus downside risk optimization for dealing with fat-tailed skewed asset returns; optimization and risk analysis with factor models; and equity, mixed asset class, and fund-of-hedge portfolios. Prerequisite: CFMR 541 and CFMR 542, or permission of instructor. Offered: S.

CFRM 544 Options and Other Derivatives (4) Covers financial instrument options and derivatives. Explores how to price options and other derivatives and use them to hedge investment risk. Involves theory, statistical modeling, numerical methods, and computation using the R programming language. Prerequisite: CFMR 540; co-requisite: CFMR 541 or permission of instructor. Offered: A.

CFRM 545 Financial Risk Management I (4) Introduces the concepts and methodologies of financial risk management. Uses derivatives for hedging risk, emphasizing fixed income and exchange rate derivatives. Includes models, credit derivatives, mortgage backed securities, and asset backed securities. First in a sequence of three on financial risk management. Prerequisite: CFMR 541 or permission of instructor. Offered: W.

CFRM 546 Financial Risk Management II (4) Provides a comprehensive treatment of the theoretical concepts and modeling techniques of quantitative risk management focusing on practical tools to solve real-work problems. Covers methods for market, credit, and operational risk modeling. Prerequisite: CFMR 545 or permission of instructor. Offered: S.

CFRM 547 Credit Risk Management (4) Henniger Theory, applications & computational methods for credit risk measurement & management. Statistical and mathematical modeling of credit risk, emphasizing numerical methods & R programming. Methods include logistic regression, Monte Carlo simulation, & portfolio cash flow modeling. Covers default risk regression, analytics, & portfolio models of credit risk. Offered: A.

CFRM 548 Monte Carlo Methods in Finance (4) Marting Monte Carlo simulations in quantitative finance for portfolio assembly and financial risk management. Students learn theory and methods of tracking the behavior of underlying securities in an option or portfolio and determine the derivative's value by taking the expected value of the discounted payoffs at maturity. Prerequisite: CFMR 540. Offered: A.

CFRM 551 Introduction to Trading Systems (4) Introduces electronic trading systems. Uses the R programming language to develop, evaluate, and optimize quantitative trading strategies. Students apply trading strategies through a live paper-trading account with an online broker using real time market data.

CFRM 552 Portfolio Performance Analysis and Benchmarking (4) Covers fundamental principles and commonly used methods in performance measurement, analysis, and benchmarking of portfolio evaluation. Prerequisite: CFMR 541, MBA level investments course, or equivalent. Offered: A.

CFRM 553 Financial Time Series Forecasting Methods (4) Covers financial time series forecasting methods and their use in making investment decisions for asset management purposes. Asset-class specific forecasting methods. Uses the R statistical modeling and data analysis system for implementing and evaluating such forecasting methods. Prerequisite: CFMR 541 or permission of instructor. Offered: W.

CFRM 554 Endowment and Institutional Investment Management (4) Focuses on the endowment management process and specific challenges facing institutional fund managers. Includes evaluating the role of an endowment, portfolio construction, risk management, manager selection, and alternative asset class investing. Utilizes concepts from finance and investments, macroeconomics, and mathematical optimization. Prerequisite: CFMR 541; recommended: CFMR 543 or equivalent. Offered: S.

CFRM 555 Optimization Methods in Finance (4) Murray Covers theory and efficient solution methods for optimization problems in finance. Includes financial solution methodologies using linear, non-linear, quadratic, and integer formulations; and dynamic and stochastic programming. Prerequisite: CFMR 540; linear algebra and matrix notation; statistics and probability; and experience with R language and MS Excel. Offered: A.

CFRM 556 Statistical Modeling for Computational Finance (4) Konis Advanced classical and modern statistical modeling methods for computational finance including: covariance matrix, correlation matrix, and principal components estimation and analysis; least-squares, robust, non-linear and nonparametric regression for asset return factor models; shrinkage methods; risk factors selection; and clustering and classification methods. Asset management applications and computer exercise with R. Offered: A.

CFRM 557 Financial Software Development and Integration with C++ (4) Practical introduction to C++ programming for financial applications. Focuses on developing basic object oriented programming skills in C++ to implement computational finance solutions. Also includes integrating C++ applications with R, MATLAB, SQL, and VBA.

CFRM 558 Fixed Income Analytics and Portfolio Management (4) Covers fixed income markets and securities, data sources, analytics and portfolio management methods, in particular the valuation, risks, and risk management of fixed income securities. Uses a hands-on data-oriented and computational focus. Offered: A.

CFRM 559 Stochastic Calculus for Quantitative Finance (4) Golbeck Provides a systematic examination of financial derivatives pricing using stochastic calculus. Examines popular stochastic differential equation models such as Geometric Brownian motion, Vasicek, Hull-White, Cox-Ingersoll-Ross, Black-Karasinski, Heath-Jarrow-Morton, and Brace-Gatarek-Musiela, as well as Poisson and Levy processes. Applications include equity, fixed-income, and credit derivatives. Offered: S.

CFRM 560 Actuarial Models and Estimation (4) Surveys non-life insurance mathematics. Topics include utility theory, insurance, individual and collective risk models, ruin theory, risk measures, credibility theory, and generalized linear models. Includes writing computer programs to build and evaluate these models using real data. Offered: Sp.

CFRM 600 Independent Research or Study (1-6, max. 18)

CFRM 601 Internship (1-6, max. 30)

CFRM 700 Master's Thesis (1-6, max. 18)

Art

The School of Art serves a dual role within the educational structure of the University of Washington. It is both a professional school and an academic department. As a professional school it trains students for active careers in the visual arts; as a school of the College of Arts and Sciences it offers studio and lecture courses. All of its course offerings and its curriculum requirements are based on the underlying philosophy that an awareness and understanding of the visual arts are necessary to a liberal education, and that a liberal education is necessary to the training of a professional artist.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

104 Art, Box 353440

(206) 543-0646

uaskart@uw.edu

The School of Art offers the following undergraduate programs:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in art history, interdisciplinary visual arts, or painting and drawing.
- The Bachelor of Fine Arts degree with a major in painting and drawing, photomedia, or three-dimensional forum.
- The Bachelor of Design degree with majors in industrial design, interaction design, or visual communication design.
- A minor in interaction design.

Bachelor of Arts

Interdisciplinary Visual Arts (IVA), Painting and Drawing (Students may earn a Bachelor of Arts or a Bachelor of Fine Arts with a major in Painting and Drawing, but not both.)

Department Admission Requirements

The minimum GPA for application to the School of Art is 2.50.

- Admission to the Interdisciplinary Visual Arts Major for Freshmen or Currently Enrolled Students: After completing 5 credits of introductory level art (100/200 level), students meet with an Art adviser to declare the major.
- Admission to the Interdisciplinary Visual Arts Major for Transfer Students: Students complete the equivalent of 5 credits of introductory art (100/200 level) prior to transferring. Once admitted to the UW, they meet with an Art adviser to declare the major. Prior to transfer, students may address questions to uaskart@uw.edu.
- Admission to the Painting and Drawing Major for Freshmen and Currently Enrolled Students: After completing ART 190, students meet with an Art adviser to declare the major.
- Admission to the Painting and Drawing Major for Transfer Students: Once admitted to the UW, students meet with an Art adviser to enroll in ART 190. Students who transfer with college credits in painting and drawing may wish to present a portfolio for advanced placement in the program. Prior to transfer, students may address questions to uaskart@uw.edu.

Major Requirements

Interdisciplinary Visual Arts (60 credits)

1. ART 260 (5 credits)

4. 15 credits ART H courses

Painting and Drawing (55 credits)

1. 5 credits: ART 190
2. 15 credits drawing classes: 5 credits of ART 290; 5 credits of ART 390; 5 credits of ART 490
3. 20 credits painting classes: 5 credits of ART 292; 5 credits of ART 392; 5 credits of ART 393; 5 credits of ART 492 or ART 494
4. 15 credits of ART H, which may include 5 credits of ART 361

Bachelor of Fine Arts

Painting & Drawing (Students may earn a Bachelor of Fine Arts or a Bachelor of Arts with a major in Painting & Drawing, but not both), Photomedia, Three-Dimensional Forum

Department Admission Requirements

The minimum GPA for admission to School of Art BFA programs is 3.00.

For currently enrolled students

- Admission to Painting and Drawing: Students complete ART 190, then meet with an Art adviser to declare the major.
- Admission to Three-Dimensional Forum: Students complete ART 124 and one of ART 201, ART 202, ART 233, ART 272, or ART 273, then meet with an Art adviser to declare the major.
- Admission to Photomedia: Admission is competitive. Students enroll in ART 140 spring quarter of their freshman year to prepare the portfolio required for the competitive selection process for ART 241 autumn quarter. Students selected to register for ART 241 spend autumn quarter working with the photomedia faculty, revising their portfolio which is then used to select students admitted to the photomedia major in winter quarter. See department website at art.washington.edu/ for timing and suggestions for successful completion of portfolio requirements.

For transfer students

- Admission to Painting and Drawing, and Sculpture: Once admitted to the UW, students meet with an Art adviser to enroll in ART 190. Students who transfer with college credits in the proposed area of study may wish to present a portfolio for advanced placement in the program. Prior to transfer, students may address questions to uaskart@uw.edu.
- Admission to Three-Dimensional Forum: Once admitted to the UW, students meet with an Art adviser to enroll in the appropriate art course. Students who transfer with college credits in the proposed area of study may wish to present a portfolio for advanced placement in the program. Prior to transfer, students may address questions to uaskart@uw.edu.

- Admission to Photomedia: Admission is competitive. Transfer students must apply for admission to the UW for summer or autumn quarter, must have completed an equivalent course to ART 140, and must submit their portfolios by mid-August for consideration to register for ART 241 autumn quarter. Students selected to register for ART 241 spend autumn quarter working with photomedia faculty, revising their portfolios which are then used to select students admitted to the photomedia major in winter quarter. See department website at art.washington.edu for further information on timing and suggestions for successful completion of portfolio requirements.

Admission Policy for Postbaccalaureate Applicants: Postbaccalaureate study in studio art is limited; admission requirements vary within each major. See information concerning specific postbaccalaureate admission online at department website: art.washington.edu.

Major Requirements

Painting and Drawing (90 credits)

1. 5 credits: ART 190
2. 15 credits drawing classes: 5 credits of ART 290; 5 credits of ART 390; 5 credits of ART 490
3. 40 credits painting classes: 5 credits of ART 292; 5 credits of ART 392; 5 credits of ART 393; 10 credits ART 492 or 5 credits of ART 492 and 5 additional credits ART 490; 15 credits of ART 494
4. 15 credits studio art or related electives
5. 15 credits ART H, which may include 5 credits of ART 361

Photomedia (80 credits)

1. 55 credits: ART 140 or adviser-approved course; ART 240; ART 241; ART 340 (15 credits); ART 361; ART 440 (15 credits)

2. 10 credits: ART and DXARTS courses

3. 15 credits: ART H, ANTH 209, DXARTS 200

Three-Dimensional Forum (80 credits)

1. ART 272 (5 credits)
2. 25 credits from one of the following tracks:
 - a. Ceramics: ART 201; one from ART 202, ART 232, ART 233, or ART 273; ART 353 (15 credits) or ART 353 (10 credits) and either ART 332 or ART 333
 - b. Glass: ART 233; one from ART 201, ART 202, ART 232, or ART 273; ART 333 (15 credits) or ART 333 (10 credits) and either ART 332 or ART 353
 - c. Sculpture: ART 273; one from ART 201, ART 202, ART 232, or ART 233; ART 332 (15 credits) or ART 332 (10 credits) and ART 333 or ART 353
3. 15 credits of ART electives.
4. 15 credits ART H or ART 361
5. 20 credits of ART 453

Bachelor of Design

Department Admission Requirements

The minimum GPA for admission to School of Art Bachelor of Design programs is 3.00.

For currently enrolled students

- Admission to Industrial Design, Interaction Design, and Visual Communication Design: Students must complete DESIGN 166. Students receiving a minimum grade of 3.7 or higher in DESIGN 166 are admitted into the design program. Students who do not receive a minimum grade of 3.7 can apply to the design program via the design workshop in June. For details on the design workshop, see the department website: art.washington.edu.

For transfer students

- Admission to Industrial Design, Interaction Design, and Visual Communication Design: Students must complete DESIGN 166 (see admission requirements for currently enrolled students) or the equivalent of DESIGN 166 at their previous school, apply for admission to the UW, and attend the design workshop in June. It is highly recommended that transfer students meet with a School of Art adviser prior to applying to the UW to discuss the design workshop and selection process. See program guides at department website for specific information: art.washington.edu.

Admission Policy for Postbaccalaureate Applicants: Postbaccalaureate study in studio art is limited; admission requirements vary within each major. See information concerning specific postbaccalaureate admissions online at department website: art.washington.edu.

Major Requirements

93-98 credits, as follows:

Industrial Design (103 credits)

1. Successful completion of design admission selection process
2. 93 credits: DESIGN 166, DESIGN 207, DESIGN 208, DESIGN 209, DESIGN 210, DESIGN 211, DESIGN 212, DESIGN 316, DESIGN 317, DESIGN 318, DESIGN 319, DESIGN 322, DESIGN 323, DESIGN 443, DESIGN 444, DESIGN 445, DESIGN 446, DESIGN 447, DESIGN 488

3. 10 credits of art history

Interaction Design (93 credits)

1. Successful completion of design admission selection process
2. 83 credits: DESIGN 166, DESIGN 207, DESIGN 208, DESIGN 209, DESIGN 210, DESIGN 211, DESIGN 212, DESIGN 381, DESIGN 383, DESIGN 384, DESIGN 385, DESIGN 386, DESIGN 387, DESIGN 481, DESIGN 483, DESIGN 484, DESIGN 488

3. 10 credits of art history

Visual Communication Design (98 credits)

1. Successful completion of design admission selection process.
2. 98 credits: DESIGN 166, DESIGN 207, DESIGN 208, DESIGN 209, DESIGN 210, DESIGN 211, DESIGN 212, DESIGN 366, DESIGN 367, DESIGN 368, DESIGN 376, DESIGN 377, DESIGN 378, DESIGN 466, either DESIGN 467 or DESIGN 479, DESIGN 478, DESIGN 480, DESIGN 488

3. 10 credits of art history

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: Students receiving an undergraduate degree in art can expect to develop strong writing, analytical, critical-thinking, and problem-solving skills. Students learn to recognize the power of the visual image and understand its importance in a world increasingly dependent on the aesthetic and technical skill of trained artists and designers to create images that communicate information and ideas across cultures and generations.

In addition to becoming practicing artists, art graduates find careers in fields such as gallery and museum management, arts education, arts administration, photojournalism, film making, graphic and product design, interior design, teaching, advertising, art therapy, and visual and digital technology.

- Instructional and Research Facilities: None.

- Honors Options Available: Photography Honors (see Academic Advising and Student Services for requirements).
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: The School of Art has several programs that help students develop professional practices and expand their knowledge outside the UW: internships for credit, Artist in Residence programs, K-12 Educational Partnerships, and the Studio Art Rome program.
- Department Scholarships: Scholarships are available annually to enrolled majors (see Academic Advising and Student Services for details)
- Student Organizations/Associations: Students majoring in the studio arts have the opportunity to participate in several student associations: Hephestium (metals), Zeeware (ceramics), Broadclothes (fiber), Printmakers Association (printmaking), a photo guild, and the Inter Arts Council. These organizations raise funds through the sale of members' work to support visiting artists and lectures and to sponsor student involvement in regional arts events.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator

104 Art Building, Box 353440

(206) 543-0646

gradart@u.washington.edu

The Master of Fine Arts program offers an intense, two-year studio and seminar/classroom experience leading to an advanced degree in visual art. The program builds on prior, significant academic experience and studio work. Admission is competitive to any one of the following five programs: ceramics, painting and drawing, photography, sculpture, and visual communication design.

The master's degree program in Art History at the University of Washington affirms that the MA degree is an independent degree useful in its own right. Successful applicants to the program normally have a broad undergraduate background in art history.

The PhD program in the Division of Art History prepares graduates for university-level teaching, curator positions at major museums, and independent research in the field. Before beginning work for the PhD, students should have completed a Master of Arts degree in the history of art.

Master of Fine Arts

Admission Requirements

Applicants for admission to the Master of Fine Arts program are required to have a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree or equivalent (determined by the quality of the applicant's work and equivalent experience, based upon the UW BFA requirements) with a minimum GPA of 3.00 in the undergraduate art major.

The Graduate Record Examination is not required. Admission is on a competitive basis. Annual deadline for applications is February 1, for consideration for admission the following autumn quarter.

Degree Requirements

For each program, 90 credits are required, as follows:

Ceramics

1. Ceramics studio: 20 credits of ART 553
2. Interdisciplinary seminar: 25 credits of ART 590
3. Art history, theory, and criticism: 10 credits of approved courses
4. Studio electives: 15 credits of approved electives

5. Thesis: 20 credits of ART 700. The thesis is a natural outgrowth of the student's work. It can consist of one major work or a body of work that involves one central theme. Ceramics graduates exhibit their thesis work in the annual MFA exhibition at the Henry Art Gallery along with a one person show at the Ceramics Gallery.

Painting and Drawing

1. Drawing studio: 6 credits of ART 591
2. Painting studio: 25 credits of ART 592
3. Graduate seminar: 30 credits of ART 594
4. Art history, theory, and criticism: 10 credits of approved courses
5. Studio electives: 9 credits of approved electives
6. Thesis: 10 credits of ART 700. The thesis is a natural outgrowth of the student's work. It can consist of one major work or a body of work that involves one central theme. Painting and drawing graduates exhibit their thesis work in the annual MFA exhibition at the Henry Art Gallery.

Photography

ART H 414 Topics in South Asian Art (5, max. 15) VLPA/I&S Explores topics on the art and visual culture of South Asia with a particular focus on India.

ART H 419 Japanese Architecture (3) VLPA Survey of Japanese architecture from its origins to modern times. Although Shinto architecture, tea houses, gardens, and modern developments are discussed, the primary focus is on the development of Japanese Buddhist architecture. Recommended: some background in Japanese art, history, language, or literature. Offered: jointly with ARCH 453.

ART H 420 Art of the Japanese Print (3) VLPA Foundations of Ukiyo-e in Japanese genre from the twelfth through mid-seventeenth centuries; woodblock technique from the Heian period through the early Edo period. Emphasis on the changing styles and subject matter in Ukiyo-e Hanga from Moronobu through Kuniyoshi. Recommended: some background in Japanese art, history, language, or literature.

ART H 421 Topics in Art and Visual Cultures: Japan (5, max. 15) VLPA/I&S Special topics in the study of Japanese art and visual culture.

ART H 432 Oceanic Art (3) VLPA/I&S Explores the arts of the Pacific Islands and Australia. Pays special attention to the arts of aboriginal Australia, traditional and contemporary creativity in Papua New Guinea, and the diversity of island Melanesian art forms. Recommended: previous coursework in tribal art.

ART H 433 Northern Northwest Coast Native-American Art: Methodologies in Stylistic Analysis (5) VLPA Stylistic and historical analysis of northern Northwest Coast art (Haida, Tlingit, Tsimshian, Northern Wakashan). Intensive analysis of formline rules; stylistic variation through time and between tribal and individual artists' styles. Recommended: some background in Native American art, history, languages, or literature.

ART H 434 Native-American Art and Ceremony of the Southern and Central Northwest Coast (3) VLPA/I&S Examination of the role of the visual arts in the ceremonial life of the Native-American people of the central and southern Northwest Coast. Emphasis on the traditional social and religious aspects of ceremonialism, contrasts between tribal traditions, and continuing twentieth-century traditions. Recommended: some background in Native American art, history, languages, or literature.

ART H 435 Thematic Studies in Native-American Art (5, max. 15) VLPA/I&S Wright Approach to Native-American art through themes and issues. Focus varies from year to year (e.g. Shamanism in Native-American art, gender identity in Native-American art, social and political aspects of Native-American art, issues in contemporary Native-American art). Recommended: some background in Native American art, history, languages, or literature.

ART H 436 History of the Arts of Africa I (3) VLPA/I&S Approaches the arts of North Africa, the Sahara, and Sudan from pre-historic times to the present. Emphasizes the role of Islam throughout this vast region and the role of local cultures in shaping the varieties of African Islam. Recommended: some background in African art, history, languages, or literature.

ART H 437 History of the Arts of Africa II (3) VLPA/I&S Explores the history of the arts and creativity of western Africa from Cape Verde to Cape Lopez with consideration given to the European presence, the peoples of "Guinea," and the shaping of intercultural spaces and artistry. Recommended: some background in African art, history, languages, or literature.

ART H 438 History of the Arts of Africa III (3) VLPA/I&S Surveys the arts from the equatorial forest to the Cape of Good Hope with an extended examination of Congolese (Bantu and Abatwa) artistry, the personal arts of East Africa herders, and the art and architecture of Swahili civilization. Recommended: some background in African art, history, languages, or literature.

ART H 442 Greek Painting (3) VLPA K. TOPPER Study of painted decoration on Greek vases, with emphasis on stylistic developments and cultural and historical influences. Painting on other media also examined as evidence allows. Offered: jointly with CL AR 442.

ART H 443 Roman Painting (3) VLPA S. LEVIN-RICHARDSON, K. TOPPER Study of surviving painting from the Roman world, with emphasis on wall paintings from Pompeii and Herculaneum. Principal topics for discussion: the four styles of Pompeian painting the dependence of Roman painters on Greek prototypes, and the significance of various kinds of painting as domestic decoration. Offered: jointly with CL AR 443.

ART H 444 Greek and Roman Sculpture (3) VLPA K. TOPPER History and development of Greek sculpture and sculptors, their Roman copyists, and Roman portraits and sarcophagi. Emphasis on Greek sculpture of the fifth century BC. Offered: jointly with CL AR 444.

ART H 446 Greek Architecture (3) VLPA K. TOPPER Detailed study of Greek architecture from its beginnings, with special emphasis on the Periclean building program in fifth-century Athens. Offered: jointly with CL AR 446.

ART H 447 The Archaeology of Early Italy (3) VLPA S. LEVIN-RICHARDSON, K. TOPPER Study of the principal archaeological sites of early Italy, including Etruria, Sicily, southern Italy, and archaic Rome up to the Republican period. Attention given to the material remains and their relationship to the Etruscan, ancient Sicilian, and early Roman civilizations. Offered: jointly with CL AR 447.

ART H 448 The Archaeology of Italy (3) VLPA S. LEVIN-RICHARDSON, K. TOPPER Study of the principal archaeological sites in Italy with special emphasis on ancient Rome. Sites include the Alban hills, Ostia, Pompeii, Herculaneum, Tarracina, Paestum, Tivoli, and Praeneste. Attention given to the relationship between material remains and their purpose in ancient life. Illustrated by slides. Offered: jointly with CL AR 448.

ART H 451 Topics in Early Christian and Byzantine Art and Architecture (3, max. 9) VLPA Specific theme or area of early Christian and Byzantine art and architecture, such as early Christian and Byzantine mosaics or the art of Constantinople.

ART H 452 Art, Religion, and Politics in the Early Christian Period, 300-700 AD (3) VLPA/I&S Kartsonis Evolution of the art of the early Christian period (300-700 AD) in the context of contemporary religious, political, and cultural developments. Recommended: some background in Byzantine art or history. Offered: jointly with JSIS C 452.

ART H 453 Art, Religion, and Politics in Byzantium, 700-1453 AD (3) VLPA/I&S Kartsonis Evolution of the art of Byzantium (700-1453 AD) in the context of contemporary religious, political, and cultural developments. Recommended: some background in Byzantine art or history. Offered: jointly with JSIS D 453.

ART H 455 Special Studies in Gothic Art and Architecture (3)

ART H 460 Topics in Northern European Art (3-5, max. 9) VLPA Goettler Approaches to the art of northern Europe through particular themes, genres, contexts, or other issues. Focus varies from year to year.

ART H 461 Early Renaissance Painting in Italy (3) VLPA Painting of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries in central and northern Italy. Recommended: some background in Italian Renaissance art or history.

ART H 462 High Renaissance Painting in Italy (3) VLPA Painting in central and northern Italy, from about 1480 to about 1530: Leonardo, Raphael, the early Michelangelo, Sarto, Correggio, Bellini, Giorgione, and the early Titian. Recommended: some background in Italian Renaissance art or history.

ART H 464 Late Renaissance Painting in Italy (3) VLPA Painting in central and northern Italy, from about 1515 to about 1580: Pontorno, Rosso, Parmigianino, Beccafumi, the later Michelangelo, Vasari, Bronzino, Salviati, the later Titian, Tintoretto, and Veronese. Recommended: some background in Italian Renaissance art or history.

ART H 466 High Renaissance Painting in Venice (3) VLPA Painting in Venice, circa 1480 to circa 1580: Bellini, Carpaccio, Giorgione, Titian, Lotto, del Piombo, Tintoretto, and Veronese. Recommended: some background in Italian Renaissance art or history.

ART H 471 Rome in the Seventeenth Century (5) VLPA Painting, sculpture, and architecture; concentration on Caravaggio, Bernini, Poussin, and Borromini. Recommended: some background in the art or history of the period.

ART H 473 Topics in Baroque Art (5, max. 15) VLPA Approaches to the study of Baroque art through particular themes, genres, contexts, new research, and emerging issues. Focus varies from year to year.

ART H 479 Representations of the Other in 19th Century Art (5) VLPA Explores how cultural identities were formed and reinforced in nineteenth-century European, British, and American Art. Includes investigations of physical and racial stereotyping, historical notions of the "primitive," fantasies of race, gender, imperialism, nationalism, and ethnicity.

ART H 480 Art Museums: History, Theory, Practice (5) VLPA Explores the history of art museums in America and Europe from the nineteenth century to the present. Topics include connoisseurship and conservation, theories of design and display, architectural challenges, auction houses, dealers, curators, directors, impact of education departments, museums' changing relationship to public audiences, visual arts, and the law.

ART H 483 Post-Impressionism to 1918 (5) VLPA Post-Impressionism and the great revolution of early twentieth-century art, with emphasis on painting. From the first revisions of Impressionism around 1880 to Fauvism, Cubism, Futurism, the Blaue Reiter, and Dadaism. Recommended: some background in the art or history of the period.

ART H 484 Topics in Modern Art (5, max. 15) VLPA Approach to art of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries through particular themes, genres, contexts, or other issues.

sues. Focus varies from year to year. Recommended: some background in the art or history of the period.

ART H 485 Italian Futurism, Dada, Surrealism (5) VLPA Failing Survey of three European early modern art movements whose ultimate objective was the collapse of bourgeois culture. Central issues: the role of art and artists in catalyzing social change, strategies for destroying public faith in logic, integration of verbal and visual signs and nonaesthetic conceptions of art. Recommended: some background in the art or history of the period.

ART H 486 Abstract Expressionism: History and Myth (5) VLPA Thematic and chronological survey of abstract expressionism, including major genres of critical interpretation, revisionist scholarship, and the relationship of artistic production to a larger context of visual production. Recommended: some background in the art or history of the period.

ART H 488 American Architecture (3) American architecture from indigenous Native American traditions to the present. Recommended: some background in the art, architecture, or history of the period. Offered: jointly with ARCH 455.

ART H 490 Nineteenth-Century Architecture (3) VLPA From late eighteenth century French rationalists, Neoclassicists, to fin de siècle Vienna and Paris. Includes theorists such as Ruskin, Viollet-le-Duc, and Semper; major movements, such as the Arts and Crafts, and the French Ecole des Beaux-Arts method of design. Recommended: some background in the art, architecture, or history of the period. Offered: jointly with ARCH 456.

ART H 491 Twentieth-Century Architecture (3) VLPA Architecture in the twentieth century, mainly in Europe and the United States. Traces roots of Modernism in Europe in the 1920s, its demise (largely in the United States) in the 1960s, and recent trends such as Post-Modernism and Deconstructivism. Recommended: some background in the art, architecture, or history of the period. Offered: jointly with ARCH 457.

ART H 492 Alternative Art Forms Since 1960 (5) VLPA Survey of "post-studio" art forms developed in the 1960s by artists who did not equate artmaking with painting, sculpture, or other traditional forms. Topics include: happenings, Fluxus, land projects, artists' video, artists' books, performance, site works, and art made for distribution on CD-ROM and on the web.

ART H 493 Architecture Since 1945 (3) VLPA Theories and forms in architecture from the end of World War II to present. Includes new wave Japanese architects, recent Native American developments, and non-Western as well as Western trends. Recommended: some background in the art, architecture, or history of the period. Offered: jointly with ARCH 459.

ART H 494 Paris: Architecture and Urbanism (3/5) VLPA/I&S Spans the architectural history of Paris, from its Gallic, pre-Roman origins in the second century BCE through the work of twenty-first century architects. Focuses on changing patterns of the physical fabric of the city and its buildings, as seen within the context of the broader political, social, economic, and cultural history. Offered: jointly with ARCH 458/JSIS A 433.

ART H 495 Italian Fascism: Architecture and Power (5) VLPA/I&S Fascism in Italy as studied within the broader European context of nationalism, imperialism, and modernization, with particular emphasis on the arts - literature, film, architecture, and urbanism. Offered: jointly with ITAL 475.

ART H 497 Special Topics in Art in Rome (5, max. 10) VLPA Topics in art and architecture in Rome and environs, studied from original works. Offered in Italy as part of the art history seminar in Rome. Topics vary. Site visits, field trips, and individual research projects.

ART H 498 Individual Projects, Undergraduate Practicum (2-5, max. 10) Fieldwork or internships in art-related areas in the community. Practical experience in areas such as arts administration, gallery and museum operations, collection cataloging, curatorial responsibilities, and art education. Credit/no-credit only.

ART H 499 Individual Projects (2-5, max. 10)

ART H 500 Methods of Art History (5) Introduction to the specialized bibliography of art historical research and to the wide variety of approaches to art historical problems of all periods and regions.

ART H 501 Seminar in the General Field of Art (5, max. 15)

ART H 504 Methods of Art History: Faculty Research (2) Discussion and analysis of methodological issues posed in faculty research. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: W.

ART H 509 Seminar in Special Topics in Art History (5, max. 15) Specific focus changes from quarter to quarter.

ART H 511 Seminar in Chinese Art (5, max. 15) Critical appraisal of the principal research methods, theories, and types of literature dealing with the art of China.

ART H 514 Seminar in South Asian Art (5, max. 30) VLPA/I&S Critical appraisal of the principle research methods, theories, and types of literature dealing with the art of South Asia.

ART H 515 Seminar in Japanese Art (5, max. 15) Critical appraisal of the principal research methods, theories, and types of literature dealing with the art of Japan.

ART H 520 Topics in Tribal Art (5, max. 20) Investigates a series of variable topics in tribal art.

ART H 521 Topics in Asian Art (5, max. 20) Investigates a series of topics in Asian art.

ART H 522 Topics in Ancient, Classical, and Medieval Art (5, max. 20) Investigates a series of variable topics in ancient, classical, and medieval art.

ART H 523 Topics in Italian and Northern Renaissance Art (5, max. 20) Investigates a series of variable topics in Italian and Northern Renaissance art.

ART H 524 Topics in Baroque and Eighteenth Century Western Art (5, max. 20) Investigates a series of variable topics in baroque and eighteenth century Western art.

ART H 525 Topics in Modern and Contemporary Art and Architecture (5, max. 20) Investigates a series of variable topics in modern and contemporary art and architecture.

ART H 531 Seminar in Tribal Art (5, max. 15) Methodological and cross-disciplinary problems in the visual arts of precolonial Africa, Oceania, and America. Specific content varies.

ART H 533 Seminar in North American Native Art (5, max. 15) Problems in North American Indian visual arts. Content varies.

ART H 541 Seminar in Greek and Roman Art (5) S. LEVIN-RICHARDSON, K. TOPPER In-depth study of selected topics and problems of the art of ancient Greece and Rome. Offered: jointly with CL AR 541.

ART H 551 Seminar in Early Christian, Byzantine, and/or Medieval Art and Architecture (5, max. 15) Problems in early Christian, Byzantine, and medieval art and architecture. Content varies. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

ART H 561 Seminar in Italian Renaissance Art (5, max. 15) Problems and in-depth study of selected topics of the art of the Italian Renaissance.

ART H 566 Seminar in North European Art (5, max. 15) Deals with problems of style and iconography of the northern European masters of the fourteenth through seventeenth centuries.

ART H 577 Seminar in Baroque Art (5, max. 15) Iconographic and stylistic problems of the art of the Baroque period, with emphasis on the principal research methods, theories, and types of literature dealing with the art of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries in Europe.

ART H 581 Seminar in Modern Art (5, max. 15) Art historical problems of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries.

ART H 590 Seminar in Criticism of Contemporary Art (5, max. 15) Contemporary art and appropriate critical methodology.

ART H 591 Seminar in Twentieth-Century Architecture (3/5) Specific focus changes from quarter to quarter. Prerequisite: graduate standing with background in art history, architecture, architectural history, or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with ARCH 558.

ART H 592 Seminar in American Architecture (5) Clausen Topics vary. Offered: jointly with ARCH 555.

ART H 597 Graduate Internship (2-5, max. 5) Internship in the field of art history with a museum, gallery, or other faculty-approved art or architectural institution that can offer the student substantial research or curatorial experience. Credit/no-credit only.

ART H 598 Master's Practicum (*, max. 15) Credit/no-credit only.

ART H 599 Reading and Writing Projects (2) Art historical issues, methods, and materials. Required of all graduate majors registered in 400-level art history courses. Open also to graduate nonmajors.

ART H 600 Independent Study or Research (*-)

ART H 700 Master's Thesis (*-) Credit/no-credit only.

ART H 800 Doctoral Dissertation (*-) Credit/no-credit only.

Design

DESIGN 165 Introduction to Industrial Design (5) VLPA Provides a general introduction to industrial design. Develops students' knowledge through lectures, readings, and studio projects that focus on the history of the discipline and the processes of brainstorming, ideation, skill building, problem solving, and professional presentation used in the creation of design. Includes participation by guest designers.

DESIGN 166 Design Foundations (5) VLPA Examines the rudiments of visual structure and problem solving in two and three-dimensional design. Emphasizes design methodology and design processes with emphasis on the formal principles of composition and organization.

DESIGN 207 Design Drawing (5) VLPA Concentrates on developing skills used to communicate ideas that exist in the imagination. Focuses on study of design drawing history and development of basic skills necessary for ideation, exploration, communication, explanation. Prepares students to visualize and discuss ideas rapidly and professionally. For design majors only.

DESIGN 208 Survey of Design History (5) VLPA Surveys the ideas, events, and individuals that determined the design of information, objects, culture, and commerce across societies. Examines the social, political, economic, and cultural contexts that shape design and the ideologies and relationships of similar movements in art and architecture. Includes late nineteenth century through contemporary issues.

DESIGN 209 Fundamentals of Typography (5) VLPA Develops understanding of and sensibility to typographic details used to create effective communication. Focus moves from understanding letter forms that make up words to the complexities of developing phrases, sentences, and short paragraphs with multiple levels of hierarchical meaning. Prerequisite: DESIGN 207.

DESIGN 210 Collaboration and Improvisation (5) VLPA Introduces key factors in the theory and practice of creating and participating in collaborative projects. Focuses on creating and participating in effective teams, understanding strengths and roles within teams, working through team issues, developing techniques for interdisciplinary problem solving. Prerequisite: DESIGN 207.

DESIGN 211 3-D Foundation (5) VLPA Introduction to aesthetic fundamentals of 3-dimensional form. Explores the articulation of form and space in both abstract and applied scenarios. Prepares design students for subsequent work in interaction design, design studies, industrial design, and visual communication design. Prerequisite: DESIGN 210.

DESIGN 212 Introduction to Interaction Design (5) VLPA Introduces human-computer interaction, interface design, and interactive and time-based media for designers. Reviews foundational interaction design concepts such as human factors, perception, cognition, research techniques, and design methods for the design of interactions. Prerequisite: DESIGN 211.

DESIGN 265 Topics in Design (5, max. 20) VLPA Revolving topics class that addresses the thinking, skills, and creative motivations that drive the practice of design.

DESIGN 266 Design Concepts and Practice (5, max. 20) VLPA Revolving topics class that addresses foundational issues and contemporary practice in the field of design.

DESIGN 300 Design and Thinking (5, max. 10) VLPA Ozubko Develops an approach to conceptual problem solving while exploring their fundamental principles of visual communication. Cultivate critical, analytical, and verbal skills through liberal learning experiences and design methodologies. Offered: S.

DESIGN 316 Introduction to Industrial Design (5) VLPA Introduces the fundamentals of 3-D design with emphasis on analytical and intuitive approaches to problem solving, technical skills, and form development. Prerequisite: DESIGN 207; DESIGN 211.

DESIGN 317 Intermediate ID Studio 1 (5) VLPA Introduces theories, methods, and design development focused on design principles involving form, function, usability, and product development. Prerequisite: DESIGN 316.

DESIGN 318 Intermediate ID Studio 2 (5) VLPA Includes studio experiences that expand upon and combine intellectual and manual skills for the practice of industrial design. Emphasizes the ideation process with form development. Prerequisite: DESIGN 317.

DESIGN 319 Advanced Design Drawing (5) VLPA Advanced visualization and drawing using traditional and computer-aided approaches.

DESIGN 320 Industrial Design Special Projects (5, max. 15) VLPA Progressive industrial design methodology and criticism introduced through projects corresponding to major international design competitions, visiting critics and lecturers, corporate sponsored projects, or faculty design research. Independent or group work on projects to expand students' visual research, drawing, modelmaking, presentation, and literacy skills. Includes contemporary manufacturing and information technologies.

DESIGN 322 Presentation for Industrial Design I (5) VLPA Introduction to presentation skills, from quick sketching of design concepts to refined representation of the finished design in a two-dimensional format. Emphasis on accuracy and development of an individual style. Prerequisite: DESIGN 211; DESIGN 212.

DESIGN 323 PRESENTATION FOR INDUSTRIAL DESIGN (5) VLPA

DESIGN 365 Developing Solutions in Design (5, max. 20) VLPA Revolving topics class that concentrates on learning in specific areas where design can be used to resolve contemporary issues.

DESIGN 366 Editorial Visualizations (5) VLPA Expands focus on design process through a broad variety of image production techniques. Emphasizes concept development and the power of the image for storytelling. Design of stand-alone compositions is expanded into the development of a series of themed works. Prerequisite: DESIGN 209; DESIGN 210.

DESIGN 367 Design for Mobile Experiences (5) VLPA Investigation of strategies and graphic interpretations to develop a critical perspective on design for mobile interaction. Emphasizes development of core methodologies, vocabulary, case studies, best practices, application prototypes. Prerequisite: DESIGN 366; DESIGN 376.

DESIGN 368 Case Studies in Corporate Identity (5) VLPA Research and analysis of visual identity systems for complex institutional and corporate entities. Focuses on issues that concern how design programs function across diverse application and media and how they engage various audiences. Prerequisite: DESIGN 377.

DESIGN 376 Typography (5) VLPA Explores how meaning, hierarchy, and legibility are affected by typographic contrast, organization, and composition. Prepares students to create dynamic compositions with type, understand how type is used as an image/conceptual visualization, understand the nuances/techniques involved in a professional typesetting, and develop vocabulary. Prerequisite: DESIGN 209; DESIGN 210.

DESIGN 377 Marks and Symbols (5) VLPA Investigates formal and conceptual problems associated with mark and symbol design. Students individually/collaboratively research and develop a series of marks and symbols for specific organizations. Helps develop the ability to recognize effective marks/symbols that identify/communicate an identity or idea, identify specific types of marks and symbols, and determine the most suitable types for a specific communication problem. Prerequisite: DESIGN 366, DESIGN 376.

DESIGN 378 Information Architecture and Web Design (5) VLPA Fundamental issues in web design, including site planning, information architecture, navigation, visual hierarchy, and interactivity. Emphasis on understanding the unique functional limitations of designing for the web while building an awareness of contemporary design practice. Design a simple site and produce a working prototype. Prerequisite: DESIGN 376.

DESIGN 381 Design Case Studies: Interaction Design Technology and Production (5) VLPA History, theory, and practice of ways design functions in society and culture. Emphasis on developing broad understanding of design production while working collaboratively and individually on a quarter-long research project concerned with producing a comprehensive conceptual map of the design discipline. Prerequisite: DESIGN 211; DESIGN 212.

DESIGN 383 Foundations of Interaction Design (5) VLPA Focus on human-to-product interaction and ways we perceive, understand, and experience the world in regard to objects, environments, or on-screen controls/information. Prerequisite: DESIGN 211; DESIGN 212.

DESIGN 384 Information Visualization for Interaction Designers (5) VLPA Surveys information visualization approaches, techniques, and concepts for the design of interaction information systems, interactive instructions, and animated information graphics. Prerequisite: DESIGN 381; DESIGN 383.

DESIGN 385 Design Innovation and Society (5) VLPA Surveys the role of interaction design and impact of new information technologies and interactive product/systems of everyday life, expert domains, the formation of values and knowledge, and the production of adaptation to innovations. Prerequisite: DESIGN 381; DESIGN 383.

DESIGN 386 Visual Storytelling (5) VLPA Investigates the form and role of visual narratives from design development in the interaction design process. Introduces planning and production of storyboards, photography, video, editing for storytelling, character development, and design concept visualization as they apply to design presentation, communication, and evaluation of interactive design sequences. Prerequisite: DESIGN 384; DESIGN 385.

DESIGN 387 Physical Interaction Design (5) VLPA Surveys approaches, concepts, and techniques for the design of interaction systems that are situated in physical environments. Prerequisite: DESIGN 384; DESIGN 385.

DESIGN 443 Materials and Manufacture in Industrial Engineering (5) VLPA Analyzes materials used in mass-produced products, focusing on how these materials impact product design and on finishing quality of products. Emphasizes materials research and manufacturing processes. Team-based research with multi-media report-out at end of quarter. Prerequisite: DESIGN 211; DESIGN 212.

DESIGN 444 Prototype Project Development (5) VLPA Learn to apply traditional hand tools and digital prototyping machines to the creative process of industrial design.

DESIGN 445 Advanced Industrial Design (5) VLPA Emphasizes solving problems through the manipulation of design theory, application of human factors, appropriate combination of materials and manufacturing techniques, and presentation of concepts. Prerequisite: DESIGN 318; DESIGN 323.

DESIGN 446 Advanced Industrial Design: Professional Practice (5) VLPA Collaboration project with the professional design industry. Students learn how industrial designers brainstorm, develop, and refine initial design concepts to final product solutions. Prerequisite: DESIGN 445.

DESIGN 447 Senior Projects in Industrial Design (5) VLPA Industrial design project of the student's own choosing, with consent of instructor, to refine problem solving and design ability in preparation for graduate exhibition. Prerequisite: DESIGN 446.

DESIGN 466 Publication Design (5) VLPA Stresses the research, development, organization, design, and presentation of a complex printed document, such as a journal, annual report, or large publication. Addresses all aspects of design, content, image creation, and production through a quarter-long project. Prerequisite: DESIGN 368; DESIGN 378.

DESIGN 467 Exhibition and Installation Design (5) VLPA Explores how to communicate powerful messages and stories in three-dimensional space, bringing together typography, imagery, and innovative use of materials and structures. Emphasizes sustainable processes and materials. Prerequisite: DESIGN 211; DESIGN 212.

DESIGN 477 Type Design (3-5) VLPA Exploration of contemporary type design.

DESIGN 478 Information Design (5) VLPA Exploration of strategies for enhancing and visually presenting complex statistics and data. Various information subjects are selected and formed into charts, diagrams, graphs, tables, directories and maps. Identify, through personal investigations, the principles which provide the most successful means for presentation of information. Prerequisite: DESIGN 368; DESIGN 378.

DESIGN 479 Interaction Design (5) VLPA Exploration of design issues unique to user-centered interaction in digital media. Explore a range of formal and conceptual issues including user interface, organization, narrative, motion, time, and sound. Prerequisite: DESIGN 478.

DESIGN 480 Senior Projects in Visual Communication Design (5) VLPA Presents an opportunity for advanced, individualized design research and study. Complete a unique capstone project based on individual design interests and prior experiences in the VCD program. Public exhibition of this project is required in the BFA Graduation Exhibition. Prerequisite: DESIGN 466; DESIGN 476.

DESIGN 481 Field Studies: Design Research Techniques (5) VLPA Students develop an understanding of significant theoretical models related to design through a series of readings, lectures, discussions, and assignments. Prerequisite: DESIGN 386; DESIGN 387.

DESIGN 483 Advanced Interaction Design (5) VLPA Explores the role of visual interface design and interaction flows in technology-driven work settings. Introduces techniques for knowledge elicitation and design of interactive systems in expert domains or special use contexts to develop interface that are useful, understandable, and usable. Prerequisite: DESIGN 383.

DESIGN 484 Senior Projects in Interaction Design (5) VLPA Explores the design of interactive products and user experience in everyday settings. Students apply interaction design and research techniques in a multi-disciplinary studio for a quarter-long interaction design project requiring collaboration between students from a variety of backgrounds including design, engineering, and computer science. Prerequisite: DESIGN 383; DESIGN 483.

DESIGN 488 Portfolio Preparation (3) VLPA Focuses on developing the tools to create a successful transition between academia and professional practice as a working designer. Prerequisite: DESIGN 211; DESIGN 212.

DESIGN 495 Design Internship (1-5, max. 10) Internships for undergraduates in conjunction with design faculty and business partners in the design community. Credit/no-credit only.

DESIGN 499 Individual Projects-Design (2-5, max. 15) Independent projects in design.

DESIGN 581 Graduate Seminar in Design (5, max. 30) Addresses critical issues in design through research, writing, presentations, and discussion.

DESIGN 582 Design Graduate Studio (5, max. 40) Explores a range of ideas and influences in the context of applied design.

Asian Languages and Literature

225 Gowen

The Department of Asian Languages and Literature offers instruction in the principal languages and literatures of Asia, including East, Southeast, Central, and South Asia. Emphasis is placed on the roles of these languages within the cultures they serve as well as on linguistic, textual, and literary analysis. Courses on Asian literature in English are offered for majors and nonmajors alike.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

223A Gowen, Box 353521

(206) 543-4996

The Department of Asian Languages and Literature offers the following undergraduate programs:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with majors in Chinese, Japanese (with either a linguistic or literature concentration), Korean, and South Asian languages and literature (Hindi and Sanskrit)
- Minors in Chinese, Japanese, Korean, and South Asian languages and literature

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: First and second years of the target foreign language(s): Chinese, Japanese, Korean, or South Asian (Hindi or Sanskrit). Any courses relating to the area or discipline of major study.

Department Admission Requirements

1. Minimum 20 credits of college coursework (or department-approved equivalent) in the intended primary language of concentration. The most recent course completed in the intended primary language of concentration must be taken at the UW, with a minimum 2.5.

2. Completion of one writing course (W-prefix) taught in English with a minimum 2.0 grade.
3. The department prefers that prospective majors present a cumulative 2.50 GPA. Students with a cumulative GPA below 2.50 may be considered for the major if they submit materials in addition to transcripts, clarifying any aspect of past coursework. Denied applicants may appeal.
4. Transfer students must be enrolled at the UW before applying to the major.

Note: A student entering the junior year without two years of the appropriate foreign language is not able to complete the degree requirements in two years unless he or she takes accelerated courses such as Chinese or Japanese at the UW during summer quarter.

Major Requirements

At least half the credits for the minor must be taken at the UW.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes:
 - Language: A student of one of the languages achieves competency in speaking, listening, reading, and writing. Skills acquired for the minor include the ability to manage simple spoken communicative tasks and social situations; to understand sentence-length utterances on familiar topics in face-to-face situations; to read simple connected texts dealing with personal and social topics; to write short essays on familiar topics grounded in personal experience and immediate surroundings. Skills acquired for the major include the ability to manage spoken communicative tasks, including topics of common interest, description and narration, expression of personal viewpoints, and presentation and support of an argument; to understand the main idea and important details of connected spoken discourse, ranging from face-to-face situations to radio and TV broadcasting; to understand the main idea and important details of written texts in a range of styles and registers; to write routine social correspondence using the appropriate conventions, and to write connected essays of several paragraphs in an appropriate linguistic register.
 - Linguistics: A student with a minor achieves competency in understanding the basic structure of the language, including its grammatical forms, writing system, and phonology; recognizing the language's historical relationships with other languages in the geographical region; understanding the structured and hierarchical nature of linguistic systems. A student with a major additionally achieves competency in understanding basic linguistic concepts and terminology in such fields as syntax, morphology, and phonology, and applying them to the analysis of the linguistic structures of the language; understanding the historical development of the language, including its historical linguistic features and dialectal development; recognizing the relationship between linguistic structures and literary forms and devices.
 - Literature: A student with a minor achieves competency in identifying major works and forms within the literary tradition; understanding the place of selected literary texts within the ongoing tradition; understanding the historical and cultural contexts of major literary forms and works; understanding the roles of literary works and literary activity within the culture; utilizing basic research skills. A student with a major additionally achieves competency in reading selected literary texts in the original; employing linguistic and philological analysis as tools for understanding literary texts; performing formal analysis of literary texts; analyzing literary texts with reference to relevant literary traditions and intertextual dynamics; analyzing literary texts with reference to their historical background and broader cultural context; practicing critical reading of primary and secondary texts; employing research and writing skills to produce formal written analysis of literary texts.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: None

- Honors Program: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors). With Distinction (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: None offered
- Department Scholarships: None offered
- Student Organizations/Associations: None

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator

225 Gowen, Box 353521

(206) 543-4996

The Department of Asian Languages and Literature offers programs of study leading to the Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees with specializations in (1) the languages and literatures of China; (2) the language and literature of Japan; (3) the languages and literatures of South Asia, subsuming Sanskrit and Hindi; (4) the language and literature of Korea; Buddhist studies. All graduate students in the department must affiliate themselves with one of these programs. The department does not offer degrees or specializations in language pedagogy.

Master of Arts, Buddhist Studies

Admission Requirements

1. An undergraduate major in the language and literature of specialization (four years of language training if the language is Chinese or Japanese; fewer years of language acquisition may be acceptable in South Asian languages), or the background and training equivalent to such a major. Students without such a background may be qualified for admission, but must acquire the program prerequisites during the earliest stages of their graduate study.
2. A statement of academic goals
3. Three letters of recommendation addressed to the Graduate Program Coordinator

Degree Requirements

45-54 credits plus language requirements, as follows:

1. Coursework requirement:
 - a. Non-thesis program: 45 course credits, 18 of which must be at the 500 level and above. Buddhist studies seminars and text reading courses offered within the department must be included. Students are also required to complete language study through the fourth-year level in their major language and through the second-year level in a second Asian language.
 - b. Thesis program: 45 course credits plus 9 thesis credits. At least 18 of the 45 credits must be taken at the 500 level or above. Buddhist studies seminars and text reading courses offered within the department must be included. The language requirements in this program are the same as in the non-thesis program. In addition, the student must write an acceptable MA thesis according to the rules and policies of the Department of Asian Languages and Literature and pass an oral examination.
2. Foreign language requirements: Students must demonstrate competence in their major language, and must complete the course requirements in their second Asian language as outlined above. These two languages may include one classical language and one relevant modern language, or two classical languages. In either case, one of the languages must be Sanskrit. In addition, students must demonstrate through a written examination reading knowledge of one foreign language relevant to their area of specialization, which must be other than English and the student's native language. It may be the student's second Asian language or a European or Asian research language.

Master of Arts, Chinese

Admission Requirements

1. Minimum undergraduate 3.00 GPA in the junior and senior years
2. Three letters of recommendation and a statement of purpose
3. Strong undergraduate preparation in one of the following: Chinese language and literature, another foreign language and literature, Asian regional studies, comparative literature, linguistics, English, philosophy, or history. Applicants are also expected to have completed four years of modern Chinese and one year of classical Chinese, each with a minimum 3.00 GPA.
4. Students lacking such preparation may be admitted to the MA program provisionally, and are required to make up the deficiencies during their first year of residence.

Degree Requirements

38-40 credits, as follows:

1. Two options available: (1) thesis program, and (2) non-thesis program which requires two seminar or research papers in lieu of a thesis, and two 500-level departmental courses in addition to the requirements specified below.
2. Coursework requirements:
 - a. Second-Year Classical Chinese, 15 credits: CHIN 551, CHIN 552, CHIN 553
 - b. Methods and Materials, 5 credits: CHIN 559
 - c. History of Chinese Literature, 5 credits: Any one course of the following three-quarter sequence: CHIN 461, CHIN 462, CHIN 463
 - d. The Chinese Language, 5 credits: CHIN 442
 - e. At least one course from each of the following two groups, 8-10 credits:
 - i. Group I -- Literature: CHIN 461, CHIN 462, CHIN 463; CHIN 482; CHIN 554, CHIN 555, CHIN 556; CHIN 561, CHIN 562, CHIN 563; CHIN 573; CHIN 575; CHIN 580; CHIN 582; CHIN 583; CHIN 590; CHIN 591, CHIN 592, CHIN 593
 - ii. Group II -- Linguistics and Philology: CHIN 443; CHIN 531, CHIN 532, CHIN 533; CHIN 540; CHIN 541; CHIN 542; CHIN 544; CHIN 557; CHIN 558
3. Foreign language requirement: Fulfilled through a graduate reading examination. May be another Asian language or a European language, but not the student's native language, and must be relevant to the student's program of study.
4. MA Examination: Covers Chinese literature: second part focuses on language (linguistics and philology) and texts. Normally taken no later than autumn quarter of the third year.

Master of Arts, Japanese Language and Literature

Admission Requirements

1. Minimum undergraduate 3.00 GPA in the junior and senior years
2. Three letters of recommendation and a statement of purpose
3. Strong undergraduate preparation in any of the following: Japanese language and literature, with the equivalent of at least four years' work in the language; another language and literature, Asian regional studies, comparative literature, linguistics, art history, English, philosophy, or history.

4. While a student lacking such preparation may be admitted, the student is expected to concentrate initially on compensating for deficiencies in background by taking coursework chosen in consultation with the academic adviser. In the case of inadequate training in Japanese, intensive courses in the language are available.

Degree Requirements

45-75 credits, as follows:

1. Coursework: Minimum 45 credits above the 300 level earned through a combination of coursework and research. At least 18 credits must be completed in numerically graded courses at the 400 and 500 level, and 18 credits at the 500 level and above.

The following courses normally constitute a minimal level of training: JAPAN 321, JAPAN 322, JAPAN 323 (no graduate credit); JAPAN 421, JAPAN 422, JAPAN 423; JAPAN 431, JAPAN 432, JAPAN 433; JAPAN 471, JAPAN 472, JAPAN 473. Students whose undergraduate training has provided them with a background comparable to this may enter more advanced courses. Less well prepared students may require a program considerably in excess of the minimum 45 credits.

The student may present research in either of two ways: (1) by submitting a thesis, in which case the student takes at least 36 course credits and 9 thesis credits, or (2) by submitting two research papers written either independently or for courses or seminars, in which case all 45 minimum credits are in course credits.

2. Foreign language requirement: One additional language in addition to the language of specialization. Can be either European or Asian, but should not be English. Language chosen must be relevant to student's program of study, i.e., it provides access to a body of critical literature on the field, e.g., French or German or improves student's grasp of the structure or etymological sources of Japanese, e.g., Chinese or Korean. It may not be the student's native language.
3. MA general examination: Two written examinations, each of two hours' duration, one in pre-modern (pre-Meiji) literature, the other modern. These are intended to examine the student's general mastery of the respective areas.

Master of Arts, Japanese Language and Linguistics

Admission Requirements

1. A minimum undergraduate 3.00 GPA in the junior and senior years
2. Three letters of recommendation and a statement of purpose
3. Strong undergraduate preparation in any of the following: Japanese language and literature, with the equivalent of at least four years' work in the language; another language and literature, Asian regional studies, comparative literature, linguistics, art history, English, philosophy, or history.
4. While a student lacking such preparation may be admitted, the student is expected to concentrate initially on compensating for deficiencies in background by taking coursework chosen in consultation with the academic adviser. In the case of inadequate training in Japanese, intensive courses in the language are available.

Degree Requirements

45-75 credits, as follows:

1. Coursework: 45 credits above the 300 level earned through a combination of coursework and research. At least 18 credits must be completed in numerically graded courses at the 400 and 500 level, and 18 credits at the 500 level and above.

The following courses normally constitute a minimal level of training: JAPAN 421, JAPAN 422, JAPAN 423 (if language training is necessary); JAPAN 342 (no graduate credit); JAPAN 343 (no graduate credit); JAPAN 440; JAPAN 442; JAPAN 443. Students whose undergraduate training has provided them with a background comparable to this may enter more advanced courses. Less well prepared students may require a program considerably in excess of the minimum of 45 credits.

The student may present research in either of two ways: (1) by submitting a thesis, in which case the student takes at least 36 course credits and 9 thesis credits (ASIAN 700), or (2) by submitting two research papers that have been written either independently or for courses or seminars, in which case all 45 minimum credits are in course credits.

2. Foreign language requirement: one additional language in addition to the language of specialization. Can be either European or Asian, but should not be English. Language must be relevant to the student's program of study, i.e., provides access to a body of critical literature on student's field (e.g., French or German) or improves student's grasp of the structure or etymological sources of Japanese, e.g., Chinese or Korean. It may not be the student's native language.
3. Linguistics: Near the end of the course of study, each student takes two written examinations in Japanese linguistics, whether in descriptive linguistics, theoretical linguistics, applied linguistics, or sociolinguistics. These are intended to examine the student's general mastery of the respective areas.

Master of Arts, Korean

Admission Requirements

1. A minimum undergraduate 3.00 GPA in the junior and senior years
2. Three letters of recommendation and a statement of purpose
3. Strong undergraduate preparation in any of the following: Korean language and literature, another language and literature, Asian regional studies, comparative literature, linguistics, English, philosophy, history, or an approved area in the humanities or social sciences
4. Three years of Korean language training. Students lacking such preparation are required to take the necessary courses during their first year of residence.

Degree Requirements

39 credits, as follows:

1. Coursework: KOREAN 415, KOREAN 416, KOREAN 417; ASIAN 498 or KOREAN 462; KOREAN 531; KOREAN 532; ASIAN 700. The student must also either (1) submit a thesis, or (2) submit two research papers in lieu of a thesis.
2. Foreign language requirement: The student must fulfill one additional language requirement in addition to the language of specialization. The language can be either European or an Asian one; however, it should not be English. The language chosen must be relevant to the student's program of study. It may not be the student's native language.
3. MA examination: The student must take a written examination in two parts, each part to be two hours in length. One part is in pre-modern Korean literature, the other modern. The student should take the MA examination no later than autumn quarter of the third year.

Master of Arts, South Asian Languages and Literature

Admission Requirements

1. Minimum undergraduate 3.00 GPA in the last 90 quarter or 60 semester credit hours
2. Three letters of recommendation and a statement of purpose
3. Preference is given to students with prior preparation in a South Asian language and literature, in South Asian regional studies, or in a humanistic discipline pertinent to the study of South Asian civilization. Students lacking such preparation may be admitted to the MA program; however, they must remedy any deficiencies by adding, as early as possible, such courses as the academic adviser considers necessary. South Asian languages in which specializations are offered at the University are Sanskrit and Hindi.

Degree Requirements

45-75 credits, as follows:

1. Coursework:
 - a. Non-thesis program: 45 course credits, 18 of which must be at the 500 level and above. Language study through the fourth-year level in the student's major language and through the second-year level in a second South Asian language. In addition, the student must present two seminar papers which are approved by the student's adviser and at least one other faculty member in the department.
 - b. Thesis program: 45 course credits plus 9 thesis credits. At least 18 of the 45 credits must be taken at the 500 level or above. The language requirements in this program are the same as in the non-thesis program. In addition, the student must write an acceptable MA thesis according to the rules and policies of the Department of Asian Languages and Literature and pass an oral examination.
2. Foreign language requirements: one additional language in addition to the language of specialization. Can be either European or Asian, but should not be English. The language chosen must be relevant to the student's program of study. It may not be the student's native language.

Doctor of Philosophy, Buddhist Studies

Admission Requirements

MA degree in Asian Languages and Literature at the UW and a satisfactory evaluation by South Asian Language program faculty. Students with sufficient background, usually the successful completion of a relevant MA degree at another institution, may be considered for admission into the PhD program.

Degree Requirements

90 credits, as follows:

For the PhD, students are expected to demonstrate the ability to do original research utilizing primary languages of Buddhist traditions in accordance with their chosen areas of concentration. Students are required to demonstrate competence in their major Asian languages and pass written examinations in two research languages other than English and the student's native language (that is, one written examination in addition to the examination completed at the MA level). Where appropriate, students are strongly encouraged to acquire competence in a modern research language in order to pursue research in the field: for example, in India, Nepal, Sri Lanka, Tibet, China, or Japan.

Students are also required to pass four written field examinations selected in accordance with the student's interests. Generally, at least two of these examinations are directly related to some aspect of Buddhist studies and a third falls within the general purview of South Asian languages and literature. A fourth field examination can have as its subject an adjacent field or discipline. Once these field examinations have been satisfactorily completed, the student is eligible to take a two-hour comprehensive oral examination, administered by the student's Supervisory Committee. When that has been passed, students are accorded candidate's status and are ready to submit a dissertation proposal. The PhD is conferred once the completed dissertation has been defended successfully before the student's Supervisory Committee.

Doctor of Philosophy, Chinese

Admission Requirements

After successful completion of 45 credits (a minimum of three quarters) of graduate study in the department, a student wishing to enter the PhD program with specialization in Chinese language and literature submits a formal petition to the department stating post-MA academic plans and goals.

Ideally, the prospective candidate has completed an MA degree in the field of Chinese language and literature prior to entering the PhD program. If the student has an MA in another pertinent field, for example, in linguistics, comparative literature, philosophy, history, or Asian regional studies, it is not necessary to take an additional MA in Chinese language and literature. The student, however, is required to satisfy all course and examination requirements for the MA program in this department. Upon admission to the program, the student should be prepared to take courses in modern Chinese at the 500 level, and should have at least two years of Classical Chinese.

A student who intends to go directly from the BA to the PhD program must present an exceptionally strong background preparation in the disciplines of literary study or linguistics. The student is expected in the course of his or her work to satisfy all curriculum requirements for the MA, and must petition the department for special permission to bypass the MA.

Degree Requirements

1. Course requirements: Complete the course requirements for the MA in Chinese. Equivalent courses from other programs may be substituted subject to written approval by the regular instructor of the course in question. In addition, whichever quarters of the sequence CHIN 461, CHIN 462, CHIN 463 were not taken for the MA must be taken for the PhD. The student's post-MA coursework should be designed, in consultation with the adviser, to fill in gaps or strengthen weaknesses in the student's background, and to establish and develop four fields of special study that the student pursues in some depth in preparation for the general examination.
2. Field requirements: The student is expected to familiarize himself or herself with both the original texts and the secondary scholarship of the field, and to show some potential for carrying out original research in the area or field in question. Each student must pursue four such fields of special study, and is examined separately by an appropriate faculty member prior to the general oral examination. The field examinations must be written.

The four fields that a student elects to study must, in the aggregate, reflect both of the primary components of the department's graduate-level offerings, i.e., language (linguistics and philology) and literature. In at least one field, students are encouraged to incorporate to a significant extent some aspect of Chinese history and culture, exclusive of strictly literary or linguistic facets thereof. With permission of his or her adviser a student may offer one field from outside the department, for example, in general linguistics, literary criticism, a non-Chinese literature, Chinese philosophy or religion, or a particular period of Chinese history. Such a field must be demonstrably related in a significant way to the student's overall course of study.

3. Examinations: The student is examined in each of the four fields separately by an appropriate faculty member. Prior to the general examination the student must demonstrate a reading knowledge of an additional Asian language and a pertinent European language. (The student may apply the foreign language reading examination required for the MA to this requirement.)

Doctor of Philosophy, Japanese

Admission Requirements

Aside from having to complete at least two quarters of graduate study in the department, the student petitioning for admission to pre-candidacy status in the PhD program either must hold the MA degree in Japanese language and literature or must have completed a minimum of 45 course credits and have satisfied the language requirement for the MA. The student should also be taking at least 500-level courses in modern Japanese and should have studied classical Japanese for a minimum of one year. Any insufficiencies in background (e.g., in the case of a student holding an MA in an area other than Japanese language and literature) should be made up before the student petitions for admission to pre-candidacy. The petition indicates that the student feels he or she is prepared to take a written examination on the student's general knowledge of the field and an additional oral diagnostic examination on his or her background and plans for future study. The petition should be submitted only after consultation with the academic adviser.

Degree Requirements

1. Course requirements: In addition to the minimum of 45 credits or its equivalent required for the master's program, the student must take at least 50 credits of coursework on the graduate level. The following courses and dissertation credits are required: JAPAN 501; JAPAN 505, JAPAN 506, JAPAN 507; JAPAN 531, JAPAN 532, JAPAN 533; JAPAN 571, JAPAN 572, JAPAN 573; JAPAN 590; ASIAN 800.
- Additional coursework in related fields may be required to meet the needs of each program. In order to acquire the widest possible background, students are encouraged to take related courses in history, linguistics, religion, and the social sciences. Familiarity with Chinese literature and allied fields as well as with comparative literature is strongly recommended. Each student develops an individualized program of studies in consultation with the academic adviser.
2. Language examinations: In addition to a second language (usually European) required for the MA, the student must demonstrate proficiency in a third language, usually Asian (Chinese is the usual choice for an Asian language, but the student should discuss other possibilities with the adviser). Proficiency must be demonstrated in the third language before the student may proceed to the general examination.

3. Field examination: Upon becoming a precandidate, the student has completed a generalized study of the area of Japanese language and literature, and should choose four specialized fields to study for the next one or two years under the guidance of the Supervisory Committee. The four fields must be sufficiently diverse, and at least one of them must be in language. As the supervisor for each field becomes satisfied that the student has attained sufficient mastery, the supervisor and the student decide on a time for the student to take a written examination.

4. General examination: When the four field examinations and the third language requirement have been satisfied, the academic adviser arranges with the Graduate School for the student to take the oral general examination for admission to candidacy for the doctoral degree.

5. Dissertation and final examination: After achieving candidate status, the student engages in research and the writing of the dissertation. When the reading committee has accepted the dissertation, the Dean of the Graduate School authorizes the Supervisory Committee to hold the final examination in defense of the dissertation, which completes the degree requirements for this program.

Doctor of Philosophy, Korean

Admission Requirements

A student petitions for admission to the PhD program with specialization in Korean literature after successful completion of at least two quarters of graduate study in the Department of Asian Languages and Literature. The student should either have the MA degree in Korean literature or the equivalent, or have satisfactorily completed all coursework required for the MA in Korean literature. The student should be prepared to take 500-level courses in Korean. The petition is submitted after consultation with the student's academic adviser.

Degree Requirements

90 credits, as follows:

1. Coursework:
 - a. Korean language and literature: In addition to the course requirement and examination for the MA in Korean literature, students in the PhD program must complete the following courses: KOREAN 531, KOREAN 532, ASIAN 800.
 - b. Chinese language and literature: Students interested in pre-modern Korean literature are required to take two years of Chinese, at least one year of classical Chinese, and a survey course on pre-modern Chinese literature. Students interested in modern Korean literature are required to take either: (1) three years of Chinese and a survey course in Chinese literature, or (2) three years of Japanese and a survey course in modern Japanese literature.
 - c. Linguistics: Students are encouraged to take linguistics courses that help them prepare for the field examination in a language-related area. Courses to choose from include the following: ASIAN 401, JAPAN 440.
 - d. Interdepartmental: Students are encouraged to take Korea-related courses in other disciplines such as history and anthropology. Familiarity with other literatures and cultures, and coursework in other departments such as Comparative Literature or other language and literature programs is also recommended.
2. Field examinations: With the guidance of an adviser, students develop a plan of study that concentrates on four areas of study, or "fields." A student may offer no more than one Korea-related field from outside the department; three of the fields must be prepared with department faculty. One of the fields may be in another Asian language or literature, depending on the student's interests. At least one of the fields must be related to language.
3. Language examinations: Prior to the general examination, students must demonstrate proficiency of an additional Asian language and a European language. (The student may apply the foreign language required for the MA to this requirement.)
4. General examination, dissertation, final examination: When the four field examinations have been successfully passed, and the second language requirement met, the academic adviser arranges with the Graduate School for the student to take the oral general examination for admission to candidacy for the doctoral degree. This is usually a two-hour long oral examination, and covers principally, but not exclusively, the four fields that the student has prepared. Passing this examination, the student then writes a dissertation, under the direction of a dissertation adviser. An oral final examination in defense of the finished dissertation completes the degree requirements for this program.

Doctor of Philosophy, South Asian Languages and Literature

Admission Requirements

Normally, entry into the program is contingent upon successful completion of the MA degree in Asian Languages and Literature at the UW and a satisfactory evaluation by South Asian Language program faculty. Students with sufficient background, usually the successful completion of a relevant MA degree at another institution, may be considered for admission into the PhD program.

Degree Requirements

90 credits, as follows:

For the PhD, students are required to demonstrate competence in their major South Asian language and pass written examinations in two research languages other than English and the student's native language (that is, one written examination in addition to the examination completed at the MA level). One of these two research languages must be a European language.

Students are also required to pass four written field examinations, at least three of which must fall within the general purview of South Asian languages and literature. A fourth can have as its subject an adjacent field or discipline, if the candidate so chooses—an aspect of South Asian history or art history, for example. Once these field examinations have been satisfactorily completed, the student is eligible to take a two hour comprehensive oral examination, administered by his or her supervisory committee. When that has been passed, students are accorded candidate's status and are ready to submit a dissertation proposal. The PhD is conferred once the completed dissertation has been defended before the student's supervisory committee.

Financial Aid

Financial aid for graduate students newly entering the department is very limited and is awarded on a competitive basis. National Resource Fellowships are awarded for the study of Chinese, Japanese, and Korean. The department offers incoming graduate students limited opportunities for teaching assistant positions in Chinese, Japanese, and Korean. Since some financial aid is wholly or partially determined by need, all prospective students are urged to submit the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) with the College Scholarship Service in New Jersey, and to apply for other forms of aid mentioned in the department's cover letter to prospective students.

KOREAN 442 Special Topics in Korean Language and Culture (5, max. 15) VLPA S. KIM, E. WON Focuses on particular aspects and topics of Korean language and culture. Prerequisite: either KOREAN 203 or KOREAN 212.

KOREAN 445 Foreign Study: Korean Literature (1-15, max. 20) VLPA Modern 400-level Korean language studied abroad in approved programs in Korea. Evaluation by department/faculty required.

KOREAN 495 Foreign Study: Advanced Korean Literature and Linguistics (1-5, max. 20) VLPA Intermediate Korean literature or linguistics studied abroad in approved programs. Evaluation by department/faculty required. Offered: AWSpS.

KOREAN 499 Undergraduate Independent Study (3-5, max. 15) For Korean language and literature majors. Offered: AWSpS.

KOREAN 531 Advanced Readings in Modern Korean Literature (5) Literature and literary criticism in Korean. Prerequisite: fourth-year Korean or equivalent.

KOREAN 532 Advanced Readings in Traditional Vernacular Korean Literature (5) Readings in traditional Korean vernacular literature, including poetry, sung narrative, and fiction. Prerequisite: fourth-year Korean or equivalent.

Sanskrit

SNKRT 301 Introduction to Sanskrit (5) Cox, Salomon Basic grammar and vocabulary of the classical language. Reading of elementary texts from the epic or Puranic literature. First in a sequence of three. Offered: A.

SNKRT 302 Introduction to Sanskrit (5) Cox, Salomon Basic grammar and vocabulary of the classical language. Reading of elementary texts from the epic or Puranic literature. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: SNKRT 301. Offered: W.

SNKRT 303 Introduction to Sanskrit (5) Cox, Salomon Basic grammar and vocabulary of the classical language. Reading of elementary texts from the epic or Puranic literature. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: SNKRT 302. Offered: Sp.

SNKRT 401 Intermediate Sanskrit (5) VLPA Cox, Salomon Further study of classical grammar; introduction to classical literature and Vedic language and texts. First in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: SNKRT 303. Offered: A.

SNKRT 402 Intermediate Sanskrit (5) VLPA Cox, Salomon Further study of classical grammar; introduction to classical literature and Vedic language and texts. Second in a sequence of three. Offered: W.

SNKRT 403 Intermediate Sanskrit (5) VLPA Cox, Salomon Further study of classical grammar; introduction to classical literature and Vedic language and texts. Third in a sequence of three. Offered: Sp.

SNKRT 411 Advanced Sanskrit (5, max. 15) VLPA Cox, Salomon Reading and analysis of classical texts, chosen according to students' interests. First in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: SNKRT 403. Offered: A.

SNKRT 412 Advanced Sanskrit (5, max. 15) VLPA Cox, Salomon Reading and analysis of classical texts, chosen according to students' interests. Second in a sequence of three. Offered: W.

SNKRT 413 Advanced Sanskrit (5, max. 15) VLPA Cox, Salomon Reading and analysis of classical texts, chosen according to students' interests. Third in a sequence of three. Offered: Sp.

SNKRT 491 Vedic Studies (3) VLPA Salomon Readings of selected Vedic texts, with linguistic, religious, and historical analyses. Includes background material on Vedic religion, literature, and culture. First in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: SNKRT 303.

SNKRT 492 Vedic Studies (3) VLPA Salomon Readings of selected Vedic texts, with linguistic, religious, and historical analyses. Includes background material on Vedic religion, literature, and culture. Second in a sequence of three.

SNKRT 493 Vedic Studies (3) VLPA Salomon Readings of selected Vedic texts, with linguistic, religious, and historical analyses. Includes background material on Vedic religion, literature, and culture. Third in a sequence of three.

SNKRT 494 Readings in Religious Classics of India (5) VLPA Reading and analysis of the older religious brahmanical texts. Prerequisite: SNKRT 402.

SNKRT 495 Studies in Indian Thought (3, max. 9) VLPA Cox Religious and philosophical traditions in South Asia. The original documents studied vary from year to year. Prerequisite: SNKRT 402.

SNKRT 499 Undergraduate Research (3-5, max. 15) Primarily for Sanskrit language and literature majors. Offered: AWSpS.

SNKRT 550 Seminar on Sanskrit Literature (3, max. 9) Salomon Detailed study of selected authors, periods, or traditions, within the context of Indian literary history. Prerequisite: SNKRT 403 or permission of instructor.

SNKRT 555 Seminar on Sanskrit Grammar (3, max. 6) Salomon Reading and critical study of traditional literature on grammar and language, including texts of Paninian and other schools. Offered: A.

SNKRT 560 Readings in Philosophical Sanskrit (3, max. 9) Cox, Salomon Intensive reading and analysis of Hindu or Buddhist philosophical texts. Prerequisite: SNKRT 494 or permission of instructor.

SNKRT 570 Seminar in Indian Epigraphy and Paleography (3, max. 6) Salomon Introduction to the study of inscriptions and other original documents in Sanskrit and Prakrit languages and in Kharosthi, Brahmi, and derived scripts. History of writing in India and development of Indic scripts. Methods of critical evaluation of inscriptions as sources of political and cultural history. Prerequisite: SNKRT 403.

SNKRT 581 Readings in Buddhist Texts (3, max. 9) Cox Interpretation of original sources. Texts vary from year to year. Prerequisite: ability to study sources in the original languages, an introduction to Buddhist thought, and permission of instructor.

SNKRT 582 Readings in Buddhist Texts (3, max. 9) Cox Interpretation of original sources. Texts vary from year to year. Prerequisite: ability to study sources in the original languages, an introduction to Buddhist thought, and permission of instructor.

Thai

THAI 111 Elementary Thai (5) Kesavatana-Dohrs Introduction to modern spoken and written Thai. Emphasis on spoken language competence with additional skills in elementary reading and writing. Designed for students with no prior knowledge of Thai. First in a sequence of three. Offered: A.

THAI 112 Elementary Thai (5) Kesavatana-Dohrs Introduction to modern spoken and written Thai. Emphasis on spoken language competence with additional skills in elementary reading and writing. Designed for students with no prior knowledge of Thai. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: THAI 111. Offered: W.

THAI 113 Elementary Thai (5) Kesavatana-Dohrs Introduction to modern spoken and written Thai. Emphasis on spoken language competence with additional skills in elementary reading and writing. Designed for students with no prior knowledge of Thai. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: THAI 112. Offered: Sp.

THAI 145 Foreign Study: Elementary Thai (1-15, max. 20) For participants in study abroad programs who complete elementary language courses in approved programs in Thailand. Evaluation by department faculty required.

THAI 211 Intermediate Thai (5) VLPA Kesavatana-Dohrs Continuation of THAI 113. Expands students' abilities in the four language skills of listening, speaking, reading, and writing. First in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: THAI 113. Offered: A.

THAI 212 Intermediate Thai (5) VLPA Kesavatana-Dohrs Expands students' abilities in the four language skills of listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: THAI 211. Offered: W.

THAI 213 Intermediate Thai (5) VLPA Kesavatana-Dohrs Expands students' abilities in the four language skills of listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: THAI 212. Offered: Sp.

THAI 245 Foreign Study: Intermediate Thai (1-15, max. 20) VLPA For participants in study abroad programs who complete intermediate language courses in approved programs in Thailand. Evaluation by department faculty required.

THAI 311 Advanced Thai (5, max. 15) VLPA Kesavatana-Dohrs Advanced reading and translation of selections from various Thai authors, with occasional practice in conversation and composition. Prerequisite: THAI 213. Offered: A.

THAI 312 Advanced Thai (5, max. 15) VLPA Kesavatana-Dohrs Advanced reading and translation of selections from various Thai authors, with occasional practice in conversation and composition. Prerequisite: THAI 311. Offered: W.

Astrobiology

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

ASTBIO 115 Astrobiology: Life in the Universe (5) NW R. BUICK, D. CATLING, V. MEADOWS, W. SULLIVAN Introduction to the new science of astrobiology, study of the origin and evolution of life on Earth, and the search for microbial and intelligent life elsewhere in the Universe. Designed for non-science, liberal arts majors. Offered: jointly with ASTR 115/BIOL 114/ESS 115/OCEAN 115.

ASTBIO 501 Astrobiology Disciplines (4) R. BUICK, D. CATLING, V. MEADOWS Review of research and subject matter relevant to astrobiology from within the disciplines of biology, astronomy, oceanography, atmospheric science, chemistry, planetary science, and geology. Offered: A, even years.

ASTBIO 502 Astrobiology Topics (4) R. BUICK, D. CATLING, V. MEADOWS Investigation in detail of research topics of current interest. Offered: A, odd years.

ASTBIO 550 Professional Development for Astrobiology (2) Seminar in preparation for the academic job market; writing and reviewing grant proposals; building and managing interdisciplinary research teams; understanding the multiple career paths available in astrobiology; interdisciplinary teaching; and professional ethics. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: W, odd years.

ASTBIO 575 Seminar in Astrobiology (1, max. 10) Discussion of recent research in astrobiology. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: W, even years.

ASTBIO 576 Astrobiology Colloquium (1, max. 15) Current research topics in astrobiology. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: ASp.

ASTBIO 600 Independent Study or Research (*) Study or research under the supervision of individual faculty members.

Astronomy

C319 Physics-Astronomy Building

Modern research in astronomy and astrophysics encompasses a large number of disciplines and specialties. Research areas include planetary systems and astrobiology, stellar structure and evolution, interstellar matter, binaries and compact objects, galactic structure and dynamics, galaxies and quasars, and large scale structure and cosmology.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

C319 Physics-Astronomy, Box 351580

(206) 543-2888

office@astro.washington.edu

The Department of Astronomy offers the following undergraduate program:

- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in astronomy

Bachelor of Science

Suggested First-Year Courses: MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126; MATH 308, MATH 324; PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123. At community colleges it is better to take courses in physics, chemistry, mathematics, and computer science than the usual introductory astronomy courses.

Department Admission Requirements

PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123 (or full transfer equivalent) with a 2.00 cumulative GPA for the three courses.

Major Requirements

89 credits as follows:

1. ASTR 300, ASTR 321, ASTR 322, ASTR 323
2. 9 graded credits of astronomy 400-level courses (with at least 3 credits in ASTR 480 or ASTR 499). Data analysis (ASTR 480) and senior-year research (ASTR 499) are highly recommended, especially for students planning graduate work.
3. PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123; PHYS 224, PHYS 225, PHYS 226, PHYS 227, PHYS 228; PHYS 321, PHYS 322, PHYS 334
4. MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126, and 6 credits from MATH 307, MATH 308, MATH 309, MATH 324, MATH 326, AMATH 352, OR AMATH 353
5. An additional 6 physics credits in courses at the 300 level or above in physics (chosen from PHYS 311, PHYS 323, PHYS 324, PHYS 325, PHYS 328, PHYS 331, PHYS 335, PHYS 421, PHYS 422, PHYS 423, PHYS 424, PHYS 431, PHYS 432, PHYS 433, PHYS 434) or engineering as approved by adviser.
6. No grade below 2.0 is acceptable in courses fulfilling the above requirements.
7. Undergraduates interested in advanced work in astronomy are advised to take a double major in astronomy and physics. Undergraduates interested in immediate employment at an observatory or other scientific institution should include computing and electronics courses as part of their program. As a capstone sequence of hands-on research and dissemination of results, the following is highly recommended: ASTR 480, followed by either ASTR 481 or ASTR 499 or an REU project, and ending with ASTR 482.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: With this degree, students obtain knowledge of the components of the universe, an understanding of the physics of its structure, and the technical skills to obtain and analyze data from telescopes. Graduates go on to graduate school or work at observatories or in industrial applications (lasers, x-ray, optical imaging) or in teaching applications. Students are able to do the following:
 - Understand the principal findings, common application, and current problems within astronomy as a scientific discipline.
 - Be versed in the computational methods and software resources utilized by professional astronomers.

- Have experience operating modern astronomical instrumentation and analyzing a range of experimental data.
- Assess, communicate, and reflect their understanding of astronomy and the results of astrophysical experiments in both oral and written formats.
- Learn in a diverse environment with a variety of individuals, thoughts, and ideas.

• Instructional and Research Facilities: The department operates a 30-inch telescope with modern instrumentation, primarily for students, at the Manastash Ridge Observatory near Ellensburg. The department is also part of a consortium of universities that operate a 3.5-meter optical/infrared telescope located on Sacramento Peak, New Mexico and that are partners in the innovative Sloan Digital Sky Survey and the future Large Synoptic Survey Telescope. Students also have access to a variety of national facilities, such as the Kitt Peak and Cerro Tololo observatories and the Very Large Array. A variety of research is conducted with satellite instruments such as the Hubble Space Telescope. Data analysis and theoretical research are conducted on the department's cluster of computers, and on a variety of UW and national supercomputer facilities. Undergraduate majors often assist faculty members in acquisition, reduction, and interpretation of data.

- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors). With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major).
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: Washington State Space Grant, NSF research experiences for undergraduates. NASA internships, outreach opportunities.
- Department Scholarships: Baer Prize. See adviser for details.
- Student Organizations/Associations: The Society of Physics Students. Undergraduate Astronomy Institute/Palen Radio Astronomy Group. League of Astronomers. See adviser for details.

Of Special Note: The first required astronomy course, ASTR 321, must be preceded by at least one year of college physics and mathematics. Any lower-division astronomy courses count as electives and not as part of the major. To finish in four years, the student must have completed PHYS 123 before winter quarter of the sophomore year. Students are encouraged to take the capstone sequence: spring: ASTR 480; summer: ASTR 481 or ASTR 499 or an REU (Research Experiences for Undergraduates) program; autumn: ASTR 482.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator

C319 Physics-Astronomy, Box 351580

(206) 543-2888

grad@astro.washington.edu

A series of graduate courses in solar system, stellar, galactic, and extragalactic astrophysics is offered. The heart of the graduate program is the collaboration of students and faculty members in research at the frontiers of astronomy. Students work collaboratively with members of the faculty to develop the techniques and insight necessary for successful research and, subsequently, to define a thesis topic. The student's thesis research may use theoretical, computational, or observational material (obtained through the facilities of the UW or one of the national ground- or space-based observatories, or a combination). Active research programs in observations and theory are being carried out in a variety of areas, including astrobiology and extrasolar planets, interplanetary dust and comets, stellar atmospheres and interiors, stellar evolution and populations, interacting binary stars and compact objects, interstellar matter and nebulae, computational astrophysics and data mining, galaxies and quasars, large scale structure and cosmology, and dark matter and energy.

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

Most, though not all, entering students have a bachelor's degree in physics. Entering students are not required to have a background in astronomy, although some knowledge of general astronomy is expected of those to whom a teaching assistantship is offered. Undergraduates interested in a graduate program in astronomy are urged to concentrate on preparation in physics and mathematics before entering.

Visit www.astro.washington.edu/grad for details on admission requirements. Most application material is submitted through the Graduate School online application.

Degree Requirements

90 credits minimum, to include the following:

Typically PhD students take formal courses during their first two years at the UW while at the same time sampling research projects with various faculty. The department offers a full set of graduate astronomy courses covering every major research area in astrophysics. Areas covered include planetary astronomy, stellar interiors and atmospheres, interstellar medium, galaxies, dynamics, cosmology, physical processes, observational astronomy, and a variety of special topics. Even in their first year, students are encouraged to embark on faculty-supervised research programs so they can make informed decisions about a thesis topic and a professional research career.

Core Curriculum: Each quarter of their first two years, students usually take at least two graduate-level core courses in astronomy, along with a third course emphasizing additional physical or mathematical science study or astronomical research. Typical core courses include ASTR 507, ASTR 519, ASTR 521, ASTR 531, ASTR 557, ASTR 561 in one year, and ASTR 508, ASTR 509, ASTR 511, ASTR 512, ASTR 513, ASTR 541, in the alternate year, along with ASTR 500 and ASTR 581 (latter two often offered annually).

Students must pass two examinations, the qualifying examination and the general examination, before being admitted to PhD candidacy. The qualifying examination, a written examination covering general knowledge, must be passed by the end of the third year of matriculation. The general examination is an oral examination on a topic related to a student's proposed PhD research topic. Students embark on their PhD research program after passing the general examination, typically in their third or fourth year at UW. Most students complete their PhD thesis and defense two to three years later.

A Master of Science degree is offered but the department is not currently accepting students for a master's-only program. Students typically earn the master's degree as part of the PhD program. The departmental requirements for a master's degree are either (1) adequate performance on the qualifying exam or (2) an approved and supervised master's thesis.

Assistantships

Normally all students making satisfactory academic progress receive financial support. More than three-quarters of the department's graduate students hold fellowships or research assistantships. A number of teaching assistantships are available, primarily in the elementary astronomy courses.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/.

ASTR 101 Astronomy (5) NW, QSR Introduction to the universe, with emphasis on conceptual, as contrasted with mathematical, comprehension. Modern theories, observations; ideas concerning nature, evolution of galaxies; quasars, stars, black holes, planets, solar system. Not open for credit to students who have taken ASTR 102 or ASTR 301; not open to upper-division students majoring in physical sciences or engineering. Offered: AWSpS.

ASTR 102 Introduction to Astronomy (5) NW, QSR Emphasis on mathematical and physical comprehension of nature, the sun, stars, galaxies, and cosmology. Designed for students who have had algebra and trigonometry and high school or introductory-level college physics. Cannot be taken for credit in combination with ASTR 101 or ASTR 301. Offered: A.

ASTR 105 Exploring the Moon (5) NW Smith Examines the questions why did we go to the moon, what did we learn, and why do we want to go back. Offered: W.

ASTR 115 Astrobiology: Life in the Universe (5) NW R. BUICK, D. CATLING, V. MEADOWS, W. SULLIVAN Introduction to the new science of astrobiology, study of the origin and evolution of life on Earth, and the search for microbial and intelligent life elsewhere in the Universe. Designed for non-science, liberal arts majors. Offered: jointly with AST-BIO 115/BIOL 114/ESS 115/OCEAN 115.

ASTR 150 The Planets (5) NW, QSR For liberal arts and beginning science students. Survey of the planets of the solar system, with emphases on recent space exploration of the planets and on the comparative evolution of the Earth and the other planets. Offered: AWSpS.

ASTR 160 Introduction to Exoplanets (3/5) NW Introduction to exoplanets. Explores how studies of extrasolar planets have changed our views of how planets and planetary systems form and evolve. Examines the science behind the search for Earth-like planets and life beyond our Solar System. May not earn credit if credit earned in ASTR 419. Recommended: one 100- or 200-level astronomy course.

ASTR 190 Modern Topics in Astronomy for Non-Science Majors (3/5, max. 10) NW Topics of current interest, such as origin of chemical elements, novae and supernovae, white dwarfs, neutron stars, black holes, active galaxies, quasars, or interstellar medium and astrochemistry. Choice of topics depends on instructor and class interest. Prerequisite: either one 100- or one 200-level ASTR course.

ASTR 192 Pre-Major in Astronomy Research Seminar (3-5) NW Introduction to astronomical computing and research methods for students interested in astronomy and in the premajor-in-astronomy program. Co-requisite: ASTR 102. Offered: A.

ASTR 201 The Universe and the Origin of Life (5) NW, QSR Sequel to 101 or 102, emphasizing modern views of the atomic and molecular evolution of the universe from the initial "big bang" through the formation of the solar system and the emergence of biological forms on the earth. The latter part of the course considers questions about the existence of, and communication with, extraterrestrial intelligent life, and finally the ultimate fate of the cosmos.

ASTR 210 Distance and Time: Size and Age in the Universe (5) NW, QSR Space and time as basic concepts in physical science. How we define and measure them, how the concepts have developed over the centuries, and how modern measurements allow us to determine the size and age of the universe.

ASTR 211 The Universe and Change (5) NW, QSR Gravity as central to the form and evolution of the universe. Conceptual formulation of gravity from the Renaissance to Einstein. Its consequences from the falling of an apple to the slowing of the expansion of the universe. Offered: W.

ASTR 270 Public Outreach in Astronomy (3) VLPA/NW Emphasis on giving effective scientific presentations, developing and giving educational programs to school-age groups, and communicating knowledge of astronomy to others. Give talks at the Jacobsen Observatory on campus and presentations in the Astronomy Department's planetarium. Learn to operate a telescope and the planetarium equipment. Prerequisite: one astronomy course at either the 100-, 200-, or 300-level. Offered: Sp.

ASTR 300 Introduction to Programming for Astronomical Applications (2) QSR Smith Introduction to programming needed for astronomical applications: Linux operating systems, PERL, IDL. Recommended for astronomy majors planning to take 400-level astronomy courses, to pursue individual research projects, or to apply for research experience for undergraduate appointments. Prerequisite: either ASTR 321, ASTR 322, or ASTR 323, any of which may be taken concurrently. Offered: AW.

ASTR 301 Astronomy for Scientists and Engineers (3) NW Introduction to astronomy for students in the physical sciences or engineering. Topics similar to ASTR 101, but the approach uses more mathematics and physics. Prerequisite: PHYS 123.

ASTR 313 Science in Civilization: Physics and Astrophysics Since 1850 (5) I&S/NW Organization and pursuit of the physical and astrophysical sciences, focusing on the major unifying principles of physics and astronomy and the social and cultural settings in which they were created. Offered: jointly with HSTCMP 313.

ASTR 321 The Solar System (3) NW Solar system; planetary atmospheres, surfaces and interiors, the moon, comets. The solar wind and interplanetary medium. Formation of the solar system. Prerequisite: PHYS 224 which may be taken concurrently. Offered: A.

ASTR 322 The Contents of Our Galaxy (3) NW Introduction to astronomy. Basic properties of stars, stellar systems, interstellar dust and gas, and the structure of our galaxy. Prerequisite: PHYS 224 which may be taken concurrently; recommended: PHYS 225 which may be taken concurrently. Offered: W.

ASTR 323 Extragalactic Astronomy and Cosmology (3) NW Galaxies, optical and radio morphology and properties. Clusters of galaxies, radio sources, and quasars. Observational cosmology. Prerequisite: ASTR 322 which may be taken concurrently. Offered: Sp.

ASTR 400 Undergraduate Research Seminar (1) NW Introduces research topics conducted by astronomy faculty. Each week a faculty member describes her/his current research and the opportunities available for interested majors to participate in the research. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: A.

ASTR 419 Exoplanets (3) NW Exoplanet properties, discovery, and habitability. Examines the science involved in the search for Earth-like planets and life beyond our Solar System. Topics include: exoplanet environments, modelling exoplanet planetary systems, planetary habitability, detection, and properties of exoplanets. May not earn credit if credit earned in ASTR 160. Prerequisite: ASTR 321.

ASTR 421 Stellar Observations and Theory (3) NW Observations and theory of the atmospheres, chemical composition, internal structure, energy sources, and evolutionary history of stars. Prerequisite: ASTR 322. Offered: W.

ASTR 423 High-Energy Astrophysics (3) NW High-energy phenomena in the universe. Includes supernova, pulsars, neutron stars, x-ray and gamma-ray sources, black holes, cosmic rays, quasi stellar objects, active galactic nuclei, diffuse background radiations. Radiative emission, absorption processes, and models derived from observational data. Prerequisite: PHYS 224; PHYS 225.

ASTR 425 Cosmology (3) QSR Agol, Connolly, Quinn Studies the universe as a whole. Overview of fundamental observations of cosmology and an introduction to general relativity. Examines theories of the past and future history of the universe, the nature of dark matter and dark energy, and the origin of ordinary matter on the large-scale structure. Prerequisite: PHYS 224; PHYS 225.

ASTR 427 Methods of Computational Astrophysics (3) NW Quinn Provides hands-on experiences in writing computer programs to solve astrophysics problems. Topics include: interpolation and extrapolation, integration, ordinary, differential equations, root finding, optimization, linear algebra, Monte-Carlo partial differential equations, and parallel techniques.

ASTR 480 Introduction to Astronomical Data Analysis (5) NW Hands-on experience with electronic imaging devices (CCDs) and software for image reduction and analysis. Introduction to operating systems, reduction software, and statistical analysis with applications to CCD photometry. Prerequisite: ASTR 300; ASTR 323, which may be taken concurrently. Offered: Sp.

ASTR 481 Introduction to Astronomical Observation (5) NW Theory and practice of obtaining optical data at a telescope. Preparation, obtaining data with a CCD on a telescope, and subsequent data analysis for completion of a research project. Prerequisite: ASTR 480. Offered: S.

ASTR 482 Writing Scientific Papers (2) Szkody Principles of organizing, developing, and writing resumes, scientific research papers for journals, and astronomy articles for general public interest. Prerequisite: ASTR 481, ASTR 499, PHYS 494, PHYS 495, or PHYS 496, any of which may be taken concurrently. Offered: A.

ASTR 497 Topics in Current Astronomy (1-3, max. 9) NW Recent developments in one field of astronomy or astrophysics.

ASTR 498 Independent Study (1-3, max. 15) NW Astronomy-related projects supervised by a faculty member. Projects may be hardware, software, or library work in preparation for conducting astronomical research. Credit/no-credit only.

ASTR 499 Undergraduate Research (*, max. 15) Special astronomical problems and observational projects, by arrangement with instructor.

ASTR 500 Practical Methods for Teaching Astronomy (1-3, max. 5) Seminar in the preparation of lecture and workshop materials with emphasis on demonstration, visual aids, and the evaluation of students' progress. Credit/no-credit only.

ASTR 507 Physical Foundations of Astrophysics I (3) Thermodynamics from an astronomer's point of view: black body radiation, basic radiative transfer, equation of state, degenerate gases, crystallization at high density.

ASTR 508 Physical Foundations of Astrophysics II (3) Introduction to astronomical hydrodynamics and magnetohydrodynamics, basic theorems and application to stellar and interstellar magnetic fields. Introduction to plasma physics and waves in a plasma.

ASTR 509 Physical Foundations of Astrophysics III (3) Potential theory as applied to astrophysical systems. Orbits. Integrals of motion. Equilibrium and stability of stellar systems. Encounters of stellar systems. Kinetic theory of collisional systems. Applications of stellar dynamics to star clusters, galaxies, and large-scale structure.

ASTR 510 Nuclear Astrophysics (3) Big bang nucleosynthesis; nuclear reactions in stars; solar neutrinos and neutrino oscillations; core-collapse supernovae; nucleosynthesis in stars, novae, and supernovae; neutron stars; composition and sources of cosmic rays; gamma ray bursts; atmospheric neutrinos. Offered: jointly with PHYS 554; A.

ASTR 511 Galactic Structure (3) Kinematics, dynamics, and contents of the galaxy. Spiral structure. Structure and evolution of galaxies.

ASTR 512 Extragalactic Astronomy (3) Types of galaxies. Integrated properties, content, and dynamics. Extragalactic distance scale, groups and clusters. Radio sources. Observational cosmology.

ASTR 513 Cosmology and Particle Astrophysics (3) Big bang cosmology; relativistic world models and classical tests; background radiation; cosmological implications of nucleosynthesis; baryogenesis; inflation; galaxy and large-scale structure formation; quasars; intergalactic medium; dark matter.

ASTR 519 Radiative Processes in Astrophysics (3) Theory and applications of astrophysical radiation processes: transfer theory; thermal radiation; theory of radiation fields and radiation from moving charges; bremsstrahlung; synchrotron; Compton scattering; plasma effects.

ASTR 521 Stellar Atmospheres (3) Theory of continuous radiation and spectral line formation. Applications to the sun and stars. Prerequisite: PHYS 421 or equivalent.

ASTR 531 Stellar Interiors (4) Physical laws governing the temperature, pressure, and mass distribution in stars. Equation of state, opacity, nuclear energy generation, computational methods. Models of main sequence stars and star formation. Prerequisite: PHYS 421 or equivalent.

ASTR 532 Stellar Evolution (3) Theoretical and observational approaches to stellar evolution. Structure of red giants, supernovae, and white dwarfs. Observations of star clusters and the chemical composition of stars as they relate to the theory of stellar structure. Prerequisite: ASTR 531.

ASTR 541 Interstellar Matter (3) Physical conditions and motions of neutral and ionized gas in interstellar space. Interstellar dust, magnetic fields, formation of grains, clouds, and stars. Prerequisite: modern physics or permission of instructor.

ASTR 555 Planetary Atmospheres (3) Problems of origin, evolution, and structure of planetary atmospheres, emphasizing elements common to all; roles of radiation, chemistry, and dynamical processes; new results on the atmospheres of Venus, Mars, Jupiter, and other solar system objects in the context of comparative planetology. Offered: jointly with ATM S 555/ESS 581.

ASTR 557 Origin of the Solar System (3) Nebular and non-nebular theories of the solar system origin; collapse from the interstellar medium, grain growth in the solar nebula, formation of planetesimals and planets, early evolution of the planets and other possible planetary systems; physical and chemical evidence upon which the ideas concerning the origin of the solar system are based. Offered: jointly with ESS 583.

ASTR 561 High Energy Astrophysics (3) Observed properties of supernovae, x-ray stars, radio sources, quasars. Theories explaining such objects. Origin of cosmic rays.

ASTR 575 Seminar in Astronomy (1-2, max. 20) Discussion of recent research in astronomy and astrophysics. Prerequisite: permission of department. Credit/no-credit only.

ASTR 576 Astronomy Colloquium (1, max. 20) Current research topics in astronomy and astrophysics. Prerequisite: permission of department. Credit/no-credit only.

ASTR 581 Techniques in Optical Astronomy (5) Theory and practice of obtaining optical data. Astronomical photoelectric photometers, spectrographs, interferometers, CCDs, and infrared equipment. Data-reduction techniques with emphasis on statistical analysis using digital computers. Observations with MRO thirty-inch telescope.

ASTR 597 Topics in Observational Astrophysics (1-5, max. 20)

ASTR 598 Topics in Theoretical Astrophysics (1-5, max. 20)

ASTR 599 Advanced Astronomy Seminar (1-3, max. 6) Practical exercises in astrophysics. Emphasis on methods and techniques of simulation, acquisition, evaluation, and analysis of observational data and its interpretation using models of astrophysical systems. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

Biochemistry

303 Bagley

Biochemistry is the study of the living organism at the molecular level. It draws on the techniques of analytical, organic, inorganic, and physical chemistry in determining the molecular basis of vital processes.

The Biochemistry Program offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in biochemistry (requires 195 credits)
- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in biochemistry

Suggested First- and Second-Year Courses: BIOL 180, BIOL 200 (or BIOL 201, BIOL 202); CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165), CHEM 237, CHEM 238, CHEM 239, CHEM 241, CHEM 242; MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126; PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123 (or PHYS 114, PHYS 115, PHYS 116 with one physics lab course strongly recommended).

Bachelor of Science

Program Admission Requirements

Application to BA and BS degree programs in biochemistry is competitive. Applicants are considered in the following groups: Direct Freshman Admission, Research/Honors Admission, Early Admission, and Regular Admission. Completion of minimum requirements described below does not guarantee admission. All applicants have the right to petition and appeal the department's admission decision. Applications are considered twice each academic year and are due on the second Friday of October and the second Friday of April, with the exception of Direct Freshman Admission. The application and additional information is available at depts.washington.edu/chem/undergrad/.

Direct Freshman Admission

1. Open to freshman students formally admitted to the UW.
2. Score of 5 on the AP chemistry examination.
3. Indication on the UW freshman application of biochemistry as the student's first choice of major.
4. Successful direct-admission applicants generally have received a minimum 1400 on the SAT (math and verbal sections), or minimum 30 on the ACT.
5. Admission is for autumn quarter only.

Research/Honors Admission

1. Students with exceptional records can apply for consideration for admission to the biochemistry major via the Honors or Research track. Students seeking admission should submit an application that includes:
 - a. Cover sheet (available on the Department of Chemistry website)

- b. Unofficial transcript
 - c. Statement of purpose. May include a description of interest in biochemistry, career goals, undergraduate research interests, degree interest (BA or BS), and any other information applicant believes is useful in evaluating the application.
 - d. (Research track only) Written letter or recommendation from research adviser.
2. Honors Track. Students participating in the chemistry Honors sequence who have completed the following courses with a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00: CHEM 145, CHEM 155 (10 credits); MATH 124 and MATH 125, or MATH 134 and MATH 135 (10 credits).
 3. Research Track. Students who have performed at least 6 credits of undergraduate research (CHEM 199, CHEM 299, or higher) and who provide a strong recommendation from faculty research adviser. Chemistry undergraduate research may be considered as well.

Early Admission

1. Course requirements: CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165) (15 credits). BIOL 180 (5 credits); MATH 124, MATH 125 (or MATH 134, MATH 135) (10 credits).
2. Factors included in the admission decision include academic performance as measured by GPA in courses required for application, difficulty of other courses completed, frequency of incompletes or withdrawal grades, number of repeated courses, relevant work and life experience, and record of honors.
3. Successful applicants for the BS biochemistry program typically have a cumulative GPA greater than 3.20 in courses listed above under course requirements. Successful applicants for the BA biochemistry program typically have a cumulative GPA greater than 3.00 in courses listed above under course requirements.

Regular Admission

1. Course requirements: CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165) (15 credits). CHEM 237, CHEM 238 (or CHEM 335, CHEM 336) (8 credits). BIOL 180, BIOL 200 (10 credits). MATH 124, MATH 125 (or MATH 134, MATH 135) (10 credits).
2. Factors in the admission decision include academic performance as measured by GPA in courses required for application, difficulty of other courses completed, frequency of incompletes or withdrawal grades, number of repeated courses, relevant work and life experience, and record of honors.
3. Successful applicants for the BS biochemistry program typically have a cumulative GPA greater than 2.50 in courses listed above under course requirements, with no individual course grade lower than a 2.0. Successful applicants for the BA biochemistry program typically have a cumulative GPA greater than 2.00 in courses listed above under course requirements, with no individual grade below a 1.7.

Major Requirements

105 credits, as follows:

1. General Chemistry: CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165)
2. Organic Chemistry: CHEM 237, CHEM 238, CHEM 239, CHEM 241, CHEM 242 (or CHEM 335, CHEM 336, CHEM 337, CHEM 346, CHEM 347)
3. Physical Chemistry: CHEM 452, CHEM 453 (or CHEM 455, CHEM 456, CHEM 457)
4. Biochemistry: BIOC 426, BIOC 440, BIOC 441, BIOC 442
5. Biology: BIOL 180, BIOL 200
6. Mathematics: MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136)

7. Physics: PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHY 123 (or PHYS 114, PHYS 115, PHYS 116), with the PHYS 121 sequence recommended
8. Genome Science: GENOME 361 or GENOME 371
9. 11 credits chosen from a current department list (available in 303 Bagley or at depts.washington.edu/chem/undergrad/degreeeqs.html) of upper-division science classes including math, biology, microbiology, chemistry, and genome sciences. Up to 9 credits of approved advanced-level undergraduate research may also be applied to this requirement. Research conducted outside chemistry or biochemistry must first be approved by a biochemistry adviser.
10. Grade and Graduation Requirements: A minimum grade of 2.0 and a minimum cumulative 2.50 GPA required for all chemistry, biology, and biochemistry courses counted toward the major. Minimum 2.50 GPA required for the BIOC 440, BIOC 441, and BIOC 442 sequence. Minimum overall cumulative 2.50 GPA required for graduation.

Bachelor of Arts

Program admission requirements same as for BS degree, above.

Major Requirements

90-92 credits as follows:

1. General Chemistry: either CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162, (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165)
2. Organic Chemistry: either CHEM 237, CHEM 238, CHEM 239, CHEM 241, CHEM 242, or CHEM 335, CHEM 336, CHEM 337, CHEM 346, CHEM 347
3. Biochemistry: BIOC 405, BIOC 406
4. Physical Chemistry: CHEM 452, CHEM 453
5. Biology: BIOL 180, BIOL 200
6. Mathematics: either MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126, or MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136
7. Physics (12-15 credits): either PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123, or PHYS 114, PHYS 115, PHYS 116
8. Science Electives: 9 credits to be taken from a current department list available in 303 Bagley or at depts.washington.edu/chem/undergrad/degreeeqs.html. Up to 3 credits of advanced undergraduate research may count toward this requirement. Research conducted outside chemistry or biochemistry must first be approved by a biochemistry adviser.
9. Grade and Graduation Requirements: Minimum grade of 1.7 in chemistry, biochemistry, and biology courses required for the major. Minimum cumulative 2.00 GPA required for graduation.

Continuation Policy

All students must make satisfactory academic progress in the major. Failure to do so results in probation, which can lead to dismissal from the major. For the complete continuation policy, contact the departmental adviser or refer to the department website.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: At the conclusion of their studies, graduating biochemistry majors should possess a general working knowledge of the basic areas of biochemistry; be proficient in basic laboratory skills; have the ability to carry out strategies for solving scientific problems; have an understanding of the principles and applications of modern instrumentation, computation, experimental design, and data analysis; have had the opportunity to gain experience with a research project; have the ability to communicate scientific information clearly and precisely; have the ability to read, understand, and use scientific literature; have an awareness of the broader implications of biochemical processes; have had the opportunity to work as part of a team to solve scientific problems; and have had an introduction to opportunities in, and requirements for, the careers available to biochemistry majors.

Students planning a career in biomedical research, the health professions, or biotechnology find the biochemistry degree to be an excellent choice. The degree is also good preparation for graduate school in any aspect of biochemical or biomedical research.

- Instructional and Research Facilities: Research facilities for the department are housed in the Biochemistry-Genetics Building, which provides approximately 52,000 square feet of research space, conference rooms, and a departmental library. In the immediate vicinity are the departments of Immunology, Genome Sciences, Microbiology, and Pharmacology, as well as programs in biomolecular structure, molecular medicine, neurobiology, and molecular and cellular biology, with which the department has common research interests. Laboratories are equipped with modern research equipment and are supported by external, centralized research facilities. An emphasis on biomedical research is facilitated by the location of the department within the School of Medicine.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: No formal internship program. Students are encouraged to pursue national and regional internships. See adviser for more information.
- Program Scholarships: Resident tuition scholarships and book prizes are awarded annually by the Department of Chemistry to eligible chemistry and biochemistry majors. Applications are available during the month of March for the following academic year. See department adviser for more information.
- Student Organizations/Associations:
 - Alpha Chi Sigma: the UW affiliate of the national chemistry-related science organization for chemistry and biochemistry majors
 - Phi Lambda Upsilon: the UW affiliate of the national chemistry honorary society
 - The Free Radicals: a general undergraduate club for chemistry and biochemistry majors.

Of Special Note:

- The Bachelor of Science in Biochemistry degree requires a minimum of 195 credits.
- Students are strongly encouraged to participate in undergraduate research.

Biology

106 Kincaid

Biology is the broadly based study of living organisms and has become an increasingly dynamic and wide-ranging discipline. It may be approached by focus on cell and molecular processes, development, organismal physiology and morphology, natural history, evolution, conservation, or ecology. The aim is to elucidate general principles applicable to many different sorts of organisms rather than to concentrate on any particular taxonomic group. Biology is often interdisciplinary in nature and may involve aspects of biochemistry, botany, genetics, microbiology, zoology, and many other natural sciences.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

bioladv@uw.edu

The Department of Biology offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in biology.
- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in biology. Students choose one of the following options: ecology, evolution, and conservation; general; molecular, cellular, and development; physiology; and plant.
- A minor in paleobiology.

Designed for students desiring breadth of training, the Bachelor of Arts program does not require physics. Students do not select an emphasis, and hence have greater flexibility in upper-division biology electives.

The Bachelor of Science options are as follows:

- Ecology, Evolution, and Conservation. Emphasizes ecological and evolutionary processes and conservation biology. Relates these areas to systematics, the distribution and abundance of organisms, and environmental policy. Prepares students for graduate study in ecology and evolution, for professional schools that seek individuals with strong system-level approaches to problem solving, and for careers in natural resources and conservation.
- General. Emphasizes breadth of training in biology. This is the most flexible program and offers a greater variety of advanced electives than other options. Attractive to students desiring K-12 teaching credentials or who otherwise wish to tailor their degree to their needs.
- Molecular, Cellular, and Development. Designed for students who wish to pursue graduate studies in genetics, biochemistry, microbiology, cell biology, or developmental biology, as well as for candidates for professional schools such as medicine and dentistry.
- Physiology. Emphasizes physiological processes from the cellular to the organismal levels, and across all groups of organisms. An attractive option for students interested in graduate and professional fields in animal and human physiology, medicine, and veterinary sciences.
- Plant. Offers students both breadth and depth of training in the field of botany. Ideal for students desiring to enter graduate programs in botany or for those wishing to pursue careers in the plant biology or horticultural fields in state and federal agencies.

Each of the above bachelor's degree programs in the biological sciences can be combined with Washington State requirements to prepare students to teach biology in public schools at the secondary level. See the Biology Teaching Program adviser for specific requirements.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: Same as for the Bachelor of Science degree as described below, except no physics or third quarter of organic chemistry is required.

Department Admission Requirements

Same as for the Bachelor of Science degree as described below.

Major Requirements

90 credits as follows:

1. Introductory biology, three to six quarters of chemistry, mathematics, and genetics are the same as required by the BS, listed below. However, physics is not required and the remaining 36 upper-division elective credits may be chosen from any biology course or any courses on the electives lists from the five options for the BS degree.

2. Additional Degree Requirements

- a. Minimum 15 credits of 400-level biology electives taken at the UW.
- b. Minimum GPA requirements same as for a BS

Bachelor of Science

Suggested First- and Second-Year Courses: Students should concentrate on general chemistry and mathematics the first year, biology and organic chemistry the second year (see major requirements for specific courses). Transfer students: complete an entire sequence at one school if possible. It is not necessary, or even desirable, to complete the Areas of Knowledge requirement during the first two years.

Department Admission Requirements

Application to the BA and BS degree programs is competitive. Applications, accepted quarterly, are due the second Friday of autumn, winter, spring, and summer quarters, by 11:59 p.m. Applications received by the system after the quarterly deadline are considered for the subsequent quarter.

Minimum requirements for consideration:

1. Matriculated student in good academic standing at UW Seattle.
2. Minimum 2.0 grade in each of BIOL 180, BIOL 200, and BIOL 220
3. Minimum 2.50 cumulative GPA for any supporting chemistry, physics, mathematics, and biology courses (or other courses that may apply to major requirements) completed at time of application.
4. Personal statement: May include description of interest in biology, career goals, undergraduate research interests, degree interest (BA or BS), and any other information applicant believes is useful in evaluating the application.

Meeting minimum requirements does not guarantee admission. Other factors include overall academic record and difficulty of other courses completed; time to degree set by UW Satisfactory Progress Policy, including frequency of incompletes or withdrawal grades and number of repeated courses; relevant work and life experience; and record of honors.

Major Requirements

90 credits as follows for all options:

1. A one-year sequence of introductory biology for majors (BIOL 180, BIOL 200, BIOL 220)
2. Three to six quarters of chemistry, covering general and organic chemistry: CHEM 120, CHEM 220, and CHEM 221; or CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 223, and CHEM 224; or CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162* and CHEM 237, CHEM 238, and CHEM 239
3. One of the following two-quarter sequences of mathematics (calculus/statistics):
 - a. MATH 124 and MATH 125
 - b. Q SCI 291 and Q SCI 292
 - c. Either BIOST 310, Q SCI 381, or STAT 311; Q SCI 482
 - d. One approved calculus class and one approved statistics class; see adviser for approved lists.
 - e. Two quarters of physics: PHYS 114 and PHYS 115, or PHYS 121 and PHYS 122
 - f. Genetics: either GENOME 361, GENOME 371, or BIOL 340/FISH 340.

g. Natural history/biodiversity: one course selected from approved list (3 credits)

h. Option Requirement: 300- and 400-level courses selected from lists specific to each option. See department website for additional information. (34 credits)

*CHEM 162 is not required for this degree; however, CHEM 237, CHEM 238, and CHEM 239 are required by many professional programs and graduate schools, and that sequence does require CHEM 162.

4. Additional Degree Requirements:

- a. Minimum 2.00 cumulative GPA for all UW courses applied toward major requirements, including required supporting courses (chemistry, physics, mathematics), introductory biology, and upper-division coursework. (A grade of 2.0 is not required in individual courses.)
- b. Minimum 15 credits of 400-level biology electives taken at the UW.
- c. Two 300- or 400-level laboratory courses

Because of the differing specific requirements and choices for each option, it is extremely important for students to work closely with the Biology departmental advisers to insure completion of these 22-25 credits.

Continuation Policy

All students must make satisfactory academic progress in the major. Failure to do so results in probation, which can lead to dismissal from the major. For the complete continuation policy, contact the departmental adviser or refer to the department website.

Minor

Paleobiology

Along with the Departments of Anthropology and Earth and Space Sciences, the Department of Biology offers a minor in paleobiology. For more information on the minor, see its entry elsewhere in the General Catalog.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The department graduates between 350 and 400 students each year. Biology degrees are applicable to many different fields, depending upon student interests. Students in the program gain analytical and laboratory skills that prepare them for entry-level positions in a variety of biologically related areas, including, but not limited to, biotechnology, laboratory and/or field research support, health science support, wildlife biology, and ecology and conservation work with a variety of agencies, consulting firms, and research organizations in the Northwest. Students may enter graduate programs that focus on some aspect of biological science (such as genetics, microbiology, immunology, ecology, environmental health, or cell and molecular biology), or enter a variety of professional programs, such as veterinary medicine, medicine, dentistry, pharmacy, laboratory medicine, and nursing.

- Instructional and Research Facilities: The Department of Biology occupies 128,000 square feet in Hitchcock, Johnson, and Kincaid Halls. Extensive research laboratories, teaching laboratories, computer workstations, and support services are found throughout the department.

Specialized facilities include more than 16,000 square feet of greenhouse, seawater facilities, growth rooms, electron microscopes, and other specialized equipment. Undergraduates have access to most of these facilities, especially those engaged in undergraduate research.

Off campus, the internationally recognized Marine Research Station, Friday Harbor Laboratories, provides many opportunities for undergraduates, from courses to research apprenticeships.

- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: Biology faculty welcome undergraduates into their research programs, often working closely with them. Approximately 40 percent of the 900 undergraduate biology majors finish with undergraduate research experience.

UW proximity to such Seattle area organizations as the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, Swedish Hospital, numerous biotech companies, NOAA, National Marine Fisheries Research Center, the Seattle Aquarium, and the Woodland Park Zoo, as well as the close ties of Biology faculty to Friday Harbor Laboratories and the faculty in the College of the Environment provide opportunities for biology majors to develop internships within these organizations. See adviser for ways to get credit for such experiences.

- Department Scholarships: Several scholarships are available, in a few cases to biology majors only. Most of these support students wishing to pursue an undergraduate research experience. They are competitive, sometimes highly so. They include:
 - Howard Hughes Undergraduate Research Internship: approximately 20 per year for freshmen and 20 per year for juniors and seniors.
 - Friday Harbor Laboratory (FHL) Apprenticeships: $3,000 for one quarter, spring or autumn.
 - Mary Gates Scholarships: very competitive, across all science disciplines.
 - Herschel and Caryl Roman Scholarship: $2,500-$5,000 annually to one or two students who have an interest in genetics research.
 - Porath/Johnson Endowed Scholarship: one-year, $5,000 scholarship to an outstanding biology major.

For qualifications, deadlines, and other details, see adviser or consult the Department of Biology website.

- Student Organizations/Associations: Beta Beta Beta Biology Honor Society, tribeta@uw.edu; Pre Med Society (Alpha Epsilon Delta), aed@uw.edu.

Degree Requirements

1. Request appointment of a Supervisory Committee no later than autumn quarter of the second year in residence. Meet at least once annually with the Supervisory Committee.
2. Upon completion of 18 graded credits and 60 regular credits of coursework, schedule the general examination, which consists of a written research proposal followed by an oral examination, taken no later than spring quarter of the second year in residence. Successful completion makes the student a candidate for the PhD degree.
3. Hold an appointment as a teaching assistant (TA) for at least three quarters while in residence.
4. Request appointment of a dissertation reading committee at the beginning of the quarter of anticipated graduation. The committee consists of three members of the student's Supervisory Committee.
5. Successfully defend the doctoral dissertation at the final examination. After completion of 27 dissertation credits, the student is ready to take the final examination, devoted to the subject of the dissertation. The format of the examination is a public seminar.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crsat/.

BIOL 100 Introductory Biology (5) NW Develops an awareness of science by studying basic biological principles and their application to problems of humans and society in the contexts of special topics or themes, which vary quarter to quarter. For non-science majors only.

BIOL 106 Introductory Biology Seminar (1/3, max. 6) NW Focuses on current topics in biology. Topics vary from quarter to quarter. Designed to enhance learning skills of students who intend to take BIOL 180/BIOL 200/BIOL 220 and major in one of the biological sciences. Recommended: high school chemistry and biology, or one quarter of college chemistry.

BIOL 108 Evolution and Human Behavior (3) NW Introduction to evolution by natural selection, examining the light it can throw on human biology and behavior in such areas as the nature of sex differences, sexual conflict, and conflict between parents and children. Does not fulfill major requirements. Offered: jointly with BIO A 100.

BIOL 110 Freshman Discovery Seminar in Biology (5) NW Introduces incoming freshman to research basics and scholarly inquiry skills used in the study of biology.

BIOL 114 Astrobiology: Life in the Universe (5) NW R. BUICK, D. CATLING, V. MEADOWS, W. SULLIVAN Introduction to the new science of astrobiology, study of the origin and evolution of life on Earth, and the search for microbial and intelligent life elsewhere in the Universe. Designed for non-science, liberal arts majors. Offered: jointly with AST-BIO 115/ASTR 115/ESS 115/OCEAN 115.

BIOL 118 Survey of Physiology (5) NW Human physiology, for nonmajors and health sciences students. Offered: AWSpS.

BIOL 119 Elementary Physiology Laboratory (1) NW Prerequisite: BIOL 118 which may be taken concurrently. Offered: AWSpS.

BIOL 120 Current Controversies in Biology (2-5, max. 6) NW Explores a current controversial topic in biology, stressing information needed by the general public to make informed personal, political, and ethical decisions relating to this topic.

BIOL 180 Introductory Biology (5) NW Mendelian genetics, evolution, biodiversity of life forms, ecology, and conservation biology. Open to all students interested in biology whether intending to major in the biological sciences, enroll in preprofessional programs, or fulfill a Natural World requirement. First course in a three-quarter series (BIOL 180, BIOL 200, BIOL 220). Offered: AWSpS.

BIOL 200 Introductory Biology (5) NW For students intending to take advanced courses in the biological sciences or enroll in preprofessional programs. Metabolism and energetics, structure and function of biomolecules, cell structure and function, animal development. Second course in a three-quarter series (BIOL 180, BIOL 200, BIOL 220). Prerequisite: minimum grade of 1.7 in either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120; either CHEM 152, CHEM 155, CHEM 220, CHEM 223, or CHEM 237. Offered: AWSpS.

BIOL 220 Introductory Biology (5) NW For students intending to take advanced courses in the biological sciences or enroll in preprofessional programs. Animal physiology, plant development and physiology. Final course in a three-quarter series (BIOL 180, BIOL 200, BIOL 220). Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either BIOL 200, B BIO 220, or TESC 130. Offered: AWSpS.

BIOL 250 Marine Biology (3/5) I&S/NW Lecture-laboratory course in marine biology focusing on physical, biological, and social aspects of the marine environment. Topics include oceanography, ecology, physiology, behavior, conservation, fisheries, exploration, and activism. Weekend field trip. Honors section research project. Offered: jointly with FISH 250/OCEAN 250; AS.

BIOL 280 The History of Life (4) NW P. WARD Follows the history of life from its first formation including the origin of life and life's diversification from single cells through multi-cellularity. Examines fossils and DNA evidence from understanding the sequence of events and evolutionary history of life.

BIOL 293 Study Abroad - Biology (1-10, max. 10) NW For participants in UW Study Abroad program. Specific content varies and must be individually evaluated. Credit does not apply to major requirements without approval.

BIOL 300 Introduction to Neuroscience (4) NW Provides a broad introduction to the study of brain function in humans and other animals. Emphasizes how circuits within the brain process sensory information and generate complex movements. No credit if NBIO 301, NBIO 302, or BIOL 461 already taken. Prerequisite: either MATH 111, MATH 112, MATH 120, MATH 124, MATH 144, Q SCI 190, or Q SCI 291. Offered: W.

BIOL 302 Laboratory Techniques in Cell and Molecular Biology (4) NW T. IMAIZUMI, L. MARTIN-MORRIS Explores the use of various cell and molecular laboratory techniques, such as PCR, cloning, gel electrophoresis, and bacterial transformation through hands-on experiments. Students produce a portfolio of techniques they have learned. Writing credit. Prerequisite: either BIOL 355 or a minimum grade of 2.5 in either BIOL 200, B BIO 200, or TESC 130.

BIOL 305 Science Communication: Video Storytelling in Biology (3) VLPA/NW P. BOERSMA Students make a short film on a biological story, concept, or theory. Includes developing a storyline, getting the shots to make compelling viewing, editing, and producing a short video. Prerequisite: either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120. Offered: Sp.

BIOL 311 Biology of Fishes (3/5) NW Covers morphological, physiological, behavioral, and ecological diversity of fishes of the world; designed to provide a basic foundation for advanced courses in all areas of aquatic sciences. 3-credit option does not include laboratory. Recommended: 10 credits biological science. Offered: jointly with FISH 311; W.

BIOL 315 Biological Impacts of Climate Change (3) NW Covers the biological impacts of climate change, including changes in species distributions and interactions, altered phenology, and ecosystem dynamics. Discusses implications of these biological impacts for society (e.g., food security, public health, and resource management). Prerequisite: either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator

106 Kincaid Hall, Box 351800

206-685-8240

biograd@u.washington.edu

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

1. Satisfy UW Graduate School requirements as shown at www.grad.washington.edu/students/index.shtml
2. Have or obtain an academic background equivalent to that required of students receiving a BS degree from the department www.biology.washington.edu. Assessment of background and requirements for any remedial work is made in the student's meeting with a temporary guiding committee just prior to the beginning of autumn quarter, in the student's first year of residence. The committee develops a list of required actions to correct any perceived deficiencies and recommends courses likely to be of value to the student in the first year or two of study.

BIOL 317 Plant Classification and Identification (5) NW R. OLMSTEAD Classification and diversity of seed plants; concepts and principles of classification, lab and field study of common plant families in Washington, and skill development for identification of species. One weekend field trip. Offered: SpS.

BIOL 325 The Tree of Life (4) NW S. FREEMAN Provides an overview of biodiversity by focusing on key characteristics of major lineage throughout the tree of life. Explores major diversification events by analyzing changes in reproduction, energetics, cell structure, sensory systems, and adaptations to abiotic stress, and species interactions. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140.

BIOL 330 Natural History of Marine Invertebrates (5) NW Field and laboratory course emphasizing the habits, habitats, adaptations, and interrelationships of marine animals. Weekend field trips required. Offered: S.

BIOL 331 Landscape Plant Recognition (3) NW S. REICH-ARD Field recognition of important groups of woody landscape plants, emphasizing diversity at the genus and family levels. Cultivated plant nomenclature. Plant descriptive characters evident in the field with eye and hand lens. Hardiness and landscape applications. Recommended: BIOL 317. Offered: jointly with ESRM 331; Sp.

BIOL 340 Genetics and Molecular Ecology (5) NW Application of molecular markers to ecology, evolution, and the management of living resources. Emphasis on understanding the strengths and weaknesses of the approach based on case studies. Prerequisite: BIOL 200. Offered: jointly with FISH 340; A.

BIOL 350 Foundations in Physiology (3) NW Physiology core course for biological sciences majors. Analysis of basic principles of animal and plant physiology, with emphasis on cellular processes that mediate organismic processes. Serves as gateway to upper-division courses in physiology. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140; recommended: either PHYS 115 or PHYS 122. Offered: AWSpS.

BIOL 354 Foundations in Evolution and Systematics (3) NW Evolution and systematics core course for biological sciences majors. Emphasizes patterns, processes, and consequences of evolutionary change. Serves as gateway to 400-level courses and seminars in evolution, population genetics, sociobiology, conservation biology, phylogenetics, and systematics. Prerequisite: either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, TESC 120, or BIO A 201. Offered: ASp.

BIOL 355 Foundations in Molecular Cell Biology (3) NW Cell biology core course for biological sciences majors. Emphasis on molecular approaches to understand cell structure, function, and regulation, and the analysis of experimental design and data interpretation. Serves as a prerequisite to advanced 400-level cell, molecular, and developmental biology courses and seminars. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either BIOL 200, B BIO 200, TESC 130. Offered: AWSpS.

BIOL 356 Foundations in Ecology (3) NW Ecology core course for biological sciences majors. Emphasizes understanding species interactions in biological communities and relationships of communities to environment. Serves as a prerequisite to 400-level courses and senior seminars in ecology, population, and conservation biology. Prerequisite: either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120. Offered: AW.

BIOL 360 Cellular Anatomy (4) NW Zeman Recognition of cellular and tissue structures in plants and animals with correlations to normal physiology and disease states. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140; may not be taken for credit if credit earned in BIOL 403.

BIOL 380 Biomedical Advances and Society (3) I&S A. SCHIVELL Recent biological advances studied in the context of our society, designed to foster critical thinking, public awareness, and policy impact. Topics may include human reproductive technologies, genetic engineering, embryonic stem cell research, and medical scanning improvements. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140.

BIOL 385 Evolutionary Medicine (3) NW B. DUNCAN, D. EISENBERG Explores evolutionary causes of health and disease. Considers how natural selection and the legacies of our human, primate, mammalian and bacterial ancestries have shaped our biology. Topics include mental disorders, aging, cancer, diet, obesity, diabetes, infectious diseases, racism, and health differences between human groups. Prerequisite: either BIO A 201 or BIOL 180. Offered: jointly with BIO A 355.

BIOL 396 Peer Facilitation - Teaching in Biology (1-4, max. 8) NW For undergraduates working in biology courses as peer facilitators. Peer facilitators assist with labs, lectures, and course administration and gain direct classroom experience. No independent teaching or grading. Opportunities vary by quarter and instructor. Prerequisite: either BIOL 350, BIOL 354, BIOL 355, or BIOL 356. Credit/no-credit only.

BIOL 399 Biology Internship Program (2-12, max. 15) NW B. WIGGINS Coordinated internship in a biology-related field. Allows a structured, real world biology work experiences off-campus. All internships must be approved by instructor. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

BIOL 400 Experiments in Molecular Biology (4) NW A. CROWE, A. SCHIVELL Integrated reading, writing, and experimentation in molecular biology. Design and implementation of experiments using modern molecular biology techniques to address current questions in biology. Emphasizes reading and evaluating primary research literature. Includes practice in different scientific writing styles. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in BIOL 355.

BIOL 401 Advanced Cell Biology (3) NW Selected topics in molecular cell biology. Strong emphasis on reading and interpreting primary research literature. Writing intensive course. Prerequisite: BIOL 355.

BIOL 402 Functional Genomics (4) NW A. PAREDEZ Students perform initial characterization of novel genes through epitope tagging and localization. Skills covered include: preparation of solutions, Genomic Database queries, PCR, electrophoresis, DNA purification, cloning, transformation, and immunofluorescence microscopy. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in BIOL 355.

BIOL 403 Physiological Mechanisms of Histology (5) NW L. ZEMAN Develops recognition of cellular structures with correlations to normal physiology and disease states. Laboratory projects cover harvesting, sectioning, and mounting tissue. Includes weekly scientific papers. Prerequisite: either a grade of 3.0 in either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140, or a minimum grade of 2.0 in BIOL 350 or BIOL 355; may not be taken for credit if credit earned in BIOL 360.

BIOL 404 Animal Physiology: Cellular Aspects (3) NW H. DE LA IGLESIA Examines the physiology of membrane transport, nervous signaling, sensory systems, behavioral modulation, muscle, neuronal and endocrine integration, and circadian rhythms. Emphasis on the cellular and tissue level. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140; either CHEM 224 or CHEM 239; either PHYS 115 or PHYS 122. Offered: A.

BIOL 405 Cellular and Molecular Biology of Human Disease (3) NW Emphasizes the understanding of disease mechanisms through studies of genetic and cellular basis human disease and disease models. Based on analyses of primary research articles. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in BIOL 355; either GENOME 361 or GENOME 371; either BIOC 405, BIOC 440, BIOL 401.

BIOL 408 Mechanisms of Animal Behavior (4) NW Beecher, Brenowitz, Sisneros Comparative exploration of physiological and perceptual mechanisms that control behaviors necessary for survival and reproduction in animals. Model systems discussed include animal communication, mate choice, escape behavior, learning and memory, orientation, biological rhythms, foraging behavior. Prerequisite: either minimum 2.0 grade in BIOL 180, or 3.5 in PSYCH 200, or 2.0 in PSYCH 300. Offered: jointly with PSYCH 408.

BIOL 409 Sociobiology (5) NW Biological bases of social behavior, emphasizing evolution as a paradigm. Emphasizes how to think like an evolutionary biologist, especially with regard to interest conflict. Topics are individual versus group selection, kin selection, altruism, mating systems, sexual conflict, alternate reproductive strategies, and parent/offspring conflict. Prerequisite: either minimum grade of 2.0 in BIOL 180, 2.0 in B BIO 180, 2.0 in TESC 120, 3.5 in PSYCH 200, or 2.0 in PSYCH 300. Offered: jointly with PSYCH 409.

BIOL 411 Developmental Biology (4) NW Embryology and subsequent development of vertebrate and invertebrate animals, including Xenopus, mammals, chicks, Drosophila, echinoderms. Morphological changes in developing animals; experimental analysis of developing systems; underlying genetic and biochemical regulation of development. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 3.0 in either BIOL 200, B BIO 200, or TESC 130, or a minimum grade of 2.0 in BIOL 354 or BIOL 355. Offered: AW.

BIOL 413 Molecular Genetics of Development (4) NW J. PARRISH Uses molecular biology, cell biology, and genetic approaches to investigate how nutrient signals influence neuron growth. Prerequisite: BIOL 355.

BIOL 414 Molecular Evolution (5) NW Survey of empirical approaches to the study of molecular evolution and ecology, drawing on examples from a variety of taxa and the recent literature. Topics include DNA sequencing and systematics, fingerprinting approaches in behavioral ecology, and adaptive evolution at the molecular level. Prerequisite: BIOL 354. Offered: jointly with GENOME 414.

BIOL 415 Evolution and Development (3) NW D. PARICHY Analysis of intertwined developmental and evolutionary processes studied through evolution of developmental genes, proteins, and expression patterns in different organisms. Includes reading and analyzing implications for ecology evolution, and human disease. Prerequisite: either a minimum grade of 3.0 in BIOL 200, B BIO 200, or TESC 130, or a minimum grade of 2.0 in either BIOL 354 or BIOL 355.

BIOL 416 Molecular Genetics of Plant Development (3) NW Plant growth and development examined in molecular-genetic terms. Covers mutation, dominance, redundancy, epistasis, and key technologies for discovery of gene function as well as embryogenesis, meristem formation, flower development, and other problems in plant development. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in BIOL 220, B BIO 220, TESC 140, GENOME 361, or GENOME 371.

BIOL 417 Comparative Reproductive Physiology of Vertebrates (4) NW Compares the reproductive physiology of fishes, amphibians, reptiles, birds, and mammals. Prerequisite: either BIOL 350 or BIOL 355.

BIOL 418 Biological Clocks and Rhythms (3) NW H. DE LA IGLESIA Examines circadian rhythms and other forms of biological rhythmicity, including annual and tidal rhythms. Includes theoretical background as well as aspects that range from the molecular and cellular basis to the ecological and evolutionary implications of biological rhythms. Prerequisite: BIOL 350 or BIOL 355.

BIOL 421 Ecological and Evolutionary Physiology of Animals (3) NW Explores the role of physiology in the ecology and evolution of animals. Special emphasis on how physiology influences responses to environmental change. Prerequisite: BIOL 350; either BIOL 354 or BIOL 356.

BIOL 422 Physiology of Plant Behavior (3) NW E. VAN VOLKENBURGH Advanced physiology seminar focusing on plant sensory mechanisms, transport and integration of information, and behavior in response to a variety of environmental stimuli. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140.

BIOL 423 Marine Ecological Processes (3) NW E. CAR-RINGTON Studies the ecology of the oceans and coastal regions, emphasizing benthic communities common to the Pacific Northwest. Prerequisite: either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120; recommended: either BIOL 250 or BIOL 356.

BIOL 424 Plant Ecophysiology (5) NW S. K/M Explores physiological mechanisms that underlie ecological observations, including how above- and below-ground microclimates develop and affect plant physiological processes. Discusses acclimation to environmental change along with species differences in physiological processes and plant's occupation of heterogeneous environments. Laboratories emphasize field measurement techniques. Prerequisite: either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, TESC 120, ESRM 201, ESRM 162, or FISH 162. Offered: jointly with ESRM 478; W.

BIOL 425 Plant Physiology and Development (5) NW Expanded coverage of plant growth, nutrition, metabolism, and development. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140. Offered: W.

BIOL 427 Biomechanics (5) NW T. DANIEL Physical biology emphasizing a mechanical approach to ecological, evolutionary, and physiological questions. Basic principles underlying fluid and solid mechanics to explore responses of animals to flows, loads, and motions. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140; either MATH 125 or Q SCI 292; either PHYS 114 or PHYS 121.

BIOL 428 Sensory Neurophysiology and Ecology (3) NW J. RIFFELL Examines behavioral and physiological processes within an environmental framework. Uses a synthetic approach emphasizing applications to cell biology, physiology and behavior, and biomechanics. Prerequisite: either BIOL 350 or BIOL 355; either PHYS 114 or PHYS 121; recommended: linear algebra.

BIOL 430 Marine Zoology (5) NW Survey of groups of invertebrate animals represented in the San Juan Archipelago; natural history, functional morphology, ecology, distribution, habitat, adaptation, trophic interrelationships, and evolution. Prerequisite: BIOL 445, which must be taken concurrently; permission of Friday Harbor director. Recommended: 20 credits in biological sciences. Offered: jointly with FHL 430.

BIOL 432 Marine Invertebrate Zoology (9) NW Comparative morphology and biology of marine invertebrates with emphasis on field and laboratory studies. Representatives of all major and most minor phyla are collected, observed alive, and studied in detail. Taken at Friday Harbor Laboratories. Not open for credit to students who have taken BIOL 433 or BIOL 434. Recommended: 20 credits in biological sciences. Offered: S.

BIOL 433 Marine Ecology (5) NW J. RUESINK Study of marine ecological processes such as recruitment, disturbance, competition, and predation, and their effects on the structure and diversity of marine communities. Weekend field trips to local intertidal habitats required. Prerequisite: either BIOL 356, BIOL 472, or a minimum grade of 3.4 in either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120. Offered: Sp, odd years.

BIOL 434 Invertebrate Zoology (5) NW Comparative biology and morphology of invertebrates. Laboratory work emphasizes structures and functions. Emphasizes annelids and related worms, mollusks, and arthropods. Not open to students who have taken BIOL 430 or BIOL 432. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140.

BIOL 438 Quantitative Approaches to Paleobiology, Morphology, and Systematics (5) NW Introduction to the principles and analytical methods in the study of paleobiology, morphology, and systematics. Topics include paleobiogeography, morphology-based phylogenetics, evolutionary rates, biodiversity curves, functional morphology, morphometrics, and paleoecology. Emphasis on application of methods using fossil and modern specimens. Prerequisite: either BIOL 280, BIOL 354, or ESS 213.

BIOL 440 General Mycology (5) NW J. AMMIRATI General survey of the fungi with emphasis on life cycles, structure, physiology, economic importance. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140.

BIOL 441 Trends in Land Plant Evolution (5) NW Covers key innovations and trends during the evolution of land plants. Uses an evolution of development (evo-devo) approach that compares morphological, anatomical, developmental, and molecular traits across main evolutionary lineages of plants. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140; either BIOL 350, BIOL 354, BIOL 355, or BIOL 356. Offered: A.

BIOL 442 Mushrooms and Related Fungi (5) NW J. AMMIRATI General biology, ecology, and classification of mushrooms, polypores, puffballs, and other related basidiomycetes. Emphasis on Pacific Northwest species. Prerequisite: either BIOL 360, BIOL 403, or BIOL 440.

BIOL 443 Evolution of Mammals and their Ancestors (5) NW Highlights the evolutionary history and systematics of mammals and their ancestors. Examines fossil and modern mammal specimens from the Burke Museum collections. Required field trip. Prerequisite: either BIOL 354, BIOL 453, or ESS 100. Offered: Sp.

BIOL 444 Ornithology (5) NW Field, lecture, and laboratory study of birds from an evolutionary perspective. Emphasizes taxonomy, breeding systems, brood parasitism, appearance, molt, migration, orientation, social behavior, song, and flight. Includes Saturday and weekend field trips for which students are required to share a portion of transportation costs. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140; recommended: BIOL 350 or BIOL 356.

BIOL 445 Marine Botany (5) NW Survey of plants represented in marine environments; natural history; ecology, distribution, habitat, adaptation, and trophic interrelationships. Taken at Friday Harbor laboratories. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140; BIOL 430, which must be taken concurrently. Offered: jointly with FHL 440.

BIOL 446 Cell and Molecular Techniques in Algal Biology (3) NW R. CATTOLICO Introduction to major algal groups emphasizing differences in form and function. Laboratory techniques include methods for culturing and plating algae; fluorescence microscopy of chloroplasts and lipid bodies; subcellular fractionation of organelles; pigment analysis and protein determination. Focus placed on scientific writing. Prerequisite: BIOL 220; BIOL 355. Offered: Sp.

BIOL 447 The Greening of the Earth: Influence of Plants on the Evolution of Terrestrial Ecosystems (5) NW C. STROMBERG Examines the evolution of terrestrial ecosystems focusing on how abiotic factors such as climate change have shaped the evolution of vegetation on earth, and how the evolution of vegetation has influenced the evolution of animals. Introduces paleoecological techniques using Burke Museum plant fossils. Prerequisite: either BIOL 354 or ESS 213. Offered: A.

BIOL 448 Mammalogy (5) NW S. SANTANA MATA Studies evolutionary patterns, ecology, behavior, physiology, and taxonomy of mammals. Relies on a comparative, systems approach to understand the major trends and mechanisms maintaining the diversity in form and function in mammals. Prerequisite: either BIOL 350, BIOL 354, or BIOL 356.

BIOL 449 Applied Phylogenetics (3) NW A. LEACHE Emphasizes the estimation of species trees - multilocus estimates of species or population relationships as opposed to genealogies of alleles. Provides students with the computation and bioinformatics skills needed to apply new phylogenetic techniques that can accommodate larger, more complex data sets. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in BIOL 354.

BIOL 450 Vertebrate Paleontology (5) NW C. SIDOR Examines fossil vertebrate life, focusing on systematics and morphology of major lineages (fish, reptiles, bird, and early mammal relatives). Examines fossil and modern vertebrates from the Burke Museum collection in the lab. Weekend field trip. Prerequisite: either BIOL 354, BIOL 452, BIOL 453 or ESS 100. Offered: jointly with ESS 452.

BIOL 451 Invertebrate Paleontology (5) NW Important larger invertebrate groups; morphology, classification, stratigraphic distribution, evolution, paleoecology. Offered: jointly with ESS 451.

BIOL 452 Vertebrate Biology (5) NW The biology of vertebrate animals, emphasizing their diversity, adaptations, and evolutionary history. Introduces aspects of behavior, physiology, morphology, and ecology that emerge from the comparative study of vertebrates. Laboratory includes local field trips, films, and introduction to regional vertebrate fauna. Prerequisite: either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120. Offered: SpS.

BIOL 453 Comparative Anatomy of Vertebrates (5) NW Comparison of the structure of vertebrate organ systems: integument, skeletal, muscle, digestive, respiratory, cardiovascular, urinary, and reproductive, with an emphasis on evolutionary trends. Prerequisite: either BIOL 350 or BIOL 452. Offered: W.

BIOL 454 Entomology (5) NW Covers the biology of terrestrial arthropods, with emphasis on insects. Includes structure, classification, physiology, and ecology of insects. Interrelationships of insects and man. Requires at least one weekend field trip. Prerequisite: either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120.

BIOL 457 Chemical Communication (3) NW J. RIFFELL Exploration of how chemical signals are produced, transported, and influence behavior of microbes, plants, and animals. Synthetic approach, with emphasis on applications to cell biology, neurobiology, and ecology. Prerequisite: either a minimum grade of 2.5 in either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140, or a minimum grade of 2.0 in BIOL 350.

BIOL 458 Behavioral Genetics (4) NW Role of genetics in determining variation in human and animal behavior and in regulating behavioral development. Techniques for quantifying genetic variation, behavioral effects, and gene expression. Prerequisite: either minimum 3.5 grade in PSYCH 200, 2.0 in PSYCH 300, or 2.0 in BIOL 180. Offered: jointly with PSYCH 458.

BIOL 459 Developmental Neurobiology (3) NW M. BOSMA Invertebrate and vertebrate examples illustrate the mechanisms used in constructing nervous systems. Focus on the cellular and molecular mechanisms that underlie questions about the basis of neuronal diversity, axonal pathfinding and target recognition, synaptogenesis, and activity-dependent plasticity. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either BIOL 350 or BIOL 355. Offered: Sp.

BIOL 460 Mammalian Physiology (3) NW Principles of mammalian physiology with special emphasis on the cardiac, respiratory, renal systems taught at the organ and organ systems level. Prerequisite: a minimum grade of 2.5 either BIOL 350 or NBIO 301.

BIOL 461 Neurobiology (3) NW Broad examination of integrative mechanisms in central nervous system function, with emphasis on sensory processing, plasticity, and control of behavior. Examples are taken from a variety of animal groups. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in BIOL 350; either PHYS 115 or PHYS 122. Offered: W.

BIOL 462 Advanced Animal Physiology (3) NW Physiology at levels of organisms and behavior, organ systems, and cells - an evolutionary and integrative perspective. Organismal physiology: metabolism, temperature, locomotion, osmoregulation, respiration, circulation, digestion. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either BIOL 350 or NBIO 301. Offered: A.

BIOL 463 Advanced Animal Physiology Lab (3) NW Experimental design and techniques, data analysis, written reports. Original project labs and experiments in physiology. Prerequisite: BIOL 462, which may be taken concurrently. Offered: A.

BIOL 465 Comparative Endocrinology (3) NW Hormonal integration of living processes at all levels in animals: molecules, cells, organs, organisms, populations. Prerequisite: BIOL 350.

BIOL 466 Pathobiology of Emerging Diseases (3) NW L. ZEMAN Examination of the causes, alterations in cellular function, and remediation of emerging diseases in plants and animals from a global perspective. Includes weekly scientific papers. Prerequisite: either BIOL 350, BIOL 355, BIOL 356, or BIOL 380.

BIOL 467 Comparative Animal Physiology (3) NW Studies organismal function in an evolutionary context. Uses a variety of animals to highlight transitions in metabolism, muscle function, respiration, circulation, digestion, excretion, and ion regulation. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140.

BIOL 468 Medical Physiology (3) D. WEIGLE Students deepen their understanding of human physiology and pathophysiology by performing in-depth analyses of actual medical cases. Cases are chosen to illustrate the mechanisms of frequently encountered diseases and the clinical presentation of affected patients. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140; BIOL 350.

BIOL 469 Evolution and Medicine (3) NW C. BERGSTROM Responds to new applications of evolutionary biology in medicine, now being discovered at an accelerating rate. Emphasizes medically relevant aspects of evolutionary biology. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120.

BIOL 470 Biogeography (4) NW Analysis of historical and ecological determinants of current and past distributions of organisms. Integrates techniques developed by taxonomists, paleontologists, geologists, evolutionists, ecologists, and biogeographers to elucidate relationships between geographical distributions and continental drift, ecological interactions, climate, and dispersal abilities of organisms. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140.

BIOL 471 Plant Ecology (5) NW Basic concepts of plant ecology, including studies of the environment, plant-environment interactions, populations, communities, and ecosystems. Laboratory includes one weekend field trip, laboratory and greenhouse experiments, and an introduction to ecological problem solving. Prerequisite: either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120.

BIOL 472 Community Ecology (5) NW Covers the complexity of biological communities as influenced by biotic and abiotic factors, as well as the impact of human activities (like global warming) on communities. Prerequisite: BIOL 356.

BIOL 473 Limnology (3) NW Ecology, conservation, and management of inland aquatic ecosystems. Explores interactions among biological, chemical, and physical features of lakes and other aquatic habitats. Prerequisite: BIOL 180. Offered: jointly with FISH 473; A.

BIOL 474 Limnology Laboratory (2) NW Examination of biota of fresh waters, survey of limnological methods, analysis of data, and writing of scientific papers. Prerequisite: BIOL 473/FISH 473/CEE 462, which may be taken concurrently. Offered: jointly with CEE 463/FISH 474; A.

BIOL 475 Intensive Field Experience in Biology (5) NW Introduces field methods and research in various areas of biology, e.g., paleontology, ecology, climate change, and mycology. Includes two or more weeks away from campus at field site. Offered: S.

BIOL 476 Conservation Biology (5) NW Explores biological, managerial, economic, and ethical concepts affecting survival of species. Applications of ecology, biogeography, population genetics, and social sciences for the preservation of species in the face of widespread global habitat modification, destruction, and other human activities. Prerequisite: either a minimum grade of 2.5 in BIOL 180, B BIO 180, TESC 120, or BIOL 356.

BIOL 477 Seminar in Marine Biology (3) NW Roccap Reviews current research in marine biology. Emphasizes critical readings and discussion of primary literature. Prerequisite: FISH 250, OCEAN 250, or BIOL 250; Q SCI 381, STAT 220, or STAT 311. Offered: jointly with FISH 477/OCEAN 477; W.

BIOL 478 Topics in Sustainable Fisheries (3, max. 9) I&S/ NW Seminar series featuring local, national, and internationally known speakers in fisheries management and conservation. Conservation/restoration in practice. Pre-seminar discussion section focusing on select readings. Topics may include harvest management, whaling, by-catch, salmon, marine protected areas, introduced species, citizen action, co-management, and marine ethics. Offered: jointly with ENVIR 478/FISH 478.

BIOL 479 Research in Marine Biology (1-15, max. 15) Individual research on topics in marine biology. Research projects supervised by an individual faculty member. Projects may include laboratory work, fieldwork, and literature surveys. Prerequisite: BIOL 250/FISH 250/OCEAN 250; Q SCI 381. Offered: jointly with FISH 479/OCEAN 479; AWSpS.

BIOL 480 Field Ecology (4) NW P. BOERSMA Field projects examining ecological and behavioral topics such as foraging and social behavior, species interactions, and structure of terrestrial and aquatic communities. Two weekend fieldtrips required. Prerequisite: either BIOL 356 or a minimum grade of 3.0 in either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120. Offered: Sp.

BIOL 481 Experimental Evolutionary Ecology (5) NW B. KERR Explores experimentally approachable questions in ecology and evolution through lectures, laboratory, and field experiments. Topics may include evolution of bacterial antibiotic resistance, the evolution of virulence, seed predation, plant biodiversity, and others. Prerequisite: either BIOL 180, B BIO 180, or TESC 120. Offered: A.

BIOL 482 Advanced Experimental Evolutionary Ecology (2-5, max. 15) NW B. KERR Working in pairs or independently, students pursue supervised original field or laboratory research projects. Projects span three academic quarters, with project development beginning in autumn, research continuing in winter, and culminating in spring with production of a scientific paper. Prerequisite: BIOL 481, which may be taken concurrently. Offered: WSpS.

BIOL 483 Senior Seminar in Paleobiology (1, max. 6) Supervised readings and group discussion. Prerequisite: either BIOL 443, BIOL 447, BIOL 450/ESS 452, BIOL 451/ESS 452, ESS 450, BIO A 388, or ARCHY 470.

BIOL 484 Senior Seminar in Evolution and Systematics (1-3, max. 9) NW Supervised readings and group discussion. Prerequisite: BIOL 354.

BIOL 485 Senior Seminar in Cellular, Molecular and Developmental Biology (1-3, max. 9) NW Supervised readings and group discussion. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either BIOL 350, BIOL 354, BIOL 355, BIOL 356, BIOC 405, BIOC 406, BIOC 440, BIOC 441, or BIOC 442.

BIOL 486 Senior Seminar in Ecology (1-3, max. 9) NW Supervised readings and group discussion. Prerequisite: BIOL 356.

BIOL 487 Senior Seminar in Conservation Biology (1-3, max. 9) NW Supervised readings and group discussion. Prerequisite: BIOL 356.

BIOL 488 Senior Seminar in Physiology (1-3, max. 9) NW Supervised readings and group discussion. Prerequisite: BIOL 350.

BIOL 489 Senior Seminar in Plant Biology (1-3, max. 9) NW Supervised readings and group discussion. Prerequisite: BIOL 220; recommended: one upper-division course emphasizing plant biology.

BIOL 490 Undergraduate Seminar (1-3, max. 6) NW Supervised readings and group discussion of selected topics of broad biological significance. Prerequisite: either BIOL 220, B BIO 220, or TESC 140.

BIOL 492 The Teaching of Biology (2) Basic course in the teaching of biology in the secondary school. Designed to help pre-service teachers identify useful laboratory techniques, materials, and content for the teaching of pre-college biology. Special attention to current issues in biology education. Required for biology students in Teacher Certification Program.

BIOL 493 Study Abroad - Advanced Biology (1-15, max. 15) NW For participants in UW Study Abroad program. Specific content varies and must be individually evaluated. Credit does not apply to major requirements without approval.

BIOL 495 Undergraduate Research in Paleobiology (1-5, max. 10) NW Individually arranged undergraduate research for students in the field of paleobiology.

BIOL 497 Special Topics in Biology (1-5, max. 10) NW

BIOL 498 Library Research (1-5, max. 10)

BIOL 499 Undergraduate Research (1-20, max. 20)

BIOL 500 Topics in Biology (1-3, max. 16)

BIOL 501 Topics in Biological Instruction (1-2, max. 10) Focused discussion of on-going research in instructional methods for life science courses. Credit/no-credit only.

BIOL 502 Grant Writing (3) Introduces the steps of compiling a successful grant proposal, using the NSF graduate fellowship as a template. Offered: A.

BIOL 505 Problems in Biological Instruction (1-3, max. 10)

BIOL 506 Scientific Manuscript Writing (4) Introduces the writing of scientific articles. Students write a scientific manuscript, cover letter, and identify a journal for submission. Offered: W.

BIOL 511 Topics in Mathematical Biology (1-3, max. 15) Discussion of current topics in mathematical biology.

BIOL 520 Departmental Seminar (1, max. 18) Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

BIOL 533 Advanced Organismal Biology (9) Advanced study and research in organismal biology. Emphasizes marine organisms and habitats of the San Juan Archipelago. Includes individual research projects. Prerequisite: permission of Director of Friday Harbor Laboratories. Offered: S.

BIOL 536 Comparative Invertebrate Embryology (9) Diversity in developmental patterns in major marine taxa. Analysis of evolutionary changes in development. Emphasis on observation of live embryos and larvae. Prerequisite: permission of Director of Friday Harbor Laboratories; recommended: courses in invertebrate zoology and developmental biology. Offered: SpS.

BIOL 539 Marine Phycology (9) Field and laboratory studies of marine algae of the San Juan Archipelago with emphasis on seaweed diversity, identification, and the role of algae in marine ecosystems. Offered at Friday Harbor Laboratories.

BIOL 540 Seminar in Molecular, Cellular, and Developmental Biology (1-3, max. 15) Weekly discussions of past and current scientific literature in cell, molecular, and/or developmental biology, review of the state of the field, and presentation of research results. Discussions may cover the full breadth of the discipline or focus on selected topics.

BIOL 541 Topics in Molecular, Cellular, and Developmental Biology (1-3, max. 15) Focused discussion of on-going cell, molecular, or developmental biology research occurring in the instructor's laboratory.

BIOL 542 Analysis of Development (1-3, max. 15) Analysis of structural, physiological, and molecular levels of developmental processes, including gametogenesis, fertilization, cell and tissue movements, induction, and cytodifferentiation. Graduate standing or permission of instructor.

BIOL 543 Biology of Drosophila Seminar (1, max. 12) Weekly presentation by participants of classical literature, current literature, and research in the molecular biology, developmental biology, neurobiology, and genetics of Drosophila.

sophila. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. Offered: AWSp.

BIOL 544 Evolution of Photosynthesis (3) R. CATTOLICO Focuses on the evolution of photosynthetic eukaryotic cells. Interactive discussions target the morphological, genetic, and biochemical consequences of progenitor cell specialization within extant taxa.

BIOL 545 MCD-Biology Professional Skills Seminar (1, max. 6) D. PARICHY Presentations of past or planned research in molecular, cellular, or developmental biology. Participants give presentations in either professional-meeting or chalk-talk formats. Uses written and oral evaluations by audience to focus on scientific content as well as presentation skills. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSp.

BIOL 550 Seminar in Evolution and Systematics (1-3, max. 15) Weekly discussions of past and current scientific literature in evolution and/or systematics, reviews of the state of the field, and presentation of research results. Discussions may cover the full breadth of the discipline or focus on selected topics.

BIOL 551 Topics in Evolution and Systematics (1-3, max. 15) Focused discussion of on-going research in evolution and/or systematics occurring in the instructor's laboratory.

BIOL 552 Advanced Evolution ([2-5]-, max. 10) Successful analytical approaches to understanding evolutionary patterns and the processes that generate them, examined by using a wide array of empirical and theoretical tools. Survey of how theory, modeling, and statistics can be applied to observations and experiments in evolutionary biology.

BIOL 553 Applied Phylogenetics (3) A. LEACHE Emphasizes the estimation of species trees - multilocus estimates of species or population relationships as opposed to genealogies of alleles. Provides students with the computation and bioinformatics skills needed to apply new phylogenetic techniques that can accommodate larger, more complex data sets. Prerequisite: BIOL 354.

BIOL 555 Introduction to Graduate Research in Paleobiology (1) Introduction to paleobiology techniques and resources. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: jointly with ESS 558; A.

BIOL 557 Vertebrate Paleontology (5) Examines the biology of vertebrate animals, emphasizing their diversity, adaptations, and evolutionary history. Introduces aspects of behavior, physiology, morphology, and ecology that emerge from the comparative study of vertebrates. Laboratory includes local field trips and introduction to regional vertebrate fauna. Offered: jointly with ESS 557.

BIOL 560 Seminar in Ecology (1-3, max. 15) Weekly discussions of past and current scientific literature in ecology, reviews of the state of the field, and presentation of research results. Discussions may cover the full breadth of the discipline or focus on selected topics.

BIOL 561 Topics in Ecology (1-3, max. 15) Focused discussion of on-going research in ecology occurring in the instructor's laboratory.

BIOL 563 Experimental Evolutionary Ecology (5) B. KERR Explores experimentally approachable questions in ecology and evolution through lectures, lab, and field experiments. Topics may include evolution of bacterial antibiotic resistance, the evolution of virulence, seed predation, plant biodiversity, and others. Corequisite: BIOL 481. Offered: A.

BIOL 564 Advanced Experimental Evolutionary Ecology (2-5, max. 15) B. KERR Working independently or paired with an undergraduate in BIOL 482, students pursue supervised original field or laboratory research projects. Projects span three academic quarters, with project development beginning in autumn, research continuing in winter, and culminating in spring with production of a scientific paper. Prerequisite: BIOL 563, which may be taken concurrently. Offered: AWSp.

BIOL 565 Community Ecology (5) J. HILLE RIS LAMBERS Covers the complexity of biological communities as influenced by biotic and abiotic factors, as well as the impact of human activities, like global warming, on communities.

BIOL 567 Topics in Advanced Ecology (3, max. 6) Discusses literature on active research areas or controversies in different branches of ecology. Offered: jointly with FISH 567/SEFS 567; W.

BIOL 570 Seminar in Conservation Biology (1-3, max. 15) Weekly discussions of past and current scientific literature in conservation biology, reviews of the state of the field, and presentation of research results. Discussions may cover the full breadth of the discipline or focus on selected topics. tes.

BIOL 571 Topics in Conservation Biology (1-3, max. 15) Focused discussion of on-going research in conservation biology occurring in the instructor's laboratory. Graduate status required, or permission of instructor for undergraduates.

BIOL 580 Seminar in Physiology (1-3, max. 15) Weekly discussions of past and current scientific literature in physiology, reviews of the state of the field, and presentation of research results. Discussions may cover the full breadth of the discipline or focus on selected topics.

BIOL 581 Topics in Physiology (1-3, max. 15) Focused discussion of on-going research in physiology occurring in the instructor's laboratory.

BIOL 583 Physiological Mechanisms of Histology (5) L. ZEMAN Develops recognition of cellular structures with correlations to normal physiology and disease states. Lab projects cover harvesting, sectioning, staining, and mounting tissue. Includes weekly scientific papers.

BIOL 590 Seminar in Organismal Biology (1-3, max. 15) Weekly discussions of past and current scientific literature in organismal biology, reviews of the state of the field, and presentation of research results. Discussions may cover the full breadth of the discipline or focus on selected topics.

BIOL 591 Topics in Organismal Biology (1-3, max. 15) Focused discussion of on-going research in organismal biology occurring in the the instructor's laboratory.

BIOL 600 Independent Study or Research ([1-10]-) Credit/no-credit only.

BIOL 700 Master's Thesis (*-) Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSp.

BIOL 800 Doctoral Dissertation (*-) Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSp.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

CS&SS 221 Statistical Concepts and Methods for the Social Sciences (5) NW, QSR Develops statistical literacy. Examines objectives and pitfalls of statistical studies; study designs, data analysis, inference; graphical and numerical summaries of numerical and categorical data; correlation and regression; and estimation, confidence intervals, and significance tests. Emphasizes social science examples and cases. (Students may receive credit for only one of STAT 220, STAT 221, STAT 311, STAT 221/CS&SS 221/SOC 221, and ECON 311.) Offered: jointly with SOC 221/STAT 221; AWSp.

CS&SS 320 Evaluating Social Science Evidence (5) I&S, QSR A critical introduction to the methods used to collect data in social science: surveys, archival research, experiments, and participant observation. Evaluates "facts and findings" by understanding the strengths and weaknesses of the methods that produce them. Case based. Offered: jointly with SOC 320/STAT 320.

CS&SS 321 Case-Based Social Statistics I (5) I&S, QSR Introduction to statistical reasoning for social scientists. Built around cases representing in-depth investigations into the nature and content of statistical and social-science principles and practice. Hands-on approach: weekly data-analysis laboratory. Fundamental statistical topics: measurement, exploratory data analysis, probabilistic concepts, distributions, assessment of statistical evidence. Offered: jointly with SOC 321/STAT 321; W.

CS&SS 322 Case-Based Social Statistics II (5) I&S, QSR Continuation of CS&SS 321/SOC 321/STAT 321. Progresses to questions of assessing the weight of evidence and more sophisticated models including regression-based methods. Built around cases investigating the nature and content of statistical principles and practice. Hands-on approach: weekly data analysis laboratory. Prerequisite: CS&SS 321/SOC 321/STAT 321, or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with SOC 322/STAT 322; Sp.

CS&SS 501 Advanced Political Research Design and Analysis (5) Testing theories with empirical evidence. Examines current topics in research methods and statistical analysis in political science. Content varies according to recent developments in the field and with interests of instructor. Offered: jointly with POL S 501.

CS&SS 503 Advanced Quantitative Political Methodology (5) Theory and practice of likelihood inference. Includes probability modeling, maximum likelihood estimation, models for binary responses, count models, sample selection, and basis time series analysis. Offered: jointly with POL S 503.

CS&SS 504 Applied Regression (4) Least squares estimation. Hypothesis testing. Interpretation of regression coefficients. Categorical independent variables. Interactions. Assumption violations: outliers, residuals, robust regression; nonlinearity, transformations, ACE, CART; nonconstant variance. Variable selection and model averaging. Prerequisite: either STAT 342, STAT 390/MATH 390, STAT 421, STAT 481/ECON 481, STAT 509/CS&SS 509/ECON 580, or SOC 425; recommended: MATH 308. Offered: jointly with STAT 504.

CS&SS 505 Review of Mathematics for Social Scientists (1) Reviews basic mathematical skills needed for a meaningful understanding of elementary statistics, data analysis, and social science methodology. Overview of core knowledge required for graduate courses in quantitative methods in social sciences. Topics include discrete mathematics, differential and integral calculus, review of matrix algebra, and basic probabilistic and statistical concepts. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: jointly with SOC 512; Sp.

CS&SS 506 Computer Environments for the Social Sciences (1) Familiarizes graduate students in the social sciences with modern environments for statistical computing. Provides an overview of available resources and a description of fundamental tools used in quantitative courses and doctoral research. Topics include interfaces to web-based resources, UNIX-based computing, and major statistical packages (R, SPLUS, and SAS). Offered: W.

CS&SS 507 Methodology: Quantitative Techniques in Sociology (3) Applied regression analysis with emphasis on interactive computer graphics techniques and interpretation. Application to typical sociological problems. Offered: jointly with SOC 506.

CS&SS 508 Introduction to R for Social Scientists (1) Familiarizes students with the R environment for statistical computing (<http://www.r-project.org>). R is a freely available, multi-platform, and powerful program for analysis and graphics similar to S-PLUS. Covers the basics of organizing, managing, and manipulating social science data; basic applications; introduction to programming; links to other major statistical packages. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: W.

CS&SS 509 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics: Econometrics I (5) NW Examines methods, tools, and theory of mathematical statistics. Covers, probability densities, transformations, moment generating functions, conditional expectation. Bayesian analysis with conjugate priors, hypothesis tests, the Neyman-Pearson Lemma. Likelihood ratio tests, confidence intervals, maximum likelihood estimation, Central limit theorem, Slutsky Theorems, and the delta-method. (Credit allowed for only one of STAT 390, STAT 481, and ECON 580.) Prerequisite: STAT 311/ECON 311; either MATH 136 or MATH 126 with either MATH 308 or MATH 309; recommended: MATH 324. Offered: jointly with ECON 580/STAT 509; A.

CS&SS 510 Maximum Likelihood Methods for the Social Sciences (5) C. ADOLPH Introduces maximum likelihood, a more general method for modeling social phenomena than linear regression. Topics include discrete, time series, and spatial data, model interpretation, and fitting. Prerequisite: POL S 501/CS&SS 501; POL S 503/CS&SS 503. Offered: jointly with POL S 510; W.

CS&SS 526 Structural Equation Models for the Social Sciences (3) Structural equation models for the social sciences, including specification, estimation, and testing. Topics include path analysis, confirmatory factor analysis, linear models with latent variables, MIMIC models, non-recursive models, models for nested data. Emphasizes applications to substantive problems in the social sciences. Prerequisite: SOC 504, SOC 505, SOC 506 or equivalent; recommended: either CS&SS 505 and CS&SS 506, or equivalent. Offered: jointly with SOC 529.

CS&SS 527 Survey Research Methods (4) A. MOKDAD Provides students with skills in questionnaire development and survey methods. Students develop a questionnaire and design a survey research proposal on a health-related or social topic. Prerequisite: either HSERV 511/HSERV 513; BIOST 517/BIOST 518; or EPI 512/EPI 513, which may be taken concurrently, or permission of instructor. Students should have a survey project in mind. Offered: jointly with G H 533/HSERV 527.

CS&SS 529 Sample Survey Techniques (3) Design and implementation of selection and estimation procedures. Emphasis on human populations. Simple, stratified, and cluster sampling; multistage and two-phase procedures; optimal allocation of resources; estimation theory; replicated designs; variance estimation; national samples and census materials. Prerequisite: either STAT 421, STAT 423, STAT 504, QMETH 500, BIOST 511, or BIOST 517, or equivalent; or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with BIOST 529/STAT 529.

CS&SS 536 Analysis of Categorical and Count Data (3) Analysis of categorical data in the social sciences. Binary, ordered, and multinomial outcomes, event counts, and contingency tables. Focuses on maximum likelihood estimations and interpretations of results. Prerequisite: SOC 504, SOC 505, SOC 506, or equivalent; recommended: CS&SS 505 and CS&SS 506, or equivalent. Offered: jointly with SOC 536/STAT 536; A.

CS&SS 544 Event History Analysis for the Social Sciences (5) Examines life course research using event-history analysis with applications to the substantive areas of household dynamics, family formation and dissolution, marriage, cohabitation, and divorce, migration histories, residential mobility, and housing careers. Examines continuous- and discrete-time longitudinal models during practical laboratory sessions.

CS&SS 560 Hierarchical Modeling for the Social Sciences (4) Explores ways in which data are hierarchically organized, such as voters nested within electoral districts that are in turn nested within states. Provides a basic theoreticcal understanding and practical knowledge of models for clustered data and a set of tools to help make accurate inferences. Prerequisite: SOC 504, SOC 505, SOC 506 or equivalent; recommended: CS&SS 505, CS&SS 506 or equivalent. Offered: jointly with SOC 560/STAT 560.

CS&SS 564 Bayesian Statistics for the Social Sciences (4) Statistical methods based on the idea of probability as a measure of uncertainty. Topics covered include subjective notion of probability, Bayes' Theorem, prior and posterior distributions, and data analysis techniques for statistical models. Prerequisite: SOC 504, SOC 505, SOC 506 or equivalent; recommended: CS&SS 505; CS&SS 506. Offered: jointly with STAT 564.

CS&SS 565 Inequality: Current Trends and Explanations (3) Discussion of recent growth in economic inequality in the United States and competing explanations for these new trends through examination of labor market demographics, industrial composition and restructuring, and the broader political context that impacts policies like minimum wage, strength of unions, and foreign trade. Prerequisite: SOC 504, SOC 505, SOC 506, or equivalent; recommended: either CS&SS 505 and CS&SS 506, or equivalent. Offered: jointly with SOC 565.

CS&SS 566 Causal Modeling (4) Construction of causal hypotheses. Theories of causation, counterfactuals, intervention vs. passive observation. Contexts for causal inference: randomized experiments; sequential randomization; partial compliance; natural experiments, passive observation. Path diagrams, conditional independence, and d-separation. Model equivalence and causal under-determination. Prerequisite: course in statistics, SOC 504, SOC 505, SOC 506, or equivalent; recommended: CS&SS 505, CS&SS 506, or equivalent. Offered: jointly with STAT 566.

CS&SS 567 Statistical Analysis of Social Networks (4) Statistical and mathematical descriptions of social networks. Topics include graphical and matrix representations of social networks, sampling methods, statistical analysis of network data, and applications. Prerequisite: SOC 504, SOC 505, SOC 506, or equivalent; recommended: CS&SS 505; CS&SS 506. Offered: jointly with STAT 567.

CS&SS 568 Game Theory for Social Scientists (5) Studies non-cooperative game-theory and provides tools to derive appropriate statistical models from game-theoretic models of behavior. Equilibrium concepts, learning, repeated games and experimental game theory. Prerequisite: MATH 112, MATH 124, or MATH 134; STAT 311/ECON 311 or equivalent. Offered: jointly with ECON 568; W.

CS&SS 569 Visualizing Data (4) Explores techniques for visualizing social science data to complement graduate training methods. Emphasis on principles and perception of visualization, novel exploration and presentation of data and statistical models, and implementation of recommended techniques in statistics packages. Prerequisite: SOC 504, SOC 505, and SOC 506; recommended: CS&SS 505 and CS&SS 506.

CS&SS 589 Multivariate Data Analysis for the Social Sciences (4, max. 8) Erosheva Provides social scientists with an introduction to multivariate analysis techniques and the knowledge to carry them out. Focuses on statistical methods that explore relationships between observed variables. Topics include principal components, cluster, factor, latent class analysis. Prerequisite: SOC WL 587, SOC WL 588, or equivalent. Offered: jointly with SOC WL 589; A.

CS&SS 590 CSSS Seminar (1, max. 20) Credit/no-credit only.

CS&SS 594 Special Topics in Social Science and Statistics (1-5, max. 30) Topics vary. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. Offered: AWSp.

Center for Studies in Demography and Ecology

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

CSDE 501 Population Studies Seminar Series (1) CSDE affiliates and visitors present current research projects. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSp.

CSDE 502 Population Studies Proseminar (1/2, max. 15) Professional training in demography and populations studies. Includes ethics in population research, human subjects review, proposal application and writing. CSDE faculty research specialization, and research preparation and presentation. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: ASP.

CSDE 513 Demography and Ecology (3) Hirschman Theories and research on human fertility, mortality, mobility, migration, and urbanization in social/economic context. Comparative and historical materials on Europe, the United States, and the Third World. Offered: jointly with SOC 513.

CSDE 555 Population Metrics in Global Health (4) Clark Presents a conceptual framework in which to understand and assess the health of populations. Appropriate methodological tools and techniques from demography, epidemiology, and related disciplines are presented together in this broader context. Offered: Sp.

CSDE 595 Special Topics in Population Studies (1-5, max. 10) Examination of current substantive and methodological topics in demography. Content varies according to recent developments in the field and interest of the instructor.

Center for the Humanities

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

HUM 205 Religion, Violence, and Peace: Patterns Across Time and Tradition (5) I&S, DIV Investigates the complex relationship between violence and peace in a variety of religious traditions. Examines case studies from the ancient Near East, medieval East Asia, and the contemporary West from the standpoint of lived experiences and contemporary theories derived from several academic disciplines. Offered: jointly with JSIS C 205/NEAR E 205; W.

HUM 498 Special Topics in the Humanities (1-6, max. 15) VLPA/I&S Intensive research opportunity, for work on project of independent and/or original design in the cultural disciplines. Mentored by UW and visiting faculty in the arts, humanities, and qualitative social sciences, by arrangement only. Offered: S.

HUM 523 Seminar in Hypertext and Textual Studies (5) Several views of hypertext conceptually explored as a basis for research and evaluation of selected hypertext works. Includes initiating the construction of a World Wide Web hypertext of resources for the study of oral, graphical, handwritten, and printed texts. Included in curriculum of Textual Studies program.

HUM 595 Public Culture, Engaged Scholarship (1-5, max. 25) Explores relations among cultural research, public practice, and diverse forms of engagement. Topics vary by instructor.

HUM 596 Humanities Research Seminar (1-5, max. 15) Explorations of current research in the humanities, most frequently with interdisciplinary emphasis. Offered by selected UW faculty and scholars-in-residence.

HUM 597 Special Topics in the Humanities (1-2, max. 10) Credit/no-credit only.

HUM 600 Independent Study or Research (1-5, max. 10) Develops research ideas, practices, and their implication for applications in particular contexts not covered in standard course offerings. Supports students' specific educational goals. May be undertaken individually or in small investigative teams. Offered: AWSpS.

HUM 601 Internship (2-6, max. 12) Internship with a local organization, agency, or company that provides a field-based, applied learning opportunity; aligns with student's professional and scholarly development goals; benefits the organizations; and has academic merit. Engages with and reflects on cultural dimensions of work experience. Offered: AWSpS.

HUM 602 Capstone Project (3-5) Research, teaching, or engagement experience developed with a capstone advisor and scaled to student's educational goals. Prerequisite: HUM 594. Offered: AWSpS.

HUM 603 Capstone Portfolio (1) Completes the Graduate Certificate in Public Scholarship. Links examples of students' public and applied scholarly work to learning objectives of the Certificate and to personal and professional goals; and articulates the significance of the work to different academic and professional audiences. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

Chemistry

303 Bagley

Chemistry is a branch of natural science that deals principally with the properties of molecules, the chemical reactions that occur between them, and the natural laws that describe molecular interactions. Chemistry is a central science, having strong interactions with biology, medicine, earth and environmental sciences, physics, and mathematics.

The Department of Chemistry offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in chemistry
- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in chemistry - ACS certified
- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in chemistry
- A minor in chemistry

The Bachelor of Science degree is designed primarily for those who wish to pursue a career in chemistry or a career in which chemistry plays a central role.

The department offers two Bachelor of Science degrees. The Bachelor of Science with a major in chemistry (ACS certified) meets guidelines established by the American Chemical Society (ACS). It provides an extensive education in all branches of chemistry and also emphasizes laboratory training. The non-certified major does not emphasize laboratory work as strongly, offers more options among chemistry courses, and allows more flexibility in incorporating coursework outside of chemistry.

The Bachelor of Arts in chemistry fills the needs of students whose chosen career requires a strong background in chemistry with additional expertise in other disciplines.

Bachelor of Science

Suggested First- and Second-Year Courses: CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165); CHEM 237, CHEM 238, CHEM 239, CHEM 241, CHEM 242 (or CHEM 335, CHEM 336, CHEM 337, CHEM 346, CHEM 347); MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136); PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123 (or PHYS 114, PHYS 115, PHYS 116 plus one physics lab course). PHYS 121 sequence recommended.

Department Admission Requirements

Application to BA and BS degree programs in chemistry is competitive. Applicants are considered in the following groups: Direct Freshman Admission, Research/Honors, Early Admission, and Regular Admission. Completion of minimum requirements described below does not guarantee admission. All applicants have the right to petition and appeal the department's admission decision. Applications are considered twice each academic year and are due on the second Friday of October and the second Friday of April, with the exception of Direct Freshman Admission. The application and additional information is available at depts.washington.edu/chem/undergrad/.

Direct Freshman Admission

1. Open to freshman students formally admitted to the UW
2. Score of 5 on the AP chemistry examination
3. Indication on the UW freshman application of chemistry as the student's first choice of major
4. Successful direct-admission applicants generally have received a minimum 1400 on the SAT (math and verbal sections) or a minimum 30 on the ACT.
5. Admission is for autumn quarter only.

Research/Honors

1. Students with exceptional records can apply for consideration for admission via the Honors or Research track. Students seeking admission should submit an application that includes:
 - a. Cover sheet (available on the Department of Chemistry website)
 - b. Unofficial transcript
 - c. Statement of purpose: May include a description of interest in chemistry, career goals, undergraduate research interests, degree interest (BA or BS), and any other information applicant believes is useful in evaluating the application.
 - d. (Research Track only) Written letter or recommendation from research adviser.
2. Honors Track. Students participating in the chemistry Honors sequence who have completed the following courses with a minimum cumulative GPA of 3.00: CHEM 145, CHEM 155 (10 credits); MATH 124 and MATH 125 (or MATH 134 and MATH 135) (10 credits).
3. Research Track. Students who have performed at least 6 credits of undergraduate research (CHEM 199, CHEM 299, or higher) and who provide a strong recommendation from faculty research advisers. Biochemistry undergraduate research may be considered as well.

Early Admission

1. Course requirements: CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165) (15 credits). PHYS 121, PHYS 122 (recommended) or PHYS 114, PHYS 115 (10 or 8 credits). MATH 124, MATH 125 (or MATH 134, MATH 135) (10 credits).

2. Factors in the admission decision include academic performance as measured by GPA in courses required for application, difficulty of other courses completed, frequency of incompletes or withdrawal grades, number of repeated courses, relevant work and life experience, and record of honors.
3. Successful applicants for the BS chemistry and BS chemistry-ACS certified programs typically have a cumulative GPA greater than 3.20 in courses listed above under course requirements. Successful applicants for the BA chemistry program typically have a cumulative GPA greater than 3.00 in courses listed above under course requirements.

Regular Admission

1. Course requirements: CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165) (15 credits). CHEM 237, CHEM 238 (or CHEM 335, CHEM 336) (8 credits). PHYS 121, PHYS 122 (recommended) (or PHYS 114, PHYS 115) (10 or 8 credits). MATH 124, MATH 125 (or MATH 134, MATH 135) (10 credits).
2. Factors in the admission decision include academic performance as measured by GPA in courses required for application, difficulty of other courses completed, frequency of incompletes or withdrawal grades, number of repeated courses, relevant work and life experience, and record of honors.
3. Successful applicants for the BS chemistry and BS chemistry-ACS certified programs typically have a cumulative GPA greater than 2.50 in courses listed above under course requirements, with no individual grade lower than a 2.0. Successful applicants for the BA chemistry program typically have a cumulative GPA greater than 2.00 in courses listed above under course requirements, with no individual grade lower than 1.7.

Major Requirements

Chemistry (ACS-Certified)

95 credits as follows:

1. Chemistry and Biochemistry Courses:
 - a. General Chemistry: CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165)
 - b. Organic Chemistry: CHEM 237, CHEM 238, CHEM 239, CHEM 241, and CHEM 242 (or CHEM 335, CHEM 336, CHEM 337, CHEM 346 and CHEM 347)
 - c. Inorganic Chemistry: CHEM 312, CHEM 317, and CHEM 416 (students completing CHEM 165 are exempt from CHEM 312)
 - d. Analytical Chemistry: CHEM 321, CHEM 426
 - e. Physical Chemistry: CHEM 455, CHEM 456, CHEM 457, CHEM 461
 - f. Biochemistry: BIOC 405 (students should contact adviser regarding alternative prerequisites for BIOC 405)
 - g. Advanced Chemistry: 5 credits of numerically graded CHEM or BIOC 400-level courses (not previously listed) and one more course with laboratory (currently CHEM 428, CHEM 462, CHEM 463, and CHEM 465)
 - h. Strongly recommended, research credits in CHEM 399 and CHEM 499.
2. Mathematics: MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 and two additional math courses above 300 (recommended MATH 307 and MATH 308, or AMATH 351 and AMATH 352); (alternative math requirement: MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136)
3. Physics: PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123 (or PHYS 114, PHYS 115, PHYS 116 plus one physics lab course). PHYS 121 sequence recommended.

4. Grade Requirements: Minimum 2.0 grade in each chemistry course; minimum 2.50 GPA for courses used to satisfy the major degree requirements; minimum overall cumulative 2.50 GPA and minimum 185 credits required for graduation.

Chemistry

92 credits as follows:

1. Chemistry and Related Courses:

- General Chemistry:* CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162, and CHEM 312 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165, and CHEM 416)
 - Organic Chemistry:* CHEM 237, CHEM 238, CHEM 239, and CHEM 241 (or CHEM 335, CHEM 336, CHEM 337, and CHEM 346)
 - Physical Chemistry:* CHEM 455, CHEM 456, CHEM 457
 - Advanced Chemistry Labs:* Two of the following three: CHEM 317, CHEM 321, or CHEM 461
 - Additional Labs:* 5 additional lab credits chosen from the following: CHEM 242, CHEM 317, CHEM 321, CHEM 347, CHEM 426, CHEM 428, CHEM 461, CHEM 462, CHEM 463, CHEM 465, and BIOC 426
 - Science Electives:* 11 credits chosen from CHEM 242, CHEM 317, CHEM 321, CHEM 347, any 400-level numerically graded chemistry or biochemistry courses, or MATH 307 (or AMATH 351). Students with a chemistry GPA of 3.30 or higher may apply up to 6 credits of approved research (CHEM 399 or CHEM 499) toward satisfying this requirement. CHEM 498 may not be used to satisfy this requirement.
2. Mathematics: MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 and one course above 300 (recommended: MATH 308 or AMATH 352); alternative MATH requirement: MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136.
3. Physics: PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123 (or PHYS 114, PHYS 115, PHYS 116 plus one physics lab course). PHYS 121 sequence recommended.
4. Grade Requirements: Minimum 2.0 grade in each chemistry course; minimum 2.50 GPA required for all chemistry, mathematics, and physics courses used to satisfy major requirements; minimum overall cumulative 2.50 GPA and minimum 182 credits required for graduation.
5. For graduation, a minimum of 182 credits is required with an overall 2.50 cumulative GPA.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year Courses: CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165) CHEM 237, CHEM 238, CHEM 239, CHEM 241, CHEM 242 (or CHEM 335, CHEM 336, CHEM 337, CHEM 346, CHEM 347); MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136); PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123 (or PHYS 114, PHYS 115, PHYS 116 plus one physics lab course). PHYS 121 sequence recommended.

Department Admission Requirements

Same as for Bachelor of Science, shown above

Major Requirements

79-82 credits as follows:

1. Chemistry Courses:

- General Chemistry:* CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162, CHEM 312 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165)
- Organic Chemistry:* CHEM 237, CHEM 238, CHEM 239, CHEM 241, CHEM 242 (or CHEM 335, CHEM 336, CHEM 337, CHEM 346, CHEM 347)
- Analytical Chemistry:* CHEM 321
- Advanced Chemistry Lab:* Either CHEM 317 or CHEM 461

- Advanced Chemistry:* 11 credits of numerically graded CHEM 400-level courses to include either CHEM 455, CHEM 456, CHEM 457 series, or CHEM 452, CHEM 453 series
- Mathematics:* MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136)
- Physics:* One year of physics including at least 1 credit of laboratory (PHYS 114, PHYS 115, and PHYS 116 and at least one of PHYS 117, PHYS 118, or PHYS 119; or PHYS 121, PHYS 122, and PHYS 123; PHYS 121 sequence recommended).
- Grade Requirements:* Minimum 2.00 GPA in chemistry courses counted toward major; minimum 1.7 grade in all required chemistry courses

Continuation Policy

All students must make satisfactory academic progress in the major. Failure to do so results in probation, which can lead to dismissal from the major. For the complete continuation policy, contact the departmental adviser or refer to the department website.

Minor

Minor Requirements: 35-44 credits as follows:

- One of the following three sequences:
 - CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162, and one of CHEM 223, CHEM 237, or CHEM 335
 - CHEM 144, CHEM 154, CHEM 164, and one of CHEM 223, CHEM 237, or CHEM 335
 - CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165, and one of CHEM 223, CHEM 237, or CHEM 335
- MATH 124 (or Q SCI 291 and Q SCI 292)
- PHYS 114 or PHYS 121
- Three of the following four groups:
 - CHEM 312 (or CHEM 165)
 - CHEM 321
 - One of CHEM 452, CHEM 455, or CHEM 456
 - One of CHEM 224, CHEM 238, CHEM 336
- Minimum 2.00 GPA for the minor; minimum 1.7 grade in each course presented for the minor.
- A minimum of 15 credits taken for the minor must be completed in residence at the University of Washington.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes:* At the conclusion of their studies, graduating chemistry majors should have a general knowledge of the basic areas of chemistry with a working knowledge of at least one area: be proficient in basic laboratory skills; have the ability to carry out strategies for solving scientific problems; have an understanding of the principles and applications of modern instrumentation, computation, experimental design, and data analysis; have had the opportunity to gain experience with a research project; have the ability to communicate scientific information clearly and precisely; have the ability to read, understand, and use scientific literature; have an awareness of the broader implications of chemical processes; have had the opportunity to work as part of a team to solve scientific problems; and have had an introduction to opportunities in, and requirements for, the careers available to chemistry majors.

Teaching high school chemistry, environmental or patent law practice, or working in the chemical industry in sales or management positions are career choices for which the BA in chemistry is generally useful.

- Instructional and Research Facilities:*

Departmental facilities include a spectroscopic and analytical instrumentation laboratory (NMR, GC-MS, X-Ray, IR), Chemistry Library, Center for Enabling New Technologies through Catalysis (CENTC), Center for Process and Analytical Chemistry (CPAC), Materials and Devices for Information Technology Research (MDITR), Center for Nanotechnology, and extensive computing capabilities.

The department's local area network (LAN) is extended through a fiber optic cable to the university-wide network that is connected to Internet, HEPNET, SPAN, and other national and international computer networks.

The Chemistry Study Center offers assistance to students in 100-level chemistry courses and has 40 Pentium computers available to undergraduates taking chemistry courses.

- Honors Options Available:* With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning:* No formal internship program. Students are encouraged to pursue national and regional internships. See advisers for information.
- Department Scholarships:* Resident tuition scholarships and book prizes are awarded annually by the Department of Chemistry to eligible chemistry and biochemistry majors. Applications are available during the month of March for the following academic year. See department advisers for more information.
- Student Organizations/Associations:*
 - Alpha Chi Sigma: the UW affiliate of the national chemistry-related science organization for chemistry and biochemistry majors
 - Phi Lambda Upsilon: the UW affiliate of the national chemistry honorary society
 - The Free Radicals: a general undergraduate club for chemistry and biochemistry majors

Of Special Note:

- The BS degree in chemistry requires a minimum of 182 credits to graduate.
- The BS degree in chemistry, ACS-Certified option, requires a minimum of 185 credits to graduate.
- The BA degree in chemistry requires a minimum of 180 credits to graduate.
- Students are strongly encouraged to participate in undergraduate research.
- The maximum number of credits that may be earned combining CHEM 199 and CHEM 299 is 12; the maximum number of credits that may be earned combining CHEM 399 and CHEM 499 is 24.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

(206) 543-4787

graduate@chem.washington.edu

The Master of Science and Doctor of Philosophy programs are designed to lead to positions of leadership and independent investigation in research institutes, industrial laboratories, and government agencies, and as teachers, researchers, or administrators in colleges and universities in chemistry or allied fields.

Students can pursue research in the following areas of chemistry: analytical, bioanalytical, bioinorganic, biorganic, biophysical, environmental, inorganic, materials, medicinal, nuclear, organic, organometallic, physical, polymer, process analytical, and theoretical.

Thesis research for the Master of Science degree and dissertation research for the Doctor of Philosophy degree will constitute an original contribution of knowledge worthy of report in the scientific literature.

Refer to the Chemistry Department website for more detailed information regarding admission and graduation requirements.

Master of Science

The Department of Chemistry offers primarily the PhD degree. The Master of Science program is not open to master's-only students, except under specific conditions.

Graduation Requirements: With Thesis -- 36 approved credits with 18 in courses at the 500 level or above; 18 credits in courses at the 400 or 500 level taken for numerical grade with a 2.7 grade minimum in each graded course; 9 credits in thesis research. Without Thesis -- Same as with thesis, except that additional coursework may be substituted for the required research. Minimum GPA of 3.00 required.

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

1. Baccalaureate degree with major in chemistry or allied sciences
2. Graduate Record Examination scores

Degree Requirements

90 credits, to include:

1. Required coursework: 18-27 credits of coursework to support the student's individualized program of study, approved by the Graduate Program Coordinator, at the 400 or 500 level, with a 2.7 grade minimum in each graded course, and a minimum 3.00 GPA
2. Seminars: Participation in departmental seminars
3. Dissertation: Minimum 27 credits of dissertation (CHEM 800) work
4. Candidacy examinations covering area of specialization

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscaat/

CHEM 110 Introduction to General Chemistry (3-5) NW Introduction to general chemistry with an emphasis on developing problem solving skills. Covers basic concepts of chemistry along with the mathematics required for quantitative problem solving. For students without high school chemistry or with limited mathematics background. Successful completion of CHEM 110 prepares students to enroll in CHEM 142. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: A.

CHEM 120 Principles of Chemistry I (5) NW, QSR First course in a three-quarter overview of general chemistry, organic chemistry, and biochemistry. Not for students majoring in biochemistry, chemistry, or engineering. Includes matter and energy, chemical nomenclature, chemical reactions, stoichiometry, modern atomic theory, chemical bonding. Laboratory. Only 5 credits can be counted toward graduation from the following: CHEM 120, CHEM 142, CHEM 145. Offered: AS.

CHEM 142 General Chemistry (5) NW, QSR For science and engineering majors. Atomic nature of matter, stoichiometry, gas laws, chemical equilibrium, solubility, and acids and bases. Includes laboratory. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course groups: CHEM 142, CHEM 145 (5 credits). Cannot be taken for credit if CHEM 120 already taken. Recommended: high school chemistry; placement into MATH 120 or higher. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 145 Honors General Chemistry (5) NW, QSR CHEM 145 and CHEM 155 cover material in CHEM 142, CHEM 152, and CHEM 162. Includes laboratory. Prerequisite: either MATH 124 or MATH 134, either of which may be taken concurrently; score of 66% on HCHEMC placement test, score of 3, 4 or 5 on AP Chemistry exam, or IB score of 5, 6, or 7 on high level chemistry exam. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course groups: CHEM 142, CHEM 145 (5 credits); CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 162 (10 credits). Offered: A.

CHEM 152 General Chemistry (5) NW, QSR Aqueous equilibria, titrations, buffers, energy, enthalpy and thermochemistry, spontaneity, entropy and free energy, electrochemistry, quantum mechanics, and atomic theory. Includes laboratory. Prerequisite: a minimum grade of 1.7 in either CHEM 142, or CHEM 145. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course groups: CHEM 152, CHEM 155 (5 credits). Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 155 Honors General Chemistry (5) NW, QSR Continuation of CHEM 145. Includes laboratory. Together CHEM 145 and CHEM 155 cover material in CHEM 142, CHEM 152, and CHEM 162. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course groups: CHEM 152 or CHEM 155 (5 credits); CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 162 (10 credits). Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.2 in CHEM 145. Offered: W.

CHEM 162 General Chemistry (5) NW, QSR General bonding and molecular-orbital theory, chemical kinetics, liquids and solids, properties of solutions, the elements in groups 1A-4A, the elements in groups 5A-8A, transition metals and coordination chemistry, and organic chemistry. Includes laboratory. Prerequisite: a minimum grade of 1.7 in CHEM 152. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course groups: CHEM 162, CHEM 165 (5 credits). Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 165 Honors General Chemistry (5) NW, QSR Introduction to systematic inorganic chemistry: representative elements, metals, and nonmetals. Includes coordination complexes, geochemistry, and metallurgy. Additional material on environmental applications of basic chemistry presented. Includes laboratory. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course groups: CHEM 162, CHEM 165 (5 credits); CHEM 165, CHEM 312 (5 credits). Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.2 in CHEM 155. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 190 Freshman Discovery Seminar in Chemistry (5) NW Introduces incoming freshman to research basics and scholarly inquiry skills used in the study of chemistry.

CHEM 198 Tutorial Study (2, max. 6) NW Credit/no-credit only.

CHEM 199 Special Problems (1-6, max. 6) Research in chemistry. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 220 Principles of Chemistry II (5) NW Second course in a three-quarter overview of general chemistry, organic chemistry, and biochemistry. Not for students majoring in biochemistry, chemistry, or engineering. Introduction to organic chemistry including organic compounds, functional groups, aromaticity, and stereochemistry. Prerequisite: a minimum grade of 1.7 in either CHEM 120 or CHEM 142. Offered: W.

CHEM 221 Principles of Chemistry III (5) NW Third course in a three-quarter overview of general chemistry, organic chemistry, and biochemistry. Not for students majoring in biochemistry, chemistry, or engineering. Introduction to biochemistry including biomolecular structure, proteins, nucleic acids, biochemical cycles, and cellular energetics. Only 5 credits can be counted toward graduation from the following: CHEM 221, CHEM 223, CHEM 237, CHEM 335. Prerequisite: 1.7 in CHEM 220. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 223 Organic Chemistry - Short Program (4) NW First of a two-quarter lecture series in organic chemistry, for those who elect not to complete the CHEM 237, CHEM 238, CHEM 239 sequence. Introduction to structure, nomenclature, properties, and reactions of the main functional families of organic compounds. Stereochemistry and spectroscopy. No more than 5 credits can be counted toward graduation from the following course group: CHEM 221, CHEM 223, CHEM 237, CHEM 335. Prerequisite: a minimum grade of 1.7 in either CHEM 152 or CHEM 155; recommended: CHEM 162. Offered: AS.

CHEM 224 Organic Chemistry - Short Program (4) NW Continuation of CHEM 223. Structure, nomenclature, properties, and reactions of aldehydes, ketones, carboxylic acid derivatives, amines, carbohydrates, lipids, amino acids, peptides, proteins, and nucleic acids. No laboratory accompanies this course, but CHEM 241 laboratory may be taken concurrently. No more than 4 credits can be counted toward graduation from the following course group: CHEM 224, CHEM 239, CHEM 337. Prerequisite: 1.7 in CHEM 223. Offered: WS.

CHEM 237 Organic Chemistry (4) NW First course for students planning to take three quarters of organic chemistry. Structure, nomenclature, reactions, and synthesis of the main types of organic compounds. No organic laboratory accompanies this course. No more than 5 credits can be counted toward graduation from the following course groups: CHEM 221, CHEM 223, CHEM 237, CHEM 335. Prerequisite: a minimum grade of 1.7 in either CHEM 155 or CHEM 162. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 238 Organic Chemistry (4) NW Second course for students planning to take three quarters of organic chemistry. Further discussion of physical properties and transformations of organic molecules, especially aromatic and carbonyl compounds. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course groups: CHEM 238, CHEM 336 (4 credits). Prerequisite: either 1.7 in CHEM 237 or 1.7 in CHEM 335. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 239 Organic Chemistry (3) NW Third course for students planning to take three quarters of organic chemistry. Polyfunctional compounds and natural products, lipids, carbohydrates, amino acids, proteins, and nucleic acids. Includes introduction to membranes, enzyme mechanisms, prosthetic groups, macromolecular conformations and supramolecular architecture. No more than 4 credits can be counted toward graduation from the following course groups: CHEM 224, CHEM 239, CHEM 337. Prerequisite: either 1.7 in CHEM 238 or 1.7 in CHEM 336. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 241 Organic Chemistry Laboratory (3) NW Introduction to organic laboratory techniques. Preparation of representative compounds. Designed to be taken with CHEM 224 or CHEM 238. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course group: CHEM 241, CHEM 346 (3 credits). Prerequisite: minimum 1.7 grade in CHEM 237; either CHEM 224, CHEM 238, or CHEM 336, any of which may be taken concurrently. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 242 Organic Chemistry Laboratory (3) NW Preparations and qualitative organic analysis. Designed to be taken with 239. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course group: CHEM 242, CHEM 347 (3 credits). Prerequisite: minimum 1.7 grade in either CHEM 241 or CHEM 346; minimum 1.7 grade in either CHEM 224, CHEM 238, or CHEM 336, which may be taken concurrently. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 291 Study Abroad - Chemistry (1-15, max. 15) NW For student in the UW study abroad program. Content varies and is individually evaluated. Credit does not apply to major degree requirements without departmental approval.

CHEM 299 Special Problems and Report Writing (1-6, max. 6) Research in chemistry and/or study in the chemical literature. Requires writing a scientific report. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 312 Inorganic Chemistry (3) NW The periodic table: chemistry of representative and transition elements. Aqueous chemistry, solid state chemistry, and everyday aspects of inorganic chemistry emphasized. Not intended for students who have completed CHEM 165. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course group: CHEM 165, CHEM 312 (5 credits). Prerequisite: either CHEM 155 or CHEM 162; either CHEM 224, CHEM 238, or CHEM 336. Offered: AWS.

CHEM 317 Inorganic Chemistry Laboratory (4) NW Experimental exploration of the periodic table. Techniques of preparation and characterization of inorganic compounds. Handling of air-sensitive materials and gases. Prerequisite: either CHEM 165 or CHEM 312; either CHEM 242 or CHEM 347. Offered: WSp.

CHEM 321 Quantitative Analysis (5) NW Introduction to chemical analysis, including gravimetric, volumetric, spectrophotometric, and potentiometric analyses. Laboratory computer use included. Prerequisite: either CHEM 155, CHEM 162, or CHEM 164. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 335 Honors Organic Chemistry (4) NW For chemistry majors and otherwise qualified students planning three or more quarters of organic chemistry. Structure, nomenclature, reactions, and synthesis of organic compounds. Theory and mechanism of organic reactions. Studies of biomolecules. No organic laboratory accompanies this course. No more than 5 credits can be counted toward graduation from the following course group: CHEM 221, CHEM 223, CHEM 237, CHEM 335. Prerequisite: either CHEM 155 or CHEM 162. Offered: A.

CHEM 336 Honors Organic Chemistry (4) NW For chemistry majors and otherwise qualified students planning three or more quarters of organic chemistry. Structure, nomenclature, reactions, and synthesis of organic compounds. Theory and mechanism of organic reactions. Studies of biomolecules. No more than 4 credits can be counted toward graduation from the following course groups: CHEM 238, CHEM 336. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.2 in CHEM 335. Offered: W.

CHEM 337 Honors Organic Chemistry (4) NW For chemistry majors and otherwise qualified students planning three or more quarters of organic chemistry. Structure, nomenclature, reactions, and synthesis of organic compounds. Theory and mechanism of organic reactions. Studies of biomolecules. Includes introduction to membranes, enzyme mechanisms, prosthetic groups, macromolecular conformations, and supramolecular architecture. No more than 4 credits can be counted toward graduation from the following course groups: CHEM 239, CHEM 337. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.2 in CHEM 336. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 346 Organic Chemistry Honors Laboratory (3) NW To accompany CHEM 336. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course group: CHEM 241, CHEM 346 (3 credits). Prerequisite: 1.7 in CHEM 335; CHEM 336 which may be taken concurrently. Offered: W.

CHEM 347 Organic and Qualitative Organic Honors Laboratory (3) NW Continuation of CHEM 346. To accompany CHEM 337. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course group: CHEM 242, CHEM 347 (3 credits). Prerequisite: minimum 1.7 grade in CHEM 336; minimum 2.2 grade in CHEM 346; CHEM 337 which may be taken concurrently. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 399 Undergraduate Research (*, max. 12) Research in chemistry. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 410 Radiochemistry Laboratory (2) NW Introductory general service course for students planning further work in nuclear or tracer applications. Safety procedures, detection and measurement of nuclear radiation, radiochemical and tracer techniques. Prerequisite: CHEM 418, which may be taken concurrently.

CHEM 416 Transition Metals (3) NW Survey of selected key topics in the chemistry of the transition metals, including emphasis on the structure, bonding, and reactivity of major classes of compounds. Prerequisite: either CHEM 165 or CHEM 312; either CHEM 453, CHEM 455, or CHEM 475, which may be taken concurrently. Offered: A.

CHEM 417 Organometallic Chemistry (3) NW Chemistry of the metal-carbon bond for both main group and transition metals. Structure and reactivity with applications to organic synthesis and catalysis. Prerequisite: either CHEM 224, CHEM 239, or CHEM 337; CHEM 416. Offered: W.

CHEM 418 Nuclear Chemistry (3) NW Natural radioactivity, nuclear systematics and reactions, radioactive decay processes, stellar nucleosynthesis, applications of radioactivity. Prerequisite: either CHEM 453, CHEM 455, or CHEM 475.

CHEM 419 Bioinorganic Chemistry (3) NW Description of transition metal-containing systems found in biology. Structural and electronic properties and reactivity of metalloproteins, metalloenzymes, and metallocofactors. Methods used to probe and model metal sites by spectroscopic and synthetic techniques. Prerequisite: either CHEM 224, CHEM 239, or CHEM 337; CHEM 416. Offered: Sp, even years.

CHEM 426 Instrumental Analysis (3) NW Introduction to modern instrumental methods of chemical analysis, including chromatography, optical and mass spectroscopy, electrochemistry and flow injection analysis. Basic concepts of transducers, spectrometers, mass analysis, separation sciences, and computerized data acquisition and reduction. Includes laboratory. Prerequisite: CHEM 321. Offered: W.

CHEM 428 Bioinstrumental Analysis (3) NW Modern instrumental methods of bioanalysis of DNA and proteins, including agarose gel electrophoresis, PCR, Sanger sequencing for nucleic acid analysis and ELISA, SDS-PAGE, and LC/MS-MS analysis of proteins. Mass analysis, separation sciences, and bioinformatics tools. Includes laboratory. No credit allowed if BIOC 426 taken. Prerequisite: either BIOC 405 or BIOC 440. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 429 Chemical Separation Techniques (3) NW Introduction to modern separation techniques such as gas chromatography, high-performance liquid chromatography, electrophoresis, and field flow fractionation. Prerequisite: either CHEM 224, CHEM 239, or CHEM 337; either CHEM 241, CHEM 321, or CHEM 346. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 436 Chemical Biology (3) NW Protein structure and forces that hold proteins together; mechanistic enzymology, basics of how enzymes work as catalysts; protein-ligand binding, both theory and measurement approaches; fundamentals of protein analysis including gels and immunological methods; activity-based protein profiling. DNA synthesis along with methods for directed DNA mutagenesis and recombinant protein production. Prerequisite: either CHEM 224, CHEM 239, or CHEM 337; recommended: either BIOC 405 or BIOC 440.

CHEM 452 Physical Chemistry for Biochemists I (3) NW General equilibrium thermodynamics emphasizing biochemical applications: ligand binding, biological oxidation-reduction reactions, membranes, active transport, colligative properties, and surface tension. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following: 452, 456 (3 credits). Prerequisite: either CHEM 155 or CHEM 162; either MATH 125 or MATH 134; either PHYS 115 or PHYS 122. Offered: AWS.

CHEM 453 Physical Chemistry for Biochemists II (3) NW Continuation of CHEM 452. Includes transport properties, enzyme kinetics, introduction to quantum mechanics, spectroscopy, and classical statistical mechanics. Prerequisite: either CHEM 452 or CHEM 456; either MATH 126 or MATH 135; either PHYS 116 or PHYS 123; recommended: MATH 307; MATH 308. Offered: WSp.

CHEM 455 Physical Chemistry (3) NW Introduction to quantum chemistry and spectroscopy. Theory of quantum mechanics presented at an elementary level and applied to the electronic structure of atoms and molecules and to molecular spectra. Prerequisite: either CHEM 155 or CHEM 162; either MATH 126 or MATH 136; either PHYS 116 or PHYS 123; recommended: MATH 307; MATH 308. Offered: Asp.

CHEM 456 Physical Chemistry (3) NW Chemical thermodynamics. Laws of thermodynamics presented with applications to phase equilibria, chemical equilibria, and solutions. No more than the number of credits indicated can be counted toward graduation from the following course group: CHEM 452, CHEM 456 (3 credits). Prerequisite: either CHEM 155 or CHEM 162; either MATH 126 or MATH 136; either PHYS 116 or PHYS 123; recommended: MATH 307. Offered: WS.

CHEM 457 Physical Chemistry (3) NW Introduction to statistical mechanics, kinetic theory, and chemical kinetics. Prerequisite: either CHEM 455 or CHEM 475; either CHEM 456 or CHEM E 326. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 458 Air Pollution Chemistry (4) NW Global atmosphere as a chemical system emphasizing physical factors and chemical processes that give rise to elevated surface ozone, particulate matter, and air toxics; international issues of air pollution transport and changing tropospheric background composition; and regulatory control strategies and challenges. Aimed at science and engineering majors. Recommended: either ATM S 358 or CHEM 162, MATH 126, and PHYS 123. Offered: jointly with ATM S 458; A.

CHEM 460 Spectroscopic Molecular Identification (3) NW Basic theory of spectral techniques - infrared and ultraviolet/visible spectroscopy, NMR, and mass spectrometry - with emphasis on spectral interpretation skills needed for the elucidation of structure, conformation, and dynamics in organic and biological chemistry. Prerequisite: either CHEM 224, CHEM 239, or CHEM 337; recommended: either CHEM 455 or CHEM 475. Offered: A.

CHEM 461 Physical Chemistry Laboratory (3) NW Physical measurements in chemistry. Vacuum techniques, calorimetry, spectroscopic methods, electrical measurements. Prerequisite: either CHEM 453, or both CHEM 455 and CHEM 456, or both CHEM 456 and CHEM 475; recommended: CHEM 457. Offered: ASpS.

CHEM 462 Techniques of Synthetic Organic Chemistry (2-3) NW Laboratory techniques of synthetic organic chemistry. Vacuum distillation, multistep synthesis, air sensitive reagents, photochemistry, chromatography, and separation techniques. Prerequisite: either CHEM 242 or CHEM 347; CHEM 460 which may be taken concurrently. Offered: A.

CHEM 463 Spectroscopic Techniques for Structural Identification (2) NW Laboratory techniques of spectroscopic analysis for structural determination using UV, IR, NMR, mass spectroscopy. Prerequisite: CHEM 460. Offered: W.

CHEM 464 Computers in Data Acquisition and Analysis (3) NW Introduction to use of the computer in the chemistry laboratory. Principles of microcomputers and their use for such problems as data acquisition, noise reduction, and instrument control. Prerequisite: either CHEM 453, CHEM 455, or CHEM 475; MATH 136, or both MATH 307 and MATH 308. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 465 Computations in Chemistry (3) NW Computer calculations on color graphics workstations applied to problems in chemistry. Numerical methods and algorithms for calculating classical dynamics, quantum wavefunctions, wavepacket propagation, chemical kinetics. Use of computer programs for calculating electronic wavefunctions, molecular conformations, simulations of liquids and solids. Prerequisite: either CHEM 455 or CHEM 475, either of which may be taken concurrently. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 475 Honors Physical Chemistry (3) NW Introduction to quantum chemistry, spectroscopy. Theory of quantum mechanics applied more rigorously than in CHEM 455. Application of quantum mechanics to electronic structure of atoms and molecules. Computer software used to solve problems. Prerequisite: either CHEM 155 or CHEM 162; either MATH 126 or MATH 136; either PHYS 116 or PHYS 123; recommended: MATH 307; MATH 308. Offered: A.

CHEM 484 Materials Chemistry (3) NW Overview of basic principles, techniques, and applications associated with solid materials. Topics include description of crystals, examples of crystal structures, structural analysis, band structures of solid materials, preparation of materials, materials for microelectronics, and materials for information technology. Prerequisite: CHEM 453 or CHEM 455. Offered: jointly with MSE 484; ASp.

CHEM 491 Study Abroad - Advanced Chemistry (1-15, max. 15) NW For students in the UW study abroad program. Content varies and is individually evaluated. Credit does not apply to major degree requirements without departmental approval.

CHEM 499 Undergraduate Research and Report Writing (*, max. 12) Research in chemistry and/or study in the chemical literature. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 500 Grant Proposal and Scientific Writing (1) Introduces steps in compiling a successful grant proposal and writing scientific articles, personal statements, research summaries, and procuring recommendation letters, using the NSF graduate fellowship as a guide. Students gain experience in peer review processes as assessment of current scientific literature. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: A.

CHEM 501 Readings in Chemistry (1, max. 9) Individual meetings with faculty to discuss readings (journal articles, book chapters, proceedings) in the chemical sciences. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 508 Advanced Inorganic Chemistry (3, max. 9) Discussion of selected applications of physical techniques to the study of inorganic molecules. Topics include group theory, magnetic resonance spectroscopy (NMR and ESR), vibrational spectroscopy (IR and Raman), electronic spectroscopy, magnetism, and electrochemistry. Offered: A.

CHEM 510 Current Problems in Inorganic Chemistry (3, max. 9) Primarily for doctoral candidates in inorganic chemistry. Current topics (e.g., bioinorganic, advanced organometallic, materials and solid state, advanced inorganic spectroscopy). See department for instructor and topics during any particular quarter. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 520 Current Problems in Analytical Chemistry (3, max. 9) Primarily for doctoral candidates in analytical chemistry. Current topics (e.g., flow injection analysis, mass spectrometry, and advanced radiochemistry). See department for instructor and topics during any particular quarter. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 522 Atomic and Molecular Analytical Spectroscopy (3) Quantitative analysis of atomic and molecular species, using all forms of electromagnetic radiation, electrons, and gaseous ions.

CHEM 523 Geochemical Cycles (4) Descriptive, quantitative aspects of earth as biogeochemical system. Study of equilibria, transport processes, chemical kinetics, biological processes; their application to carbon, sulfur, nitrogen, phosphorus, other elemental cycles. Stability of biogeochemical systems; nature of human perturbations of their dynamics. Prerequisite: permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with ATM S 508/OCEAN 523.

CHEM 529 Chemical Separation Techniques (3) Introduction to modern separation techniques such as gas chromatography, high-performance liquid chromatography, electrophoresis, and field flow fractionation. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 530 Advanced Organic Chemistry (3) Fundamental aspects of organic structures and transformations. Structure and basicity of carbanions, substitution reactions, elimination reactions, nucleophilic addition and addition/elimination reactions, condensation reactions, structure and rearrangements of carbocations, electrophilic addition, electrophilic substitutions, neighboring group effects. Prerequisite: CHEM 337. Offered: A.

CHEM 531 Advanced Organic Chemistry (3) Synthetic organic chemistry. Discussion of practical methods for the synthesis of complex organic molecules with an emphasis on strategy and the control of stereochemistry. Prerequisite: CHEM 530. Offered: W.

CHEM 532 Advanced Organic Chemistry (3) Chemical biology. Application of chemical methods to the study of biological processes that occur in cells. Prerequisite: CHEM 530 and CHEM 531. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 540 CURRENT PROBLEMS IN ORGANIC CHEMISTRY (1-3, max. 12)

CHEM 550 Introduction to Quantum Chemistry (3) Origins and basic postulates of quantum mechanics, solutions to single-particle problems, angular momentum and hydrogenic wave functions, matrix methods, perturbation theory, variational methods. Prerequisite: CHEM 455. Offered: A.

CHEM 551 Introduction to Quantum Chemistry (3) Electronic structure of many-electron atoms and molecules, vibration and rotation levels of molecules, effects of particle exchange, angular momentum and group theory, spectroscopic selection rules. Prerequisite: CHEM 550. Offered: W.

CHEM 552 Statistical Mechanics (3) General theorems of statistical mechanics, relation of the equilibrium theory to classical thermodynamics, quantum statistics, theory of imperfect gases, lattice statistics and simple cooperative phenomena, lattice dynamics and theory of solids, liquids, solutions, and polymers, time-dependent phenomena and mechanisms of interaction. Prerequisite: CHEM 455 and CHEM 456 (concurrent registration permitted) or equivalent. Offered: W.

CHEM 553 Statistical Mechanics (3) General theorems of statistical mechanics, relation of the equilibrium theory to classical thermodynamics, quantum statistics, theory of imperfect gases, lattice statistics and simple cooperative phenomena, lattice dynamics and theory of solids, liquids, solutions, and polymers, time-dependent phenomena and mechanisms of interaction. Prerequisite: CHEM 552. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 560 Current Problems in Physical Chemistry (1-3, max. 12) Primarily for doctoral candidates in physical chemistry. A discussion of topics selected from active research fields. See department for instructor and the topic during any particular quarter.

CHEM 564 Organic Electronic and Photonic Materials/Polymers (3) Physical and material concepts determining properties of organic electronic and photonic materials. Discusses electronic structure, physico-chemical characterization, and device application. Includes introduction of electronic band structure of polymers, electrically conducting polymers; organic nonlinear optical electroluminescent materials; polymer optical fibers; tow-photon absorption materials for 3-D microfabrication. Offered: jointly with MSE 560; W.

CHEM 565 Computations in Chemistry (3) Covers computer calculations applied to problems in chemistry. Introduces to numerical methods and algorithms for calculating classical dynamics, quantum wavefunctions, wavepacket propagation, and chemical kinetics. Uses computer programs for calculating electronic wavefunctions, molecular conformations, and simulations of liquids and solids. Offered: Sp.

CHEM 581 Preparation for Second-Year Exam (3-, max. 9) Preparation for examination. Open only to students accepted for doctoral work in chemistry, in their second year of study. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSp.

CHEM 590 Seminar in General Chemistry (1, max. 18) For chemistry graduate students only. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSp.

CHEM 591 Seminar in Inorganic Chemistry (1, max. 18) For chemistry graduate students only. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSp.

CHEM 592 Seminar in Analytical Chemistry (1, max. 18) For chemistry graduate students only. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSp.

CHEM 593 Seminar in Organic Chemistry (1, max. 18) For chemistry graduate students only. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSp.

CHEM 595 SEMINAR IN PHYSICAL CHEMISTRY (1, max. 18) Credit/no-credit only.

CHEM 597 Nanotechnology Seminar (1, max. 18) Emphasizes frontier research in nanoscience and nanotechnology and on intellectual interactions within the nanotechnology community. Presented by experts in the field, with most being from other institutions. Prerequisite: graduate standing and permission of instructor. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: jointly with BIOEN 518; AWSp.

CHEM 600 Independent Study or Research (*-) Prerequisite: permission of coordinator. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 700 Master's Thesis (*-) Prerequisite: permission of coordinator. Offered: AWSpS.

CHEM 800 Doctoral Dissertation (*-) Prerequisite: permission of coordinator. Offered: AWSpS.

Classics

218 Denny

The discipline of classics concerns itself with the cultures of ancient Greece and Rome from prehistoric times to the Middle Ages. The department is concerned with the Greek and Latin languages and their literatures, including poetry, drama, history, philosophy, rhetoric, and political theory, as well as with classical art and archaeology. The ancient cultures of Greece and Rome hold an extraordinary place in the American past and present, thanks to their central role in forming the basic conceptual categories that shape our intellectual, professional, and civic lives. The vast temporal and geographic gulf that divides these ancient cultures from modernity brings students and scholars of classics face to face with the otherness of antiquity and forces a critical examination of our own cultural roots.

clasdept@uw.edu

The Department of Classics offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with majors in classics, Greek, Latin, and classical studies.
- Minors in classical studies, Greek, Latin, and classics and ancient history.

The majors in classics, Greek, and Latin emphasize the development of expertise in Greek and Latin and can include coursework in the history, literature, philosophy, science, and the art and archaeology of these two contrasting but related cultures. Students who intend to continue their studies to the PhD degree are advised to take the BA in classics or, alternatively, the BA in Latin or Greek with as many courses in the second language as possible.

A fourth major, the Bachelor of Arts with a major in classical studies, is especially suited to students wishing to explore the literature, history, art, archaeology, and philosophy of classical antiquity, primarily through English translations. The classical studies major demands less study of the classical languages of Greece and Rome than is required for the other majors. Students with no previous exposure to Greek or Latin can complete the classical studies major in two years. Students have often combined this major with another major such as English, history, or art history, and even with a non-humanities major such as computer science, biochemistry, or economics.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: First- and second-year Latin and/or classical Greek, classics in translation, ancient history, classical art and archaeology, ancient philosophy.

Department Admission Requirements

Students in good academic standing may declare this major at any time.

Major Requirements

66 credits in each of the majors, to include:

- Greek: 27 approved credits in Greek at the 400 level plus 9 credits chosen with department approval from courses in Latin, Greek at the 400 level, classics in English, classical art and archaeology, ancient history, the history of ancient philosophy, and the history of ancient science. The major must include a minimum of 2 credits of CLAS 495.
- Latin: 27 approved credits in Latin at the 400 level plus 9 credits chosen with department approval from courses in Greek, Latin at the 400 level, classics in English, classical art and archaeology, ancient history, the history of ancient philosophy, and the history of ancient science. The major must include a minimum of 2 credits of CLAS 495.
- Classics: 15 approved credits in Greek at the 400 level and 15 approved credits in Latin at the 400 level; 6 additional credits (including 2 credits of CLAS 495) chosen from the following courses: Greek and Latin at the 400 level, classics in English, classical art and archaeology, ancient history, the history of ancient philosophy, and the history of ancient science.
- Classical Studies: Greek or Latin through 307 or the equivalent; 36 additional credits chosen with department approval from the following courses: Greek and Latin at 400 level (including a minimum of 2 credits of CLAS 495), classics in English, classical art and archaeology, ancient history, the history of ancient philosophy, and the history of ancient science. Classical studies is especially suited to students not preparing for graduate study in classics but wishing to explore the literature, history, art, archaeology, and philosophy of classical antiquity primarily through English translations.

Note: Competence to take 400-level courses which count toward the Latin, Greek, and classics majors generally requires four-to-six quarters (20-30 credits) of previous study.

Minor

Minor Requirements: Minimum 25 credits as follows for each of the minors except Classics and Ancient History, which requires 30 credits:

- Classical Studies: 25 approved credits from classics in English, classical art and archaeology, ancient history, the history of ancient philosophy, and the history of ancient science.

- Greek: Minimum 25 credits in Greek, including at least 6 credits at the 400 level (excluding GREEK 490).
- Latin: Minimum 25 credits in Latin, including at least 6 credits at the 400 level (excluding LATIN 490).
- Classics and Ancient History: 30 credits from the course list below, including at least 20 upper-division credits (15 of which must be taken at the UW). 100-level credit is not accepted. Minimum 10 credits from each department (Classics and History). A minimum grade of 2.0 is required in each course. Not available to students pursuing majors or other minors in classics.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The undergraduate study of classics emphasizes critical analysis of language and culture and clear and effective writing. The BA with a major in classics is a respected terminal degree in itself. Like other degree programs in the humanities, it emphasizes the acquisition of those analytic and communications skills which are indispensable for careers in government, journalism, law, industry, medicine, and business. The classics major (especially in its more language-intensive forms) is often a mark of distinction when a graduate applies for admission to professional school.
- Many who take the bachelor's degree in classics go on to pursue graduate work in the subject at leading PhD programs. Graduates include winners of prestigious national awards such as Mellon Fellowships for graduate study and the Rhodes Scholarship.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: The departmental office provides access to several computers for research and coursework. The Classics Department sponsors numerous lectures by distinguished speakers visiting from universities in this country and abroad; undergraduates are always welcome to attend.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors). With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: None offered.
- Department Scholarships:
 - Jim Greenfield Undergraduate Scholarship is intended for undergraduate majors in classics. The object of the Jim Greenfield scholarship is to enable exceptionally well-qualified students to devote the maximum time and energy to their study of the classics at the University of Washington. While the first criterion is academic promise, an applicant's current means of support is also taken into consideration; therefore, the amount of the award may vary from partial tuition to full tuition and some expenses. Successful candidates may reapply for the following year.
 - Jim Greenfield Undergraduate Travel Bursaries: Jim Greenfield Undergraduate Travel Bursaries may be used for the department's Rome Program, for travel associated with participation in archaeological excavations, for independent travel to areas of classical interest, or for other kinds of study-related travel for which the applicant can make a cogent case. In some cases an award might allow a student to remain overseas for study travel in the wake of the department's Rome Program. Further information about applying for a Jim Greenfield Undergraduate Travel Bursary is available in the department office.

In addition to the above, undergraduates are eligible to apply or be nominated for:

- Classics Students Travel Fund: provides financial support for students in the Classics Department who are intending to participate in the departmental Rome program or extramural programs, to attend conferences, or to travel to specific places in support of their studies.
- Harvey Bruce Densmore Memorial Fund: rewards distinguished undergraduate students of Greek.
- Student Organizations/Associations: None

Of Special Note:

- CLAS 101, CLAS 102, CLAS 205, and HIST 111 may not be taken in fulfillment of major requirements for baccalaureate degrees in the Department of Classics.
- Classical Seminar in Rome: During spring quarter, the department offers instruction in classics for advanced undergraduate majors and graduate students at the University of Washington Rome Center, located in the Palazzo Pio on the Campo de Fiori.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

(206) 543-2266

clasdept@uw.edu

The Department of Classics offers programs of graduate study leading to the Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees. The MA degree may be in Greek, Latin, or classics (a combination of Greek and Latin). The PhD degree requires both Greek and Latin.

The program of formal instruction ensures comprehensive and thorough training in the basic disciplines needed for teaching and research. The department offers courses in the major writers and periods of literature, philosophy, and history, in classical art and archaeology, and in Greek and Latin linguistics. The courses in Greek and Latin literature include many works on the PhD-degree reading list. Seminars introduce research techniques through the study of more specialized topics, which vary from quarter to quarter. Students may include in their programs courses and seminars given by other departments in such subjects as ancient philosophy, ancient and medieval history, comparative literature, and linguistics.

Master of Arts

Admission Requirements

Strong preparation in Latin and Greek, preferably a full undergraduate major. Although the MA may be attained with work in only one of the languages, students who plan to work toward the PhD must be prepared to do graduate work in both Latin and Greek.

Degree Requirements

36 credits, as follows:

1. 27 credits in courses and seminars approved by the department as applicable toward an advanced degree and either a) 9 additional credits and a research paper or b) a thesis (9 credits). At least 18 of the total 36 credits must be at the 500 level or above.

2. Competence in reading German, French, or Italian, demonstrated by passing a departmental examination.

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

Strong preparation in Latin and Greek, preferably a full undergraduate major. Admission to the PhD program is granted after completion of the MA degree.

Degree Requirements

90 credits, as follows:

1. Minimum three academic years of graduate study, of which at least two must be at the UW, and one in full-time residence at the University for three out of four consecutive quarters.
2. 90 credits in courses approved by the department. At least half (which include dissertation credits) must be at the 500 level or above.
3. Competence in reading German and French, or German and Italian, demonstrated by passing departmental examinations.
4. Graduate courses (or the equivalent) in Greek and Latin composition.
5. The classics proseminar (or equivalent).
6. Written preliminary examinations:
 - a. Translation exams on Greek and Latin literature. Reading lists in each language guide the student's preparation for these exams.
 - b. A written examination on a special field of classical studies, e.g.: a period of Greek or Roman history, Greek or Latin epigraphy, Athenian or Roman topography, Greek or Roman religion, classical linguistics, metrics, or palaeography, an area of intellectual history, a literary theme or cultural institution. This examination must be taken before the doctoral orals but is preferably taken earlier in the student's graduate program.
 - c. Written examinations on two special authors, one Greek and one Latin, which assume a deep familiarity with the text, a knowledge of the textual history, and the important secondary works and trends in scholarship. A special author examination may be taken only after the translation examination in that language has been passed.
7. An oral general examination on Greek and Roman history, literature, philosophy, and related subjects.
8. A dissertation approved by the student's Supervisory Committee, and an oral examination on the dissertation.
9. Graduate students are expected to have teaching experience before completing their terminal degrees.

Research Facilities

The Suzzallo Library has an extensive classics collection. The department's seminar room in Denny Hall, which is available to graduate students for their study and research, contains an excellent non-circulating library with such reference works as Pauly-Wissowa, L'Année Philologique, the Thesaurus Linguae Latinae, the Müller Handbuch series, the Teubner and Oxford texts, commentaries on the classical authors, standard collections of inscriptions and fragments, and a number of important serials. The department also possesses a license for the Thesaurus Linguae Graecae, Thesaurus Linguae Latinae, and other databases.

Teaching Assistantships and Fellowships

The Department of Classics is able to provide substantial support at the graduate level. Jim Greenfield Graduate Fellowships are typically available to highly meritorious incoming graduate students; Jim Greenfield Dissertation Fellowships provide support at the dissertation stage; Phillip and Estelle DeLacy Fellowships and Nesholm Family Endowment Fellowships provide funding to graduate students for various needs; and the Classics Student Travel Fund provides travel funding (to academic conferences, programs abroad, etc.)

In addition, a number of teaching assistantships are available. Assistants teach sections of elementary Latin and Greek, courses in Latin and Greek derivatives, conduct discussion sections in classical literature in translation, or assist faculty members with other courses. The teaching load is four to six hours a week throughout the academic year.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crsat/

Classical Archaeology

CL AR 340 Pre-Classical Art and Archaeology (3) VLPA K. TOPPER Survey of the art and the other material remains of the civilizations in the Aegean from the Neolithic Age to the end of the Bronze Age, with special emphasis on Minoan Crete and the Mycenaean kingdoms of mainland Greece, illustrated by slides. The history, techniques, and results of significant excavations are examined. Offered: jointly with ART H 340.

CL AR 341 Greek Art and Archaeology (3) VLPA S. LEVIN-RICHARDSON, K. TOPPER Survey of the material remains and the developing styles in sculpture, vase painting, architecture, and the minor arts from the geometric to the Hellenistic periods, illustrated by slides. Principal sites and monuments, as well as techniques and methods of excavation, are examined in an attempt to reconstruct the material culture of antiquity. Offered: jointly with ART H 341.

CL AR 342 Roman Art and Archaeology (3) VLPA K. TOPPER Roman architecture and art, with emphasis on the innovations of the Romans; illustrated by slides. Offered: jointly with ART H 342.

CL AR 343 Hellenistic Art and Archaeology (3) VLPA K. TOPPER Survey of the art of Greece and the eastern Mediterranean from the time of Alexander the Great to the Roman conquest. Principal sites with their sculpture, painting, mosaics, and minor arts examined in lectures illustrated with slides. Offered: jointly with ART H 343.

CL AR 442 Greek Painting (3) VLPA K. TOPPER Study of painted decoration on Greek vases, with emphasis on stylistic developments and cultural and historical influences. Painting on other media also examined as evidence allows. Offered: jointly with ART H 442.

CL AR 443 Roman Painting (3) VLPA S. LEVIN-RICHARDSON, K. TOPPER Study of surviving painting from the Roman world, with emphasis on wall paintings from Pompeii and Herculaneum. Principal topics for discussion: the four styles of Pompeian painting the dependence of Roman painters on Greek prototypes, and the significance of various kinds of painting as domestic decoration. Offered: jointly with ART H 443.

CL AR 444 Greek and Roman Sculpture (3) VLPA K. TOPPER History and development of Greek sculpture and sculptors, their Roman copyists, and Roman portraits and sarcophagi. Emphasis on Greek sculpture of the fifth century BC. Offered: jointly with ART H 444.

CL AR 446 Greek Architecture (3) VLPA K. TOPPER Detailed study of Greek architecture from its beginnings, with special emphasis on the Periclean building program in fifth-century Athens. Offered: jointly with ART H 446.

CL AR 447 The Archaeology of Early Italy (3) VLPA S. LEVIN-RICHARDSON, K. TOPPER Study of the principal archaeological sites of early Italy, including Etruria, Sicily, southern Italy, and archaic Rome up to the Republican period. Attention given to the material remains and their relationship to the Etruscan, ancient Sicilian, and early Roman civilizations. Offered: jointly with ART H 447.

CL AR 448 The Archaeology of Italy (3) VLPA S. LEVIN-RICHARDSON, K. TOPPER Study of the principal archaeological sites in Italy with special emphasis on ancient Rome. Sites include the Alban hills, Ostia, Pompeii, Herculaneum, Tarquinia, Paestum, Tivoli, and Praeneste. Attention given to the relationship between material remains and their purpose in ancient life. Illustrated by slides. Offered: jointly with ART H 448.

CL AR 513 Athenian Topography (5) K. TOPPER Detailed consideration of the topography and monuments of ancient Athens from the beginning through the Roman period.

CL AR 541 Seminar in Greek and Roman Art (5) S. LEVIN-RICHARDSON, K. TOPPER In-depth study of selected topics and problems of the art of ancient Greece and Rome. Offered: jointly with ART H 541.

Classical Linguistics

CL LI 501 Comparative Phonology of Greek and Latin (5) O. LEVANIUK Phonological developments of Greek and Latin from Indo-European to the classical periods of both languages.

CL LI 503 History of the Greek Language (5) O. LEVANIUK Morphological and syntactical development of the Greek language from Homer through the New Testament; the development of prose and poetic style.

CL LI 505 History of the Latin Language (5) O. LEVANIUK Morphological and syntactical development of the Latin language; the development of Latin as a literary language.

CL LI 506 Italic Dialects (5) O. LEVANIUK Principal remains of the non-Latin languages and dialects of ancient Italy.

CL LI 508 Greek Dialects (5) O. LEVANIUK The non-Attic dialects of ancient Greek, based on a study of inscriptions and the literary remains.

Classics

CLAS 101 Latin and Greek in Current Use (2) VLPA Designed to improve and increase English vocabulary through a study of the Latin and Greek elements in English, with emphasis on words in current literary and scientific use. No auditors. Knowledge of Latin or Greek is not required. Offered: AWSpS.

CLAS 102 Grammar and Syntax through Latin (3) VLPA Improve familiarity with basic grammar, syntax, logic through study of mechanics of the Latin language. For Educational Opportunity Program students only. No auditors. Knowledge of Latin or Greek not required.

cominfo@uw.edu

Graduate study in communication engages students in the complexity of modern communication and its centrality to society and, in doing so, prepares them to become thoughtful scholars, teachers, practitioners, and leaders related to this field. The Department of Communication offers graduate programs leading to the degrees of Master of Arts, Doctor of Philosophy, and Master of Communication (MC).

Graduate study in the Department of Communication is guided by four related principles: intellectual and cultural pluralism, interdisciplinary theorizing, collaboration, and public scholarship. Coursework brings together humanistic and social scientific intellectual traditions through a unified core curriculum and a wide selection of graduate seminars. Research and teaching in the department focus on six interrelated areas: communication and culture, communication technology and society, international communication, social interaction, political communication, and rhetoric and critical studies.

The MA degree program provides training in research and scholarship and can be either preparation for doctoral study or a terminal degree. The MA degree requires a minimum of 45 credits of approved coursework and a research thesis. The PhD degree program develops conceptual and methodological capabilities in a substantive area of communication. The PhD degree requires completion of a minimum of 45 post-master credits, general examinations, and a dissertation demonstrating an original scholarly contribution to the field.

The Department of Communication also offers three MC degrees, each of which has specific requirements tailored to that degree. The general MC degree is targeted for mid-career communication professionals who seek to develop an understanding of communication theory related to a special area of interest. The MC in digital media is a professional degree focused on digital media content creation, management, and policy. Native Voices is an MC degree offered in conjunction with American Indian Studies. It is designed for documentary filmmakers who focus their work on subjects relevant to the Native American Community.

Master of Arts

Admission Requirements

1. Minimum 3.00 or B GPA over the two most recent years guarantees consideration. However, average GPAs for the students admitted have been higher.
2. MA applicants must show proof of completion of a bachelor's degree prior to starting the program, though it is common for applicants to be in their senior year of college when they apply to the MA program.
3. Full-time status is strongly encouraged, but domestic U.S. residents who do not receive assistantships can enroll half-time.
4. Students who wish to continue directly into the UW PhD program after completing the UW MA program should apply to the MA/PhD program.
5. Note to U.S. permanent residents/immigrants (green card holders): Applicants who are not native speakers of English must submit TOEFL scores taken within the past two years. Only the following applicants are exempt from the TOEFL requirement: citizens of the United States, Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, or the United Kingdom and non-United States citizens who have received a bachelor's degree or higher from a U.S. institution or from institutions in the countries listed here. Applicants who are not U.S. citizens must also submit a TSE score to be considered for departmental funding. Permanent residency/immigrant status or a degree from the United States does not exempt one from this TSE requirement.

Degree Requirements

45 credits minimum, to include:

1. Two core courses (COM 500 and COM 501) during the first year of study.
2. One additional methods course beyond COM 501
3. Up to 5 credits of COM 594 in five different topics may count toward total, although COM 594 credits are not required for master's students.
4. Up to 3 credits of COM 596 may count toward total. These credits are required for students with assistantships and optional for all others.
5. Completion of the thesis (minimum 10 credits in COM 700) and oral defense.
6. Specific courses should be selected in consultation with the Supervisory Committee.

Master of Communication

Admission Requirements

Admission requirements are the same as for the Master of Arts program (above).

Degree Requirements

45 credits minimum, as follows:

1. At least 12 credits in Communication courses at the 400 and 500 level.
2. At least 15 credits outside the Department of Communication in a coherent substantive area of specialization.
3. 10 credits in COM 600 to produce a professional project in an area of specialization for broadcast or publication.
4. Passage of an oral defense of the project.
5. The remaining credits necessary to meet the 45 credits for the degree should be selected in consultation with the Supervisory Committee.
6. At least 21 credits must be at the 500- or 600-level.
7. Up to 5 credits of COM 594 may count toward total, although COM 594 credits are not required for MC students.

- Up to 3 credits of COM 596 may count toward total. These credits are required for students with assistantships and optional for all others.

Digital Media

The Master of Communication (MC) in Digital Media is a professional degree focused in three concentrations: digital media content creation, management, and policy. 45 credits minimum as follows:

- Three core courses: COM 529 (5), COM 546 (5), and COM 558 (5).
- Students may choose either to complete 45 credits of coursework or to complete 40 credits of coursework (including three core courses) and a final project worth 5 credits. Specific courses should be selected in consultation with the Supervisory Committee.

Native Voices

45 credits, as follows:

- 20 credits in the Department of Communication:
 - 10 credits of 500-level communication courses. This is typically two 500-level seminars.
 - COM 600: 10 credits in documentary research and production. To be taken for completion of the final project.
- 25 credits in American Indian Studies/Native Voices: GWSS 443 (5), AIS 501 (5), AIS 502 (5), AIS 503 (5), AIS 504 (5)

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

- Minimum 3.00 or B GPA over the two most recent years guarantees consideration; however, GPAs for students admitted have been higher.
- PhD applicants must show proof of completion of a master's degree prior to starting the program, though applicants are commonly working on their master's thesis the year during which they apply.
- Full-time status is strongly encouraged, but domestic U.S. residents who do not receive assistantships can enroll half-time.
- U.S. permanent residents/immigrants (green card holders)*: Applicants who are not native speakers of English must submit TOEFL scores taken within the past two years. Only the following applicants are exempt from the TOEFL requirement: citizens of the United States, Australia, Canada, Ireland, New Zealand, or the United Kingdom and non-U.S. citizens who have received a bachelor's degree or higher from a U.S. institution or from institutions in the countries listed here. Applicants who are not U.S. citizens must also submit a TSE score to be considered for departmental funding. Permanent resident/immigrant status or a degree from the United States does not exempt one from this TSE requirement.

Degree Requirements

Minimum 45 post-master credits, to include:

- Two core courses (COM 500 and COM 501) during the first year of study.
- Two additional methods courses beyond COM 501.
- 5 credits of COM 591 or COM 592
- 3 credits of COM 594 in three different topics, to be taken before the general examinations (up to five credits in five different topics may be taken).
- Up to 3 credits of COM 596 may count toward total. These credits are required for students with assistantships and optional for all others.
- Completion of the general examination. COM 600 credits do not count toward the 45 required post-master credits (unless student is a UW Communication MA).

- Completion of the dissertation (minimum 27 credits in COM 800 over at least three quarters) and final examination. These 27 credits do not count toward the 45 required post-master credits (or 30 required post-master credits for UW Communication MA students).

- Specific courses should be selected in consultation with the Supervisory Committee.

Students who completed their MA in Communication at the UW do not repeat the core courses, and need only 30 post-master credits, which can include COM 600 credits, and 3 credits of COM 594 in three different topics. Such students are required to take two methods courses beyond the minimum methods course requirements for the MA degree. COM 594 credits and additional methods courses beyond the minimum MA requirements taken during MA work may be used to fulfill the COM 594 and methods requirements for the doctoral program, but may not be applied to the 30 post-master credits.

Research Facilities

In addition to the University's research facilities available to all students, the Department of Communication houses a collection of specialized research laboratories, including the Digital Media Lab, Graduate Computer Lab, Observational Research Facility, Instructional Resources Center, and Video Editing Lab.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The program encourages students to adopt nuanced perspectives on their position relative to texts, cultures, societies, and historical periods. Program graduates have gone on to postgraduate studies in the humanities and social sciences, as well as professional training and careers in a wide variety of fields including law, administration and public policy, medicine, education, journalism, new media, and film.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: Computer workstations for students in B102 Padelford and in C101 Padelford.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors). With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: CHID undergraduates participate in a variety of educational experiences outside the classroom. Students interested in the opportunity to integrate theory with practice while making connections to organizations outside the University may sign up for CHID 399. Additionally many CHID study abroad programs incorporate an "engaged community learning" project, which provides an opportunity for students to apply their analytical skills and understanding of the historical and cultural context to a close participation in the work of local organizations. The diversity of these community efforts allows students to engage their particular interests through participation in social welfare organizations, grassroots community groups, after-school programs, health clinics, theater and other performing arts groups, as well as video and other visual arts projects.
- Department Scholarships: See CHID website for information and deadlines

Of Special Note: CHID also sponsors two undergraduate journals: interSections, which features senior theses, research papers, seminar papers, and essays addressing subjects within the arts, humanities, and social sciences; and The Anthology Project, which is dedicated to providing a forum where students can discuss and reflect on experiences abroad.

1. C LIT 250, C LIT 251, or C LIT 252 (5 credits).
2. C LIT 400 (5 credits).
3. Three differently-numbered courses from among C LIT 320, C LIT 321, C LIT 322, or C LIT 323; C LIT 360, C LIT 361, or C LIT 362. At least one must come from each series (15 credits).
4. One 300-level cinema studies course (5 credits).
5. One additional course in comparative literature at the 300 or 400 level (5 credits).
6. Remaining (15 credits) to be earned in 300- and 400-level literature courses from among the offerings of Comparative Literature and the following participating departments: Asian Languages and Literature, Classics, English, Germanics, Near Eastern Languages and Civilization, Romance Languages and Literature, Scandinavian Studies, and Slavic Languages and Literatures.
7. One course in the program must focus on literature written before 1800.

Cinema Studies Option: 50 credits

1. 15 credits from cinema studies core courses, with at least one course in film theory and one course in film history (C LIT 301, C LIT 302, C LIT 303, C LIT 310, C LIT 311, C LIT 312, C LIT 313).
2. 10 credits from C LIT core requirements (C LIT 400, and one course from C LIT 320, C LIT 321, C LIT 322, C LIT 323).
3. One national cinema course (5 credits).
4. Remaining credits to be earned in recommended 300- and 400-level cinema elective courses offered by Comparative Literature or any UW department. See departmental website for list of cinema elective courses.
5. A maximum of 5 credits of internship (C LIT 491) may be applied toward the cinema studies option with approval of the faculty internship coordinator.

Minor

Minor Requirements: 30 credits to include C LIT 250, C LIT 251, or C LIT 252; C LIT 400; and two differently-numbered courses from among C LIT 320, C LIT 321, C LIT 322, and C LIT 323; and the remaining credits in upper-division literature courses offered through Comparative Literature and the following participating departments: Asian Languages and Literature, Classics, English, Germanics, Near Eastern Languages and Civilization, Romance Languages and Literature, Scandinavian Studies, and Slavic Languages and Literatures.

A minor is not available for the cinema studies option.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The study of comparative literature provides training in the analysis and critique of varied kinds of social texts and discourses. It stresses the centrality of historical and cross-cultural awareness for effective interpretation of both verbal and visual texts. Students earning the degree in comparative literature may pursue advanced work at the MA and PhD. level in language and literature programs, or allied curricula in film studies, philosophy, intellectual history, and cultural studies. They may aim for degrees in education, specializing in language arts, foreign language teaching, or both. Comparative literature majors may also find jobs in fields where liberal arts skills, such as strong writing ability and fluency in foreign languages, are valued. Cinema studies majors often seek positions associated with film production and distribution.

- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors). With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements. With Distinction (Departmental Honors, by invitation). See adviser.
- Undergraduate Research, Internships, and Service Learning: See adviser for internship information.
- Department Scholarships: Some financial support available for student film projects.
- Student Organizations/Associations:
 - Film Club, film@uw.edu
 - UW Film Colloquium, filmcol@uw.edu

GRADUATE PROGRAM

clitgrad@uw.edu

The Department of comparative literature offers a program of study with faculty members from the following participating departments: Asian Languages and Literature, English, French and Italian Studies, Germanics, Near Eastern Languages and Civilization, Scandinavian Studies, Slavic Languages and Literatures, Spanish and Portuguese Studies, and Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies. Study leads to a Master of Arts or Doctor of Philosophy degree. Students concentrate on graduate courses in comparative literature and specialize in two or more national literatures of major interest to them, studied in the original language. With permission, a PhD. aspirant may choose as a third area of study a field outside of literature (e.g., philosophy, religion, art, political thought). On receiving the advanced degree, the student is qualified for teaching and research in comparative and general literature, as well as the language and literature of specialization.

Master of Arts

Admission Requirements

Bachelor of Arts degree in Comparative Literature, English, or any other literature, or equivalent background; advanced reading knowledge in one language other than English.

Degree Requirements

45 credits, as follows:

1. Coursework: Minimum 45 quarter credits at the 400 and 500 level, of which at least 25 must be at the 500 level. Three courses must be taken in comparative literature. Remaining credits must include study in two or more literatures with at least three courses in each of two literatures.
2. Language Requirements: Advanced reading knowledge in at least one language other than English and a basic reading knowledge of a second, demonstrated before starting to write the MA essay. Language competence is attested either by exams or by completion of satisfactory coursework in the language.
3. Essay: Prepared after completion of coursework, under supervision of two faculty members.
4. Study Abroad: Students are encouraged to study abroad by participating in exchange programs offered through the individual language and literature departments or through the UW's Office of International Programs and Exchanges.

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

Master of Arts degree in Comparative Literature, English, or any other literature, or equivalent background; advanced reading knowledge in two languages other than English.

Degree Requirements

90 credits, as follows:

1. Coursework: Minimum 90 postbaccalaureate degree credits at the 400 and 500 level of which at least half in each section of the program must be at the 500 level. Credits must include: (1) at least 30 credits in comparative literature courses; (2) 30 credits in the literature of major interest to the student; (3) 20 credits in the student's minor field (or, if more than one minor field is chosen, at least 15 credits in each); (4) 10 elective credits chosen from any area of the student's choice. One of two minor fields may be extra-literary.
2. Language Requirements: Advanced reading knowledge in two languages other than English and a basic reading knowledge of a third, demonstrated before PhD. examinations are administered. Language competence is attested either by examinations or by completion of satisfactory coursework in the language.
3. General Examination: The general examination requires one quarter and is taken after completion of the 90-credit course requirement and language requirements. The examination, taken within three quarters of completion of coursework, consists of the following two sections: (1) eight-hour written examinations in each of the following three areas: (a) a period exam in the student's primary national literature; (b) comparative literature exam; and (c) comparative theory exam; (2) an oral comprehensive examination evaluating the student's overall preparation for dissertation work.
4. Dissertation: Dissertation topics are chosen from a broad range of areas including: (1) the comparative study of authors or themes in different languages; (2) issues in the fields of theory of literature and history of criticism; (3) the study of literary authors or themes whose significance transcends national or linguistic boundaries; (4) the study of such phenomena as transmission, reception, and influence.
5. Final Examination: Candidates must pass an oral examination devoted to the dissertation and to fields covered by their written exams.
6. Study Abroad: Students are encouraged to study abroad by participating in exchange programs offered through the individual language and literature departments or through the UW's Office of International Programs and Exchanges.

Financial Aid

The department awards teaching assistantships annually to qualified students and provides up to five years of support toward the PhD. to students who enter with a B.A. Teaching assistantships can be assigned in comparative literature, cinema studies, or in any of the national literature departments affiliated with Comparative Literature.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

C LIT 200 Introduction to Literature (3/5) VLPA Reading, understanding, and enjoying literature from various countries, in different forms of expression (e.g., dramatic, lyric, narrative, rhetorical) and of representative periods. Emphasis on the comparative study of themes and motifs common to many literatures of the world.

C LIT 210 Literature and Science (5, max. 15) VLPA Introduces the rich and complex relationship between science and literature from the seventeenth century to the present day. Students examine selected literary, scientific, and philosophical texts, considering ways in which literature and science can be viewed as forms of imaginative activity.

C LIT 230 Introduction to Folklore Studies (5) VLPA/I&S Comprehensive overview of the field of folkloristics, focusing on verbal genres, customs, belief, and material culture. Particular attention to the issues of community, identity, and ethnicity. Offered: jointly with SCAND 230.

C LIT 240 Writing in Comparative Literature (5, max. 15) C Comparative approach to literature and a workshop in writing comparative papers in English. Emphasis on cross-cultural comparison of literary works. Readings in English with an option to read selected texts in the original languages. Offered: AWSp.

C LIT 250 Introduction to Comparative Literature: Literature and Culture (5, max. 15) VLPA/I&S Study of literature in its relation to culture. Focuses on literature as a cultural institution, directly related to the construction of individual identity and the dissemination and critique of values.

C LIT 251 Introduction to Comparative Literature: Themes (5) VLPA Reading and analyzing literature based upon rotating themes such as love, sex, and murder, haunted houses, and dreams and memory. Selections drawn from European, English, and American literature, not limited to period and genre.

C LIT 252 Introduction to Comparative Literature: Genres (5) VLPA Reading and analyzing literature based upon rotating genres such as sci-fi, detective fiction, romance, love, poetry, and comedy. Draws from world literature.

C LIT 270 Perspectives on Film: Introduction (5) VLPA Introduction to film form, style, and techniques. Examples from silent film and from contemporary film. C LIT 270, C LIT 271, C LIT 272 are designed to be taken as a sequence, but may be taken individually.

C LIT 271 Perspectives on Film: Great Directors (5) VLPA Introduction to authorship in the cinema. The work of a major director or directors. C LIT 270, C LIT 271, C LIT 272 are designed to be taken as a sequence, but may be taken individually.

C LIT 272 Perspectives on Film: Genre (5) VLPA Introduction to study of film genre. Literary, mythic, and historic aspects of film genre. C LIT 270, C LIT 271, C LIT 272 are designed to be taken as a sequence, but may be taken individually.

C LIT 300 Introduction to Comparative Literature: Forms, Genres, History (5) VLPA Provides an introduction to comparative literary study which examines how literary forms and genres shape our reading of texts; how these forms and genres change over time; and how literary forms and genres manifest themselves in different cultural traditions. Includes theoretical readings and substantial writing.

C LIT 301 Theory of Film: Analysis (5) VLPA Introduction to the analysis of film. Covers major aspects of cinematic form: mise en scene, framing and camera movement, editing, and sound and color. Considers how these elements are organized in traditional cinematic narrative and in alternative approaches.

C LIT 302 Theory of Film: Critical Concepts (5) VLPA Overview of the main conceptual problems in film criticism such as: "What is a film?", "What is the relationship between film and reality?", "Does a film have a language?", "What is the connection between image and sound?" Follows a historical timeline within five individual sections.

C LIT 303 Theory of Film: Genre (5) VLPA Introduction to the history and significance of film genres from the early days of film to the present. Examines a selection of several genres, drawn from a list including western, melodrama, musical, thriller, road odyssey, film noir, and documentary.

Topics include form, ideology, authority, history, innovation, and parody.

C LIT 310 History of Film: 1895-1929 (5) VLPA Film history from its beginnings in the 1890s through the golden era of silent film in the 1920s. Topics include the invention of major film techniques, the creation of Hollywood and the studios, and movements such as expressionism, constructivism, and surrealism.

C LIT 311 History of Film: 1930-1959 (5) VLPA Film history from the introduction of sound through the late 1950s. Focuses mostly on the golden age of the Hollywood studios and on alternative developments after World War II in Italy (Neo-Realism), France (the New Wave), and Japan.

C LIT 312 History of Film: 1960 - 1988 (5) VLPA Covers the vast changes in filmmaking since 1960. Topics include the continuing influence of the French New Wave, the New German Cinema of the 70s and the "New Hollywood" of the 70s, American independent film of the 80s, and the resurgence of Chinese filmmaking since 1980.

C LIT 313 History of Film: 1989-Present (5) VLPA Addresses the latest trends in international filmmaking typically with an emphasis on world cinema and issues of globalization and diaspora. Sometimes taught in conjunction with the Seattle International Film Festival.

C LIT 315 National Cinemas (3-5, max. 15) VLPA Examines the cinema of a particular national, ethnic or cultural group, with films typically shown in the original language with subtitles. Topics reflect themes and trends in the national cinema being studied.

C LIT 320 Studies in European Literature (5, max. 15) VLPA Examination of the development of European literature in a variety of genres and periods. Possible areas of study include literature from romantic fiction of early nineteenth century through great realist classics of second half of the century or from symbolism to expressionism and existentialism.

C LIT 321 Studies in Literature of the Americas (5, max. 15) VLPA Emphasizes connections between twentieth century literature of the United States and Canada and current literature of Latin America. Emphasizes that, despite obvious differences, much is shared in terms of culture and national sensibility across the two continents.

C LIT 322 Studies in Asian and Western Literatures (5, max. 15) VLPA Topics designated by individual instructors.

C LIT 323 Studies in the Literature of Emerging Nations (5, max. 15) VLPA, DIV Novels and short stories, from Africa, the Middle East, and South Asia. Discusses relationship of Western literary genres to an oral literary tradition, as well as issues like colonialism, gender relations, narrative technique, native and non-native languages.

C LIT 330 The European Fairy Tale (5) VLPA An introduction to folktales and literary tales from various traditions and periods. A discussion of their origin, special characteristics, dissemination, and relevance to the contemporary reader.

C LIT 331 Folk Narrative (5) VLPA Survey of various genres of folk narratives studied in performance contexts to reveal their socio-cultural functions in a variety of milieux. Theory and history of folk narrative study, taxonomy, genre classification, and interpretative approaches. Recommended: either SCAND 230 or C LIT 230. Offered: jointly with SCAND 331.

C LIT 334 Immigrant and Ethnic Folklore (5) VLPA/I&S Survey of verbal, customary, and material folk traditions in ethnic context. Theories of ethnic folklore research applied to the traditions of American communities of Scandinavian, Baltic, or other European ancestry. Recommended: either SCAND 230 or C LIT 230. Offered: jointly with SCAND 334.

C LIT 350 Themes in World Literature: Parents and Children (5) VLPA World literature, from the Renaissance to modern times, based upon the theme of "parents and children." Selections drawn from European, English, and American literature, not limited to period and genre. Focus upon the motive of generational conflict.

C LIT 352 Themes in World Literature: Death and Transfiguration (5) VLPA Theme of death, transfiguration, and new life in world literature. Selections from Tolstoy, D. H. Lawrence, Celine, E. M. Forster, and other major writers.

C LIT 357 Literature and Film (3-5, max. 10) VLPA The film as an art form, with particular reference to the literary dimension of film and to the interaction of literature with the other artistic media employed in the form. Films are shown as an integral part of the course. Content varies.

C LIT 360 Topics in Ancient and Medieval Literature (5) VLPA Explores topics in literature and cultures of the ancient and medieval worlds across national and regional cultures, such as particular movements, authors, genres, themes, or problems.

C LIT 361 Topics in Early Modern Literature (5) VLPA Explores topics in literature and cultures of the early modern world (approximately 1400-1800) across national and regional cultures, such as particular movements, authors, genres, themes, or problems.

C LIT 362 Topics in Modern Literature (5) VLPA Explores topics in literature and cultures of the modern world (approximately 1800-present) across national and regional cultures, such as particular movements, authors, genres, themes, or problems.

C LIT 371 Literature and the Visual Arts (5) VLPA Focuses on specific theoretical problems. Examines the relationship between text and image in a variety of art forms including poetry, novels, paintings, photography, essays, comic strips, film, and advertisement. Readings, in English, from a wide variety of national literatures.

C LIT 375 Images of Women in Literature (5, max. 15) VLPA Comparative study of the ways women's image, social role, and psychology have been portrayed by writers of various nationalities and literary periods. Selection of theme varies from quarter to quarter. Works are read in English translation.

C LIT 376 Violence, Myth, and Memory (5) VLPA/I&S, DIV Benitez, Sears Explores how images and ideas of power, violence, and global modernity circulate in films and novels, memories and discourses about U.S. relations with Vietnam, the Philippines, and Indonesia. Topics include foundational myths, colonial and post-colonial encounters, historiography and narrative, and nationalist and ethnic identity formations. Offered: jointly with JSIS A 376.

C LIT 396 Special Studies in Comparative Literature (3-5, max. 10) VLPA Offered by visitors or resident faculty. Content varies.

C LIT 397 Special Topics in Cinema Studies (3-5, max. 10) VLPA/I&S Varying topics relating to film in social contexts. Offered by resident or visiting faculty.

C LIT 400 Introduction to Theory and Criticism (5) VLPA A selection of major theoretical statements in the history of literary theory and criticism, with texts drawn from such fields as literary studies, aesthetic theory, film studies, philosophy, and cultural studies.

C LIT 410 Studies in Literary History (5, max. 15) VLPA Introduction to a major figure or movement associated with the development of literary history. Through the study of one aspect of literary history students gain a thorough understanding of a particular point of view, while exploring the breadth of contemporary approaches to literature.

C LIT 421 Studies in Connections: Literature and Other Disciplines (5, max. 15) VLPA Examines the links between literature and other disciplines or art forms. Literature and history, literature and philosophy, literature and music, literature and the visual arts are all appropriate topics. Selection of focus depends on instructor.

C LIT 422 Studies in Genre (5, max. 15) VLPA Major genres of world literature: poetry, fiction, drama. Readings in English from a wide selection of national literatures.

C LIT 423 East European Film (5, max. 15) VLPA Crnkovic Studies major East European film makers who left their countries at some point in their careers. Compares East European and Western production of those directors who worked partially in the West. Offered: jointly with SLAV 423.

CLIT 424 The Epic Tradition (5) VLPA Clauss, Levaniouk Ancient and medieval epic and heroic poetry of Europe in English: the Iliad, Odyssey, and Aeneid; the Roland or a comparable work from the medieval oral tradition; pre-Greek forerunners, other Greco-Roman literary epics, and later medieval and Renaissance developments and adaptations of the genre. Choice of reading material varies according to instructor's preference. Offered: jointly with CLAS 424.

C LIT 430 Readings in Folklore (5) VLPA Exploration of theoretical and methodological issues in folklore studies through independent reading of journal articles published during the last five years. Recommended: either SCAND 230 or C LIT 230. Offered: jointly with SCAND 430.

C LIT 431 The Northern European Ballad (5) VLPA Integrative study of the Northern European Ballad, with an emphasis on texts, performance, context, history, theory, genre classification, and interpretive approaches. Offered: jointly with SCAND 431.

CLIT 432 Technology and Culture in the Making of Contemporary Empires (5) I&S Benitez, Rodríguez-Silva Explores the struggles that shaped organization of the U.S. empire at the turn of the twentieth century, focusing on how empire's material, cultural, and ideological boundaries were drawn. Topics include race, gender, and class as colonial formations; technologies of imperial governance such as public health, citizenship and territory; and popular culture. Offered: jointly with JSIS D 432.

CLIT 441 Literature and the Holocaust (5) VLPA, DIV Examines fiction, poetry, memoir, diaries, monuments, film, and pop culture from several languages and cultural milieus, with emphases on English and Hebrew. Topics include survivor testimony, shaping of collective memory, the second generation, Holocaust education and children's literature, gender and the Holocaust, and fantasy and humor as responses to catastrophe. Offered: jointly with NEAR E 441.

C LIT 474 Scandinavian Auteurs (5, max. 10) VLPA Nestingen Studies the body of work of Scandinavia's auteur filmmakers. Introduces the theory and history of auteur cinema, with special attention to Scandinavian filmmakers' contribution. Offered: jointly with SCAND 470; AWSp.

C LIT 490 Directed Study or Research (1-5, max. 10) Individual study of topics in comparative literature by arrangement with the instructor and the Comparative Literature office.

C LIT 491 Internship (1-5, max. 5) Supervised experience in local businesses and other agencies. Open to upper-division comparative literature and cinema studies majors. Recommended: 25 credits of C LIT courses.

C LIT 493 Comparative Literature Honors Seminar (5, max. 15) VLPA Special topics in comparative literature. Required of Honors students in comparative literature.

C LIT 495 Honors Thesis (5) VLPA Preparation of an Honors thesis under the direction and supervision of a faculty member.

C LIT 496 Special Studies in Comparative Literature (3-5, max. 15) VLPA Offered occasionally by visitors or resident faculty. Content varies.

C LIT 497 Special Topics in Cinema Studies (3-5, max. 10) VLPA Varying topics in cinema studies. Offered by resident or visiting faculty.

C LIT 500 The Theory of Literature I: The Literary Text (5, max. 15) An investigation into the nature of literature in contrast to other forms of writing and into essential features of literature such as genres, imagery, modes of communication, and structure.

C LIT 501 The Theory of Literature II: History of Literature (5, max. 15) An exploration of topics of literary history such as periods, traditions, the writing of literary history, and literary history in contrast to other histories.

C LIT 502 The Theory of Literature III: Special Topics (5, max. 15) Offerings vary to cover topics such as individual theorists, theoretical movements, or the intersection of literary theory with other disciplines or arts (psychoanalysis, structuralism, ethics, aesthetics).

C LIT 507 History of Literary Criticism and Theory I (5, max. 15) A general introduction to the major issues in the history of criticism followed by the study of the classical theorists, including Plato, Aristotle, Longinus, and the major medieval critics. Offered: jointly with ENGL 507.

C LIT 508 History of Literary Criticism and Theory II (5, max. 15) Literary criticism and theory from the Middle Ages and the Renaissance through the eighteenth century to, but not including, Kant. Offered: jointly with ENGL 508.

C LIT 509 History of Literary Criticism and Theory III (5, max. 15) Literary criticism and theory from Kant's Critique of Judgment to the mid-twentieth century and the work of Northrop Frye. Offered: jointly with ENGL 509.

C LIT 510 History of Literary Criticism and Theory IV (5, max. 15) A study of the major issues in literary criticism and theory since about 1965. Offered: jointly with ENGL 510.

C LIT 511 Literary Translation (5, max. 15) Lectures on principles of translating literary works into readable English. Students present and comment on translations made by them and write seminar papers on problems of translation in theory and practice.

C LIT 516 Colloquium in Criticism (5, max. 15) Recent trends in literary criticism, taught by representatives from various literature departments, covering critical trends such as structuralism, poststructuralism, hermeneutics, reception theory, and sociological approaches to literature.

C LIT 520 Methods and Issues in Cinema and Media Studies (5) Provides a basic grounding in the theory, history, and criticism of film and media studies, and introduces central debates, topics, and methods in the field.

C LIT 530 Cultural Criticism and Ideology Critique I (5, max. 15) A study of the main attempts to come to an understanding of the humanities and the nature of historical interpretation in a cultural context.

C LIT 535 Cultural Criticism and Ideology Critique II (5, max. 15) Offerings vary to cover individual theorists and particular manifestations of cultural criticism and ideology critique.

C LIT 545 Medieval Studies (3/5, max. 15) Literature, intellectual history, and sociology of the Middle Ages, 500-1200. Topics may include "renaissance" of the twelfth century; the educational ideal; rise of universities; philosophical concepts.

C LIT 546 Studies in Renaissance and Baroque (3-5, max. 10) Aspects of Western European literature during the Renaissance and Baroque period. Course content varies.

C LIT 547 Studies in Eighteenth-Century Literature (3-5, max. 10) Examination of various trends in eighteenth-century literature including the Enlightenment, Rationalism, Pre-Romanticism, and Neo-Classicism. Course content varies with instructor.

C LIT 548 Studies in Nineteenth-Century Literature (3-5, max. 10) Examination of various trends in nineteenth-century literature including Romanticism, Realism, Naturalism, and Symbolism.

C LIT 549 Twentieth-Century Literature (3-5, max. 10) Selected movements, schools, and trends of significance in twentieth-century literature of Europe and Americas. Symbolism, surrealism, dada, expressionism, neorealism, existentialism, nouveau roman, and absurd may be considered. Texts in English, French, and German figure most prominently, but Spanish, Italian, Russian, and other materials may be examined. Content and emphasis vary.

CLIT 551 Textual Theory (5) Provides an introduction to the intellectual foundations of textual studies; historical background in disciplines of philosophy and textual criticism, theories of textuality from formalism and New Criticism to poststructuralism, and media-specific analysis; current and emerging concerns in the history of the book, media studies, globally comparative philologies, and digital humanities. Offered: jointly with ENGL 501.

CLIT 570 The Novel: Theory and Practice (3-5, max. 15) Study of the novel as a genre, examining two or more novels of varying national literatures. Course content varies.

CLIT 571 The Lyric: Theory and Practice (3-5, max. 15) Examination of central questions in the study of the lyric genre as approached from an international point of view. Course content varies.

CLIT 573 The Drama: Theory and Practice (3-5, max. 15) Examination of various aspects of the drama as a major literary genre, as approached from international and multilingual points of view. Course content varies.

CLIT 574 Scandinavian Auteurs (5, max. 10) VLPA Nestingen Seminar on auteur filmmakers in Scandinavian cinema, studying specific auteurs' bodies of work, theories of auteur cinema, and the history of auteurism in Scandinavian cinema. Offered: jointly with SCAND 570; AWSp.

CLIT 576 Seminar in East-West Literary Relations (3-5, max. 15) Comparative investigation of literary topics requiring the study of both Eastern and Western documents. Explores parallels and contradictions between the two, in concepts, ideas, and specific topics. A comparative paper on a chosen topic with qualified conclusions is required. Emphasis varies. Prerequisite: at least one East Asian language.

CLIT 590 Master of Arts Essay (5/10, max. 10) Research and writing project under the supervision of a faculty member.

CLIT 596 Special Studies in Comparative Literature (3-5, max. 15) Offered occasionally by visiting or resident faculty. Course content varies.

CLIT 599 Special Seminar or Conference (1-9, max. 30) Group seminars or individual conferences scheduled to meet special needs. Prerequisite: permission of graduate program adviser.

CLIT 600 Independent Study or Research (*-)

CLIT 700 Master's Thesis (*-)

CLIT 800 Doctoral Dissertation (*-)

Computer Science

AC101 Paul G. Allen Center for Computer Science and Engineering

Computer science is the study of information and algorithms within the context of real and abstract computing devices. Computer scientists are interested in such topics as the representation and storage of information; algorithms to access, display, edit, and transform information; programming languages to express algorithms; and hardware and software processors to execute algorithms. These concerns lead to practical developments in computer systems software, such as operating systems and compilers; in application areas, such as artificial intelligence, computer graphics, and computational biology; and also lead to theoretical investigations of computers, algorithms, and data.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

101 Paul G. Allen Center for Computer Science and Engineering, Box 352350

(206) 543-1695

ugrad-advisor@cs.washington.edu

The Department of Computer Science and Engineering offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in computer science
- The Bachelor of Science in Computer Engineering degree (see Computer Engineering section)

The core requirements of the two undergraduate majors are similar. The computer science major may be more appropriate for students who want to earn a double major with another College of Arts and Sciences program, who want the additional flexibility of the computer science requirements (the computer engineering major has more required courses and fewer electives), or who may be more interested in the theory, design, and implementation of software systems and applications (for example, the techniques of modern compilers or the algorithms behind computer graphics and animation).

The computer engineering major may be more appropriate for students who are interested in creating and building systems that include both hardware and software components and that must be engineered to meet a variety of cost and performance constraints. The program includes a general foundation in engineering fundamentals to enable interdisciplinary work with other departments in the College of Engineering and the University as a whole.

Bachelor of Science

Department Admission Requirements

Applicants are considered in two groups: Direct Admission and regular admission. Admission is competitive. Completion of minimum requirements does not guarantee admission.

1. Direct Admission: Computer Science and Engineering enrolls up to 30 percent of its incoming class directly out of high school, prior to the completion of university-level prerequisites. Freshman applicants to the University listing computer science or computer engineering as their intended major are automatically considered. Competitive applicants have taken calculus and at least one year of laboratory science (preferably physics) upon entering the University. Admission is for autumn quarter only.
2. Regular Admission
 - a. Course requirements: MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136); at least five credits of Natural World, including one of the following: PHYS 121, CHEM 142/CHEM 145, or BIOL 180 (or any approved science course that requires one of these courses as a prerequisite); CSE 142, CSE 143; and at least five credits of English composition. In addition to any AP credit, at least one calculus or post-calculus mathematics course and one approved Natural World courses must be completed prior to applying to the department.
 - b. Admission is for autumn or spring quarter. Application deadlines are July 1 for autumn quarter and February 1 for spring quarter.

Major Requirements

87-90 credits as follows:

1. Science (10 credits): 10 credits from the list of approved natural science courses in the CS&E handbook. Courses that meet the department's science requirement include PHYS 121, CHEM 142/CHEM 145, and any course in biology, chemistry, physics, earth and space sciences, astronomy, and atmospheric sciences that requires PHYS 121 or CHEM 142/CHEM 145 as a prerequisite.

2. Mathematics (15-18 credits): MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126, (or MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136); MATH 308 or MATH 318 (waived if MATH 136 taken); MATH 390/STAT 390 or MATH 391/STAT 391.
3. Required Courses (29 credits): CSE 142, CSE 143, CSE 311, CSE 312, CSE 331, CSE 332, CSE 351.
4. Senior Electives (minimum of 20 credits): At least 33 additional credits from courses on the approved CSE electives list in the CS&E handbook, including at least the following:
 - a. Six courses from the CSE Core Courses list in the CS&E handbook of which four courses must be 400-level CSE courses.
 - b. Either one additional course from the CSE Core Courses list or one course from the CSE Capstone list in the CS&E handbook.
5. Minimum 2.0 grade for any course applied to the major. Transfer students must earn a minimum of 24 graded credits toward the major at the UW.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The computer science field has a broad base of private- and public-sector jobs suitable for the Bachelor of Science graduate: systems analyst, systems programmer, applications programmer, technical sales and marketing, and hardware or software engineering specialist. In addition, there are jobs for which graduate education may be appropriate: producers and developers of computer systems, and teachers and researchers. The field is also highly valued for practicing entrepreneurship.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: Paul G. Allen Center for Computer Science and Engineering includes more than 20,000 square feet of laboratories, nearly 1,000 computer systems, and more than 50 terabytes of storage. Gigabit connectivity is provided to every desktop by more than 60 miles of data cabling, and wireless access is available throughout the building.

CSE general-purpose laboratories support the diverse set of hardware and software platforms required for a cutting-edge education in the field. CSE special-purpose laboratories provide tailored support for activities such as mobile robotics, computer graphics, digital design, motion capture, embedded systems, laser scanning, educational technology, networking, and artificial intelligence.

The Allen Center is one of the finest computer science and computer engineering facilities in the nation. All of its capabilities are available to all CSE students.

- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: Internships and co-op opportunities are available for computer science undergraduates. See www.engr.washington.edu/coop and depts.washington.edu/careers for information.
- Departmental Scholarships: CSE has a limited number of scholarships available to current CSE majors. Scholarship information is listed at www.cs.washington.edu/education/ugradscholars/scholarships.html
- Student Organizations/Associations: A student chapter of the Association for Computing Machinery (ACM) operates within CSE.

Dance

256 Meany

Dance is part of a liberal arts curriculum and provides students a foundation for future advanced work in dance pedagogy, performance, choreography, dance science, dance studies, or other movement-related fields. Faculty work closely with students to guide them on the educational track that best serves their career goals. Information about the dance major's creative studies and dance studies options, dance minor, dance endorsement, and Master of Fine Arts degree in dance can be found at dance.washington.edu

The Dance Program offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in dance, with options in either creative or dance studies.
- A minor in dance.
- OSPI approved Dance Endorsement

Bachelor of Arts

Program Admission Requirements

Applicants who meet the following requirements are accepted during autumn, winter, and spring quarters on a rolling basis.

1. Minimum 2.00 cumulative GPA.
2. Interview with Dance Program adviser to assess applicant's dance background, goals and interests, time to degree, and preparation for the major to ensure proper placement in dance coursework.
3. Dance Studies Option: Admission is competitive and is based on the applicant's capacity to engage in rigorous and independent research and writing with faculty supervision. Applicants complete DANCE 250, submit a Dance Studies application, and submit a writing portfolio of DANCE 250 course assignments.
4. Creative Studies Option: Either DANCE 250 or DANCE 251. Applicants must also be currently enrolled in a UW dance technique course (ballet or modern) so faculty can determine demonstration of minimum level of dance skill required to ensure the timely completion of requirements, and to evaluate appropriate level for further dance study.

Major Requirements

Minimum 57-67 credits in dance as follows:

1. Core Curriculum (20-25 credits)
 - a. Gateway Course (5 credits): DANCE 250 or DANCE 251. (Students enrolled in the dance studies option must take DANCE 250 as their gateway course.)
 - b. Dance History (5 credits): DANCE 344 or DANCE 345.
 - c. Cross Cultural Studies (0-5 credits): One of DANCE 234, DANCE 250, DANCE 336, DANCE 350, or DANCE 420. (If DANCE 250 is taken as the gateway course, the cross-cultural requirement is satisfied and no other course from the cross-cultural list is required, except for students enrolled in the Dance Studies option, who take DANCE 350 or DANCE 420 in addition to DANCE 250).

d. Technique (10 credits): From approved dance technique courses. See adviser for list of approved technique courses for each option. This requirement may be waived for students pursuing the dance studies option who have professional dance experience or those with a focus on dance form(s) not offered in the dance program curriculum. If the requirement is waived, students need to complete an additional 10 credits of approved electives.

2. Creative Studies Option (47 credits)

- a. Required Courses (minimum 26 credits): DANCE 166, DANCE 242, DANCE 266, DANCE 270 (at least 1 credit), DANCE 271 (at least 1 credit), DANCE 480, DANCE 493, DANCE 494.
- b. Dance Electives: At least 3 credits from DANCE 234, DANCE 235, DANCE 251, DANCE 290, DANCE 336, DANCE 350, DANCE 366, DANCE 371, DANCE 420, DANCE 450, DANCE 490, DANCE 499.
- c. Technique: 18 credits from the following (12 credits minimum at the 300 level or above; 6 credits minimum in both ballet and modern dance; a maximum of 6 credits in the alternative movement studies series can be counted toward major technique requirements): DANCE 104, DANCE 105, DANCE 106, DANCE 107, DANCE 108, DANCE 109, DANCE 110, DANCE 111, DANCE 112, DANCE 201, DANCE 202, DANCE 203, DANCE 204, DANCE 205, DANCE 206, DANCE 210, DANCE 211, DANCE 212, DANCE 230, DANCE 231, DANCE 232, DANCE 233, DANCE 236, DANCE 237, DANCE 238, DANCE 239, DANCE 241, DANCE 301, DANCE 302, DANCE 303, DANCE 304, DANCE 305, DANCE 306, DANCE 310, DANCE 311, DANCE 312, DANCE 401, DANCE 402, DANCE 403, DANCE 404, DANCE 405, DANCE 406.

3. Dance Studies Option (37 credits)

- a. Required Courses (9 credits): DANCE 350 or DANCE 420, DANCE 415, and DANCE 416.
- b. Dance Electives (minimum 17 credits): At least 17 credits from the following: DANCE 166, DANCE 234, DANCE 235, DANCE 242, DANCE 251, DANCE 266, DANCE 270, DANCE 271, DANCE 290, DANCE 336, DANCE 344 (if not taken as part of core curriculum), DANCE 345 (if not taken as part of core curriculum), DANCE 350, DANCE 366, DANCE 414, DANCE 420, DANCE 450, DANCE 480, DANCE 490, DANCE 493, DANCE 494, and DANCE 499.
- c. Approved Electives (minimum 11 credits): Approved elective courses based on individual interests and decided in conjunction with Dance Program adviser and faculty.

Minor

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The Dance Program curriculum provides a balance between academic rigor and artistic development and serves as a basis for a broad range of career choices in dance related and other fields demanding strong communication skills, creativity, commitment, and the ability to work collaboratively and independently. Majors are encouraged to supplement their dance studies with coursework in other disciplines that provide a foundation for later specialization in dance ethnology, dance history and criticism, performance art, education, movement therapy, or movement science.

- Instructional and Research Facilities: Three spacious and well-equipped dance studios in Meany Hall. A video and sound editing facility. Use of Meany Hall and the Meany Studio Theatre for Dance Program performances.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Dance Endorsement: dance.washington.edu/dance-program-endorsement.
- Department Scholarships: See adviser.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: See adviser.
- Student Organizations/Associations: Dance Student Association

DANCE 510 Chamber Dance Production (3, max. 18) Wiley Focuses on the restaging, rehearsal, and performance of significant choreography from the modern dance canon. Readings, viewings, and oral history provide context for works being staged. Culminates in a professional public performance. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: S.

DANCE 514 Dance Research Symposium (1) McMains Introduces students to contemporary dance research through lecture series featuring invited guest speaker. Credit/no-credit only.

DANCE 515 Dance Research Methods (3) McMains Survey of theoretical modes of inquiry in current dance scholarship. Offered: Sp.

DANCE 516 Research Methods II (3) McMains Focuses on designing an original research project, conducting research, and writing a scholarly paper suitable for publication in a juried journal or conference presentation. Practice in conference presentation. Offered: S.

DANCE 520 Dance in Higher Education (3) Wiley Discussion, writing, and observation of dance in higher education. Offered: A.

DANCE 521 Dance Administration (3) Cooper Readings and discussion relating to dance administration in college and professional settings. Topics include: curricular development, university governance, development of curriculum vitae and teaching portfolio, preparation for tenure and promotion, and current issues related to dance as a performing art within the university structure.

DANCE 530 Graduate Dance Composition (2, max. 6) Addresses creative process, directing, and critical analysis in dance composition. Alternate years: focus on interdisciplinary collaborative projects. Offered: A.

DANCE 531 MFA Concert Production (3, max. 9) Public performance of MFA choreography. On alternate years this is a collaborative concert between MFA choreographers and artists working in another discipline. Offered: Sp.

DANCE 536 Integrated Dance: History, Methodology, and Praxis (3, max. 9) VLPA/I&S Koch Investigates and practices ways of teaching and creating dance suitable for diverse participants with a broad range of physical and conceptual abilities. Addresses the history, background and varying practices of integrated dance.

DANCE 544 Topics in Dance History (3-5, max. 10) Cooper Covers topics in Western theatre dance history from Renaissance court dance through the twentieth century. Examines developments and stylistic trends in ballet and modern dance in cultural/historical/political context. Includes assigned readings and primary source materials.

In-depth analysis of dances guides a discussion of form, content, interpretation, and critical reception.

DANCE 545 Contemporary Dance History (3-5) Salk Examines the development of social and performance-based dance from the beginning of the twentieth century to the present with particular emphasis on major international stylistic trends, cultural influences, and principal artists and their work.

DANCE 550 Dance Performance Ethnography (3) McMains Theoretical and practical experience in dance and performance ethnography, ethnology, and oral history. Introduces theories and methods of ethnographic fieldwork, ethnographic writing, and ethnologic analysis. Focuses on dance methods and theories. Also discusses methods and theories applicable to other physical practices such as music, theatre, sports, and performance art. Offered: jointly with ANTH 549; W.

DANCE 570 Dance Production Seminar (3) Surveys the process of dance production from audition to performance. Managing design, technology, and personnel to support the creative process from conceptual stages to production. Offered: S.

DANCE 590 Dance Teaching Methodologies (3-5) Salk Introduction to dance pedagogy with an emphasis on motor learning skills and biomechanics. Practical teaching experience. Offered: W.

DANCE 595 Master's Project (3) Project in area of interest developed in consultation with faculty adviser and supported by elective courses. Full faculty approval of proposed project by end of first year. Formal presentation, appropriate to project's content, presented to full faculty during second year. Project culminates in the teaching of an undergraduate dance course.

Digital Arts and Experimental Media

The processes of inquiry encompassing imagination, exploration, discovery, and reflection are universal among artists, scholars, scientists, and engineers. All seek to uncover new knowledge through innovations that improve our lives and communicate new ways of understanding ourselves and the universe. The Center for Digital Arts and Experimental Media (DXARTS) is a creative research convergence zone for intrepid artists and scholars who are pioneers of an unfolding new era in the arts.

The DXARTS program embraces an expansive range of arts practice, theory, and research across multiple disciplines. The center is home to its own undergraduate and graduate degree programs, but welcomes into its facilities and courses many who are not directly affiliated with one of these programs. Faculty and students at DXARTS may focus their work in a particular area of experimental arts (digital video, digital media art, computer music and sound art, computer animation, design computing, mechatronics, and so on), or they may pursue areas of creative research that have no media allegiance overlapping with and drawing from several or many different areas. Whatever the case, artists and scholars working at DXARTS engage in teaching, learning, and research within the synergistic, multidisciplinary setting of the center's labs, studios, and classrooms.

A common thread running through all of the work at DXARTS is the implicit maxim that to discover new knowledge we must challenge all assumptions. DXARTS is a place where the ideas and outcomes of creative arts research are in an ongoing state of becoming.

The DXARTS program offers the following program of study:

- The Bachelor of Fine Arts degree with a major in digital arts and experimental media

Bachelor of Fine Arts

Program Admission Requirements

Admission is once a year. Application, normally during the sophomore year, is made during winter quarter for admission in spring. Admission is competitive. A minimum 2.50 GPA guarantees consideration, but the GPA of accepted applicants is normally considerably higher.

All applicants, regardless of background and proposed course of study, are expected to show a significant level of computing skill and general technology literacy.

Students must enroll in DXARTS 200 autumn quarter. Based on performance in DXARTS 200, students are selected to continue in DXARTS 201 winter quarter. Students enrolled in DXARTS 201 are eligible to submit an application and supplemental materials to be considered for admission spring quarter. Supplemental materials include an electronic portfolio, a statement of interest in the program, and a proposed course-of-study plan. For details, see the program's website. Students must complete the following prior to application:

1. CSE 142
2. PHYS 114 or PHYS 121
3. MUSIC 120
4. ART H 203
5. Mathematics proficiency through the pre-calculus level. Proficiency may be demonstrated by completion of MATH 120 or equivalent, a minimum score of 68% on the UW Advanced Mathematics placement test, a minimum score of 2 on the mathematics AP exam, or completion of a college-level calculus course.

Major Requirements

In addition to the courses required for admission as described above, major requirements include the following:

1. 64-74 credits of DXARTS courses, as follows:
 - a. DXARTS 202 (5 credits)
 - b. Three quarters of DXARTS 400 (9 credits total)
 - c. DXARTS 461, DXARTS 462, DXARTS 463 (15 credits)
 - d. Completion of one of the following four DXARTS sequences (15 credits): DXARTS 441, DXARTS 442, DXARTS 443 (3D Motion and Graphics); DXARTS 451, DXARTS 452, DXARTS 453 (Video); DXARTS 471, DXARTS 472, DXARTS 473 (Mechatronics).
 - e. Completion of a third core sequence as listed above or one of the following fundamentals courses dealing with a third content area (5 to 15 credits): DXARTS 440, DXARTS 450, DXARTS 460, or DXARTS 470.
 - f. Senior thesis in the form of 15 credits of DXARTS 491, DXARTS 492, and DXARTS 493, including the completion and exhibition of a B.F.A. thesis project that is a significant and original contribution both aesthetically and technically.
2. 20-30 credits in additional DXARTS courses, or courses from a list of approved electives in other areas, to bring total major credits to 94. See department website or advising office for a list of approved electives.

3. A minimum 2.0 grade in all DXARTS courses counted toward the major. A cumulative GPA of 2.50 in all DXARTS courses and approved electives.

4. For complete information about the B.F.A. program visit the program's website.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The program goal is to create opportunities for entering artists to discover and document new knowledge and expertise. Unlike other B.F.A. degrees, which offer initial professional studio art education, this B.F.A. is primarily a pre-graduate, research-oriented degree, signifying that an individual is professionally qualified to investigate fundamental problems in the nature and practice of digital arts and experimental media. Graduates are prepared to pursue original creative and technical research in the field and contribute to the development of knowledge and its consequences in society and culture.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: DXARTS houses extensive laboratories and advanced research studios with state-of-the art computing, imaging, sound, networking, mechatronics, and electronics equipment to support a wide range of experimental art.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors). With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: Some areas of research and professional opportunities within DXARTS include digital video art, computer music composition, website design and programming, 3D animation, motion graphics design, user interface design, sound design, interactive media production, multimedia art, electronic stage and set design, authoring of electronic online publications, special effects design, virtual environment design, sound art, and installations art (in galleries, public, and virtual spaces).
- Department Scholarships: Limited in number with competitive application processes. Please see adviser for details.
- Student Organizations/Associations: None.

Doctor of Philosophy

The goal of doctoral education in Digital Arts and Experimental Media is to create opportunities for artists to discover and document new knowledge and expertise at the most advanced levels higher education can offer. While creating new art is at the center of all activities in the program, the DXARTS Ph.D. is a research-oriented degree requiring a substantial commitment to graduate-level study and reflection. The Ph.D. degree prepares artists to pursue original creative and technical research in digital arts and experimental media and to pioneer lasting innovations on which future artists and scholars can build.

Admission Requirements

1. Master's degree or equivalent in a discipline or field related to the proposed doctoral work.
2. Portfolio of artistic work.
3. Statement of purpose

4. Competence in computing, general technology literacy, and skill and imagination in the applicant's areas of interest.
5. One copy of the Graduate School's Application Form
6. One sealed official transcript from each collegiate institution attended.
7. A digitally-based portfolio of artistic work including any other documentation that can help the admissions committee make its evaluations. The portfolio should be thoughtfully organized in a digital format (CDROM, DVD, URL, etc.) that best represents the applicant's work. Non-digital supplemental materials should be included in the index on the digital portfolio.
8. A complete curriculum vitae and narrative biography
9. Three letters of recommendation from instructors or professors familiar with the applicant's academic qualifications
10. International applicants must submit TOEFL and TSE scores

Degree Requirements

90 credits, to include:

1. Prior to the general examination, which concludes Phase Two of the program, six quarters of full-time study (minimum of 10 credits per quarter). DXARTS 500 is required every quarter.
2. 60 credits of DXARTS approved courses (not including DXARTS 800 credits). At least 30 of the credits earned must be at the 500 level. At least 30 must be in graded 400- and 500-level courses.
3. Minimum 3.00 GPA in DXARTS courses.
4. General examination
5. Final project - a substantial and original contribution in both artistic and technical domains. At least 27 credits of DXARTS 800 over a period of at least three quarters before taking the final doctoral examination.
6. Two-part final examination. Registration as a doctoral student is required during the quarter the examination is taken.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

DXARTS 198 Digital Arts Seminar (1-5, max. 10) VLPA Topics vary and are announced during the preceding quarter. Taught by UW faculty and visiting artists, engineers, scientists, and humanities scholars.

DXARTS 200 Digital Art and New Media: History, Theory, and Practice (5) VLPA Provides a historical and critical overview of artists and scientists pioneering the digital arts. Discusses important digital media issues from aesthetics, creative strategies, emerging trends, and socio-cultural aspirations.

DXARTS 430 Algorithmic Processes in the Arts (5) VLPA Basics of computer programming and algorithmic thinking in digital arts. Emphasis on experimental art forms where building of custom software is integral to realizing an artistic vision.

DXARTS 450 Digital Video Foundations (5) VLPA Foundations of experimental film and video art production. Emphasis on research and critique of historical and contemporary experimental film and video art, as well as conceptual and technical experimentation in art-making with the moving image. Introduction to digital video: preproduction, production, and postproduction. Students work individually and in small teams.

DXARTS 451 Experiments in Video Art I (5) VLPA Introduces real-time video software for the creation of immersive installations, multimedia performance, and video art. Workshops demonstrate advanced compositing, multi-channel video, time delay, and live-image processing. Students explore the intersections of experimental video and contemporary art through individual projects, discussions, and critiques.

DXARTS 452 Experiments in Video Art II (5) VLPA Students work on individual projects while exploring such research topics as robotic camera motion, computer vision, interactivity, and video integration with physical I/O systems. Prerequisite: DXARTS 451. Offered: W.

DXARTS 460 Digital Sound (5) VLPA Foundations of digital sound for digital arts applications. Project-based course focused on creating experimental sound compositions. Overview of the history of electronic music and analysis of important works from its cannon. Acoustics, psychoacoustics and digital sound theory. Digital signal processing and recording techniques. Multi-track, recording, editing, mixing, and mastering using Digital Audio Workstations (DAW). Offered: Sp.

DXARTS 461 Digital Sound Synthesis (5) VLPA Introduction to software sound synthesis techniques. Project-based course focused on creating experimental sound compositions framed by context of the Western Art Music Tradition. Includes acoustics and psychoacoustics; virtual synthesizers; wavetable synthesis; additive synthesis; ring, amplitude, and frequency modulation synthesis; granular synthesis; and noise and subtractive synthesis. Offered: jointly with MUSIC 401; A.

DXARTS 462 Digital Sound Processing (5) VLPA Introduction to digital sound processing techniques. Project-based course focused on creating experimental sound compositions framed by context of the Western Art Music Tradition. Includes digital effects; delay lines; introduction to digital filtering; FIR and IIR filters; reverberation; virtual-room acoustics and sound location; time-domain transformation of sound; and granulation and time stretching. Prerequisite: DXARTS 461/MUSIC 401. Offered: jointly with MUSIC 402; W.

DXARTS 463 Advanced Digital Sound Synthesis and Processing (5) VLPA Advanced sound processing and synthesis techniques. Includes sound time warping; analysis-synthesis techniques; linear predictive coding; the phase vocoder; frequency-domain sound transformations; introduction to physical modeling. Prerequisite: DXARTS 462/MUSIC 402. Offered: jointly with MUSIC 403; Sp.

DXARTS 470 Sensing and Control Systems for Digital Arts (5) VLPA Covers basic electronics for integrating sensors and actuators into art installations and performance. Includes real-time systems programming and design using simple software tools for controlling video and audio as well as hardware tools for data I/O to control electromechanical and sensing devices.

DXARTS 471 Mechatronic Art, Design, and Fabrication I (5) VLPA Part one of three-quarter studio sequence exploring mechatronic art systems. Includes mechanics, electronics, software, advanced fabrication methods and real-time audio/video processing. Offered: A.

DXARTS 472 Mechatronic Art, Design, and Fabrication II (5) VLPA Part two of three-quarter studio sequence exploring mechatronic art systems. Includes mechanics, electronics, software, advanced fabrication methods and real-time audio/video processing. Prerequisite: DXARTS 471. Offered: W.

DXARTS 490 Special Topics in Digital Arts and Experimental Media (3-5, max. 15) Taught by UW faculty and visiting artists, engineers, scientists, and humanities scholars.

DXARTS 491 Senior Thesis I (5-) VLPA Introductory course of the senior thesis sequence. Includes weekly seminars, selection of a thesis topic, and contract with an appropriate faculty adviser. Majors and senior standing only. Offered: A.

DXARTS 492 Senior Thesis II (-5-) VLPA Second course of the senior thesis sequence. Majors and senior standing only. Prerequisite: DXARTS 491. Offered: W.

DXARTS 495 DXARTS Production Studio (3-15, max. 30) VLPA Intensive, large-scale, collaborative, experimental media-based art projects. Examples include major interactive art installations, cinematic works, live computer music performances, and mechatronic or telematic collaborations. Topic vary.

DXARTS 499 Undergraduate Research (1-5, max. 12) Supervised independent work on projects and research. Offered: AWSpS.

DXARTS 500 Research Studio (3, max. 30) Covers recent advances and current trends in digital arts and experimental media research. Students discuss and demonstrate their own ongoing research and creative projects. In-depth examination of new artwork and research by pioneering figures in the field. Prerequisite: DXARTS graduate student.

DXARTS 505 Research Techniques in Digital Arts (3) Digital arts research resources; structuring and strategizing research as part of artistic development; standards for writing and publishing; ethics and approach to technology transfer, and issues such as patenting. Prerequisite: DXARTS doctoral student.

DXARTS 517 Psychology of Audio and Visual Perception in the Arts (5) Processes behind sound and image perception, with emphasis on cognition and practical applications for artists. Includes cross-modal theory and synaesthesia. Prerequisite: DXARTS graduate student.

DXARTS 528 Real-Time Digital Image Processing (5) Theory, aesthetics, and practice of real-time video manipulation/performance systems. Theory and high-level programming of image synthesis and processing.

DXARTS 552 Advanced Topics in Digital Video (5) Covers recent advances and current trends in digital video research. May include in-depth examination of new artwork and research by faculty, students, and visiting professionals. Prerequisite: DXARTS 450; and either DXARTS 451 or DXARTS 452.

DXARTS 565 Spectral Modeling of Sound (5) Theory and practice of sound modeling in the spectral domain. Custom-designed software for spectral modeling and re-synthesis. Implementation of spectral tools for spectral analysis, transformation, and synthesis. Emphasizes the development of new software tools and the production of experimental sound compositions. Prerequisite: DXARTS 463.

DXARTS 567 Sound in Space (5) Theory and practice of spatial sound. Spatial hearing mechanisms. Stereo microphone techniques. 3D sound field capture and reconstruction using first and high order ambisonics. VBAP, WFS, and other advanced sound spatialization techniques. Introduction to aural architecture and spatial audio composition with emphasis on the production of experimental sound pieces and installations. Prerequisite: DXARTS 463.

DXARTS 569 Real-time Digital Sound Processing (5) Introduction to real-time digital sound processing techniques. Includes: foundation of real-time systems; integration; reactive environments in performance and installation work; interfaces; communication protocols (MIDI, TCP); feature detection; pitch tracking; transient detection; time-domain processing techniques; frequency-domain processing techniques; algorithmic processes. Prerequisite: DXARTS 463.

DXARTS 571 Telematic Art I (5) Focuses on the production of artworks that make use of real-time information networks. Topics include Internet art, database-driven art, and telematic installation art. Prerequisite: either DXARTS 470, DXARTS 473, or permission of instructor.

DXARTS 598 Advanced Topics in Digital Arts and Experimental Media (3-5, max. 21) Covers recent advances and current trends in digital arts and experimental media research. Various topics may include in-depth examination of new art work and research by faculty, students, and visiting professors.

DXARTS 600 Independent Study or Research ([1-9]-) Credit/no-credit only.

DXARTS 800 Doctoral Dissertation (*-) At least 27 hours of dissertation credit is required for the award of a Ph.D. in Digital Arts and Experimental Media. No more than 10 credits may be taken in any quarter, except summer. Credit/no-credit only.

Drama

101 Hutchinson

Theatre reflects the most compelling and complex issues of the human experience. It invites innovative understanding, collaborations, and dialogue and in turn creates community through the unique shared social experience of live performance. For artists and scholars it demands curiosity, invention, the courage to take risks, as well as practical application and the discipline required to succeed in any field.

The School of Drama offers courses of study which transforms artists and scholars into innovative and courageous poised-to- become creative leaders and engaged global citizens.

Through mastering skills and techniques applicable to any group endeavor, and acquaintance with established and innovative performance traditions and theories, students of theatre employ intellectual and creative rigor and develop entrepreneurial skills. This approach enables them to develop their own authentic, original voices and visions and engage the complexities, gravity, and joys of our world.

The School of Drama offers the following program of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in drama

Bachelor of Arts

The Bachelor of Arts in Drama teaches the history, theory, methods, and techniques of the art of theatre. Students who study drama discover their individual creative voices that make them unique and engaged global citizens.

At its core, the undergraduate program in drama instills creative and critical thinking skills, promotes collaboration and academic rigor, and provides practical experiences in creative enterprise.

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: See department admission requirements below.

Department Admission Requirements

DRAMA 201 and DRAMA 251; one of the following: DRAMA 210, DRAMA 211, DRAMA 212, DRAMA 213; one of the following: DRAMA 290, DRAMA 291, DRAMA 292; and a minimum 2.50 GPA for the four courses.

No audition is required to enter the program.

Major Requirements

65-70 credits as follows:

1. DRAMA 201, DRAMA 251, DRAMA 252, DRAMA 302, DRAMA 371, DRAMA 372, DRAMA 373, DRAMA 401 (36 credits)

2. Three courses from DRAMA 210, DRAMA 211, DRAMA 212, DRAMA 213 (12 credits)
3. Two courses from DRAMA 290, DRAMA 291, DRAMA 292 (2 credits)
4. One choice/special studies course from DRAMA 365, DRAMA 416, DRAMA 494, or other adviser-approved course (5 credits)
5. One of the options shown below (10-15 credits)
 - a. General Drama: 10 credits of approved 300- or 400-level DRAMA electives
 - b. History, Theory, and Criticism Option: No longer accepting students - pending elimination
 - c. Performance Option (15 credits)
 - i. DRAMA 466 (2 credits)
 - ii. One course from DRAMA 351, DRAMA 352, DRAMA 352 (4 credits)
 - iii. One course from DRAMA 451, DRAMA 452, DRAMA 453, DRAMA 454, DRAMA 455, DRAMA 456, DRAMA 457 (3-4 credits)
 - iv. 300- or 400-level DRAMA electives (to reach 15 credits)
 - d. Design Option (15 credits)
 - v. One additional course from DRAMA 210, DRAMA 211, DRAMA 212, DRAMA 213 (4 credits)
 - vi. DRAMA 466 (2 credits)
 - vii. One additional course from DRAMA 290, DRAMA 291, DRAMA 292 (1 credit)
 - viii. Advanced design: DRAMA 314, DRAMA 316, DRAMA 414, DRAMA 415, DRAMA 417, DRAMA 418, DRAMA 419, DRAMA 420, DRAMA 421 (3-4 credits)
 - ix. 300- 400-level approved electives (to reach 15 credits)

Continuation Policy

All students must make satisfactory academic progress in the major. Failure to do so results in probation, which can lead to dismissal from the major. For the complete continuation policy, contact the departmental adviser or refer to the department website.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The faculty of the School of Drama considers the optimum preparation for the theatre artist to be comprised of a liberal arts undergraduate major in drama and a graduate conservatory education.

Learning objectives include enriched artistic expression, a foundation for further study, and cultivation of essential life skills: teamwork, communication, critical thinking, and imagination.

Students earning the Bachelor of Arts in drama are prepared to seek employment in the theatre industry, apply for advanced degrees in a specific area of theatre (e.g., MFA in acting or design), or transfer the skills gained through the program to broader career opportunities. Recent graduates have pursued careers in acting, design, directing, technical direction, stage management, dramaturgy, playwriting, literary management, teaching, and in such non-theatre occupations as real estate agent, fund-raiser, public relations staff, politician, librarian, academic counselor, lawyer, nurse, translator of foreign films, admissions counselor, trade show/convention production assistant, talent agent, casting director, music promoter, special events coordinator, tour guide, human resources coordinator, wedding coordinator, aerobics instructor, music promoter.

- Instructional and Research Facilities: Rehearsal and performance spaces include the Glenn Hughes Penthouse Theatre (the first theatre-in-the-round built in the United States), the thrust-stage Floyd and Delores Jones Playhouse, the end-stage Meany Studio Theatre, and the proscenium in Meany Hall. Other spaces include the Cabaret, Studio 201, and Hutchinson 218. School of Drama facilities include a design studio, costume shop, scene shop, and computer labs.

The Drama Library houses reserve books, plays, sound effects, dialect tapes, local audition and job notices, and a special collection of acting editions. Also available are specialized indexes and theatre databases. The librarian assists in the use of reference materials and indexes, bibliographic searches of on-line databases, and offers reference service and bibliographic instruction sessions for groups and individuals.

- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: Student participation in all aspects of dramatic art is provided through student productions, and faculty- and student-directed plays drawn from the full range of world dramatic literature and produced throughout the year. The school also produces operas in association with the School of Music

To enhance employability and gain hands-on experience, students are encouraged to participate in internships with regional theatres, and related organizations or businesses. Academic credit may be earned for internships under the course number DRAMA 493. Internship credits count toward drama elective credits to graduate. A resource guide to drama-related internships is available at the drama undergraduate advising website.

Drama students are also encouraged to apply for undergraduate research, leadership, and/or fellowship grants available through the Mary Gates Endowment.

- Department Scholarships: School of Drama scholarships are awarded annually every spring for the following academic year to students who have demonstrated academic merit and contributed significantly to the School of Drama. Applications are distributed from the advising office.
 - Student Organizations/Associations: The Undergraduate Theater Society (UTS) is a student organization that produces undergraduate theatre works in the Cabaret black-box performance space in Hutchinson Hall. Any UW student may audition for UTS productions. UTS members also participate in annual New Student Orientation and other school events on a volunteer basis.
- A volunteer elected group of drama students, the BA Council, meets regularly with the School of Drama Executive Director and head of the Bachelor of Arts program to discuss issues relative to the undergraduate program.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator

101 Hutchinson, Box 353950

(206) 543-0714

uwdrama@uw.edu

The School of Drama offers professional training and scholarly programs leading to the Master of Fine Arts (MFA) and Doctor of Philosophy (PhD) degrees. Areas of study for the MFA degree are acting, stage direction, scene design, lighting design, and costume design. Most students should expect to spend three intensive years completing the requirements for the MFA degree.

The PhD program provides students with training for scholarly research in theatre history, dramatic literature, theory, and criticism. It also hosts the UW's Center for Performance Studies and connects students with related classes on campus.

Master of Fine Arts -- Acting

Admission Requirements

Admission is based on a private audition and interview with the head of the Professional Actor Training Program (PATP).

Applicants should prepare the following:

1. A two-minute monologue from a modern prose play
2. A two-minute Shakespearean verse monologue
3. Approximately 16 bars of a song, a cappella or with auditioner-provided accompaniment
4. Auditioners should also be ready to detail their previous training.

Students who hold (or will hold by the time they enroll) a baccalaureate degree from an accredited institution may apply. Most applicants have undergraduate degrees in theatre, but it is not essential. All applicants must demonstrate outstanding talent to be admitted. The GRE is not required. International applicants must meet the minimum TOEFL and TSE scores and other requirements listed on the Graduate School's website (www.grad.washington.edu/admissions/index.shtml)

Applicants must submit the following to Graduate Programs, School of Drama, University of Washington, Box 353950, Seattle, WA 98195-3950:

1. The School of Drama PATP application form (available for download from the school's website) with the preferred audition date indicated
2. A non-refundable audition fee, payable by check or money order to the School of Drama. Applications postmarked after the deadline must include a late application fee of $10. This is a separate fee from the one due to the Office of Graduate Admissions.
3. A headshot
4. A current résumé of training and experience in the applicant's field
5. One set of unofficial transcripts
6. A statement of purpose, including educational and professional goals
7. Two letters of recommendation

Degree Requirements

The primary focus of PATP training is to provide actors with the practical tools and sensibilities to become outstanding theatre actors comfortable and effective in all media. During the three-year course of study, every student appears in at least seven productions, two self-written solo shows, an in-depth dialect project, and extensive scene and technique classes.

The program is structured to immerse students in the traditional vocabulary and practices set down by Konstantin Stanislavski and informed by the individual professional experiences of the faculty. The program is also designed to increase the actors' expressiveness through "instrument classes" in voice, speech, dialects, coordination (Alexander Technique), Viewpoints, and Suzuki-based movement. During the three years of study, students become well versed in the established canon of western dramatic literature.

Throughout the year PATP students have opportunities to audition for summer theatre festivals from around the region and country. The program also maintains productive relationships with professional theatres in Seattle and the region such as the Seattle Repertory Theatre, Intiman, Empty Space, ACT, Seattle Children's Theatre, The Guthrie Theatre, and the Oregon Shakespeare Festival.

During the third year, classes and projects focus on career and business. At the end of the third year, students prepare a professional showcase for Seattle, Los Angeles, and New York, and each actor in the program leaves with a professional quality audition reel. All PATP students are evaluated by the acting faculty at the end of each quarter. Students are admitted with the expectation that all graduate, although dismissal is possible given two unsatisfactory critiques.

Required coursework is 90 credits, to include:

1. 36 credits of DRAMA 557
2. 36 credits of DRAMA 558
3. DRAMA 551
4. DRAMA 552
5. DRAMA 553
6. 6 credits of DRAMA 559
7. 9 credits of DRAMA 700

Master of Fine Arts -- Directing

Admission Requirements

The program tends to choose candidates who show evidence of enterprising energy and accomplishment "out in the world," who may have successfully assisted seasoned directors, and who have at least the beginning of a professional and artistic record. While there is always room for the exceptional applicant, it is extremely difficult to gain admission directly out of a BA program with no other credentials. This program accepts only two MFA candidates.

1. All Applicants

- a. Applicants submit the following to Graduate Programs, School of Drama, Box 353950, Seattle WA 98195-3950:

- i. The separate directing application form (available for download from the School's website) and fee, made payable to the School of Drama. This fee is separate from that due to the Office of Graduate Admissions.
- ii. A current résumé of training and experience in the field
- iii. A statement of purpose including educational and professional goals
- iv. Three letters of recommendation
- v. One set of unofficial transcripts
- vi. A directorial analysis of a play or opera chosen from a preselected list

- b. All applicants for graduate study at the UW must also apply to the Office of Graduate Admissions. The GRE is not required for any applicant to this program. International applicants must meet minimum TOEFL and TSE scores and other requirements as listed on the Graduate School's website (www.grad.washington.edu/admissions/faq/international.shtml) and should apply by November 1.

2. Second step for selected applicants: A short list of candidates (12-16) is invited to continue the application process and interview, either in person or via video conferencing.

- a. Candidates interview for 30 minutes with the head of the program
- b. Candidates present a two-minute monologue as a way of revealing, not acting talent but the candidate's knowledge of what it is to speak dialogue, transmit thoughts, and physically relate to space.
- c. Candidates are asked to respond to a two-page questionnaire provided by the School of Drama.

3. Third step for final short listed applicants: A small group of four to eight candidates is invited to Seattle to be interviewed in person by a group of faculty. As part of this interview each candidate conducts a rehearsal of one of three pre-selected scenes with actors provided by the School of Drama. These actors are familiar with the material and are ready to be on their feet. Candidates receive the scene options and any additional information when notified of their selection to this short list.

Degree Requirements

The directing program at the UW School of Drama is a three-year intensive, conservatory program designed to prepare students for successful entry into the professional theatre. Classes and training include work in a range of types and styles of dramatic work, including realistic, non-realistic, classical, and contemporary plays. Directing lab, seminar, Suzuki, and Viewpoints are taken every quarter. Acting process work includes Stanislavski, action theory, Shakespeare, Chekhov, and contemporary realism.

Every quarter each student directs in the classroom, studio, or both. Plays are selected in conjunction with the faculty and the length and nature of the project is determined by each student's pedagogical needs at the time. On occasion directing students serve as assistant directors to members of the faculty and/or visiting artists during their time at the School of Drama.

In the second year, each student directs a workshop production of a full-length play in the school's subscription season. In both the first and second year, each director may also direct in the annual short play festival. In the third year, each student directs a fully produced, full-length play as a thesis in either the winter or spring quarter.

90 credits, to include the following:

1. 14 credits of DRAMA 563
2. 12 credits of DRAMA 567
3. Electives chosen from DRAMA 419, DRAMA 510, DRAMA 560, DRAMA 561, DRAMA 562, and DRAMA 569
4. 9 credits of DRAMA 700

Additional Coursework: After discussions with each student the faculty may advise additional coursework in such areas as Alexander technique, dialects, lighting design, combat, literature, or history of styles and costume.

All students are evaluated by all contact faculty each quarter.

Internships: One quarter of the program is devoted to a professional internship experience. MFA directors may intern either locally, nationally, or internationally during winter or spring quarter of the third year.

Master of Fine Arts -- Design

Admission Requirements

Applicants to the design program must submit a portfolio representative of their work and interview with design faculty. They may mail the portfolio to the School of Drama and interview with a faculty member on the phone or via video conferencing. It is always preferable for applicants to bring the portfolio with them and visit Seattle to interview with design faculty and sit in on graduate design classes. Other required application materials and fees are detailed below.

The program generally accepts two students in each area. While there is always room for the exceptional applicant, it is extremely difficult to gain admission directly out of a BA/BFA program with no other credentials.

Interviews: A personal interview is highly recommended, preferably in Seattle. Interviews are held in Seattle from mid-January to the beginning of March, with a limited number scheduled each week. Interviews are held when possible on Thursday afternoons and applicants are invited to visit classes Thursday morning. Applicants fill out the MFA design application form completely and indicate how and when they plan both to submit their portfolio and to interview with faculty. Applications must be received by the school before an interview is scheduled.

Portfolios: Portfolio materials need not be matted nor in a presentation case. The portfolio may include hand drafting, renderings, photographs of realized work or of models, costume sketches, and other graphic work or high-quality photocopies of same, blue lines and/or duplicate slides. Work should be presented in chronological order and should demonstrate strong graphic skills (including accurate rendering of the human figure) and the ability to devise effective design solutions to the problems posed by a script. It is particularly desirable for the portfolio to include examples of drawing or painting not intended as theatre design projects: figure drawing, landscape, architectural sketching or lighting, lighting installations, etc. Again, high quality photocopies are acceptable.

For lighting design applicants, the portfolio should include examples of hand or computer drafting, two or more complete projects including a one-page statement of conceptual approach, hook-up, plot, and cue ideas. It should also include samples of set sketches and life drawing.

Application Procedures: For questions about the application procedure, contact the School of Drama's graduate program assistant at (206) 543-0714 or email uwdrama@uw.edu.

The GRE is not required for any applicant. International applicants must meet minimum TOEFL and TSE scores and other requirements as listed on the Graduate School's website (www.grad.washington.edu/admissions/index.shtml)

1. Submit the following to Graduate Programs, School of Drama, Box 353950, Seattle WA 98195-3950:
 - a. Portfolio (or bring to the interview in Seattle)
 - b. The separate design application form (available for download from the school's website) and fee. This fee is separate from the one due to the Office of Graduate Admissions (B below).
 - c. A current résumé of training and experience in the field
 - d. Three letters of recommendation
 - e. A statement of purpose including educational and professional goals
 - f. One set of unofficial transcripts
2. All applicants for graduate study at the UW must also apply to the Office of Graduate Admissions.

Degree Requirements

90 credits, to include:

The MFA program is three years in length. The first year is devoted primarily to studio course and skill building, while realized production designs become a focus of the second and third years. In the third year, students complete a ten-week professional internship before returning to the School of Drama for two quarters with a final thesis project occurring in either of those quarters. The program of study is intended to give the student the skills needed to work productively in his or her area of interest and to help the student develop his or her own individual artistic vision. The design studio is a core class taken each quarter by directors and design students in all disciplines where students are asked to create designs for works for the stage. Other studio and skills courses develop proficiency. Each course of study also requires students to work in the other design disciplines. In addition, professional designers and/or directors working in Seattle are often invited to attend classes and offer critiques or discuss their work, and students regularly assist faculty on outside projects. The costume shop, scene shop, electrics shop, design studio, and light lab are well equipped and staffed by full-time professional production staff.

Scenic Design: Through a rigorous succession of studio assignments and realized production work, students in scenic design are expected to develop proficiency of expression via drawing and painting, drafting, model building, scene painting, and a working knowledge of scenic and property construction. Production work is emphasized in the second and third years of residency.

Costume Design: Emphasizes the aesthetic as well as intellectual analysis of theatrical or operatic texts and how one turns these impulses into three-dimensional, unified designs. Students have intensive exposure to this process as they are mentored through the production of their designs as well as through classes, which encompass design, construction, graphic skills, and history. Production work in costume design is emphasized in the second and third year of residency.

Lighting Design: The lighting design program focuses on dramaturgical understanding, communication with collaborators, and a rigorous understanding of a lighting design process. The lighting curriculum emphasizes the development of both theoretical/thinking and practical/compositional skills. Production work in lighting may occur in the first year, but is emphasized in the second and third years, and often includes dance.

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

Preference is given to applicants with MA/MFA degrees and theatre experience but those who hold a baccalaureate degree from an accredited college or university are eligible to apply. Applicants submit the following materials on line at www.grad.washington.edu/applForAdmiss/

1. An essay or thesis chapter representative of the applicant's best scholarly work
2. Graduate Record Examination (GRE) test scores
3. A current résumé of training and experience in the field
4. A statement of purpose including educational and professional goals
5. Three letters of recommendation.
6. One set of unofficial transcripts

International applications must meet minimum TOEFL and TSE scores and other requirements as listed on the Graduate School's website, (www.grad.washington.edu/admissions/faq/international.shtml)

Degree Requirements

Minimum 110 credits, to include:

Three years of coursework, including a sequence of 16 seminars and annual examinations. These linked courses provide complete preparation in the major issues of historical study and contemporary critical practice. Students also enroll in a minimum of three courses outside the School of Drama and must complete an upper-level reading course in a foreign language. Specific coursework includes DRAMA 571, DRAMA 572, DRAMA 573, DRAMA 575, DRAMA 576, DRAMA 577, DRAMA 581, DRAMA 582, DRAMA 583, DRAMA 585, DRAMA 586, and DRAMA 587, as well as 30 credits of DRAMA 800.

The PhD program hosts the UW's Center for Performance Studies and connects doctoral students with related classes on campus. The sequence of drama seminars reflects the changing needs of students, the developing research of the faculty, and the conditions of contemporary scholarship. Special topics in the history sequence have included Restoration theatre, drama in the Industrial Age, communism and capitalism, and ancient theatre history. Seminars in criticism have included reading, interpretation and performance; mimesis and theatrical representation; the semiotics of theatre; and drama and Marxist theatre theory. Students are encouraged to develop original research in these seminars and to present their work at professional meetings or publish it in academic journals.

The fourth year of the program is devoted to writing a dissertation under the guidance of a faculty adviser. Recent doctoral dissertations have explored semiotics, feminism, American theatre history, contemporary English and German drama, ethnicity, and performance theory.

Economics

305 Savery

Economics studies the institutions and arrangements that societies use to create and allocate productive resources and advances our understanding of the choices and behaviors of individuals, households, firms, and other organizations. Its deep intellectual roots, rigorous analytical methods, and powerful ability to explain social phenomena warrant the importance of economics within the social sciences.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

econadv@uw.edu

The Department of Economics offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in economics
- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in economics

The Bachelor of Arts degree is designed to provide a general background in economics, and is the choice of most departmental majors.

The Bachelor of Science degree requires more mathematics for admission, and its graduation requirements have a more pronounced quantitative emphasis.

Applied fields of study available include money and banking, industrial organization, environmental and natural resource economics, labor economics, public finance, comparative systems and development, international trade, and econometrics.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: ECON 200, ECON 201 and MATH 120, MATH 124 or MATH 111, MATH 112. Courses that develop strong analytical and quantitative-reasoning skills.

Department Admission Requirements

1. A minimum of 45 quarter credits completed, including ECON 200, ECON 201; STAT 311; one of the following: MATH 112, MATH 124, MATH 134, or MATH 145; and 5 credits of English composition
2. A minimum cumulative GPA for all prior college work of 2.50; minimum 2.50 GPA for all UW coursework, when applicable.
3. The minimum cumulative GPA for four of the five courses required for entrance (ECON 200, ECON 201; STAT 311; one of the following: MATH 112, MATH 124, MATH 134, or MATH 145) must be at least 2.50 with a minimum 2.0 for each of the five courses required for entrance.
4. A one-page personal statement, typed and double-spaced, responding to the following questions: What are your personal/educational goals, and how do you expect those to be met through an economics major? What background do you bring to the program? Describe any special experiences that would contribute to your studies in the field.
5. Completion of reading comprehension, critical thinking, and writing assessment essay. See department website for details.
6. Application deadline is the second Friday of each quarter (autumn, winter, spring). Admission is competitive. Meeting above criteria does not guarantee admission to the major.

Major Requirements

60 credits as follows:

1. Admission to the major.
2. A minimum 50 credits in economics, including ECON 200, ECON 201, ECON 300, ECON 301, and at least five other upper-division courses in economics at the 400 level, excluding ECON 496, ECON 497, and ECON 499.
3. STAT 311
4. Grades of 2.0 or higher in ECON 300 and ECON 301.
5. One calculus course (MATH 112, MATH 124, MATH 134, MATH 145, or equivalent).
6. Transfer students are required to complete a minimum of 25 upper-division economics credits in residence at the UW.

Bachelor of Science

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: ECON 200, ECON 201 and MATH 120, MATH 124 and STAT 311. Additional calculus preparation during the first year is strongly recommended as MATH 125 and MATH 126 are required for admission. Courses that develop strong analytical and quantitative-reasoning skills.

Department Admission Requirements

1. A minimum of 45 quarter credits completed, including ECON 200, ECON 201; STAT 311, STAT 341, or STAT 390; MATH 124, MATH 125, and MATH 126 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136); and 5 credits of English composition
2. A minimum cumulative GPA for all prior college work of 2.50; a minimum GPA of 2.50 for all UW coursework, when applicable.
3. The minimum cumulative GPA for four of the seven courses required for entrance - ECON 200, ECON 201; STAT 311, STAT 341, or STAT 390; calculus at the level of MATH 124, or first calculus course taken - must be at least 2.50, with a minimum grade of 2.0 for each of the seven courses required for entrance.

4. A one-page personal statement, typed and double-spaced, responding to the following questions: What are your personal/educational goals, and how do you expect those to be met through an economics major? What background do you bring to the program? Describe any special experience that would contribute to your studies in the field.
5. Completion of reading comprehension, critical thinking, and writing assessment essay. See department website for details.
6. Application deadline is the second Friday of each quarter (autumn, winter, spring). Admission is competitive. Meeting the above criteria does not guarantee admission to the major.

Major Requirements

65 credits as follows:

1. Admission to the major.
2. 15 credits in MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 (or equivalent).
3. A minimum of 50 credits in economics, including ECON 200, ECON 201; ECON 300, ECON 301. At least 15 credits of the following theory and methods courses: ECON 400 (or equivalent) or ECON 401, ECON 405, ECON 424, ECON 435 (if taken during or before autumn 2010), ECON 473, ECON 481, ECON 482, ECON 483, ECON 484, ECON 485, ECON 486. Of these, 5 credits should be chosen from either ECON 400 or ECON 401, and another 5 credits should be chosen from ECON 424, ECON 481, ECON 482, ECON 483. Students preparing for graduate work in economics should consider taking both ECON 400 and ECON 401. 15 additional credits should be taken at the 400 level, excluding ECON 496, ECON 497, and ECON 499.
4. Grades of 2.0 or higher in ECON 200, ECON 201, ECON 300, and ECON 301
5. Transfer students are required to complete a minimum of 25 upper-division economics credits in residence at the UW.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: For undergraduates, the role of the Department of Economics is to train students in a rigorous, analytical discipline that advances their problem-solving abilities and their understanding of important public issues.

The Bachelor of Arts program provides the flexibility and social science training to prepare students for employment in a variety of areas. Also, it is excellent preparation for many master's-level graduate programs in other disciplines and for professional schools such as law, business, and medicine.

The Bachelor of Science program is designed to provide undergraduates a rigorous background in economic analysis. This degree is designed for students who plan to do graduate study in economics or who plan to enter certain technically oriented professions, such as actuarial science, demography, financial analysis, or environmental consulting.

- Honors Options Available: College Honors (Completion of both Interdisciplinary Honors and Departmental Honors requirements). Departmental Honors (see adviser for requirements or visit www.econ.washington.edu/instruction/undergrad/honorsrequirements.html).
- Internships, Research, and Service Learning: Course credit available for internships and research. Visit www.econ.washington.edu/instruction/undergrad/beyond.html.

- Department Scholarships: Scholarship opportunities are available for application during spring quarter. See departmental advisers for details. Note: Students must have filed a FAFSA with the University of Washington's Financial Aid Office to be eligible.
- Study Abroad Opportunities: The department offers a variety of exchange programs. For more information, visit www.washington.edu/instruction/undergrad/studyabroad.htm.
- Continuation Policy: See departmental website for details.
- Student Organizations/Associations: The Economics Undergraduate Board (EUB) serves as a liaison between economics students, faculty, and alumni, and also provides services to the general economics undergraduate student body. The EUB provides free tutoring for ECON 200, ECON 201, ECON 300, and ECON 301; holds career seminars and faculty lectures; and publishes the quarterly newsletter, "The Economizer." For more information on these services, as well as others provided by the EUB, visit depts.washington.edu/ecnboard/.

Of Special Note:

- Courses accepted in transfer as ECON 1XX or ECON 2XX cannot be applied to the major requirements unless courses equivalent to ECON 200 and ECON 201 were required as prerequisites. ECON X courses not having these prerequisites may be applied to electives for the degree, but not to the 50-credit economics-course requirement.
- Internship and independent study economics credits do not count toward the required economics credits for the BA or BS degree.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator

306 Savery, Box 353330

(206) 685-1384

econadv@uw.edu

The department offers a program of study leading to the Doctor of Philosophy degree. The academic program in economics is designed to develop trained economists for careers in teaching, private industry, government, and international agencies. Frequent seminars led by U.S. and foreign visitors as well as by faculty and students are conducted as an integral element of the department's graduate program.

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

Applicants should have completed undergraduate training that includes courses in at least intermediate-level microeconomic and macroeconomic theory. In addition, applicants must have had at least one year of calculus, one term of linear algebra, and one term of statistics. A course in differential equations is strongly recommended. Additional work in calculus, matrix algebra, and probability and statistics is also strongly recommended. An undergraduate major in economics is not required for admission to the graduate program provided that the above prerequisites have been met. All applicants are required to take the General Test of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE).

All international applicants (except those noted below) are required to submit a valid score from one of the following tests to demonstrate spoken English proficiency. The scores noted meet the UW language requirement for international teaching assistants: 26 on the speaking portion of the TOEFLiBT, or 7.0 on the speaking portion of the IELTS, or 70 on the Versant English Test. Applicants who achieve one of these scores are given priority for departmental funding, although students who achieve slightly lower scores may also be considered for funding.

The following international applicants are not required to take a language test to demonstrate spoken English proficiency: (1) Those who have completed, or will complete before starting the graduate program, a bachelor's degree at a regionally accredited U.S. institution. (This exemption does not apply to applicants who have completed, or will complete, only a master's degree at a U.S. institution.) (2) Those who are native English speakers.

The department does not accept admission to a terminal master's (MA) degree. A sequential MA degree is offered for students already enrolled in the PhD program.

Degree Requirements

Minimum 90 credits, to include:

ECON 500, ECON 501, ECON 502, ECON 503, ECON 508, ECON 509, ECON 580, ECON 581, and ECON 582. PhD students are required to pass core examinations in microeconomics and macroeconomics. In addition to this core program, PhD students must take eight other elective field courses in economics at the graduate level. Each PhD student must satisfy the requirements for two fields of specialization. The fields of specialization include advanced macroeconomic theory, advanced microeconomic theory, comparative systems and development, econometrics, finance, health economics, industrial organization, international economics, labor economics, natural resource economics, and public finance.

The doctoral dissertation is the final major requirement for the PhD degree. Each PhD student chooses a dissertation topic and a doctoral Supervisory Committee is appointed. After the dissertation topic has been developed, PhD students take the general examination, an oral defense of the dissertation proposal. When the dissertation is completed, PhD students take the final examination, an oral defense of the completed dissertation. A foreign language is not required. The doctoral program is designed to be completed in four years, although the average is five.

Financial Aid

The principal form of financial aid available to graduate students in economics is a teaching assistantship. A number of such assistantships are available to entering graduate students with promising academic records. A small number of fellowships are also available.

Research and Computing Resources

The department houses a computer laboratory that provides hardware and software for economic modeling, economic estimation, word processing, and other faculty and graduate student research functions. Access is restricted to economics graduate students and faculty. In addition, the Center for Social Science Computation and Research (CSSCR) maintains an extensive library of computer software and data, and offers free consulting services to aid faculty and students with computing problems.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

ECON 200 Introduction to Microeconomics (5) I&S, QSR Analysis of markets: consumer demand, production, exchange, the price system, resource allocation, government intervention. Recommended: MATH 111. Offered: AWSpS.

ECON 201 Introduction to Macroeconomics (5) I&S, QSR Analysis of the aggregate economy: national income, inflation, business fluctuations, unemployment, monetary system, federal budget, international trade and finance.

Prerequisite: ECON 200; recommended: MATH 111. Offered: AWSpS.

ECON 230 Economics of Fisheries and Oceans (5) I&S/NW, QSR C. ANDERSON Examines how and why people and businesses make choices that lead to over-fishing, hypoxic zones, and oil spills in aquatic environments. Applies economic principles to understand how alternative policies might change these decisions, and how distributional effects influence politically feasible solutions. Offered: jointly with FISH 230; Sp.

ECON 235 Introduction to Environmental Economics (5) I&S/NW S. RABOTYAGOV Introduces environmental and natural resource economics. Discusses fundamental economic concepts, including markets and private property. Includes basic tools used in the economic assessment of environmental problems and applies these methods to key environmental issues. Offered: jointly with ENVIR 235/ESRM 235; Sp.

ECON 299 Study Abroad: Economics (3-5, max. 10) I&S Lower-division economics courses taken for which there are no direct University of Washington equivalents, taken through a University of Washington study abroad program.

ECON 300 Intermediate Microeconomics (5) I&S Analysis of decisions by individuals and by firms and of outcomes in factor and product markets. Policy issues and applications. Prerequisite: ECON 200; either MATH 112, MATH 124, MATH 127, MATH 134, or MATH 145. Offered: AWSpS.

ECON 301 Intermediate Macroeconomics (5) I&S Analysis of the determinants of the aggregate level of employment, output, prices, and income of an economy. Policy issues and applications with special reference to current monetary and fiscal policy. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 201; 2.0 in ECON 300. Offered: AWSpS.

ECON 315 Study Abroad: Economics (3-5, max. 10) I&S Upper-division economics courses for which there are no direct University of Washington equivalents, taken through a University of Washington study abroad program.

ECON 382 Introduction to Econometrics (5) NW Applies statistical methods to economic data: estimating economic relationships using regression analysis and testing hypotheses involving economic behavior. Uses econometric software. Open to economics majors only. Cannot be taken for credit if ECON 482 taken previously. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 399 Economics Internship (1-5, max. 10) Academic work completed in conjunction with an economics-related internship. Faculty supervision required. Does not apply toward major. Credit/no-credit only.

ECON 400 Advanced Microeconomics (5) NW Explores the rigorous development of mathematical models used by economists to explain the behavior of consumers, firms, and markets. Topics include comparative statics for consumption theory, duality in production, and decision-making under uncertainty. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300; MATH 126; recommended: minimum grade of 3.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 401 Advanced Macroeconomics (5) NW Application of mathematics to macroeconomics. Possible topics include economic dynamics and growth, rational expectations, real business cycle models, and New Keynesian approach. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301; either MATH 126, MATH 129, or MATH 136; recommended: minimum grade of 3.0 in ECON 301.

ECON 402 Microeconomics: Methods and Applications (5) I&S Generalizations and extensions of the course models of competition and monopoly taught in ECON 300. Topics may include: factor markets and effects of monopoly power; game theory and oligopoly theory; decision making over time; uncertainty and under asymmetric information; contracts and incentives. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 403 The Economics of Property Rights (5) I&S Property rights as an economic concept. Delineation of rights as a subject of optimization. Formation of contracts to maximize the value of personal property. Formation of organizations to induce efficient use of resources and minimize losses to public domain. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300; recommended: two 400-level microeconomics classes.

ECON 404 Industrial Organization and Price Analysis (5) I&S Analysis of firm behavior in imperfectly competitive markets. Topics include monopoly, oligopoly, product differentiation, entry deterrence, and the role of asymmetric information. Game theoretic tools and empirical evidence used to analyze topics. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300; recommended: ECON 485.

ECON 405 Analytical Framework for Policy and Decisions (5) NW Explores how insights from economics and finance can be used to design policies and formulate strategies to solve important real-life problems. Covers a variety of analytics and computational techniques, particularly those directed toward dynamics, uncertainty, and interactive decision problems. Prerequisite: MATH 307; ECON 301; either ECON 400 or ECON 401; either ECON 382, ECON 424, ECON 482, or ECON 483.

ECON 406 Undergraduate Seminar in Economics (5, max. 10) I&S Provides the undergraduate student an opportunity to apply the tools of economic analysis in a critical examination of theoretical and empirical work. A list of topics is available in the departmental office. Prerequisite: ECON 200.

ECON 409 Undergraduate Seminar in Political Economy (5, max. 10) I&S Seminar in political economy with focus on Marxian and public choice approaches to political economy. Explores the questions raised by each approach, the assumption(s) and testability of hypotheses, and applies these approaches to a number of problems in political economy. Recommended: ECON 300; POL S 270. Offered: jointly with POL S 409.

ECON 415 Study Abroad: Economics (3-5, max. 10) I&S Upper-division economics courses for which there are no direct University of Washington equivalents, taken through a University of Washington study abroad program.

ECON 421 Money, Credit, and the Economy (5) I&S Role of money and the banking system in the United States economy. Relation of money to inflation, interest rates, and business fluctuations. Monetary policy and Federal Reserve System. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301.

ECON 422 Investment, Capital, and Finance (5) I&S Intertemporal optimization: consumption and portfolio allocation decisions of households, investment and financing decisions of firms. Introduction to financial decisions under uncertainty. Portfolio theory, asset pricing, options, and futures. Financial market institutions and efficiency. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300; either ECON 311, STAT 311, MATH 390, STAT 390, or Q SCI 381.

ECON 423 Topics in Financial Economics (5) I&S Topics of current interest such as regulation of securities markets and valuation of stocks. Allows students to apply tools of economics to real world problems in finance. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301; ACCTG 215.

ECON 424 Computational Finance and Financial Econometrics (5) NW Covers probability models, data analysis, quantitative, and statistical methods using applications in finance. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300; either ECON 311/STAT 311, STAT 341, MATH 390/STAT 390, or Q SCI 381.

ECON 425 Topics in Monetary Economics (5) I&S Topics include monetary policy and financial markets, two transmission mechanisms, dynamics of monetary policy, targeting interest rates versus targeting the quantity of money, monetary policy under fixed versus flexible exchange rates, inflation targeting, and practices of central banks, i.e., Fed, ECB, BOJ and PBOC. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301.

ECON 426 Advanced Financial Economics (5) I&S Provides an introduction to financial derivatives and structured financial products, with emphasis on futures, options, credit derivatives, swaps, economic theory, valuation methods, trading strategies, hedging, and securitization. Emphasizes real world applications and developments in the financial market. Prerequisite: ECON 422; MATH 124.

ECON 431 Government and Business (5) I&S Economic effects of various governmental regulatory agencies and policies. Antitrust legislation as a means of promoting desired market performance. Observed economic effects of policies intended to regulate business practices, control prices, conserve resources, or promote competition. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 435 Natural Resource Economics (5) I&S Survey of the economics of renewable and nonrenewable resources including fisheries, forest, minerals, and fuels. Optimal trade-offs between benefits and costs of resource use, including trade-offs between current and future use. Effects of property rights on resource use. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 436 Economics of the Environment (5) I&S Microeconomic analysis of environmental regulation. The problem of social cost, policy instrument choice, enforcement of regulations, methods for damage assessment, and estimating benefits of environmental improvement. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 437 Economics of Biological Resources (5) I&S Application of economic concepts to biology and biological concepts to economics. Examination of theory of species maximization, parallels in behavior between humans and other biota, animal choices among alternative food sources, games animals play, evidence of risk aversion in animals. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 442 Economics of Human Resource Management (5) Analyzes the relationship between personnel practices and organizational performance. Economic analysis of compensation policy emphasized. Topics include hiring and retention strategies; incentive pay; relative performance evaluation; teams; promotions; seniority; and organization design. Examines human capital accumulation and labor legislation. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 443 Labor Market Analysis (5) I&S Determinants of employment and incomes in the United States: analysis of individual and firm decisions and of equilibrium in the labor market. Topics include decisions to work and retire, education and occupation choices, compensation, discrimination, poverty, unemployment, and unions. Examination of policy issues affecting the labor market. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 444 Topics in Labor Market Analysis (5) I&S In-depth analysis of special topics in the operation of labor markets and public policies affecting incomes and employment. Course content varies by instructor. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 446 Economics of Education (5) I&S Examines formal education as an investment industry, the economics of human capital investment, and competition among government-owned schools and the non-profit sector. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 447 Economics of Gender (5) I&S, DIV Microeconomic analysis of the sources of gender differences in earnings, labor force participation, occupational choice, education, and consumption. Economic theories of discrimination, human capital, fertility, and intrahousehold resource allocation. Economics of the family in developed and developing countries. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300. Offered: jointly with GWSS 447.

ECON 448 Population and Development (5) I&S, DIV Surveys international economic development, with a focus on population issues. Topics include demography, poverty and income inequality, fertility choice and sex selection, household production models and intra-household inequality, parental investments in child health and education, including discrimination against girls, and migration and urbanization. Focuses on evidence-based policy and differential impacts on diverse communities within developing societies. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 450 Public Finance: Expenditure Policy (5) I&S Application of normative microeconomic theory to analysis of government expenditures. Rationale for government economic activity, collective choice, public goods, and externalities, income redistribution, public sector pricing, and specific expenditure programs. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 451 Public Finance: Tax Policy (5) I&S Microeconomics of taxation: efficiency, incidence, effect on distribution of income, personal and corporate income taxes, sales and consumption taxes, taxation of property and estates. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 452 Economic Theory as Applied to the Political System (5) I&S Explanation and evaluation of the political system, using elementary economics theory. Topics include alternative voting rules, the political effectiveness of various types of groups, causes and consequences of logrolling, and bureaucratic organizations. Prerequisite: ECON 300. Offered: jointly with POL S 416.

ECON 454 Cost-Benefit Analysis (5) I&S Theory and practice of cost-benefit analysis of public sector projects and policies. Welfare criteria, investment criteria, shadow prices, social discount rate, marginal-willingness-to-pay for non-market goods, social risk, and special topics. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 455 Microeconomics of Public Policy (5) I&S Topics include general equilibrium analysis of efficiency and equity, income and substitution effects, analysis of alternative welfare programs, intergovernmental grants, price discrimination, price controls, rationing, industry regulation, and public goods. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 464 Financial Crisis (5) I&S Causes, effects, and cures for financial crisis traced through history from the Tulip Bubble, to the Great Depression, to the East Asian Crisis of 1997, and beyond. Explores the original work of Fisher, Keynes, Friedman, and Krugman, among others. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301.

ECON 470 Economic History of the Jews (5) I&S Explores the history, economics, and politics of mercantile minorities, the Jews. Topics include the economics of religion, migration, Zionism, Arab-Israeli relations, and Israeli high-tech. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300. Offered: jointly with JSIS C 470.

ECON 471 International Trade (5) I&S Theory of comparative advantage and different models of international trade. Trade and welfare. Factor mobility and trade flows. Economic integration. Theory and practice of commercial policy. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301.

ECON 472 International Macroeconomics (5) I&S International monetary theory and open economy macroeconomics. Balance of payments and foreign exchange markets. Different exchange rate arrangements and their adjustment mechanisms. Money and international capital movements. Policy issues. The international monetary system. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301.

ECON 473 Topics in International Trade (5) I&S Advanced theory of trade and analysis of government trade policies. International trade and factor mobility. Theory of commercial policy. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301; ECON 471.

ECON 475 Economics of the European Union (5) I&S Analysis of economic issues relating to the European union. Explores the institutional aspects, the attempt to coordinate social and economic policies - welfare, employment, commercial, fiscal, and monetary - and the economic linkages between the European Union and the rest of the world. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301.

ECON 482 Econometric Theory and Practice (5) NW Applies statistical modeling to empirical work in economics. Focuses on regression analysis; derivations of regression estimators and their properties; and applied computer work in estimating multiple regression models. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300; either ECON 311/STAT 311, MATH 390/STAT 390, or Q SCI 381; recommended: MATH 124.

ECON 483 Econometric Applications (5) NW Provides opportunity to learn econometric model building for a particular problem while applying the theory learned in various courses to specific economic cases. Estimate, test, and forecast economic models. Extensive use of the computer and econometric programs. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301; either ECON 311/STAT 311, STAT 341, MATH 390/STAT 390, or Q SCI 381.

ECON 484 Econometrics and Data Science (5) NW Advanced continuation of ECON 482 and ECON 483. Traditional topics: structural modeling, non-linear and logistic regression, the LASSO, and non-traditional topics: regression and classification trees, bagging, boosting, and random forests. Computer based, uses the R language, emphasizing interpretation, not formal proofs. Prerequisite: ECON 482; MATH 126; recommended: ECON 483.

ECON 485 Game Theory with Applications to Economics (5) NW Introduction to the main concepts of game theory: strategy, solution concepts for games, strategic behavior, commitment, cooperation, and incentives. Application to economics oligopoly theory, bargaining theory, and contract theory. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300.

ECON 486 Economics of Information (5) I&S Basic models of decision making and strategic interaction in the presence of imperfect and incomplete information. Information issues in market exchange and in hierarchical settings. Includes adverse selection, moral hazard, signaling, and screening. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300; may not be taken for credit if credit received for ECON 402; recommended: either ECON 404 or ECON 485.

ECON 490 Comparative Economic Systems (5) I&S Study of resource allocation, growth, and income distribution in capitalist, market socialist, and centrally planned economies. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301.

ECON 491 Issues in Economic Development (5) I&S Examines factors contributing to the economic problems of developing countries and possible solutions. Theory and applications in economic development and international trade. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301.

ECON 492 Macroeconomics of Emerging Markets (5) I&S Examines how the standard macroeconomic models that are used in industrial countries can be modified to help understand the macroeconomic issues facing emerging and developing countries. Covers topics including fiscal policy, inflation targeting, financial market stability, natural resource dependence, and institutional reforms. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301.

ECON 494 Economy of Japan (5) I&S Analysis of the economic growth of Japan since about 1850 to the present. The reasons for rapid industrialization, various effects of sustained economic growth, and significant contemporary issues are investigated. Prerequisite: ECON 201.

ECON 495 Economies in Transition (5) I&S Analysis of the interaction between institutional change and economic performance in the transforming socialist economies. Resources allocation in command economies. Market institutions. Primary focus on empirical comparison of growth, productivity, and social institutions in former socialist economies in Asia, Europe, and Central Asia. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 301.

ECON 496 Honors Seminar (5) I&S Honors and other students in high standing have the opportunity to develop research techniques, to pursue topics in breadth and depth, and to apply tools of economic analysis to selected topics in economic theory and current issues of national and international economic policy.

ECON 497 Honors Directed Study (5) Students write their honors thesis on the topic chosen in the Honors Seminar working under the previously arranged supervision of a faculty adviser. Prerequisite: ECON 496

ECON 498 Senior Seminar (5) I&S Advanced undergraduate research in economics. Students formulate some underlying economic issue, organize its study, gather necessary information, and analyze results. Does not satisfy graduation requirement for the major. Prerequisite: ECON 301; one 400-level ECON course; recommended: two 400-level ECON courses.

ECON 499 Undergraduate Research (1-5, max. 10) May not be applied toward an advanced degree.

ECON 500 Microeconomic Analysis I (4) Duality and comparative statics analysis. Consumer and firm behavior. Uncertainty. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

ECON 501 Microeconomic Analysis II (4) General equilibrium and welfare economics. Introduction to game theory. Prerequisite: ECON 500.

ECON 502 Macroeconomic Analysis I (4) Topics include theories of business cycles, dynamics of price adjustments, consumption theory, dynamic programming, introduction to numerical techniques, and open economy macroeconomics. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

ECON 503 Macroeconomic Analysis II (4) Rational expectations in macroeconomic models. Dynamic optimizing models under uncertainty. Empirical examination of consumption, asset-pricing, and real business cycles. Prerequisite: ECON 502.

ECON 508 Microeconomic Analysis III (4) Information economics. Prerequisite: ECON 500; ECON 501.

ECON 509 Macroeconomic Analysis III (4) Modern macroeconomic dynamics, presenting a range of approaches based on intertemporal optimization. Representative agent models with special emphasis on the analysis of government policy. More advanced discussion of economic growth. Prerequisite: ECON 502; ECON 503, or equivalent.

ECON 511 Advanced Microeconomic Theory: Selected Topics (3, max. 12) Seminar in advanced microtheory. Selected topics of special interest and significance. Prerequisite: ECON 500; ECON 501.

ECON 512 Advanced Macroeconomic Theory: Selected Topics (3, max. 12) Seminar in advanced macrotheory. Selected topics of special interest and significance.

ECON 515 Special Topics in Mathematical Economics (3, max. 12)

ECON 516 Noncooperative Game Theory (3) Study of both pure game theory and its applications to such problems as oligopoly pricing, non-cooperative bargaining, entry deterrence, reputation phenomena. Focus on game theory as a modeling tool as opposed to a body of known results. Prerequisite: ECON 508.

ECON 518 Contract Theory (3) Basic contract theory models, including hidden action and hidden information models. Current developments in contract theory. Prerequisite: ECON 508; ECON 516, or permission of instructor.

ECON 519 Economics of Contracts and Organizations: Empirics (3) Shi Critically reviews empirical literature on contracts and organization. Topics include multi-tasking; incentives and risk sharing; relative and subjective performance evaluation; team production; tournament and promotion; efficiency wage; career concern; relational contracts; asset specificity and asset ownership; complexity, uncertainty, asset ownership; adverse selection. Prerequisite: ECON 518; ECON 582, or permission of instructor.

ECON 520 The Economics of Property Rights (3) Application of standard economic theory to analyze various forms of property rights as constraints of competition; the costs associated with delineation and enforcement of rights; the costs of negotiating and enforcing contracts for right transfers; resource allocation and income distribution implied by different property right and transaction cost constraints. Prerequisite: ECON 500; ECON 501, or permission of instructor.

ECON 523 Emergence of the State (3) Using tools of property rights, industrial organization, and game theory, explores the emergence of the state. Specifies conditions conducive to constitutional rule. Analyzes circumstances amenable to state-promoted exchange as opposed to self-enforced agreements. Prerequisite: ECON 500; ECON 501, or permission of instructor.

ECON 525 Computational Economics (3) Develops a basic understanding of computational techniques used in the economic literature. Demonstrates, with economic examples, when and how these techniques are used and why and how they work. Prerequisite: ECON 580; ECON 581; ECON 582.

ECON 527 Empirics and Theory in Macroeconomics (3) Explores the integration of empirical and theoretical methods central to macroeconomic research. Exposes students to frontier areas of research to help them learn substantive material and transition to conducting their own independent research. Prerequisite: ECON 502; ECON 503; ECON 509; ECON 581; ECON 582; recommended: ECON 584.

ECON 528 Micro Heterogeneity in Macroeconomics (3) Discusses the role of heterogeneity in impulse and propagation of shocks to output, consumption, and asset prices. Covers empirical methods and theoretical models to further our understanding of these topics.

ECON 534 Empirical Industrial Organization (3) Exposes students to the research frontier in empirical industrial organization. Topics include identification in linear models, models of product differentiation, estimation in data-rich environments, static games of imperfect competition, dynamic games of imperfect competition, and computational approaches to large-scale games.

ECON 535 Natural Resource Economics (3) Half of integrated two-course sequence in environmental and natural resource economics. Dynamic optimization. Nonrenewable resource extraction and exploration, including effects of market structure, uncertainty, and taxation. Renewable resources, including fisheries and forests. Prerequisite: ECON 500; ECON 501, or permission of instructor.

ECON 536 Environmental Economics (3) Half of integrated two-course sequence in environmental and natural resource economics. Theory of externalities. Normative and positive analysis of policy instruments for environmental management. Theory and methods of measuring environmental and resource values. Prerequisite: ECON 500; ECON 501, or permission of instructor.

ECON 537 Economic Aspects of Marine Policy (3) Development of pertinent economic concepts and their application to selected topics in marine policy decision making, including maritime policy, OCS oil and gas development, and wetlands management. Prerequisite: SMEA 500 or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with SMEA 537; W.

ECON 538 Economics of Living Marine Resources (3) Develops pertinent economic concepts and applications for conservation, regulation, and restoration of fisheries and other living resources. Gives special attention to fishery management, including harvest regulation and enforcement, recreational fisheries evaluation, property rights regimes, contemporary issues, and marine protected area management. Offered: jointly with SMEA 538; Sp.

ECON 541 Labor Economics (3) Theoretical and empirical analysis of the labor market, focusing on the time allocation and labor supply decisions of individuals and households and the determinants of wages and wage differentials.

ECON 542 Labor Economics (3) Theoretical and empirical analysis of the labor market. The determinants of labor supply and demand, human capital investment, the pattern of compensation, employment contracts and incentives, unemployment and labor market dynamics.

ECON 543 Population Economics (3) Analysis of population issues from an economic perspective. Focuses on the study of household behavior in both developed and developing countries. Studies areas including fertility decisions, health and mortality, investment in education, the intra-household allocation of resources, and household structure and marriage. Prerequisite: ECON 501.

ECON 547 Health Policy Economics (3) Applies economic theory to selected topics in healthcare, including information, risk and insurance, industry organization, government regulation, and public health issues. Emphasizes policy implications of these applications. Offered: jointly with HSERV 587.

ECON 550 Public Finance: Expenditure Policy (3) Theory of public finance with emphasis on public expenditures. Social welfare maximization, public goods and externalities, decreasing cost industries, theory of collective choice, second-best analysis. Prerequisite: ECON 500; ECON 501, or permission of instructor.

ECON 551 Public Finance: Tax Policy (3) Theory of public finance with emphasis on taxation. Second-best analysis, optimal taxation, general equilibrium incidence analysis, issues in personal income taxation and corporate income taxation. Prerequisite: ECON 500; ECON 501, or permission of instructor.

ECON 554 Cost-Benefit Analysis (3) Covers the theoretical foundations of cost-benefit analysis using graduate microeconomics. Stresses both the conceptual and practical problems encountered in the subject. Emphasis on problem solving and term project. Prerequisite: ECON 500; ECON 501.

ECON 568 Game Theory for Social Scientists (5) Studies non-cooperative game-theory and provides tools to derive appropriate statistical models from game-theoretic models of behavior. Equilibrium concepts, learning, repeated games and experimental game theory. Prerequisite: MATH 112, MATH 124, or MATH 134; STAT 311/ECON 311 or equivalent. Offered: jointly with CS&SS 568; W.

ECON 571 International Trade Theory (3) Comparative advantage, resource allocation, income distribution, and foreign trade. Different theories of trade, with or without perfect competition and constant returns. International factor mobility. Prerequisite: ECON 500; ECON 501.

ECON 572 International Financial and Monetary Economics (3) Analysis of open economy macro models with emphasis on exchange rates and balance of payments determination. Prerequisite: ECON 502; ECON 503.

ECON 573 International Commercial Policy (3) Analysis of welfare aspects of international trade and factor mobility. Costs and benefits of protection; implications of different government policies. Import competition and response. Prerequisite: ECON 500; ECON 502.

ECON 574 International Macroeconomics (3) Surveys recent developments in international macroeconomics, placing particular emphasis on the dynamic aspects. One sector, multisector, and two-country international models discussed. Fiscal issues treated in depth. Stochastic aspects introduced and related to the literature on international real business cycles. Prerequisite: ECON 509 or equivalent.

ECON 575 International Trade and Macroeconomics (3) Studies how international macroeconomic models with trade microfoundations can shed light on questions in international macroeconomics. Theories are confronted with evidence, and special attention is paid to the roles of produces entry and exit into markets, and of firm heterogeneity, in shaping aggregate fluctuations and economic policy outcomes.

ECON 580 Introduction to Mathematical Statistics: Econometrics I (5) NW Examines methods, tools, and theory of mathematical statistics. Covers, probability densities, transformations, moment generating functions, conditional expectation. Bayesian analysis with conjugate priors, hypothesis tests, the Neyman-Pearson Lemma. Likelihood ratio tests, confidence intervals, maximum likelihood estimation, Central limit theorem, Slutsky Theorems, and the delta-method. (Credit allowed for only one of STAT 390, STAT 481, and ECON 580.) Prerequisite: STAT 311/ECON 311; either MATH 136 or MATH 126 with either MATH 308 or MATH 309; recommended: MATH 324. Offered: jointly with CS&SS 509/STAT 509; A.

ECON 581 Econometrics II (4) Methods, tools, and theory of econometrics as the basis for empirical investigation in economics. Specification, testing, and use of econometric models with reference to examples in the literature. Prerequisite: either ECON 580, CS&SS 509, or STAT 509.

ECON 582 Econometrics III (4) Methods, tools, and theory of econometrics as the basis for empirical investigation in economics. Specification, testing, and use of econometric models with reference to examples in the literature. Prerequisite: ECON 581.

ECON 583 Econometric Theory I (3) Estimation and testing in linear and nonlinear regression models. Asymptotic theory, bootstrapping. Theoretical developments are reinforced with a variety of empirical examples and applications. Prerequisite: ECON 580, ECON 581, ECON 582 or equivalent.

ECON 584 Econometric Theory II (3) Continuation of ECON 583. Analysis of stationary and nonstationary, univariate, and multivariate time series models. Emphasis on empirical applications. Prerequisite: ECON 583.

ECON 585 Econometric Theory III (3) Econometric issues that arise in applied microeconomic research. Topics range from standard methods to recent developments. Focus varies yearly to reflect interests of instructors and students. Prerequisite: ECON 582 or equivalent.

ECON 586 Advanced Applied Time Series Analysis (3) Time series and empirical macroeconomics with focus on applications of time series analysis to various topics in macroeconomics and finance. Topics include: state-space models and Kalman filter; Markov-switching models and their extensions; Bayesian Gibbs sampling; randomization; and measurement of volatility.

ECON 587 Applied Microeconomics (3) Application of microeconomics methods. Topics include treatment effects, instrumental variables, natural experiments, measurement error, panel data, difference-in-differences, sibling data, regression discontinuity, randomization, and quantile regression. Prerequisite: ECON 582.

ECON 588 Bayesian Econometrics (3) Introduces the Bayesian approach to econometrics, and examines how estimation problems can be recast in a Bayesian light. Emphasizes practical technique. Examines Bayesian methods, standard econometric models, and computational issues.

ECON 589 Financial Econometrics (4) Focuses on statistical modeling of financial time series with an emphasis on modeling volatility and correlation. Topics include statistical properties of asset returns, volatility and correlation modeling, statistical analysis of ultra high frequency time series, and estimation of continuous time models for asset returns. Prerequisite: ECON 583; either ECON 584 or STAT 519.

ECON 590 Analysis of Economies in Transition (3) Applications of economic analysis to the economic problems of transforming socialist economies. Economic institutions. The role of the state. Privatization and the behavior of decentralized organizations. Integration into the world market. Prerequisite: micro- and macroeconomic theory and permission of instructor.

ECON 591 Microeconomics of Development (3) Theoretical and empirical analysis of the microeconomics of development. Focuses on the study of household behavior in developing countries and how households respond to missing/imperfect markets. Topics include land access, nutrition and productivity, responses to risks and shocks, credit markets, micro-finance, and program evaluation. Prerequisite: ECON 501.

ECON 592 Development Policy (3) Theoretical and empirical analysis of macroeconomic policies pursued by developing countries. Topics include the determination of exchange rates and relative prices in small economies; the examination of government spending, taxation, banking, trade, and labor market policies; and the evaluation of market-oriented economic reform programs. Prerequisite: ECON 503; recommended: ECON 591.

ECON 593 Topics in Microeconomics of Development (3) Builds on ECON 591, studying a variety of special topics in development economics, including health, education, political economy, behavioral development economics, and environmental economics in developing countries.

ECON 594 Economic Growth (3) Studies various theoretical approaches to the question of why some countries are richer than others using generalizations and extensions of contemporary macroeconomic theory. Discusses the implications of various macroeconomic policies for economic growth. Prerequisite: ECON 502; ECON 503; ECON 509.

ECON 595 Growth and Inequality (3) Introduces the modern tools of macroeconomic analysis, in the context of several research topics in the areas of growth and inequality. Helps prepare students to undertake research of their own.

ECON 596 Research Issues in Microeconomics (3) Provides opportunity to practice research and presentation skills in applied and theoretical microeconomics. Students develop and refine thesis topics under faculty supervision. Maximum of 6 credits allowed in 596, 597, and 598 combined. Credit/no-credit only.

ECON 599 Research Issues in Econometrics (3) For second-year students or above who plan to do research in micro-econometrics or nonparametric and semi-parametric econometrics. Provides a forum for state-of-the-art research and an opportunity for students to practice research and presentation skills in applied and theoretical econometrics. Credit/no-credit only.

ECON 600 Independent Study or Research (*-) Credit/no-credit only.

ECON 601 Internship (1-9, max. 9) Credit/no-credit only.

ECON 602 Teaching Introductory Economics (1) Examines problems encountered in preparing and presenting courses in introductory economics. Credit/no-credit only.

ECON 800 Doctoral Dissertation (*-) Credit/no-credit only.

English

A101 Padelford

The Department of English offers courses in English, American, and related literatures. Courses in literature emphasize techniques of literary analysis; theoretical problems in the interpretation of texts; the social, historical, and political context of literary production and reception; and the pleasures of reading. Most require significant written work and stress critical thinking skills. Courses in language study examine the structural, historical, social, and aesthetic dimensions of English. The creative writing program offers workshops in verse, short story, novel, and expository writing. English majors are exposed to many critical perspectives, and pursue interests in literary history, critical theory, language studies, and creative writing.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

A2B Padelford, Box 354330

(206) 543-2634

engladv@uw.edu

The Department of English offers the following program of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in English. A creative writing option is also available.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: Foreign languages, classics, English history, American history, and philosophy.

Department Admission Requirements

1. Minimum grade of 2.0 in both ENGL 301 and the attached writing link, ENGL 297.
2. Minimum cumulative GPA of 2.00.
3. Minimum cumulative English GPA of 2.50.
4. Students apply to the English Advising Office, A2B Padelford, during the first two weeks of autumn, winter, and spring quarters. Transfer students must be enrolled at the UW before applying.
5. Admission is competitive. Completion of the above requirements does not guarantee admission.

Additional requirements for admission to the creative writing option:

1. Admission to the English major.
2. Completion of ENGL 283 and ENGL 284 or transfer equivalents.
3. Submission of an unofficial transcript and a writing sample of 3-5 poems and 5-10 pages of fiction (preferably a complete story).
4. Students interested in the creative writing option should apply to the Creative Writing Office, B-25 Padelford, during the first three weeks of autumn and spring quarters.
5. Admission is competitive. Completion of the above requirements does not guarantee admission.

Major Requirements

Minimum 55 credits, as follows:

1. Minimum grade of 2.0 in both ENGL 301 and writing link ENGL 297 (10 credits).
2. Minimum grade of 2.0 in ENGL 302 (5 credits).
3. English Core (15 credits): At least 5 credits from each of the following categories: (1) theories/methodologies of language and literature; (2) forms/genres/media; (3) histories. A list of approved courses is available from the department advising office or department website: depts.washington.edu/engl/.
4. English Electives (20 credits): Must be 200-level or above.
5. At least 15 credits must be in courses focused on pre-1900 literature.
6. Minimum grade of 2.0 in an approved 400-level senior capstone English course (5 credits). List of approved senior capstones available at depts.washington.edu/engl/ugrad/ugbareqs.php.
7. Maximum 15 credits of 200-level courses and maximum 5 credits of creative writing may be applied towards the major.

8. Minimum 25 credits of English at the 200-level or above must be completed in residence at the UW.

The department strongly recommends, but does not require, 5 credits in one of the following English language courses: ENGL 370, ENGL 371, ENGL 373, ENGL 374, ENGL 478, ENGL 479, or LING 200.

Creative Writing Option

Minimum 60 credits, as follows:

1. Minimum grade of 2.0 in both ENGL 301 and writing link ENGL 297 (10 credits).
2. ENGL 283 and ENGL 284 (10 credits)
3. English Core (20 credits): At least 5 credits from each of the following categories: (1) theories and methodologies of language and literature; (2) histories of language and literature. A list of approved courses is available from the department advising office or department Website.
4. At least 15 credits must be in courses focused on pre-1900 literature.
5. ENGL 383 and ENGL 384 (10 credits)
6. 10 credits of approved 400-level creative writing courses.
7. Maximum 15 credits of 200-level courses may be applied towards the major.
8. Minimum 25 credits of English at the 200-level or above must be completed in residence at the UW.

Continuation Policy

All students must make satisfactory academic progress in the major. Failure to do so results in probation, which can lead to dismissal from the major. For the complete continuation policy, contact the departmental adviser or refer to the department website.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: Good writing, analytical ability, research skills, and broadened perspectives are among the practical accomplishments majors acquire, all of which can be applied to a range of careers, including, but not limited to advertising, business and marketing, law, library science, the media, public administration, publishing, the social services, and teaching.

The undergraduate program of study in English concentrates on developing students' critical and interpretive abilities with regard to literatures written in English. Students become familiar with the critical developments in the study of language and literary forms, including especially understanding the cultural and historical contexts of various forms of literature. Students are, accordingly, asked to cultivate a habit of self-conscious and careful reading of written texts. Honing a successful habit of reading depends on acquiring an early awareness of the broad range of critical and interpretive methods available to readers of literature, as well as comprehending the basic purpose and effects at stake in different reading methods. Finally, students develop the ability to compose effective and persuasive written analyses of texts in a manner that demonstrates comprehension of the complexities or nuances of language, literature, and culture.

- Instructional and Research Facilities: Computer labs in Mary Gates Hall for computer-integrated sections.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: The English internship program maintains an active list of over 200 local employers, including publishers, arts organizations, the media, advertising agencies, social service groups, schools, and businesses. Credit is available to declared English majors (ENGL 491).

Department Scholarships:

- English Department scholarships are available to declared English majors enrolled at the UW for at least two quarters with a UW GPA of 3.50 and a UW English GPA of 3.70. Scholarship recipients must enroll for at least two quarters and carry at least 6 credits each quarter during the term of the scholarship. Applications, due in early March, are available in A11 and A2B Padelford.
- Additional scholarships and prizes in creative writing are open to UW English majors only. Applications, due in early March, are available in B25 and A2B Padelford.
- Student Organizations/Associations: Bricolage is a student literary arts annual published entirely by UW undergraduates and features the works of University students, faculty, staff, and alumni. Students from all majors welcome. Contact: brico@uw.edu for details.

Of Special Note::

- Students considering teaching English at the secondary level should consult an English adviser regarding coursework for the English Language Arts endorsement required for entry into the Secondary Teacher Education Program (TEP).
- The Department of English offers study abroad opportunities in London and Rome. Students from all majors welcome. See department Website for more information.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator

A105 Padelford, Box 354330

(206) 543-6077

englgrad@uw.edu

The Department of English offers a complete program of graduate courses and seminars designed to provide aspirants for the Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees with a knowledge of English literature and language and the necessary scholarship for training in literary criticism and theory, literary history, and English-language study, including rhetoric and composition. It is possible to pursue a literature- or language-study emphasis. The Master of Fine Arts program in creative writing emphasizes projects in imaginative writing in fiction and poetry, supported by courses in criticism and literary periods and types. A special degree program, the Master of Arts for Teachers, is offered for English teachers in secondary schools and community colleges and a Master of Arts for Teachers (of English to speakers of other languages) for those interested in teaching English to speakers of other languages. The graduate program permits completion of master's degree requirements in four to six quarters and doctoral degree requirements in five years (including the master's degree). In a typical five-year Ph.D. program, a student is encouraged to complete course requirements (75 credits) during the first three years, the general examination for the doctorate in the fourth year, and the dissertation in the fifth year. Those admitted with a master's degree from another university can complete the doctorate in four years: two years of coursework, exam year, and dissertation year.

Financial Aid

The department annually awards 10 or more new teaching assistantships. To be considered for the following autumn, applicants must submit an assistantship application and supporting materials for admission to the graduate program by January 15. A statement of purpose, three recom-mentations, the GRE general test, and a critical-writing sample are required [except MAT (ESOL)]. Teaching assistantship applicants who are not native speakers of English must submit as part of their application a score of 290 or better on the Test of Spoken English (TSE) or UW-administered SPEAK test.

Master of Arts

Admission Requirements

Bachelor of Arts degree: Major in English equivalent to that awarded by the UW preferred. Graduate Record Examination general test [GRE (literature in English) subject test recommended]. Three letters of recommendation, statement of purpose, and a critical writing sample.

Degree Requirements

40 credits, to include:

Intermediate-level proficiency in a language other than English. 40 credits, including 30 credits in graduate English seminars. For students continuing to the doctoral program, a 10-credit master's essay. For a terminal master's degree, students may substitute 10 additional credits in graduate English seminars for the master's essay. A maximum of 5 credits may be transferred from an accredited graduate program elsewhere.

Master of Fine Arts

Admission Requirements

Bachelor of Arts degree, Graduate Record Examination general test, three letters of recommendation, statement of purpose, a critical-writing sample, and a creative-writing sample.

Degree Requirements

55 credits, as follows:

20 credits in creative writing, 15 credits in graduate English seminars (5 credits must be from an approved course in criticism), 5 elective credits, 15 thesis credits (including a creative thesis, an M.F.A. essay, and a final oral examination); demonstration of proficiency in a language other than English.

Master of Arts for Teachers

Admission Requirements

Same as for the Master of Arts degree, but usually including prior teaching experience.

Degree Requirements

45 credits, to include:

25 must be in courses numbered 500 or above; including at least one course each in English language or linguistics, rhetoric and/or composition, literary criticism or critical theory, and literature; three courses must have a stated orientation on teaching English; and 5 credits of MAT essay. In addition to the 45 credits, a student with no regular or formal teaching experience is required to complete at least 6 credits of ENGL 601 (Internship); 15 credits may be taken outside the department in courses related to the teaching of English, subject to approval.

Master of Arts for Teachers (of English to Speakers of Other Languages)

Admission Requirements

Bachelor of Arts degree, Graduate Record Examination general test, statement of purpose, three letters of recommendation. Students without training in linguistic method and theory must take LING 400 as a prerequisite for 400-level linguistics courses.

Degree Requirements

45-54 credits, to include:

including ENGL 571, ENGL 572, ENGL 574, ENGL 576; LING 446 or LING 450, ENGL 575 or LING 461; three courses from ENGL 471, ENGL 478, ENGL 479, ENGL 560, ENGL 561, ENGL 562, ENGL 563, ENGL 564, ENGL 567, ENGL 569, ENGL 575, LING 433/ANTH 464, LING 457/PSYCH 457, LING 451, LING 462; one elective course; 3-6 credits of ENGL 570. Intermediate-level proficiency in a language other than English.

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

By petition to the Graduate Studies Committee upon completion of the MA degree option in literature. Students with recent master's degrees from other institutions are admitted at the post-master's level following the guidelines for admission to the MA option and must complete two quarters before petitioning the Graduate Studies Committee for admission to the doctoral program. Students transferring with a master's degree from other institutions may be required to submit an equivalent to the master's essay. Students with MFA, MAT, or MAT (ESL) degrees from this University must complete coursework and language requirements for the MA degree option and submit an equivalent to the master's essay.

Graduation Requirements

Minimum 102 credits, to include:

75 graded credits of electives in graduate English seminars. Students with a recent master's degree from another university may count up to 30 credits from their master's program, upon approval of the Director of Graduate Studies. Students with a master's degree from the UW may count up to 40 credits in courses taken before admission to the doctoral program. Fluency in at least one language other than English, plus whatever additional language study the supervisory committee advises. Written examinations for literature emphasis: (1) historical period, (2) specialized field of study, (3) second period, genre, or topic. Gender, Women, And Sexuality Studies

B110 Padelford

Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies is an interdisciplinary field that offers students a cohesive framework for the study of women's and men's lives within historical and contemporary contexts, and from multi-disciplinary, multi-cultural, and international perspectives. As a field of inquiry, gender, women, and sexuality studies challenges traditional scholarship about human societies and fosters the construction of new theoretical and methodological approaches to understanding diverse experiences and realities.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: A Bachelor of Arts in gender, women, and sexuality studies helps students prepare for careers in human, health, legal, or civil service, as well as in the private sector. Some gender, women, and sexuality studies graduates develop careers that focus directly or indirectly on women and women's issues. Many others move into careers that entail understanding the dynamics of gender, race, class, and sexuality. Such positions exist in politics, business, education, government, medicine, and the arts. Recent graduates of gender, women, and sexuality studies have found employment in public agencies, community services, health services, private businesses, and legal firms.

- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: Students intern in local agencies or businesses to develop skills in an area of specialization appropriate to their area of interest. For lists of these opportunities, see adviser.
- Department Scholarships: None offered.
- Student Organizations/Associations: Students can join the National Women's Studies Association (NWSA).

gwss@uw.edu

The Department of Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies offers graduate training leading to the Doctor of Philosophy degree in interdisciplinary gender, women, and sexuality studies as well as in a chosen discipline. A master's degree may be awarded to students in the doctoral program, but the department does not offer a terminal master's degree. The core faculty represent the following disciplines: anthropology, American Indian studies, cultural studies, economics and development, English, history, international studies, psychology, queer/sexuality studies, and sociology. Although students are required to work primarily with a core faculty member in Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies, they have the opportunity to study with more than 90 faculty members from a wide range of disciplines who are adjunct faculty to Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies.

Admission Requirements

Applicants are admitted to begin study during autumn quarter only and are required to have their application materials completed by the beginning of the prior January. A complete application file includes the Graduate School application, one copy of official transcripts, three recommendations, a statement of purpose, and scores from the Graduate Record Examination (GRE).

Degree Requirements

Minimum 90 credits for the PhD.

All students are required to complete 15 credits of the core seminars: History of Feminism (GWSS 501), Problems in Feminist Theory (GWSS 502), and Feminist Research and Methods of Inquiry (GWSS 503). Under the guidance of a core faculty mentor and advisory committee, the student shapes an individual program of study. The doctoral program usually requires three years of study beyond the master's level, including independent field research and preparation of a dissertation. PhD students must exhibit proficiency in a language relevant to their theoretical and regional areas of specialization. Students are urged to establish foreign language competency as undergraduates before entering the graduate program or as early as possible in their graduate careers.

Financial Aid

A limited number of teaching and research assistantships are offered to PhD students.

GWSS 405 Comparative Women's Movements and Activism (5) I&S Comparative cultural, national, and historical study of women's movements and activism. Critically analyzes multiple arenas of women's movements and resistance. Topics include feminist anti-racism, pre-nationalism and nationalism, economics, electoral politics, women's and human rights, and international/transnational feminisms. Prerequisite: either GWSS 305, or SOC 364.

GWSS 417 The Politics of Talent Development (5) I&S Investigation of the psychological, cultural, socioeconomic, and political factors that enhance or inhibit the development of exceptional ability, focusing principally, but not exclusively, on women and girls. Pays special attention to issues of race, class, gender, geography, and an individual's orientation to the mainstream of her culture.

GWSS 427 Women and Violence (5) I&S, DIV Ginorio Multi-disciplinary explorations of the continuum of violence which affects women's lives, ranging from experience in personal settings (family violence) to cultural or state policies (prisons, wars). Violence against women explored in the context of societal, political, and state violence. Recommended: GWSS 200.

GWSS 428 Feminist Understanding of Victims (5) I&S, DIV Ginorio Explores the meanings of the term "victim" within popular, religious, psycho-social, and feminist discourses and the implications these have for victims, people and institutions that serve victims, and scholars who are concerned with these questions. Examines the tensions between activist and academic understandings of the impact of "backlash". Prerequisite: GWSS 200; recommended: GWSS 427.

GWSS 429 Scandinavian Women Writers in English Translation (5) VLPA Selected works by major Scandinavian women writers from mid-nineteenth-century bourgeois realism to the present with focus on feminist issues in literary criticism. Offered: jointly with SCAND 427.

GWSS 435 Gender and Spirituality (5) I&S Exploration of ways in which gender informs spiritual teachings and practices of different groups in ancient and contemporary times, with particular attention to the relationship between spiritual beliefs and the construction of social, psychological, and political realities.

GWSS 438 Jewish Women in Contemporary America (5) I&S, DIV Friedman Examines how Jewish women's identities are socially constructed and transformed in contemporary America, using social histories, memoirs, and ethnographies to analyze scholars' approaches to Jewish women's lives. Topics include the role of social class, religion, migration, the Holocaust, and race relations in Jewish women's lives. Offered: jointly with JSIS C 438.

GWSS 440 Reading Native American Women's Lives (5, max. 10) I&S, DIV Seminar based on social science writings, autobiographies, biographies, and fiction written by, with, or about indigenous women of the United States and Canada. Offered: jointly with AIS 440.

GWSS 442 Images of Natives in the Cinema and Popular Cultures (5) VLPA/I&S, DIV D. HART, L. ROSS Cultural examination of images of Native people in cinema and popular culture based on social science writings and films by or about Natives in the United States and Canada. Offered: jointly with AIS 442.

GWSS 444 Criminality and "Deviance" in Native Communities (5) L. ROSS Seminar based on social science writings and biographies written by and about incarcerated Natives and "deviance" in Native communities in the United States and Canada. Offered: jointly with AIS 444.

GWSS 446 Global Asia (5) I&S S. WELLAND Explores how Asia has been constructed through transnational interactions such as imperialism, anti-colonialism, tourism, diaspora, and global capitalism. Topics include the cultural construction of similarity and difference, politics of representation, and political economy of global circulations of people and things. Prerequisite: one 200-level ANTH course. Offered: jointly with ANTH 442/JSIS A 452; W.

GWSS 447 Economics of Gender (5) I&S, DIV Microeconomic analysis of the sources of gender differences in earnings, labor force participation, occupational choice, education, and consumption. Economic theories of discrimination, human capital, fertility, and intrahousehold resource allocation. Economics of the family in developed and developing countries. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in ECON 300. Offered: jointly with ECON 447.

GWSS 450 Language and Gender (5) VLPA/I&S, DIV L. BILANIUK Survey of the theoretical trends, methods, and research findings on the relationship between language and gender. Focus on power relations in gendered language use. Extensive study of research based on conversational analysis. Prerequisite: LING 200; either LING 201, LING 203, or ANTH 203. Offered: jointly with ANTH 450/LING 458.

GWSS 451 Latina Cultural Production (5) VLPA/I&S Explores the expressive culture of Chicana/Mexican American/Latina women in the United States. Cultural and artistic practices in home and in literary, music, film, spoken word, performing and visual arts. Focuses on how Chicana/Latina writers and artists re-envision traditional iconography.

GWSS 453 Lesbian Lives and Culture (5) I&S An exploration and overview of lesbianism in historical, social, cultural, and interpersonal contexts. Prerequisite: either GWSS 200 or GWSS 206.

GWSS 454 Women, Words, Music, and Change (5) VLPA/I&S, DIV Comparative analysis of use of myths, tales, music, and other forms of expressive culture to account for, reinforce, and change women's status and roles. Recommended: GWSS 353. Offered: jointly with ANTH 454.

GWSS 455 Contemporary Feminist Theory (5) I&S, DIV Raises the question of how political contexts condition the way some ideas become theory. Emphasizes the present crises in thinking about a transnational feminism. Prerequisite: GWSS 200; recommended: GWSS 206.

GWSS 456 Feminism, Racism, and Anti-Racism (5) I&S, DIV Examines meaning of racism and feminism in women's lives in an international context. Building upon an analysis of racial hierarchies and institutionalized racism, explores strategies used by women engaged in feminist and anti-racist activism. Prerequisite: GWSS 200.

GWSS 457 Women in China to 1800 (5) I&S, DIV Gender in Chinese culture, women's situations in the patrilineal family system, and the ways women's situations changed as other dimensions of China's political system, economy, and culture changed from early times through the nineteenth century. Offered: jointly with HSTAS 457.

GWSS 458 Ideologies and Technologies of Motherhood (5) I&S, DIV Examines how motherhood is culturally constituted, regulated, and managed within various ideological and technological milieus. Uses ethnographies from anthropology and case studies from feminist legal theory. Topics include slave mothers, surrogate mothers, lesbian mothers, transracial mothers, co-mothers, teen mothers. Prerequisite: GWSS 200. Offered: jointly with ANTH 484.

GWSS 459 Gender Histories of Modern China, Eighteenth to Twentieth Centuries (5) I&S Emergence of modernist social, political, intellectual gender formations in social activism, revolutionary writing, scientific ideologies, economic globalization. Stresses gender difference in colonial modernity, revolutionary movement, communism, post-socialist market society. Relates modern Chinese women to global flows, new division of labor, local and regional experience. Offered: jointly with HSTAS 459.

GWSS 462 Isak Dinesen and Karen Blixen (5) VLPA The fiction of Isak Dinesen (pseudonym for Karen Blixen) reevaluated in light of current issues in literary criticism, particularly feminist criticism. Close readings of selected tales, essays, and criticism. Offered: jointly with SCAND 462.

GWSS 464 Queer Desires (5) I&S, DIV Swarr Explores desire and the politics of sexuality as gendered, raced, classed, and transnational processes. Intimacies and globalization, normality and abnormality, and power and relationships are sites of inquiry into the constitution of "queerness." Students interrogate queer and sexuality studies, using varied media - films, activist writings, and scholarly articles.

GWSS 466 Gender and Architecture (3) VLPA/I&S Examines gender in the experience, practice, and theory of architecture and urban space with a focus on modern typologies: skyscraper, home, convent, bachelor pad, street, and closet. Draws from architectural and art history, social studies, design practice and theory, comparative literature, film studies, and queer theory. Offered: jointly with ARCH 466.

GWSS 468 Latin American Women (5) VLPA/I&S Albarán The elaboration of discourses of identity in relation to gender, ethnicity, social class, and nationality, by women writers from South America, Mexico, Central America, and the Caribbean. Testimonial literature, literature and resistance, women's experimental fiction. Prerequisite: either SPAN 303 or SPAN 316; SPAN 321. Offered: jointly with SPAN 468.

GWSS 474 Trans/Gender Queries (5) I&S, DIV Swarr Writings by and about people who fall outside common conceptions of "women" and "men." Looks beyond this dualism in contemporary and historical global concepts, locating the emerging field of transgender studies in feminist studies and asking what the category "transgender" enables and obscures.

GWSS 476 Women and the City (5) I&S, DIV England Explores the reciprocal relations between gender relations, the layout of cities, and the activities of urban residents. Topics include: feminist theory and geography (women, gender, and the organization of space); women and urban poverty, housing and homelessness; gender roles and labor patterns; geographies of childcare; and women and urban politics. Offered: jointly with GEOG 476.

GWSS 483 Topics in U.S. Women's History (5, max. 10) I&S Yee Selected topics in United States women's history from the nineteenth and twentieth centuries. Prerequisite: either GWSS 200, GWSS 283, or GWSS 383.

GWSS 485 Issues for Ethnic Minorities and Women In Science and Engineering (3/5) I&S Addresses issues faced by women and ethnic minorities in physical sciences and engineering. Focuses on participation, barriers to participation, and solutions to those issues for women and ethnic minorities in physical sciences and engineering. Offered: jointly with PHYS 451.

GWSS 486 Representing Beyond the Binaries: Mixing Race, Gender, and Sexuality in the Media (5) I&S, DIV Joseph Cultural studies approach to examining the mixed formations that race, sexuality, and gender take in the contemporary United States media. Draws upon multi-disciplinary scholarship in examination of the media. Offered: jointly with AES 490/COM 490.

GWSS 487 Advanced Psychobiology of Women (5) I&S/NW Kenney Intensive reading on current issues relevant to women's psychology and physiology. Prerequisite: minimum 2.0 grade in PSYCH 357/ GWSS 357. Offered: jointly with PSYCH 487; W.

GWSS 488 Women and/in Science (5) I&S, DIV Ginorio Explores science as a method of inquiry and as a profession while also expanding knowledge about women through the use of biographies of women scientists, discipline-based and feminist critiques, and the psycho-social concept of socially defined identities. Recommended: GWSS Studies course; one college-level science course.

GWSS 489 Black Cultural Studies (5) I&S, DIV Examines how images of blackness have been (re)constructed through identity formation and entrenched inequality. Topics include black women's bodies, black men's bodies, blackface minstrelsy, black queer studies, black power, and black hybridities. Offered: jointly with AES 489/COM 489.

GWSS 490 Special Topics in Women Studies (2-5, max. 15) I&S Exploration of specific problems and issues relevant to the study of women. Offered by visiting or resident faculty members. Primarily for upper-division and graduate students.

GWSS 493 Senior Thesis (2-5, max. 15) I&S Students conceptualize a topic, conduct primary and secondary research, and write a major paper or project that engages methodologies and theories in interdisciplinary women's studies. Students work independently with a faculty member.

GWSS 494 Women Studies Capstone (5) I&S Provides graduating seniors with the opportunity to demonstrate facility with writing, critical thinking, documentation of scholarly work, research/gathering of information, and the ability to disseminate ideas to intended audiences via the creation of a capstone project. Prerequisite: GWSS 200; GWSS 300; minimum grade of 2.0 in one additional graded 300-level GWSS course; minimum grade of 2.0 in one additional graded 400-level GWSS course. Offered: AWSpS.

GWSS 495 Tutoring Women Studies (5) Students train to serve as tutors in designated courses. Facilitate weekly group discussions, assist with writing assignments, explain course materials. Prerequisite: GWSS 200; GWSS 300. Credit/no-credit only.

GWSS 496 Global Feminisms: International and Indigenous Communities (5-12, max. 24) I&S Participation in academic study abroad programs related to Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies, emphasizing globalization and study in international contexts or indigenous communities within the United States. Prerequisite: GWSS 200; GWSS 300.

GWSS 497 Fieldwork in Women Studies (1-15, max. 15) Internship in local feminist-oriented agencies or projects. Includes a seminar component linking internship to scholarly literature and small group discussion. Supports in-depth exploration of social issues and skill development.

Prerequisite: GWSS 200; GWSS 300. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

GWSS 499 Undergraduate Research (1-5, max. 10) Independent study and research supervised by a faculty member with appropriate academic interest. Prerequisite: GWSS 200; GWSS 300. Offered: AWSpS.

GWSS 501 History of Feminism (5) Study of feminism from the eighteenth through the twentieth centuries in the national, international, and intranational world system, with a focus on imperialism, colonialism, nationalism, and modernity. Surveys the literature in a global context, supplemented by critical essays and historiographic reviews.

GWSS 502 Cross Disciplinary Feminist Theory (5) Raises questions about how feminism becomes theory and what the relation of feminist theory is to conventional disciplines. Readings exemplify current crises in feminism (e.g., the emergence of neo-materialism; critical race theory; citizenship; identity; transnational and migrancy and questions of post-colonialism) to consider disciplinization.

GWSS 503 Feminist Research and Methods of Inquiry (5) Explores appropriate research methodologies for interdisciplinary work. Asks how scholarship is related to feminism as a social movement and to the institutions in which we work. Focuses on how similar objects of study are constituted in different disciplines for feminist scholars. Offered: Sp.

GWSS 504 Philosophies and Techniques of Teaching (5) Acquaints students with professional and educational issues of college teaching. Students design a course, including a daily outline, reading materials, evaluation instruments, course activities, assessment plans. Includes weekly teaching exercises as well as videotaping an actual class. Prerequisite: experience as a TA or equivalent. Priority given to Women Studies graduate students.

GWSS 505 Feminist Publishing (5) Seminar on feminist academic publishing. Students revise a scholarly paper in preparation for submission to an academic journal and provide critical commentary on other students' scholarly work. Also addresses general and specific issues related to the profession of academic publishing.

GWSS 510 Documentary Film/Video Research Methods in Native Communities (5) D. HART, L. ROSS Seminar exploring theoretical, methodological, and aesthetic issues when researching documentary film and video projects in Native American communities. Utilizes readings, screening, discussions, and a major research project to explore issues of documentary representation, ethics, and historiography. First part of a two-quarter documentary production sequence. Offered: jointly with AIS 501.

GWSS 526 The Study of Lives in Feminist Research: Narrative and Visual Approaches (5) Examines the study of others' lives by feminist researchers using ethnography, oral history, biography, photography, and documentary film. Explores the craft, goals, and ethics involved in these forms of representation. Includes workshop critique of research project in development.

GWSS 539 Social Movements in Contemporary India (5) P. RAMAMURTHY Covers issues of social change, economic development, and identity politics in contemporary India studied through environmental and women's movements. Includes critiques of development and conflicts over forests, dams, women's rights, religious community, ethnicity, and citizenship. Offered: jointly with ANTH 539/JSIS A 531.

GWSS 541 Research Seminar: Feminist Geographies (5) England Explores major research themes in feminist geographies. Particular attention to the concept that gendered identities and spaces are discursively (re)produced. Emphasizes recent feminist scholarship that emphasizes difference, as well as the intersections between gender, "race," ethnicity, sexuality, age, nationality, class, and other social identities and divisions. Offered: jointly with GEOG 541.

GWSS 542 Gender, Music, Nation (5) Habell-Pallan Music criticism and music studies as a site of feminist intellectual practice. Explores the ways gender and race/ethnicity shape musical discourse as well as narrative constructions of nation in regional and transnational contexts. Considers the influence of feminist theory, queer studies, performance studies, and cultural studies on music scholarship.

GWSS 545 Transnational Sexualities (5) Swarr Focuses on transnational processes such as colonialism and globalization, imperialism, and consumerism. Analyzes attempts to both codify and undermine universal queer subjects. Participants theorize sexual practices, discourses, and histories through explorations of tourism, HIV/AIDS, immigration, and other interstices of transnational intimacies.

GWSS 555 Feminist International Political Economy (5) Ramamurthy Provides overview of feminist engagements with international political economy. Topics include: feminist critiques of classical political economists; inter-war internationalisms, anti-colonial nationalisms and feminisms; feminist development studies; post colonial; 'third world' and transnational feminisms; feminist critiques of globalization, governmentality, and neoliberalism.

GWSS 564 Queer Desires (5) Swarr Explores desire and the politics of sexuality as gendered, raced, classed, and transnational processes. Intimacies and globalization, normality and abnormality, and power and relationships as sites of inquiry into the constitution of "queerness." Students interrogate queer and sexuality studies using varied media - films, activist writing, scholarly articles.

GWSS 566 Discourse and Sex/uality (5) Seminar-based analysis of discourse and social construction of eroticism/desire in face-to-face/mediatized talk and texts; examination of the reproduction of power, control, and ideology through the linguistic and semiotic realization of sex/uality. Offered: jointly with COM 566.

GWSS 572 Transnational Chicana Feminist Theory (5) Examination of the body of knowledge and scholarship produced under the rubric "Transnational Chicana feminist theory." Analyzes the ways Chicana feminist theory dynamically engages intellectual, poetic, and aesthetic traditions. Considers how Chicana feminist theory functions within and between disciplinary frameworks. Explores transnational roots and routes of Chicana feminist theory.

GWSS 577 Women of Color in Academia (5) Ginorio Through scholarship and identifications, "women of color" in academia are often positioned to question and redefine academia, education, and the established boundaries between academia and other communities. Discussion focuses on understanding institutional sites and forms of knowledge production and validation in academia in the United States.

GWSS 589 Gender, Race, and Communication (5) Analysis of the role of media in the construction of reality, production processes, and their influence on media representation of women and people of color. Offered: jointly with COM 567.

GWSS 590 Special Topics (1-5, max. 15) Offered by visitors or resident faculty as a one-time in-depth study of special interest.

GWSS 593 Feminist Doctoral Research Workshop (5) Swarr Designed to meet the needs of graduate students writing dissertation prospectuses on feminist subjects within any discipline. Students start with a drafted prospectus and revise their work together. Topics addressed include IRB applications, CV preparation, and dissertation funding. Credit/no-credit only.

GWSS 595 Graduate Student Colloquium (2, max. 12) Forum for graduate students to share their research ideas and progress, general examination preparation issues, and teaching concerns. Prerequisite: Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies graduate students only. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

GWSS 596 Preceptorial for Women Studies Graduate Students (5, max. 15) Graduate student and faculty member work collaboratively in developing or revising course content and pedagogical approach on a specialized area.

GWSS 597 Fieldwork in Women Studies (2-5, max. 15) Supervised ethnographic and other on-site research by Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies graduate students. Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies graduate students only.

GWSS 598 Directed Readings in Women Studies (*, max. 35) Selected topics for individualized or small group study.

GWSS 599 Graduate Research Colloquium (2, max. 6) Kenney A colloquium in which Gender, Women, and Sexuality Studies graduate students and faculty present and discuss their research at various points in its development. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

GWSS 600 Independent Study or Research (*-) Offered: AWSpS.

GWSS 700 Master's Thesis (*-) Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

GWSS 701 Master's Practicum ([1-10]-, max. 10) Offered: AWSpS.

GWSS 800 Doctoral Dissertation (*-)

Geography

408A Smith

Geography is about the relationship between people and the environment. It provides important insights into the spatial transformations associated with globalization, environmental change, migration, health, development, and many other contemporary processes. The Department of Geography has a strong commitment to social justice and public scholarship, and provides a rich undergraduate experience for those who are passionate about exploring our world and understanding the social and spatial processes that shape it.

Geography seeks to understand the complex processes that result in the patterns, trends, and impacts of urbanization, migration, trade, and development. Geographers use ethnographies, statistical analysis, databases, scholarly research, and observation to construct models, maps, and other tools for understanding, and to address pressing social and environmental issues.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Advisers

415 A & B Smith, Box 353550
(206) 543-3246

The Department of Geography offers the following programs of study:

- Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in geography
- A minor in geography

Students may choose from among four multifaceted tracks (Cities, Citizenship, and Migration; Environment, Economy, and Sustainability; Globalization, Health, and Development; and GIS, Mapping, and Society), or customize their own hybrid focus along more thematic or issue-driven lines, such as inequality, race/class/gender studies, etc. Lists of courses in each track may be found at depts.washington.edu/geog/program-details/.

For an overview of main faculty research themes and how they relate to these tracks, visit depts.washington.edu/geog/research-themes.html.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: Any 100- or 200-level GEOG course. Courses that develop strong writing, analytical, and qualitative- and quantitative-reasoning skills. Geography is inherently interdisciplinary, so exposure to many social science fields of study in the first two years is ideal.

Department Admission Requirements

Students in good academic standing may declare this major at any time.

Major Requirements

60 credits as follows:

- Foundations (30 credits): See departmental adviser for approved track courses.
 - GEOG 315
 - One methods course from the following: GEOG 317, GEOG 326, GEOG 425, GEOG 426, or faculty approved methods course
 - One Cities, Citizenship, and Migration Track course (5 credits)
 - One Environment, Economy, and Sustainability Track course (5 credits)
 - One Globalization, Health, and Development Track course (5 credits)
 - One GIS, Mapping, and Society Track course (5 credits)
- Track (20 credits): See depts.washington.edu/geog/ program-details for approved track courses. Students may customize their own hybrid focus along more thematic or issue-driven lines, such as inequality, race/class/gender studies, etc. See adviser for details. Four upper-division (300- and 400-level) geography courses are required for the track the student selects, at least two of which must be at the 400 level or students may choose from among four tracks:
 - Cities, Citizenship, and Migration
 - Environment, Economy, and Sustainability
 - GIS, Mapping, and Society
- Electives (10 credits): GEOG electives at the 200 level or above; 300- and 400-level courses preferred.
- Additional Degree Conditions and Program Features
 - Transfer students must complete a minimum of 25 upper-division credits (300 and 400 level) in geography in residence at the UW.
 - Individual geography course grades must be 2.0 or above to count toward major requirements; overall 2.50 GPA in geography courses counted toward the major required.
 - Students are encouraged to take appropriate elective courses outside the Geography Department in fields that support their track. Courses appropriate to various tracks are available on lists supplied by geography advisers, or may be recommended by the faculty adviser. Students should be aware that 300- and 400-level courses in other departments likely have prerequisites.
 - 5 credits of internship (GEOG 496) or independent study (GEOG 499) may apply toward the required 60 credits.
 - No single course may be counted toward more than one degree requirement.

Minor

Minor Requirements: 30 credits in geography, including 15 upper-division geography credits with at least 5 credits at the 400 level. No more than 5 credits applied to the minor may be from 100-level classes. Independent learning and internship credits (GEOG 494, GEOG 496, GEOG 497, GEOG 499) may not be counted as part of the 30 credits. A minimum 2.0 grade for each course counted toward the minor. At least 15 credits of upper-division geography courses must be taken at the UW.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: Geographers address some of the world's most urgent challenges, including global and environmental change, economic and social inequality and poverty, world hunger, global health and healthcare, social justice in the city, migration and immigration, and what it means to be a global citizen in the twenty-first century. Responses to such questions are complex and partial, and these issues are not "fixable" by one-dimensional solutions. Geography's contribution to these public issues and solutions is through evidence-based, multi-scalar analyses and mapping of socio-spatial and environmental change. Social justice, community engagement and activism, and an accountability to place inform our inquiry and study.

In geography classes students learn how to design and conduct research, employing quantitative and qualitative methods; use statistical and demographic analysis; and interpret and analyze data, discourses, and texts and images in order to address significant topics and questions in human geography. Students combine classroom study with internships, community service, and independent research to develop integrated, rich, and relevant learning experiences. These experiences help develop and refine critical and analytical research and communication skills, offer hopeful and engaged responses to daunting problems, and emphasize that individuals can make a difference.

Typical questions or lines of inquiry in each track include:

- Cities, Citizenship, and Migration: Why do people move, and where do they go? What are the constraints and opportunities for migrants as they settle and integrate in new cities and new nations? How are cities formed and what are the forces that impact their economic and cultural development? The courses in this track focus on themes of urbanization and human movement, emphasizing the importance of labor and housing, as well as cultural processes and historical forms of discrimination that shape where people live and work. Students in this track develop an understanding of the intersections of power and place as they pertain to migration and immigrant life, citizenship and belonging, and the production of urban space.
- Environment, Economy, and Sustainability: Courses in this track study the reciprocal and often contradictory forces of economic activity, environmental policy, and sustainability. Using such key geographic concepts as scale, place and location, they analyze relations between such complex processes as: land use, labor markets, corporate location, international trade, energy policy and consumption, environmental regulatory policy, resource use, and food systems.
- Globalization, Health, and Development How does globalization shape life and death around the planet? How can development initiatives address global health disparities? Providing geographical answers to such questions, this track traces the extraordinarily uneven effects of global trade, global finance, and market-led development on food systems, health, and the geography of impoverishment. By putting global health challenges in a global socio-economic context, the track simultaneously highlights how social movements and social organizing can make a difference, including differences in formal policies affecting human well-being directly as well as innovations in the ethics of care. Courses in the track provide frequent opportunities for service learning as part of the goal of helping students engage with real world challenges. All classes also approach these themes through a geographical lens: charting global-local relations and the links between nature, society, and political-economy in particular places. This geographical approach in turn enables us to explore how nutrition, health, and development are intertwined with other processes ranging from the personal experiences of migrant farm workers, to urban and regional redevelopment, to global financial reforms. Specific questions that frame our classes include: What are the links between life and debt (GEOG 123)? How have sixty years of development increased in-country inequality (GEOG 230)? How do global disease etiologies reflect other global interconnections (GEOG 280)? How does agricultural modernization relate to hunger (GEOG 371)? And what are the implications for food security, health security, and developmental security when they are re-framed in terms of geopolitics and the global security challenges of international relations (GEOG 375)?

- GIS, Mapping, and Society In courses that comprise the GIS, Mapping, and Society track, students learn to use GIS, web-based geospatial applications, and database management systems for problem solving in relation to a diverse range of societal concerns, such as those within the other geography tracks. Students learn a range of analytical and critical methods for cartographic representation, spatial analysis, geovisualization, and database management. Further, students learn about the politics, ethics, and values of mapping and geospatial technologies, and integrate their social and technical skills to undertake projects with research partners in the region.

Graduates have pursued careers as urban planners, environmental planners and land-use analysts, GIS analysts, economic analysts (marketing, location, geodemographics), public health researchers, NGO specialists in developing nations, airline route analysts, import-export/international-trade specialists, real estate valuation specialists, lawyers, economic development specialists, social studies teachers, and college professors.

- Instructional and Research Facilities: A map center in Suzzallo Library houses atlases, sheet maps, and aerial photographs. Departmental facilities include the Edward L. Ullman Geography Collaboratory and the John C. Sherman Laboratory, which houses a variety of computer workstations connected to the campus computer network. The Ullman Collaboratory in 415 Smith provides a unique collaborative classroom with networked computer work stations. The Geography Commons also provides computer work stations for students. The Department of Geography is a member of the Center for Social Science Computation and Research, which maintains an extensive data archive and offers many statistical and software consulting services.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: More than 125 geography students participate each year in internships. For lists of these opportunities, see the department's career site.
- Department Scholarships: None offered.
- Student Organizations/Associations: The Undergraduate Geography Association (UGA) organizes field trips, alumni career panels, public-service projects, and social gatherings.

Of Special Note: Students interested in GIS are encouraged to learn a high-level programming language such as C, C++, Java, or Visual Basic.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator

415B Smith, Box 353550

(206) 543-3246

The Department of Geography has flexible programs of graduate study leading to the Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees. The aspirant to the master's degree is expected to complete all work for the degree in four to six quarters. The aspirant to the doctoral degree is expected to undertake two years of post-master's study and must take a departmental diagnostic examination upon entry, pass the general examination, attain an appropriate level of competence in a foreign language or cognate field, and successfully complete a dissertation. Normally, doctoral program students complete all degree requirements in three to four years.

Master of Arts

Admission Requirements

Admission to the graduate program normally requires a minimum GPA of 3.00 (on a 4.00 scale), or "B." Students holding a master's degree must meet this minimum scholastic requirement, but also should have achieved a GPA higher than 3.00 for graduate studies completed. All applicants must take the Graduate Record Examination. Specific information regarding application procedures may be obtained by writing to the Graduate Program Coordinator.

The master's degree program enables students to gain greater familiarity with the richness and rigor of advanced study in the discipline of geography. Students use coursework to develop familiarity with the discipline and their chosen subfield(s), and use an original research project to develop skills in data gathering and analysis. Students may write either a thesis or two high-quality papers as part of their degree requirements. These original works are expected to meet high standards for research design and data analysis, and must be clearly written.

Degree Requirements

Required Courses:

1. GEOG 512
2. GEOG 511. One additional methods course, from the following: GEOG 471, GEOG 525, GEOG 526, GEOG 560, GEOG 561, GEOG 562, and GEOG 564.
3. Satisfactory completion of at least three quarters of GEOG 598.
4. Two departmental research seminars (designated as "seminars" or "research seminars"). GEOG 500, GEOG 502, GEOG 511, and GEOG 513, and any of the "methods" courses listed above do not count toward this requirement. In some cases, a "directed readings" course (GEOG 600) may count in lieu of this requirement. To petition for this substitution, the GEOG 600 faculty member should write an appeal to the Graduate Program Coordinator. Direct any questions about whether a specific 500-level GEOG course counts toward this requirement to Rick Roth.

Additional Requirements

1. 36 credits of graduate work, including 18 graded credits. If a thesis is written, students must complete at least 9 credits of GEOG 700..
2. Minimum three full-time (at least 9 credits) quarters of residence credits. Part-time quarters may be accumulated to meet one quarter's worth of this requirement.

3. Minimum 3.0 grade in all departmental courses, and a minimum 2.7 grade in all related courses used to satisfy degree requirements. An overall 3.00 GPA must be maintained to remain in the program.
4. Final examination constituting a defense of the thesis or papers.
5. All work for the degree must be completed within six years.

Master in Geographic Information Systems

The online professional master's program in Geographic Information Systems (M-GIS) helps working professionals enter or advance their careers in the field of geographic information science and sustainability management. M-GIS prepares students to understand and apply geographic information systems (GIS) to solve complex problems in a wide range of disciplines. Students learn to combine geovisualization, data management and geospatial analysis to develop, examine and portray data in two- and three-dimensional maps. Specialized program courses explore sustainability and investigate the interconnection of social, environmental and economic issues on a regional to global scale. www.gisonline.uw.edu

Admission Requirements

1. A bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university in the United States, or its equivalent from a foreign institution, in a spatially-oriented discipline such as, but not limited to, geography, urban planning, geology, environmental science, civil engineering, environmental science/studies, and/or forest resources.
2. Minimum 3.00 GPA in the last 60 graded semester hours or last 90 graded quarter hours of undergraduate and graduate study.
3. At least one year of professional work experience in a field that emphasizes spatial relationships, wherein analyzing and synthesizing phenomena related across space are important parts of the work.
4. Graduate Record Examination (GRE) scores.
5. A personal statement describing educational goals and objectives.
6. Three letters of recommendation.
7. Previous coursework or work experience in GIS is advantageous and is considered as a way to offset any relative weaknesses in some of the previous criteria.
8. International Applicants: The UW Graduate School requires every applicant whose native language is not English to demonstrate English language proficiency. See Graduate School Memorandum #8 and English proficiency tests comparison tables for the university's policy.

Degree Requirements

The M-GIS is a nine-course program primarily designed for part-time students. Each course is 5 credits and students must earn 45 credits to graduate. It is a non-thesis program, but the capstone course involves a final project.

Because this program combines GIS with sustainability management, the curriculum is developed to teach students how to address complex geographic information problems with GIS technologies, and create solutions that balance economic, social, and environmental issues at local and global scales. Graduates appreciate tradeoffs among human, financial, and physical resource constraints when creating solutions.

Core courses expose students to the fundamentals of GIS software technologies and advanced spatial thinking skills. Concentration courses in sustainability management consider how resources are being treated currently and how they will be treated for future generations.

Most courses are taught online; however, students are required to attend three, three-day summer sessions in Seattle.

Courses: GEOG 514, GEOG 517, GEOG 560, GEOG 562, GEOG 564, GEOG 565, GEOG 568, GEOG 569, GEOG 582

Doctor of Philosophy

The doctoral degree program enables students to complete a research project of notable scope and originality that makes a significant contribution to the discipline of geography and related fields. Advanced coursework provides an opportunity to gain familiarity with current knowledge in the student's areas of specialization. Student expertise in their chosen subfields is ensured through the preliminary review and general examination. Students may choose to write either a dissertation or three papers of publishable quality. All such research efforts are expected to meet high standards of research design and data analysis, and to be written clearly.

Admission Requirements

Admission to the graduate program normally requires a minimum GPA of 3.00 (on a 4.00 scale), or "B." Students holding a master's degree must meet this minimum scholastic requirement, but also should have achieved a GPA higher than 3.00 for graduate studies completed. All applicants must take the Graduate Record Examination. Specific information regarding application procedures may be obtained by writing to the Graduate Program Coordinator.

Degree Requirements

90 credits, to include:

1. GEOG 500
2. GEOG 511
3. One methods course from among the following: GEOG 471, GEOG 525, GEOG 526, GEOG 560, GEOG 561, (GEOG 562, and GEOG 564.
4. Satisfactory completion of at least three quarters of GEOG 598

Additional Requirements

- Completion of at least two department research seminars numbered 500 or above, but not including GEOG 502 or GEOG 513.
- Submission of a scholarly article to a professionally reviewed academic journal or application for research support from an external agency, such as the National Science Foundation. The publication may be jointly authored with a faculty member or other graduate student.
- Evidence of reading competence in a foreign language or a sound level of competence in a cognate field of concentration as determined by the student's Supervisory Committee.
- Completion of 90 credits, at least 60 at the University of Washington. (including 27 GEOG 800 credits). With the approval of the degree-granting unit, an appropriate master's degree from an accredited institution may substitute for 30 credits of enrollment.
- Numerical grades must be received in at least 18 quarter credits of coursework taken at the UW prior to scheduling the general examination. The Graduate School accepts numerical grades in approved 400-level courses as part of the major, and in all 500-level courses. A minimum 3.00 cumulative GPA is required.
- Successful completion of a preliminary review, usually undertaken during the first year.
- Creditable passage of the general examination. Registration as a graduate student is required the quarter the examination is taken and candidacy is conferred.
- Preparation of and acceptance by the Dean of the Graduate School of a dissertation (or three high-quality research papers) that is a significant contribution to knowledge and clearly indicates training in research. Credit for the dissertation ordinarily should be at least one-third of the total credit. The candidate must register for a minimum of 27 credits of dissertation over a period of at least three quarters. At least one quarter must come after the student passes the general examination. With the exception of summer quarter, students are limited to a maximum of 10 credits per quarter of dissertation (800).

- Creditable passage of a final examination, which is usually devoted to the defense of the dissertation and the field with which it is concerned. The general and final examinations cannot be scheduled during the same quarter. Registration as a graduate student, registered for at least two credits, is required the quarter the examination is taken and the degree is conferred.
- Completion of all work for the doctoral degree within ten years. This includes quarters spent on-leave or out of status as well as applicable work from the master's degree from the UW or a master's degree from another institution, if applied toward one year of resident study.
- Registration maintained as a full- or part-time graduate student at the University for the quarter in which the degree is conferred (see detailed information under final quarter registration).
- A student must satisfy the requirements that are in force at the time the degree is to be awarded.
- Minimum 3.0 grade in all departmental courses, and a minimum 2.7 grade in all related courses used to satisfy degree requirements. A 3.00 overall GPA must be maintained to remain in the program.
- Students who earned an MA at the University of Washington have already met several of these requirements.

Financial Aid

The department usually awards approximately 15 to 20 teaching assistantships for the academic year. Most of the assistantships are for teaching quiz sections for a larger lecture class. A few of the more advanced doctoral candidates may teach a class. Normally several research assistantships are also available. In recent years, all of the department's graduate students have been funded by internal or external sources.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

GEOG 123 Introduction to Globalization (5) I&S, DIV M. SPARKE Provides an introduction to the debates over globalization. Focuses on the growth and intensification of global ties. Addresses the resulting inequalities and tensions, as well as the new opportunities for cultural and political exchange. Topics include the impacts on government, finance, labor, culture, the environment, health, and activism. Offered: jointly with JSIS 123.

GEOG 180 Introduction to Global Health: Disparities, Determinants, Policies, and Outcomes (5) I&S S. GLOYD, M. SPARKE Provides an introduction to global health, including: the burden and distribution of disease and mortality; the determinants of global health disparities; the making of global health policies; and the outcomes of global health interventions. Offered: jointly with G H 101/JSIS B 180; W.

GEOG 195 Special Topics in Geography (1-5, max. 10) I&S

GEOG 205 Introduction to Physical Sciences and the Environment (5) NW C. BIERMANN Major atmospheric, hydrologic, and geomorphic processes used to interpret the character, distribution, and human significance of different natural and human-altered environments. Includes laboratory exercises for science and non-science majors, geography majors and nonmajors.

GEOG 207 Economic Geography (5) I&S W. BEYERS The changing locations and spatial patterns of economic activity, including: production in agriculture, manufacturing, and services; spatial economic principles of trade, transportation, communications, and corporate organization; regional economic development, and the diffusion of technological innovation. Offered: A.

GEOG 208 Geography of the World Economy: Regional Fortunes and the Rise of Global Markets (5) I&S Ellis Examines the relationship between the globalization of economic activity and regional development. Topics include international trade, colonialism, industrial capitalism, advanced capitalism, and the globalization of labor markets.

GEOG 230 Geographies of Global Inequality (5) I&S, DIV Lawson Addresses increasing global inequalities by focusing on shifting spatial division of labor and the role of the international development industry in shaping economic and social inequality. Examines the relationships between economic globalization, the development industry, and rising global inequality: reviews the history and record of the international development project, and asks what it means to say that Western, advanced economies are not the norm against which the rest of the world must be understood.

GEOG 236 Development and Challenge in Greater China (5) I&S Chan Studies the geography of development processes, patterns, and problems in "Greater China": mainland China, Taiwan, and Hong Kong. Covers physical geography, history, and economic and political systems, with major focus on geographical issues in China's development: agriculture, population, industry and trade, and relations with Hong Kong and Taiwan. Offered: jointly with JSIS A 236.

GEOG 245 Geographic Perspectives on U.S. Population Diversity (5) I&S, DIV Withers Introduction to population geography. Offers a practical understanding of population processes (fertility, mortality, and migration); knowledge of geographic variation in population structures and characteristics; knowledge of data sources for demographic research; experience using formal demographic methods for geographic research; and an appreciation for the demographic underpinnings of contemporary social issues.

GEOG 258 Digital Geographies (5) I&S Elwood Explores the use and societal impacts of contemporary digital spatial technologies. Focuses on internet mapping, handheld geographic technologies, location-based services, spatial applications of social media, the geoweb, and traditional GIS. Develops hands-on experience using online digital spatial tools for geovisual representation, and skills for evaluation/critique of digital data and maps. Offered: W.

GEOG 270 Geographies of International Development and Environmental Change (5) I&S Bergmann Explores how concepts, theories and ideologies of international development and environmental issues interrelate. Approaches development and environment through several interconnected topics: population, consumption, carbon, land and water. Examines how these issues connect our lives to the lives of people living in the Third World. Offered: W.

GEOG 271 Geography of Food and Eating (5) I&S L. JAROSZ Examines the development of the world food economy, current responses to its instabilities and crises, and issues relating to obesity, hunger, and inequality in relation to food systems. Explores the political, social, and economic dimensions of food and eating in particular spaces, places, environments, contexts, and regions. Uses the theme of food and eating to examine key concepts from human geography and thereby provides an introduction to the discipline through this thematic approach.

GEOG 276 Introduction to Political Geography (5) I&S Brown Examines both the geography of politics and the politics of geography at a variety of spatial scales and in different global locations. Typical topics include: geographies of the state and state power; geopolitics and globalization; national and local politics, and other politics of culture, health, nature, and the body.

GEOG 277 Geography of Cities (5) I&S, DIV England Explores economic, cultural, social and political dynamics of cities - their location, functions, and internal structure, including economic activities, housing, and social geography. Topics include economic restructuring; suburbanization and urban sprawl; urban planning; inner-city gentrification; and how issues of class, race, and gender are embedded in the geographies of cities.

GEOG 280 Introduction to the Geography of Health and Healthcare (5) I&S Mayer Concepts of health from a geographical viewpoint, including human-environment relations, development, geographical patterns of disease, and health systems in developed and developing countries.

GEOG 295 Special Topics in Geography (1-5, max. 10) I&S

GEOG 301 Cultural Geography (5) I&S Analysis of cultural processes in the formation of landscape, environment, region, and place in their relationship to individual and group identities and activities

GEOG 302 The Pacific Northwest (3) I&S Beyers Settlement pattern in the Pacific Northwest, emphasizing economic and historical factors, including the location of resource-oriented industries, policies regarding the use of public lands, and bases of the development of major urban areas in the region. Offered: W.

GEOG 310 Immigrant America: Trends and Policies from a Geographic Perspective (5) I&S J. ELLIS Examines U.S. immigration trends and policies from a geographic perspective. Topics include where immigrants come from, where they settle in the United States (and why they settle in those particular places), these locations, immigrant employment enclaves, the effects of U.S. immigration policy on immigrant settlement and employment patterns, unauthorized immigration, citizenship, and barriers to immigrant social and economic mobility in the United States.

GEOG 315 Explanation and Understanding in Geography (5) I&S Brown Covers the beginning steps in the research process. Introduces the discipline of geography, the department, and current faculty through the research aims of explanation and understanding that frame social scientific inquiry. Students develop basic library and writing skills as preparation for future research methods classes and independent research.

GEOG 317 Geographic Information and Spatial Analysis (5) I&S, QSR Withers Integrates geographic information systems and spatial data analysis, emphasizing the appropriate selection of methods, procedures for research design, and interpretation of findings. Topics include descriptive and inferential methods, spatial patterns and statistics, and correlation and spatial autocorrelation. Applications use SPSS and ArcMap software.

GEOG 323 Globalization and You (5) I&S M. SPARKE Offers an evidence-based analysis of globalization that addresses how individuals are affected personally as well as economically amidst the market-led processes of global integration. Offered: jointly with JSIS D 323; A.

GEOG 326 Quantitative Methods in Geography (5) I&S, QSR Chan, Withers Introduction to quantitative methods in geography, with a primary focus on statistical techniques. Examines the basic concepts, reasoning, and procedures geographers use in developing, analyzing, applying, and presenting quantitative methods. Topics include: generating and describing data; elementary probability, hypothesis testing, comparative tests; finding relationships; and using and misusing statistics.

GEOG 330 Latin America: Landscapes of Change (5) I&S Lawson Examines operation of economic, social, and political processes across countries of Latin America - on international, national, and local scales - to understand common issues facing the region and different impacts in particular countries. Topics include internationalization of Latin American economies; agrarian and urban change; popular movements.

GEOG 331 Global Poverty and Care (5) I&S, DIV Lawson Explores the causes and patterns of global poverty, and the urgent need for studies of care in both academic work and public policy. Considers the possibilities and challenges of caring across distance, and ways to respectfully engage with people in different places.

GEOG 335 Geography of the Developing World (5) I&S Characteristics and causes, external and internal, of Third World development and obstacles to that development. Special attention to demographic and agricultural patterns, resource development, industrialization and urbanization, drawing on specific case studies from Asia, Africa, and Latin America. Recommended: either GEOG 123 or GEOG 230. Offered: jointly with JSIS B 335.

GEOG 336 Development and Challenge in China (5) I&S Chan Examines the geography of China's development since 1949. Introduces China's physical geography, history, and economic and political system. Emphasizes China's uneven development in agriculture, population, industry, and trade. Also examines problems China faces in meeting its internal food demand, as well as the external processes of globalization.

GEOG 342 Geography of Inequality (5) I&S, DIV England Geographies of social, political, and economic inequality. Focus is usually on North American cities. Examines the theoretical underpinning of inequality. Explores topics such as the spatial distribution of wealth and poverty, the geographies of exclusion, and discrimination in paid employment and housing.

GEOG 344 Migration in the Global Economy (5) I&S Mitchell Analyzes the relationship between human mobility in the late twentieth century and changes in the global economy. Allows students to gain familiarity with scholarly research on international migration from a diversity of approaches and methods. Offered: jointly with JSIS B 344.

GEOG 349 Geography of International Trade (5) I&S Introduces the theories and practice of international trade and foreign direct investment. Topics include: trade theory and policy; economic integration; currency markets and foreign exchange; trade operations and logistics; the international regulatory environment; and marketing, location and entry, and finance, accounting, and taxation.

GEOG 360 Principles of GIS Mapping (5) I&S, QSR Bergmann, Elwood, Nyerger Origins, development, and methods of cartographic mapping. Principles of data representation and map design for thematic mapping and spatial analysis. Introduction to principles of geographic information systems. Not available for credit to students who have completed GEOG 362. Offered: Asp.

GEOG 362 GIS Presentation, Analysis, and Problem-Solving (3) Introduces students to the systems, science, and study of geographic information systems (GIS), including what gives GIS its enduring importance, its core principles, its applications, its unique analysis methods, and the practices and dilemmas that often accompany the use and communication of geographic information. Not available for credit to students who have completed GEOG 360. Credit/no-credit only.

GEOG 370 Problems in Resource Management (5) I&S C. BIERMANN Principles and practices of effective conservation and utilization of natural resources. Role of technology in resource use. Physical, political, and economic aspects of resource management for food, population, land, water, air, energy, and timber resources.

GEOG 371 World Hunger and Agricultural Development (5) I&S Jarosz Addresses world hunger and poverty in relation to agricultural development, food security policy, the globalization of food and agriculture and social movements. Explores the problem and historical persistence of hunger across geographic scale and examines the debates about how hunger can be eradicated. Recommended: either GEOG 230, GEOG 330, or GEOG 335.

GEOG 375 Geopolitics (5) I&S Sparke An introduction to both political geography and geopolitics, addressing the fundamental links between power and space. Topics covered include: theories of power, space, and modernity; the formation of modern states; international geopolitics in the aftermath of the Cold War; the post-colonial nation-state; and the geopolitics of resistance. Offered: jointly with JSIS B 375.

GEOG 377 Urban Political Geography (5) I&S Brown Examines how the spatial structure of cities and towns affects and is affected by political processes. Considers both traditional and newer forms of politics, as global and local issues. Special attention paid to where politics takes place within local contexts across state, civil society, home, and the body.

GEOG 378 Policing the City (5) I&S S. HERBERT Investigates how and why formal and informal order is established in urban areas, how this order produces advantages and disadvantages, and possibilities of alternative visions of order. Topics include formal means of control (zoning, laws, policing, building codes) and informal means of control (gossip, ostracism, peer pressure, local politics). Offered: jointly with LSJ 378; A.

GEOG 380 Geographical Patterns of Health and Disease (5) I&S Mayer Geography of infectious and chronic diseases at local, national, and international scales; environmental, cultural, and social explanations of those variations; comparative aspects of health systems.

GEOG 381 Maps and Health (5) I&S Combines the study of maps, GIS and other geovisualization technologies with research on the geography of health. Provides an introduction to key geovisualization tools, while also offering an opportunity to reflect intellectually on health maps through the lens of critical social theories about power and knowledge.

GEOG 395 Special Topics in Geography (1-5, max. 10) I&S

GEOG 425 Qualitative Methodology in Geography (5) I&S L. JAROSZ Historical and philosophical overview of qualitative methodology and techniques such as interviewing, ethnography, archival research, participatory action research, and focus groups. Exploration of forms of interpretation and analysis such as textual interpretation, critical discourse analysis, and content analysis. Addresses questions of ethics, power relations, field notes, and research presentation.

GEOG 426 Advanced Quantitative Methods (5) I&S, QSR Withers Introduces elementary spatial statistics and advanced statistical techniques in quantitative human geography. Methods reviewed include geographic applications of multiple regression analysis, spatial statistics and spatial autocorrelation, geographically weighted regression, factor analysis, discriminant analysis, and logistic regression. Prioritizes the interpretation and application of methods. Prerequisite: either GEOG 317 or GEOG 326.

GEOG 430 Contemporary Development Issues in Latin America (5) I&S Lawson Contemporary development issues in Latin America, seen from a spatial perspective. Concept of development; competing theories as related to various Latin American states. Economic structural transformation, migration, urbanization, regional inequality, and related policies.

GEOG 431 Geography and Gender (5) I&S Brown Examines theories and case studies across international, national, and regional scales in order to illustrate the impacts of social and economic processes upon the construction of gender in particular places.

GEOG 432 Geographies and Politics of Poverty and Privilege (5) I&S Lawson Examines theories and case studies across the Americas to understand geographies and politics of poverty and inequality. Outlines key concepts related to the reproduction of inequality/poverty, particularly theories of class, gender, and race and examines the mechanisms through which knowledge and action on poverty and inequality are (re)produced. Offered: Sp.

GEOG 435 Industrialization and Urbanization in China (5) I&S Chan Examines the impacts of industrialization strategies adopted by the People's Republic of China on urbanization and rural-urban relations. Topics include: economic development strategies, industrial geography, rural industrialization, urban development patterns, migration, and urbanization policies. Recommended: GEOG 336. Offered: Sp.

GEOG 436 Social and Political Geographies of South Asia (5) I&S Introduces the social and political geographies of South Asia through reference to agrarian change in India. Outlines key concepts related to the reproduction of inequality in the region, particularly theories of caste, class, gender, and religious communalism, and examines the mechanisms through which these inequalities are reproduced in South Asia. Offered: jointly with JSIS A 438.

GEOG 439 Gender, Race, and the Geography of Employment (5) I&S Ellis Focuses on the geography of employment for men and women of different racial and ethnic backgrounds in American cities. Presents evidence on labor market inequality for different groups and explanations of these differences. Emphasizes the importance of a spatial perspective in understanding employment outcomes for women and minorities.

GEOG 442 Social Geography (5) I&S Review of concepts and methods of postwar social geography: historical roots and present orientations. Study of social spatial systems, their structures and functioning.

GEOG 445 Geography of Housing (5) I&S Withers Focuses on the geography of housing, especially in the United States. Topics include: the American dream of home ownership; housing affordability and differential access to home ownership; homelessness; the history of public housing; housing demography; residential mobility and neighborhood change, and discrimination in the housing market.

GEOG 448 GEOGRAPHY OF TRANSPORTATION (5) I&S

GEOG 451 Cultural Geography of Latin America (5) I&S Interdisciplinary senior seminar examining how physical and social geographies are culturally constructed and interconnected with subjectivities and power in Latin America. Topics include identity formation grounded in particular territories and the social constitution of space via an interplay of material and cultural forces. Offered: jointly with JSIS D 451.

GEOG 458 Advanced Digital Geographies (5) I&S, QSR Bergmann How are emerging digital approaches changing GIS and geography generally? Students learn skills needed to critically and creatively engage with coding, collaboration, shifting geospatial webs, and interactive maps and essays. Prerequisite: GEOG 360. Offered: Sp.

GEOG 461 Urban Geographic Information Systems (5) I&S Elwood Use of geographic information systems to investigate urban/regional issues; focus on transportation, land-use and environmental issues; all urban change problems considered. GIS data processing strategies. Problem definition for GIS processing. Data collection, geocoding issues. Data structuring strategies. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in GEOG 360; recommended: GEOG 277. Offered: W.

GEOG 462 Coastal Geographic Information Systems (5) I&S, QSR T. NYERGES Combines lectures about fundamental concepts in geographic information systems with hands-on computer laboratory assignments about coastal environment-society issues. Coastal issues feature data measurement, characterization, and movement related to the land-water and environment society dynamic. Prerequisite: GEOG 360.

GEOG 464 GIS and Decision Support (5) I&S T. NYERGES Combines lectures about geographic information systems and decision methods with hands-on computer assignments about regional and urban issues associated with such complex decision processes as planning, improvement programming, and capital project implementation. Emphasizes land, transportation, and water resources decision problems. Prerequisite: GEOG 360.

GEOG 465 GIS Database and Programming (5) I&S Explores GIS database models, database development, and database management systems used in GIS. Uses programming languages most applicable to GIS database work, particularly related to extending current commercial GIS such as ArcGIS. Prerequisite: either 2.0 in GEOG 461 or 2.0 in GEOG 462.

GEOG 467 Law, Justice, and the Environment (5) I&S HERBERT Examines the role law plays in shaping environmental policy. Challenges student to understand how environmental concerns are translated into legal discourse, and covers several typical issues that emerge in environmental law. Centers on active discussions. Offered: jointly with LSJ 467.

GEOG 469 Geographic Information Systems Workshop (5) Elwood, Nyerger Practices experience applying geographic information system (GIS) tools to analyze spatial data. Workshop format involves team-based work on GIS application project in various subfields of geography for community or university partners; encourages diverse backgrounds in various subfields of geography. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either GEOG 461 or GEOG 462. Offered: Sp.

GEOG 470 The Cultural Politics of Food (5) I&S Jaros Explores ways our understanding of the concepts of "food" and "eating" are culturally and spatially constructed by societal structures, power relations, and media representations. Drawing from research in cultural geography and critical food studies, examines the connections between food, culture, the media, politics, and economics. Prerequisite: GEOG 271.

GEOG 471 Methods of Resource Analysis (5) I&S Economic and noneconomic criteria for resource analysis. Theory and methods of linear models of natural resource analysis. Includes materials-balance modeling, residuals management, constrained system optimization approaches to water quality analysis, land-use patterns and interregional energy use, and multiple objective planning techniques applied to natural resource problems. Recommended: GEOG 370.

GEOG 474 Geography and the Law (5) I&S S. HERBERT Examines the relationship between geography, law, and socio-legal analysis; reviews significant instances where law and geography intersect, such as the regulation of public space, the regulation of borders and mobility, and disputes over property and land use. Offered: jointly with LSJ 474.

GEOG 476 Women and the City (5) I&S, DIV England Explores the reciprocal relations between gender relations, the layout of cities, and the activities of urban residents. Topics include: feminist theory and geography (women, gender, and the organization of space); women and urban poverty, housing and homelessness; gender roles and labor patterns; geographies of childcare; and women and urban politics. Offered: jointly with GWSS 476.

GEOG 477 Advanced Urban Geography (5) I&S Brown Geographic patterns and social processes within metropolitan areas. Canvases current research topics, methods, and theoretical debates in urban geography. Issues covered range across urban economic, political, and cultural geography. Recommended: GEOG 277.

GEOG 478 Social Justice and the City (5) I&S, DIV Mitchell Provides a link between general theories of urban development and their specific manifestation in the United States. Explores a series of themes related to contemporary urbanization processes, including urban segregation, gentrification, the rise of fortress cities, homelessness, and the loss of public space. Recommended: GEOG 277.

GEOG 479 Race, Ethnicity, and the American City (5) I&S, DIV Ellis Explores America's cities as sites where ethnic and racial interaction have generated specific patterns of opportunity and disadvantage in housing and labor markets; how ethnic identities and racial formations are changed by living and working in cities, and questions of assimilation, multiculturalism, and America's ethno-racial future.

GEOG 480 Environmental Geography, Climate, and Health (5) I&S Mayer Demonstrates and investigates how human-environment relations are expressed in the context of health and disease. Local and global examples emphasize the ways medical geography is situated at the intersection of the social, physical, and biological sciences. Examines interactions between individual health, public health, and social, biological, and physical phenomena. Prerequisite: either GEOG 280, GEOG 380, or GEOG 426.

GEOG 482 GIS Data Management (5) I&S Nyerger Examines the principles and application of geospatial database management software, including personal and enterprise geodatabase management solutions. Considers enterprise architectures for GIS relative to organizational size. Addresses collaborative uses of Internet, Intranet, and Extranet architectures. Offers case studies in database management, with a variety of dataset types and sizes. Prerequisite: GEOG 360.

GEOG 490 Field Research: The Seattle Region (6) I&S Brown, Elwood Field methods for contemporary urban research. Survey designs used in the analysis of transportation, land use, location of employment, shopping and housing, political fragmentation, and environmental degradation. Field report required, based on field work in the Seattle region.

GEOG 494 Senior Essay (3) I&S Supervised individual research and writing of major paper during senior year. Offered: AWP.

GEOG 495 Special Topics (*, max. 15) I&S Topics vary and are announced in the preceding quarter. Offered: AWP.

GEOG 496 Internship in Geography (3/5, max. 12) Internship in the public or private sector, supervised by a faculty member. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWP.

GEOG 497 Tutorial in Geography (1-5, max. 15) I&S Intensive directed study and tutoring. Literature reviews, formulations of project outlines and research designs, orientation in contemporary geographic thought and trends. Directed writing. Required for Honors students. Offered: AWP.

GEOG 499 Special Studies (*, max. 15) Supervised reading programs, undergraduate and graduate library and field research; special projects for undergraduate Honors students. Offered: AWP.

GEOG 500 Geographic Thought (5) Familiarizes entering graduate students with the research interests and publications of the geography faculty. Through readings, weekly essays, and discussions with faculty, students develop and deepen their individual research interests within the context of the intellectual life of the department. Offered: A.

GEOG 502 Professional Writing in Geography (*, max. 6)

GEOG 505 Spatial Dimensions of Chinese Development (5, max. 10) Chan Addresses several major spatial topics critical to present-day China's development, including: population and land relationship, the spatial structures of economic activities and governments; rural-urban relations and transition; central-local relations; the hukou system; population mobility at different spatial scales and urban centers.

GEOG 511 Contemporary Research Design in Geography (5) Reviews the key steps in designing and executing high-caliber independent research in geography. Students generate a research proposal that can further their own thesis or dissertation research.

GEOG 513 Research Grant Workshop (5, max. 10) Writing research proposals. Participants learn to identify and approach sponsors; practice the peer-review process; develop a competitive research proposal. Prerequisite: GEOG 512 or GEOG 515 or equivalent; training and experience with quantitative, qualitative, or cartographic analysis; an already-formulated research project.

GEOG 514 GIS Problem Solving (5) Nyerges Introduces geospatial information technologies including geographic information systems, global positioning systems, remote sensing, and spatial decision support systems for addressing complex geospatial problems. Students gain an understanding of integrated data processing strategies including problem definition, database design, data collection, data structuring, data analysis, and information presentation. Offered: S.

GEOG 517 Geospatial Data Analysis (5) Provides a practical introduction to spatial data analysis and geographic information systems. Topics include overlay, buffer and distance fundamentals, descriptive and inferential spatial statistics, spatial pattern analysis and spatial autocorrelations, global and local spatial measures, regression analysis and geographically weighted regression. Emphasizes comprehension and application.

GEOG 520 Research Seminar: Geographic Information Representation (5) Nyerges Current issues in geographic information representation for geographic information systems (GIS). Includes representation for visualization, databases, and analyses. Prerequisite: one course in GIS.

GEOG 521 Research Seminar: Critical GIS (5) Elwood Examines theoretical and methodological foundations and practices of critical GIS research; considers philosophical and practical considerations in mixed methods research that incorporates GIS and other spatial technologies.

GEOG 522 Research Seminar: Space, Technology, and Society (5) Elwood Examines social scientific and humanistic theorizations of space, technologies, and their interrelationships; uses theses theorizations to assess social/cultural, political, and disciplinary implications of GIS, the geoweb, and emergent online mapping technologies. Offered: W.

GEOG 525 Advanced Qualitative Methods in Geography (5) England, Jarosz Examines why and how qualitative methods can be used to pursue research in geography. Includes consideration of theoretical, ethical, and political issues that arise with qualitative methods. Offers considerable practice in such methods as ethnography, focus groups, interviewing, discourse and content analyses, narrative analysis, and archival analysis.

GEOG 526 Advanced Quantitative Methods in Geography (5) Introduces elementary spatial statistics and advanced statistical techniques in quantitative human geography. Methods reviewed include geographic applications of multiple regression analysis, spatial statistics and spatial autocorrelation, geographically weighted regression, factor analysis, discriminant analysis, and logistic regression. Prioritizes the interpretation and application of methods. Prerequisite: GEOG 326 or equivalent.

GEOG 531 Latin American Development Seminar (5, max. 10) Lawson Evolution of development theory in Latin America from a spatial perspective. Theories and development issues, using case studies from Latin America. How geographers have conceptualized development problems and solutions. Prerequisite: GEOG 430.

GEOG 532 Research Seminar: Advanced Topics in Agriculture and Food (5, max. 10) L. JAROSZ Examines classic and contemporary research and writing on agricultural development and food and hunger drawing from political economy, political ecology, poststructural theory, cultural studies, and feminist theory.

GEOG 541 Research Seminar: Feminist Geographies (5) England Explores major research themes in feminist geographies. Particular attention to the concept that gendered identities and spaces are discursively (re)produced. Emphasizes recent feminist scholarship that emphasizes difference, as well as the intersections between gender, "race," ethnicity, sexuality, age, nationality, class, and other social identities and divisions. Offered: jointly with GWSS 541.

GEOG 542 Research Seminar: Social and Population Geography (5, max. 10) Classic and contemporary theoretical and empirical research in social and population geography. Specific focus changes annually.

GEOG 543 Research Seminar: Topics in Immigration, Ethnicity, and Race (5, max. 10) Ellis Theoretical and empirical research issues in the geographies of immigration, ethnicity, and race. Specific focus changes annually.

GEOG 553 Advanced Topics in Cultural Geography (5, max. 10) Mitchell Focuses on important contemporary topics in geography and cultural studies, especially race and racism. Includes critical questions surrounding issues of representation, recognition, and redistribution. Offered: Sp.

GEOG 560 Principles of GIS Mapping (5) Origins, development, and methods of cartographic mapping. Principles of data representation and map design for thematic mapping and spatial analysis. Introduction of principles of geographic information systems (GIS).

GEOG 561 Urban Geographic Information Systems (5) Elwood, Nyerges Uses geographic information systems to investigate urban/regional issues, including transportation, land use, environment, emergency response, and public health. Spatial data acquisition, structuring, management, and analysis in a GIS environment - for urban planning, government, and research applications. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in GEOG 560 or permission of instructor. Offered: W.

GEOG 562 Coastal Geographic Information Systems (5) Nyerges Combines lectures about fundamental concepts in geographic information systems with methods in hands-on computer lab assignments about coastal environment-society issues. Includes coastal-feature data measurement, characterization, and movement related to the land-water and environment-society dynamic. Prerequisite: GEOG 560 or equivalent.

GEOG 564 GIS and Decision Support (5) Nyerges Combines lectures about geographic information systems and decision methods with hands-on computer assignments about regional and urban issues associated with such complex decision processes as planning, improvement programming, and capital project implementation. Emphasis on land, transportation, and water resource decision problems. Prerequisite: GEOG 560 or equivalent.

GEOG 565 Geographic Information Systems Programming (5) Nyerges Covers GIS data structures and algorithms, plus map data systems used in GIS. Examines programming languages most applicable to GIS data management, analysis, and display work; particularly related to extending current commercial GIS methods using scripting environments as in ArcGIS.

GEOG 567 Research Seminar: Geography and Economic Development (5, max. 10) Explores ways in which economic and social changes affect the well-being and development of subnational, regional economies. Explanatory roles of such factors as labor and labor institutions, governments, technical change, corporations, capital markets, information costs, and international trade in the process of global restructuring. Specific focus changes annually.

GEOG 568 International Case Studies of GIS for Sustainability Management (5) Nyerges Uses GIS and resilience thinking to explore sustainable development projects in a variety of cultural settings. Examines international, national, and regional perspectives in order to understand how different organizations view sustainability as undertaken through GIS projects. Offered: Sp.

GEOG 569 Geographic Information Systems Workshop (5) Elwood, Nyerges Practical experience applying geographic information system (GIS) tools to analyze spatial data. Workshop format involves team-based work on GIS application project for community or university partners; diverse background encouraged. Prerequisite: either 2.0 in GEOG 561 or 2.0 in GEOG 562. Offered: Sp.

GEOG 571 Research Seminar: Critical and Normative Ecologies (5)

GEOG 572 Research Seminar: Queer Geographies (5) Brown Explores the relationship between queer theory and critical human geography. Covers classic themes and debates, as well as new and emerging topics. Asks how geographic thought can be queered, as well as how queer studies can be augmented or critiqued with a geographical imagination.

GEOG 573 Urban Political Geography: Research Seminar (5) Brown Covers both classic and contemporary theoretical debates and research on the relation between power, place, and the local scale. Considers both conventional sites (e.g., the local state) as well as new forms and locations of city politics (e.g., sexuality and the body).

GEOG 574 Research Seminar: Geography, Law, and Social Control (5) Herbert Explores relationship between the construction and enforcement of law and the landscape of lived experience; reviews major approaches in socio-legal analysis and seeks to augment these with insights from contemporary human geography research; explores various ways in which geographical variance shapes legal behavior.

GEOG 575 Advanced Political Geography (5, max. 10) Sparke Provides resources for theorizing how politics shapes and is shaped by geographical relationships. Examines how politics are situated in complex material and discursive geographies that are partly reproduced through political negotiations. Examines interrelationships of contemporary capitalism with other complex systems of social and political power relations. Offered: jointly with JSIS B 575.

GEOG 578 Research Seminar: Theorizing the City (5) Ellis Considers classic and contemporary writings in urban theory in the twentieth century, including social ecology (Chicago School), political economy, and contemporary theoretical debates in poststructuralism, deconstructionism, and culture as they relate to cities and space.

GEOG 580 Medical Geography (3) Mayer Geography of disease, consideration in health systems planning. Analysis of distributions, diffusion models, migration studies. Application of distance, optimal location models to health systems planning; emergency medical services; distribution of health professionals; cultural variations in health behavior. Prerequisite: familiarity with social science research; health-related issues. Offered: jointly with HSERV 586.

GEOG 581 Seminar in Medical Geography (5, max. 10) Mayer Intensive research seminar dealing with new and promising research themes in medical geography and public health. Offered: jointly with HSERV 585.

GEOG 582 GIS Data Management (5) Nyerges Examines the principles and application of geospatial database management software, including personal and enterprise geodatabase management solutions. Considers enterprise architectures for GIS relative to organizational size. Addresses collaborative uses of Internet, Intranet, and Extranet architectures. Offers case studies in database management, with a variety of dataset types and sizes.

GEOG 598 Geography Colloquium (1, max. 6) Participation in, and critique of, student thesis and dissertation research, faculty research, and visitor contributions. Offered: AWSp.

GEOG 600 Independent Study or Research (*-) Offered: AWSpS.

GEOG 700 Master's Thesis (*-) Offered: AWSpS.

GEOG 800 Doctoral Dissertation (*-) Offered: AWSpS.

Germanics

340C Denny

The Department of Germanics focuses on the language, literature, and civilization of the German-speaking countries; on the role of their history, literature, and philosophy in Western civilization; and on linguistic analysis, especially historic, of the Germanic languages.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

337 Denny, Box 353130

(206) 543-4580

uwgerman@uw.edu

The Department of Germanics offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in Germanics
- A minor in Germanics, plus an option in German linguistics

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: First- and second-year German or equivalent. Courses in Central European history, literature and culture. Courses on broad cultural topics taught in English by Germanics.

Department Admission Requirements

Admission to the major status requires completion of GERMAN 202 or equivalent.

Major Requirements

60 credits as follows:

1. 20 credits as follows: GERMAN 203, GERMAN 311, GERMAN 322, GERMAN 401
2. Three 400-level courses in literature and culture (15 credits), chosen from the following: GERMAN 411, GERMAN 412, GERMAN 421, GERMAN 422, GERMAN 423, GERMAN 493, GERMAN 495
3. 25 additional credits from the approved list of electives or additional courses from the list above. No more than 10 of these credits can be at the 100 or 200 level, and no more than 10 credits total in GERMAN 301, GERMAN 302, GERMAN 303, GERMAN 304, GERMAN 307, GERMAN 333, and GERMAN 334.
4. Minimum 2.0 grade must be earned in every upper-division German course; an overall 2.50 GPA is required for all German courses counted toward the major.

Minor

Germanics

35 credits as follows:

1. GERMAN 203, GERMAN 311, GERMAN 322
2. 5 credits in 400-level coursework from either GERMAN 411, GERMAN 412, GERMAN 421, GERMAN 422, GERMAN 423, GERMAN 490, GERMAN 493, GERMAN 494, GERMAN 495, GERMAN 497, GERMAN 498, GERMAN 499, or from the courses listed below
3. 15 additional credits from the approved list of electives (no more than 10 credits may be taken from 100- or 200-level courses)
4. Minimum 2.0 grade is required for each course counted toward the minor.

German Linguistics

35 credits as follows:

1. GERMAN 203; either GERMAN 311 or GERMAN 322; GERMAN 401; GERMAN 451; GERMAN 452
2. Two additional courses (from any of the following):
 - a. Language: GERMAN 301, GERMAN 302, GERMAN 303, GERMAN 304, GERMAN 307, GERMAN 333, GERMAN 334, GERMAN 401, GERMAN 498
 - b. Literature: GERMAN 210, GERMAN 293, GERMAN 295, GERMAN 300, GERMAN 311 (if not used for requirement above), GERMAN 312, GERMAN 313, GERMAN 340, GERMAN 341, GERMAN 342, GERMAN 345, GERMAN 346, GERMAN 349, GERMAN 350, GERMAN 351, GERMAN 352, GERMAN 353, GERMAN 360, GERMAN 390, GERMAN 397, GERMAN 411, GERMAN 412, GERMAN 421, GERMAN 422, GERMAN 423, GERMAN 490, GERMAN 494, GERMAN 495, GERMAN 497
 - c. Culture: GERMAN 322 (if not used for requirement above), GERMAN 323, GERMAN 355, GERMAN 370, GERMAN 371, GERMAN 399, GERMAN 493, GERMAN 499
 - d. Linguistics: GERMAN 220, GERMAN 479, or courses from other departments offering linguistics
 - e. Other: GERMAN 395/GERMAN 396 (4 credits max.), GERMAN 398, GERMAN 446 (5 credits max.), GERMAN 447 (5 credits max.)
3. Minimum 2.0 grade is required for each course counted toward the minor.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes:
 - To acquire linguistic fluency in German and broad knowledge of German/Austrian/Swiss language, literature, and culture;
 - To increase critical awareness and sensitivity to other languages and cultures as well as to one's own;
 - To develop skills of analytical and integrative thinking, critical reading, and writing;
 - To communicate clearly and concisely both in written and spoken form;
 - To understand how to do research in German literacy and cultural studies.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: None
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core and Departmental Honors requirements). With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning:
 - Advanced undergraduate majors and minors can sign up for 1-5 credits of faculty-sponsored research (GERMAN 447) for one quarter with a maximum of 15 credits. Five credits can count towards the major as an elective. Regular grades are assigned for research results. To see examples of research projects currently being offered, see the departmental website.
 - The internship in German (GERMAN 446) offers students the opportunity to do internships in public institutions or private businesses to apply their German language skills in practice. The internship experience provides a valuable tool to further increase students' communication skills in the German language, to explore and test potential career options, and to specify or expand study goals. Ideally an internship in German serves to enhance and further students' educational and professional objectives.
- Study Abroad: The Office of International Programs and Exchanges offers a number of different study abroad options for Austria and Germany. Students can consult their website at www.ipe.washington.edu. The Department of Germanics offers a program in Vienna, Austria. Qualified students are invited to take part in the "Spring in Vienna" program. Every spring quarter the department sends a group of approximately 20 students to Vienna to participate in a program of studies in German language and Austrian culture for which students are able to earn 16 credits. Program costs are commensurate with in-state tuition at the University of Washington. Students should consult the departmental website for more information.

- Department Scholarships: The department's German Express program consists of a series of intensive courses able to take a student from no knowledge of German to fluency in one year. The best five students are awarded stipends of $1,000 each to be applied toward study during spring quarter at a German university. Additional scholarship opportunities can be found on the departmental website.
- Student Organizations/Associations: German Club.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator

240 Denny, Box 353130

(206) 543-4580

uwgerman@uw.edu

The graduate program in Germanics offers a broad, flexible, yet integrated curriculum that allows students to organize studies according to their inclinations and professional needs. Although based upon objectives common to all aspects of study (such as the acquisition of a body of learning, training in technical skills, and development of critical judgment), the program offers a background for different professional pursuits: careers as scholars and teachers in literature, cultural studies, the humanities, linguistics, and philology on the university level; the teaching of German language and civilization on the college and secondary school level; and professional writing, editing, and publishing. Study period of the doctoral program is two years (minimum number of post-master's course credits is 60). Completion of necessary coursework is followed by general written and oral examinations. A third doctoral year is reserved for writing the dissertation.

The MA and PhD programs concentrate on German literature, civilization, cultural history, and philosophical traditions, with an option to include Germanic linguistics and courses outside the department.

Master of Arts

Admission Requirements

An undergraduate major in German, or equivalent. Superior German language skills.

Degree Requirements

1. 40 hours of coursework as determined in consultation with adviser
2. One critical MA paper
3. Text analysis in one of the MA areas of expertise (see below)
4. Written comprehensive examination in one of the MA areas

Areas of expertise for the MA in Germanics are literary history; intellectual history; cultural studies; and linguistics or applied linguistics.

Students must demonstrate foundational competency in three of the four areas of expertise. Evaluation of this expertise is based on three procedures: one comprehensive examination (based on the MA reading list); one text analysis (text selected by the MA committee from the MA reading list); one critical MA paper (based on work in a graduate seminar). Students choose the way these three evaluation procedures are distributed across their selected areas of expertise.

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

Undergraduate major in German, or equivalent. Superior German language skills. Reading knowledge of a second foreign language (in addition to German) is required before the student is admitted to the PhD General Examination. Languages chosen are subject to approval by the department.

Degree Requirements

90 credits, to include:

60 credit hours at the 500 level or higher (GERMAN 411, GERMAN 451, GERMAN 452, GERMAN 497, GERMAN 498, GERMAN 499 may be counted toward this requirement if not already counted toward the MA); knowledge of a foreign language other than German; one PhD paper and a dissertation prospectus (or three PhD papers); three written doctoral examinations; an oral examination; and a dissertation.

1. The 60 hours of coursework are selected at the student's discretion with an eye toward developing distinct areas of specialization, though students are encouraged to define their areas broadly.
2. PhD paper: The doctoral paper must be on file one year following successful completion of the MA examination. For students who arrive with the MA, the paper must be on file by December 15 in the second year of coursework.
3. Reading lists: Guided by the PhD reading list, students prepare their own reading lists for each of the three doctoral examination areas in consultation with members of the PhD supervisory committee.
4. Knowledge of a foreign language other than German, by completion of a literature course - with readings in the language and a grade of 3.0 or higher - or by standard examinations in the target language approved by the Graduate Program Coordinator, must be demonstrated.
5. After students have completed the required 60 hours of coursework, met the language requirement, and had the dissertation prospectus approved they may register for 800-level coursework.
6. Students write three 24-hour examinations at home, organized in consultation with the Supervisory Committee according to one of the following patterns: one period examination, one genre examination, one special topic examination; two period examinations, one genre examination; two period examinations, one special topic examination; one period examination, two special topic examinations (for students specializing in linguistics).

Financial Aid

A limited number of teaching assistantships and fellowships are available. The teaching load consists of a five-hour course on the first- or second-year level. Teaching assistants are supervised by experienced faculty members.

GERMAN 100 Intensive First-Year German (15) Accelerated first-year German. Speaking and listening. Secondary objectives are reading and writing. Offered: S.

GERMAN 101 First-Year German (5) The methods and objectives are primarily communicative, with emphasis on speaking and listening. Secondary objectives are reading and writing. (Cannot be taken for credit if German is language of admission). First in a sequence of three. Prerequisite:

site: score of 0-11 on GER TL placement test if German is language of admission. Offered: AW.

GERMAN 102 First-Year German (5) The methods and objectives are primarily communicative, with emphasis on speaking and listening. Secondary objectives are reading and writing. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: either GERMAN 101 or score of 12-35 on German placement test. Offered: WSp.

GERMAN 103 First-Year German (5) The methods and objectives are primarily communicative, with emphasis on speaking and listening. Secondary objectives are reading and writing. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: either GERMAN 102, GERMAN 111, or score of 36-56 on German placement test. Offered: AWSpS.

GERMAN 104 Individualized First-Year German (1-15, max. 15) Individualized approach to elementary German instruction. Students progress at their own pace. Number of credits vary. Depending upon amount of material mastered, any number of credits up to 15 may be earned per quarter. (Note: If German is the student's language of admission, only 10 credits count towards graduation.) Credit/no-credit only.

GERMAN 111 Basic German Review (5) Includes the curriculum of GERMAN 102, preceded by a review of GERMAN 101. Designed for students with a background in German. Cannot be taken for credit if student has already taken GERMAN 102, GERMAN 103, or more advanced courses. Offered: A.

GERMAN 121 First-Year Reading German (5) Special beginning course devoted exclusively to the reading objective. Offered: S.

GERMAN 122 First-Year Reading German (5) Special beginning course devoted exclusively to the reading objective; GERMAN 122 continuation of GERMAN 121. Offered: S.

GERMAN 150 Conversational German Through Films (2, max. 6) Conversational practice in small groups based on films. Because series progresses through the year, beginners may enroll only Autumn Quarter. May be taken concurrently with other Germanics courses. Cannot be taken for credit if GERMAN 250 previously taken. Offered: AWSp.

GERMAN 195 Popular Film and the Holocaust (5) VLPA Introduces films about the Holocaust with particular emphasis on popular films. Develops the requisite tools for analyzing films, a historical perspective of the Holocaust, and the problems involved in trying to represent a historical event whose tragic dimensions exceed the limits of the imagination. Offered: jointly with JSIS C 175.

GERMAN 199 Supervised Study (1-10, max. 10) Study in German language and culture.

GERMAN 200 Intensive Second-Year German (15) VLPA Accelerated second-year German. Systematic review of German grammar. Intensive practice in conversation, reading and writing. Recommended: GERMAN 103.

GERMAN 201 Second-Year German (5) VLPA Systematic review of German grammar. Intensive practice in conversation, reading, and writing. First in a sequence of three. Recommended: GERMAN 103. Offered: AWSpS.

GERMAN 202 Second-Year German (5) VLPA Systematic review of German grammar. Intensive practice in conversation, reading, and writing. Second in a sequence of three. Recommended: GERMAN 201. Offered: AWSp.

GERMAN 203 Second-Year German (5) VLPA Systematic review of German grammar. Intensive practice in conversation, reading, and writing. Third in a sequence of three. Recommended: GERMAN 202. Offered: AWSp.

GERMAN 210 Classics of German Literature and Thought (5) VLPA Introduction to major figures of German culture from the Reformation to the present, their contribution to the intellectual life of the Western world. Luther, Kant, Goethe, Schopenhauer, Marx, Freud, Nietzsche, Kafka, Brecht, and Mann. In English.

GERMAN 220 Origins of the Germanic Languages (5) VLPA

Introduction to basic grammatical concepts, terminology, and linguistics with emphasis on German-English relationship. Overview of phonology, morphology, syntax, and history of Germanic languages and people, both ancient and modern. Languages covered include Old, Middle, and New High German; English, Frisian, Dutch, Old Saxon, and Gothic. Taught in English. Offered: jointly with LING 220.

GERMAN 221 The German Express: Second Year (10) VLPA Combines in one quarter the contents of GERMAN 201 and GERMAN 202, with special emphasis on reading and speaking skills. Limited to students who have demonstrated exceptional skills in first-year German. Recommended: GERMAN 103. Offered: A.

GERMAN 243 Fairy Tale and Fantasy (5) VLPA Studies of the Grimm brothers' fairy tales, their reception in different cultural frameworks, and their influence on fantasy literature from the nineteenth century to the present, including discussions of their sociological, psychological, and psychoanalytical implications and gender issues. In English.

GERMAN 250 Advanced Conversational German Through Films (2, max. 6) VLPA Conversational practice in small groups based on films. May be taken concurrently with other Germanics courses. Recommended: GERMAN 103; GERMAN 150. Offered: WSp.

GERMAN 275 Crime Scenes: Investigating the Cinema and Its Cultures (5) VLPA Teaches how to analyze film by closely studying crime scenes from historical and contemporary German and Scandinavian cinema. Directors studied include Fritz Lang, Carl Th. Dreyer, Billy Wilder, and Lars von Trier. Offered: jointly with SCAND 275.

GERMAN 293 Introduction to Contemporary German Culture (5) VLPA/I&S Introduction to culture of today's German-speaking world through readings from various media and discussion of diverse manifestations of both high and popular culture, its underlying beliefs and values, and its institutions and historical background. Readings and discussions in English.

GERMAN 295 The Contributions of German Jews to German Culture (5) VLPA/I&S, DIV Contribution, assimilation, and alienation of German-speaking Jews - such as Karl Marx, Sigmund Freud, and Franz Kafka - emphasizing the multi-cultural nature of that which is understood as "German culture." Offered: jointly with JSIS C 295.

GERMAN 298 Topics in Literature and Culture (5, max. 10) VLPA Introduces literary works and cultural artifacts from a variety of different traditions, cultures, and periods. Helps students to acquire basic tools for analyzing literature and culture.

GERMAN 299 Supervised Study (1-5, max. 10)

GERMAN 300 Studies in Germanics (5, max. 15) VLPA Topics or figures of German literature or language.

GERMAN 301 Conversation and Writing Skills (3-5) VLPA Language skill development (speaking, writing) using materials selected to broaden understanding of German-speaking countries. Recommended: GERMAN 203. Offered: AW.

GERMAN 302 Conversation and Writing Skills (3-5) VLPA Language skill development (speaking, writing) using materials selected to broaden understanding of German-speaking countries. Recommended: GERMAN 301. Offered: WSp.

GERMAN 303 Conversation and Writing Skills (3-5) VLPA Language skill development (speaking, writing) using materials selected to broaden understanding of German-speaking countries. Recommended: GERMAN 302. Offered: Sp.

GERMAN 304 Contemporary German Play (5, max. 15) VLPA Reading, analysis, and performance of one play by a contemporary German author. Taught in German. Performance scheduled for last week of quarter. Prerequisite: GERMAN 203. Offered: Sp.

GERMAN 307 THIRD-YEAR COMPOSITION (3-5) VLPA

GERMAN 311 Introduction to German Literary Studies (5) VLPA Introduction to major critical concepts and basic methodological issues of literary studies. Diverse reading strategies plus special emphasis on analytical writing about literature. Readings from eighteenth- to twentieth-century literature. Recommended: GERMAN 203.

GERMAN 312 Historical Approaches to German Literature (5) VLPA German literature from the Middle Ages to the present: Medieval Courtly period, Baroque, Enlightenment, Sturm und Drang, Classicism, Romanticism, Realism, Neoromanticism, Expressionism. Recommended: GERMAN 311.

GERMAN 313 Major Figures of German Literature (5) VLPA Focus on major figure such as Goethe, Schiller, Kleist, Fontane, Thomas Mann, Kafka. Emphasis on his/her cultural and sociopolitical contexts. Literary and nonliterary texts, including film, art, political, historical, and philosophical texts. Recommended: GERMAN 203; either GERMAN 311 or GERMAN 312.

GERMAN 322 Introduction to German Cultural Studies (5) VLPA Questions addressed include: What is "German culture," how has it been defined and contested, and how and why do we study it? Interdisciplinary methods and readings. Recommended: GERMAN 203.

GERMAN 323 Institutions and Their Ideas (5) VLPA/I&S Analysis of central institutions of contemporary Germany in their historical development. Recommended: GERMAN 203; either GERMAN 311 or GERMAN 312; GERMAN 322.

GERMAN 330 Conversational German (3-5) VLPA For participants in special summer programs only.

GERMAN 340 Friedrich Nietzsche in English (5) VLPA/I&S Analysis of Friedrich Nietzsche's chief works and the discussion of his position within modern German literature and thought.

GERMAN 341 Franz Kafka in English (5) VLPA Short stories and novels of Franz Kafka; emphasis on philosophical relevance and esthetic significance.

GERMAN 342 Thomas Mann in English (5) VLPA

GERMAN 345 Bertolt Brecht in English (5) VLPA

GERMAN 346 The Contemporary German Novel in English (5) VLPA Major novels of the postwar period (1945 to present) discussed in their historical context.

GERMAN 349 Goethe in English (5) VLPA Selected major works (especially Faust) of Goethe, whose literary, philosophical, and scientific achievements are examined as integral parts of his quest for meaning, wholeness, and universality, and whose impact on Western thinking is traced up to Thomas Mann and C. G. Jung.

GERMAN 350 The German Drama in English (5) VLPA German drama from the eighteenth to the twentieth centuries. German history and culture as reflected in the plays. Discussion of major themes.

GERMAN 351 Vienna 1900 in English (5) VLPA/I&S Interdisciplinary study of Vienna at the turn of the century. Discussion of literary texts with emphasis on other intellectual and cultural trends of this very rich and complex period.

GERMAN 352 Literature and Society in Weimar and National Socialist Germany in English (5) VLPA/I&S Literature, theater, and film, with adjunct consideration of art and architecture, in relation to the German social and cultural situation circa 1918 to circa 1947.

History

315 Smith

History undertakes the study of human affairs in a manner that seeks to understand change and development rather than the state of things at a given moment, taking into account societies in diverse parts of the world from the earliest times for which written records exist to the present.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Minimum 15 of the 20 upper-division credits must be completed in residence at the UW Seattle campus. Up to 5 credits may overlap with other minors.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The study of history enhances critical thinking and writing skills. It is a creative process in which students learn to use arguments and evidence to communicate a sound historical thesis. It is a liberal arts degree that encourages students to become well rounded, educated people. Graduates are prepared for a variety of careers in many professions and businesses. In addition to teaching, research, and museum and archives work, recent graduates have pursued careers as political lobbyists, journalists, and law enforcement officers. Many history majors pursue, and are well prepared for, further education and professional programs such as medicine, law, library science, and museum curatorship.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: The department funds a writing center for students enrolled in history courses. The department also has a small computer lab available for history majors.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Distinction (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: The department encourages students to participate in internships that include historical elements. Students work with a sponsoring organization and a history faculty member. See adviser for details.
- Department Scholarships:
 - The Faye Wilson Scholarship is awarded to students emphasizing U.S. history and the Schwartz Fellowship to students pursuing historical study of a non-western civilization. The Freedman Remak Scholarship is awarded to non-resident history majors based on academic merit.

- History majors may compete for two paper prizes: The Thomas Power Prize for papers written in a history course during the last year, and the York/Mason Award for history papers written on African Americans in the West.
- The Millican Fund and the Willstadter Snow-Smith Award provide funding for travel in the course of historical research.
- In addition, the department allows students to nominate their high school history teacher for the Pressly Prize, which honors excellence in education.
- Scholarship and prize competitions run in February and March of each year. See adviser for details.
- Student Organizations/Associations: Phi Alpha Theta, a history honors society. See adviser for details.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

(206) 543-8291

histgrad@uw.edu

The Department of History offers graduate training leading to the Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy degrees in a large number of fields within the discipline. Students in the programs prepare for careers as college teachers who combine teaching with scholarship and professional writing. A few graduates enter government service, college administration, or publishing. The MA program is normally completed in five or six full-time academic quarters or their equivalent.

Master of Arts

Admission Requirements

1. Completion of a strong undergraduate program in history, ordinarily as a history major
2. Usually a minimum 3.50 (A-) GPA, particularly in history and related subjects, and especially in the final two years of work, and in graduate work if any graduate studies have been completed prior to application
3. Ordinarily a score in the 80th percentile or higher on the verbal portion of the General Aptitude Test of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE)
4. Evidence of genuine intellectual ability and interest beyond the routine performance of academic tasks
5. Reading knowledge of at least one language in addition to English is required for all graduate degrees. It is not a requirement for admission to the graduate program, but qualified applicants with knowledge of at least one foreign language may be favored over those who lack such knowledge. Moreover, an applicant who proposes to work for a degree in Greek, Roman, European, Russian, Medieval, Modern European, Latin American, Middle Eastern, or Asian history is expected to have begun to acquire a working knowledge in the foreign languages essential to research in the field.

Degree Requirements

In addition to Graduate School requirements, 36 credits minimum, as follows:

1. Submission of proposed course of study: Two-field MA form or proposed course of study, as appropriate. This requirement must be met no later than the end of the second quarter of graduate study.
2. Official establishment of the MA committee and submission of the request for establishing a master's Supervisory Committee form. This requirement must be met no later than the end of the third quarter of graduate study.

3. Successful completion of all language requirements. This requirement must be satisfied no later than the quarter immediately preceding the quarter in which the student expects to complete the master's degree.
4. Demonstrate by written examination mastery of a substantial body of historical knowledge. Students are expected to construct their fields of study in consultation with their supervising faculty.
5. Satisfactory completion of a graduate seminar which entails the preparation of a research seminar paper; or the satisfactory completion of an MA thesis. Most seminars are two- or three-quarter classes.
6. Official submission of an application for the degree
7. All Graduate School requirements

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

1. Completion of a strong master's program in history, or a closely related field
2. Usually a minimum 3.50 (A-) GPA, particularly in history and related subjects
3. Ordinarily a score in the 80th percentile or higher on the verbal portion of the General Aptitude Test of the Graduate Record Examination (GRE)
4. Evidence of genuine intellectual ability and interest beyond the routine performance of academic tasks
5. Reading knowledge of at least one language in addition to English is required for all graduate degrees. It is not a requirement for admission to the graduate program, but qualified applicants with knowledge of at least one foreign language may be favored over those who lack such knowledge. Moreover, an applicant who proposes to work for a degree in Greek, Roman, European, Russian, Medieval, Modern European, Latin American, Middle Eastern, or Asian history is expected to have begun to acquire a working knowledge in the foreign languages essential to research in the field.

Degree Requirements

In addition to Graduate School Requirements, 90 credits minimum, as follows:

1. Submission of the proposed course of study form. This requirement should be met no later than the end of the second quarter after entrance to the PhD program. For students promoting into the PhD program from the MA program, this form must be completed no later than the end of the first quarter of doctoral study.
2. Official establishment of the doctoral Supervisory Committee and submission of the request for establishing a doctoral Supervisory Committee form. This requirement must be met no later than the end of the third quarter after entrance to the PhD program. For students promoting into the PhD program from the MA program, this form must be completed no later than the end of the first quarter of doctoral study.
3. Language requirements must be satisfied no later than the quarter immediately preceding the quarter in which the student expects to take the PhD general examination.
4. Satisfactory performance in the PhD general examination, which consists of four written examinations in four fields and an oral examination. Fields must be distributed among at least two divisions, such that at least one of these four fields lies clearly outside the student's primary division of concentration. Students are expected to construct their fields of study in consultation with their supervising faculty. PhD students concentrating in the U.S. history division are required to offer at least one of the following three chronological fields: Early America, Nineteenth Century, Twentieth Century. A grade of “honors” or “high pass” in a departmental field examination for the MA degree may exempt the student from the PhD examination in that field at the discretion of the faculty member administering the PhD examination.

5. Satisfactory completion of a seminar paper while enrolled as a PhD student. This paper must be completed before the student takes the PhD general examination. Students who have not completed a graduate seminar in this department for their MA are ordinarily expected to enroll in such a seminar as part of their coursework for the PhD, and to write their research paper in the context of this seminar.
6. Official establishment of the doctoral reading committee
7. Preparation of an acceptable doctoral dissertation
8. Satisfactory performance in a final oral examination in defense of the dissertation

Financial Aid

Entering graduate students are considered for any departmental fellowships and other funding for which they are eligible. Students with, or who expect to receive, the MA degree by the time they begin their studies may apply for teaching assistantships and may, with continued satisfactory scholarly progress, hold a TA appointment for a total of nine quarters, provided adequate funds are available.

Human Rights

The issue of human rights has attracted increased attention around the world. The tri-campus Human Rights minor at the University of Washington provides students the opportunity to learn about the political, philosophical, economic, cultural, and legal aspects of this complex subject.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

polsadv@uw.edu

111 Thomson, Box 353650

(206) 543-6001

jsisadv@uw.edu

The human rights minor is offered at all three University campuses, allowing students to take advantage of the expertise available on the campuses where they are not regularly in residence, although the minor can be completed on any one campus.

Minor

Minor Requirements: 25 credits, to include the following:

1. 10 credits from an approved list of courses* concerned with human rights as a core concept
2. 5 credits from an approved list of courses* concerned with human rights in a broad context
3. 10 additional credits drawn from the above approved lists of courses* concerned with human rights
4. At least 3 credits of the required 25 credits must be in a human-rights-related internship, practicum, international study abroad, or demonstrated equivalent. Courses that satisfy this requirement include BIS 403, BIS 480; LSJ 310, LSJ 499, POL S 496, JSIS 387, and similar practicum and study-abroad courses in other programs (on the Seattle campus); and TIAS 496. See adviser for faculty-approved alternatives. Courses used to satisfy this requirement must be approved/supervised by the faculty offering courses appropriate to the minor. Credits for the minor may be completed across the three UW campuses, or on any single campus. If the minor is completed by a Seattle-major student, no more than 10 credits applied to the minor may be in the student's major department.

* The list of core courses and context courses is maintained by the Human Rights Advisory Committee. For the current list of such courses, see depts.washington.edu/hrights/hrminor.html. Note: From time to time, the advisory committee adds, subtracts, or reclassifies courses on the approved list. Students who have planned their studies on the basis of an earlier list may fulfill the requirements of the minor as specified in that earlier list.

Individualized Studies

171 Mary Gates Hall

Individualized Studies is an interdisciplinary major option for students who wish to create a program of study by combining selected courses from two or more departments. Students are required to identify a central organizing theme for their major and design it under the guidance and supervision of at least two faculty members and an Individualized Studies adviser.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

171 Mary Gates Hall, Box 352805

(206) 543-2550

istudy@uw.edu

The Individualized Studies program offers the following programs of study:

- Bachelor of Arts with a major in Individualized Studies
- Bachelor of Science with a major in Individualized Studies

Degree depends on the theme and curriculum of the approved major.

Ethnomusicology and technical writing are faculty-designed major options also available through Individualized Studies. Ethnomusicology (BA) focuses on the study of world cultures through their musical expression. Technical writing (BA or BS) offers the study of writing and other modes of communication in a variety of technical environments.

Bachelor of Arts, Bachelor of Science

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: Varies, depending on student's area of concentration.

Program Admission Requirements

Before developing an Individualized Studies major, students should read "Designing an Individualized Studies Major," or obtain a copy from the UAA Advising, 141 Mary Gates Hall. Particular attention should be paid to the sections defining restrictions on themes and restricted access to courses. Individualized Studies majors are not possible in a number of subjects because the UW does not offer sufficient coursework. Upper-division courses in departments with competitive admission are generally not available to students not in that major and ordinarily cannot be included in Individualized Studies proposals.

After reading the guidelines, the student must go through the following steps to design a major:

1. Identify the unifying interdisciplinary theme of the program.
2. Make a list of courses taken or planned to be taken toward this goal. This list should comprise between 50 and 70 quarter credits, all of which are related to the area of concentration. These courses must come from at least two departments, but may come from any number of areas, so long as interrelationships are discernible. Most courses must be at the 300- or 400-level. At least half the 50-70 credits selected for the major must come from courses taught within the College of Arts and Sciences.
3. Draft a statement that describes the proposed major and discusses the interrelationships among the courses chosen. Propose a brief, descriptive title for the major.
4. Submit the proposal to the Individualized Studies Committee for initial approval. Prospective majors should submit proposals to the Individualized Studies Committee for review at least three quarters prior to graduation.
5. Identify at least two faculty sponsors for the major. The faculty sponsors attest to the intellectual soundness of the proposal and agree to provide whatever guidance is jointly decided upon. They may also suggest changes in the previously approved written proposal or list of courses.
6. Obtain final approval from an Individualized Studies adviser.
7. Transfer students must be enrolled at the UW before applying to the major.

8. Admission requirements for the three faculty-designed major options vary. See an adviser for more details.

Major Requirements

55 to 70 credits, including completion of the approved curriculum and a 5-credit required senior study (minimum grade of 2.7 required for senior study). Awarding of the Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science degree depends on the content of each student's program.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: Varies, depending on student's area of concentration.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: None
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: None
- Department Scholarships: None offered
- Student Organizations/Associations: None

Individualized Studies

INDIV 493 Senior Study (5) For Individualized Studies majors only. Faculty supervisor required. Offered: AWSpS.

Integrated Social Sciences

The Integrated Social Sciences program provides a broad interdisciplinary education in the social sciences for undergraduates. It emphasizes development of critical and integrative thinking for students interested in human society and social problems. ISS is an online degree-completion program aimed at students who have already completed a substantial amount of college coursework.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

059 Communication, Box 353765

(206) 2219183

Integrated Social Sciences offers the following program of study:

- Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in integrated social sciences

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: General coursework developing critical thinking, analytical, and writing skills. Coursework which satisfies general education requirements for the College of Arts and Sciences, including courses in English composition, foreign language, and quantitative and symbolic reasoning.

Department Admission Requirements

1. Minimum 75 transferable quarter credits
2. Minimum 2.00 GPA in all transferable college coursework
3. Minimum 2.50 GPA in all courses applied to ISS major requirements
4. Completion in high school or community college of College Academic Distribution Requirement (CADR).
5. Demonstrated progress toward University and College of Arts and Sciences general education requirements

ISS accepts only program-specific students. Admission is competitive. Completion of minimum admission requirements does not guarantee admission to the University. In addition, applicants are evaluated on the following criteria: (1) overall academic record; (2) a personal statement; (3) likelihood of success in an online-format program, based on a separate application question.

Major Requirements

60 credits as follows:

1. ISS Core (20 credits): ISS 301; ISS 350; ISS 355 (8 credits: 2 credits, repeated four times); ISS 401
2. Thematic Areas Courses (40 credits): To include at least one 5-credit course from each of five of the following seven areas of inquiry: (1) information and technological society; (2) population dynamics and movements; (3) conflict and cooperation; (4) diversity and global justice; (5) societal inequalities and power relations; (6) social contexts of health and risk; (7) societies and environments. Three or more disciplinary prefixes must be included. The list of approved courses is available from the ISS advising office or the program website.
3. 30 of the 40 thematic areas course credits must be upper division.
4. Minimum 45 credits applied to major requirements must be taken in the UW ISS program.
5. Minimum 2.00 cumulative GPA in courses applied to major requirements
6. Completion of all Arts and Sciences general education requirements

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crsct/

ISS 301 Social Science Theory in Context (5) I&S M. SPARKE Explores how social sciences study what people do, how people understand their world, and how that understanding shapes social practice. Provides ways to conceptualize how social relations - economic, political, cultural, sexual, racial, spatial, and historical relations - interact in real work contexts. Offered: A.

ISS 350 Introduction to Portfolios in Social Science (2)

I&S M. SPARKE Helps students begin the process of developing a Learning E-portfolio in which they articulate connections between substantive content learned in their social science courses, as well as begin a process of reflection of their learning in different contexts (private and public, individual, and social). Offered: A.

International Studies

401 Thomson

The Henry M. Jackson School of International Studies organizes and supports interdisciplinary teaching and research in international affairs. The school consists of a group of interdisciplinary area-studies programs on major world regions, as well as topical and comparative programs of study that transcend national and regional boundaries.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

111 Thomson, Box 353650

(206) 543-6001

jsisadv@uw.edu

The School of International Studies offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in Asian studies; Canadian studies; comparative religion; European studies; international studies; Jewish studies; or Latin American and Caribbean studies
- Minors in Africa and the African diaspora; Canadian studies; China studies; comparative Islamic studies; comparative religion; European studies; international studies; Japan studies, Jewish studies, Korea studies; Latin America and Caribbean studies; Middle East studies; Russian, Eastern European, and Central Asian studies; South Asian studies, and Southeast Asian studies.
- A minor in arctic studies (offered jointly between the Jackson School of International Studies and the School of Oceanography)

African Studies

Daniel J. Hoffman, Chair

Adviser

326 Thomson, Box 353650

(206) 616-0998

africa1@uw.edu

African studies involves a multi-campus interdisciplinary group of faculty, staff, and students who share an interest in interdisciplinary questions relating to Africa and the African diaspora. Africa-focused courses are taught in a variety of scholarly disciplines and programs, including art, music, anthropology, forestry and fisheries, geography, history, international health, American ethnic studies, and the interdisciplinary arts and sciences programs at UW Bothell and UW Tacoma. The African studies program coordinates and disseminates information on Africa-related activities; facilitates research, internships, and study abroad opportunities; and administers the Africa and African diaspora minor.

Minor

Minor Requirements: 30 credits from at least three departments whose approved courses are shown on the African studies website, jsis.washington.edu/africa/, including:

1. Minimum 15 credits at the 300 level or above
2. Minimum 5 credits from the approved list of courses on the African diaspora
3. Minimum 10 credits from the approved list of courses on Africa
4. Maximum 10 credits of language courses, which may include 5 credits at the third-year level or above from the Africa-relevant languages of Arabic, French, or Portuguese and 10 credits of Swahili at the second-year level or above
5. Other courses not on the website may be approved by the program office.
6. Minimum 15 credits completed at the UW
7. Minimum 2.0 grade in each course applied toward the minor

Asian Studies

The undergraduate program in Asian studies is directed by a committee consisting of the chairs of China studies, Korea studies, Japan studies, South Asian studies, and Southeast Asian studies (see below under Minors), and a designated faculty coordinator.

The Asian studies major combines language training with interdisciplinary study of an Asian region or single country. The program emphasizes social science approaches to the study of history, culture, and society, with provision for study of literature and the arts as well. Students may focus on China, Japan, Korea, South Asia (Bangladesh, India, Nepal, Pakistan, Sri Lanka, Tibet), Southeast Asia (Brunei, Burma [Myanmar], Cambodia, East Timor, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand, Vietnam), or Asia as a whole. Five interdisciplinary minors on individual countries or regions also are offered.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: Either JSIS 203 or JSIS A 207, and two introductory Asian civilization courses (see major requirements, below). Progress toward two years of a relevant Asian language. Courses that develop writing skills, especially in the social sciences.

Department Admission Requirements

Students in good academic standing may declare this major at any time.

Major Requirements

80 credits as follows:

1. 30 credits or second-year equivalent language training in a language appropriate to student's concentration, plus 50 credits as follows:
2. Either JSIS 203 or JSIS A 207 (5 credits)
3. JSIS 201 (5 credits)
4. An Asian civilization course in student's concentration chosen from JSIS A 212/HSTAS 212, JSIS A 241/HSTAS 241, JSIS A 242, HSTAS 201, HSTAS 202, HSTAS 211, JSIS A 206, JSIS A 221/HSTAS 221 (5 credits)
5. 35 credits of approved coursework from one regional or country concentration, or from the general Asia concentration
6. Approved research paper required in one of the upper-division concentration courses
7. Minimum grade of 2.0 in all courses counted toward the major (except first- and second-year language courses, where grades must average 2.00)
8. 30 of the 35 credits required for the concentration requirement must be taken in residence at the UW.

MinorChina Studies

Madeleine Yue Dong, Chair

Minor Requirements: 30 credits, to include the following:

1. HSTAS 211 and either JSIS C 202 or one additional introductory Asian civilization course (10 credits)*
2. 10 credits of electives taken at the UW, chosen from the China history/social science electives list*
3. 5 credits of electives taken at the UW, chosen from the China history/social science list or the China arts/literature electives list*
4. 5 additional credits in Chinese language beyond second-year level, or in upper-division transfer courses on China, or in additional electives chosen from the China history/social science electives list*
5. Minimum grade of 2.0 required in each course applied toward the minor

* The list of Asian civilization courses and China electives is maintained by the China studies program. For the current list of such courses, see jsis.washington.edu/advise/undergraduate/minors.shtml.

Japan Studies*Minor Requirements:* 30 credits, to include the following:

1. JSIS A 241/HSTAS 241 or JSIS A 242 and one course on a different Asian civilization (10 credits)*
2. 10 credits of electives taken at the UW, chosen from the Japan history/social science electives list*
3. 5 credits of electives taken at the UW, chosen from either the Japan history/social science list or from the Japan arts/literature elective list*
4. 5 credits in Japanese language beyond second-year level, or in upper-division transfer courses on Japan, or in additional electives chosen from the Japan history/social science elective list*
5. Minimum grade of 2.0 required in each course applied toward the minor.

* The list of Asian civilization courses and Japan electives is maintained by the Japan studies program. For the current list of such courses, see jsis.washington.edu/advise/undergraduate/minors.shtml.

Korea Studies

Clark W. Sorensen, Chair

Minor Requirements: 30 credits, to include the following:

1. JSIS A 212/HSTAS 212 and one additional introductory Asian civilization course (10 credits)*
2. 20 credits of electives, 15 of which must be taken at the UW, to include: (a) 10 credits chosen from the list of core courses*; (b) 5 credits chosen from the list of core courses or the list of electives*; (c) 5 additional credits in Korean language beyond second-year level, or in upper-division transfer courses on Korea, or from the lists of core courses and electives*
3. Minimum grade of 2.0 required in each course applied toward the minor.

* The lists of Asian civilization core and elective classes are maintained by the Korea studies program. For the current list of such courses, see jsis.washington.edu/advise/undergraduate/minors.shtml.

South Asian Studies

Priti Ramamurthy, Chair

Minor Requirements: 30 credits, to include the following:

1. HSTAS 202 or JSIS A 200 (5 credits)

2. One additional introductory Asian civilization course (5 credits)*
3. 15 credits of electives taken at the UW, chosen from the approved list*
4. 5 additional credits in a South Asian language beyond second-year level, or in upper-division transfer courses on South Asia, or in additional electives chosen from the approved list*
5. Minimum grade of 2.0 required in each course applied toward the minor.

* The list of Asian civilization courses and South Asia electives is maintained by the South Asian studies program. For the current list of such courses, see jsis.washington.edu/advise/undergraduate/minors.shtml.

Southeast Asian Studies

Laurie J. Sears, Chair

Minor Requirements: 30 credits, to include the following:

1. JSIS A 221/HSTAS 221 (5 credits)
2. One introductory Asian civilization course (5 credits)*
3. 15 credits of electives taken at the UW, chosen from the approved list*
4. 5 additional credits in a Southeast Asian language beyond second-year level, or in upper division transfer courses on Southeast Asia, or from the approved list of electives*
5. Minimum grade of 2.0 required in each course applied toward the minor.

* The list of Asian civilization courses and Southeast Asia electives is maintained by the Southeast Asia program. For the current list of such courses, see jsis.washington.edu/advise/undergraduate/minors.shtml.

Canadian Studies

Daniel Hart, Chair

Canadian studies provides a broad understanding of Canadian society, culture and communications, historical development, and contemporary problems.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: ECON 200, ECON 201. Progress toward two years of French language. Canadian history courses. Courses that develop writing skills.

Department Admission Requirements

Students in good academic standing may declare this major at any time.

Major Requirements

30 credits or second-year-equivalent French language training, plus 53 credits as follows:

1. JSIS 200, JSIS 201, JSIS 202; ECON 200, ECON 201; JSIS A 356, JSIS A 498
2. Minimum 18 credits from approved Canadian Studies elective course list

Minors

Canadian Studies Minor Requirements: 25 credits as follows:

1. JSIS A 356 and JSIS A 498 (10 credits)
2. 15 credits of electives chosen from an approved list*
3. Minimum grade of 2.0 in each course applied to the minor
4. Minimum 15 credits toward the minor completed at the UW

2. 15 additional credits in comparative religion courses or joint-listed equivalents
3. 5 additional credits chosen from comparative religion courses or from an approved list of electives*

* The list of approved comparative religion courses is maintained by the Comparative Religion program. For the current list of such courses, see jsis.washington.edu/advise/undergraduate/minors.shtml.

European Studies

Christine Ingebritsen, Chair

The curriculum in European studies prepares students to pursue careers requiring an understanding of all the forces, both material and cultural, contemporary and historical, that are shaping Europe today (North, South, East, and West), taking into account transitions involved in the post-Soviet era and the movement toward greater political, economic, and cultural integration among the various nations involved. Students also may concentrate, within the major, on Hellenic studies, European Union studies, or Russian, East European, and Central Asian studies.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: Progress toward two years of a modern European language. A survey course on modern Europe.

Department Admission Requirements

Students in good academic standing may declare this major at any time.

Major Requirements

60 credits as follows:

- 10 credits of a modern European language at the third-year level or beyond
- 20 credits of core courses, including JSIS 201, JSIS A 301, JSIS A 302, and an approved survey course on modern Europe
- One quarter (10 credits minimum, at least 9-10 weeks) of study in Europe
- 15 credits from approved list of electives, including at least one course designated as a pre-modern elective and one course designated as a global elective.
- Either JSIS A 494, Senior Seminar or JSIS A 495, Senior Thesis. The senior-thesis option (JSIS A 495) constitutes the major's research-intensive track. Criteria and admission procedures are described at jsis.washington.edu/advise/catalog/eur_ba.shtml.
- See adviser for specific course options.

Minors

European Studies

Minor Requirements: 25 credits, to include:

- Foreign language through the sixth quarter
- 15 credits of core courses including JSIS 201 (5), JSIS A 301 (5) and a survey course on modern Europe (5)
- 10 credits from approved list of electives

Russian, Eastern European, and Central Asian Studies

Minor Requirements: 30 credits from course in at least three disciplines, to include:

- JSIS A 301 (5 credits)
- An approved modern REECAS survey course chosen from the approved list* (5 credits)
- 15 credits of electives at the 300 level or above, chosen from the approved list*
- Study of a regional language is encouraged, but not required. Maximum 10 credits of BCS, Czech, Estonian, Kazakh, Latvian, Lithuanian, Polish, Russian, Uighur, or Uzbek language beyond the first-year level may be applied toward the 30-credit total.
- Minimum 15 credits completed in residence at the UW

- Minimum 2.00 cumulative GPA in courses applied to the minor
- Minimum 18 credits outside student's major
- Participation in service learning and Study Abroad programs in completing minor requirements is encouraged.

* For list of approved REECAS courses, see . Since the program from time to time adds, subtracts, or reclassifies approved courses, students who plan their studies on the basis of an earlier list may fulfill requirements as specified on that list.

International Studies

Sara R. Curran, Chair

The general program in international studies gives students a comprehensive and interdisciplinary perspective on world problems and an ability to analyze the subtle interactions of politics, economics, and culture within the global system.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: 30 credits of a single foreign language. ECON 200, and either ECON 201 or JSIS 123/GEOG 123

Department Admission Requirements

- Admission is competitive, based on overall GPA, grades in the social sciences, a written statement of goals, language background, and any international experience. Before applying, students must complete ECON 200, ECON 201, or JSIS 123/GEOG 123 and either JSIS 200 or JSIS 201. Grades in these courses are given special consideration.
- Application deadline is the third Friday of autumn, winter, and spring quarter; students are notified by the sixth Friday of the quarter in which they apply. Transfer students must be enrolled at the UW before applying to the major.

Major Requirements

Foreign-language competency through the second-year college level, plus 70 credits as follows:

- ECON 200 and either ECON 201 or JSIS 123/GEOG 123; JSIS 200, JSIS 201, JSIS 202, JSIS B 330, JSIS 495, JSIS 498
- Three or four upper-division courses in an approved option
- Three upper-division interdisciplinary courses in international studies from an approved core list
- A research paper of approximately 25 pages to be completed in one of the courses in the student's approved option or in one of the approved interdisciplinary courses
- Majors are required to maintain a GPA of at least 2.50, both overall and in the program, and to earn a minimum 2.0 grade in all required Jackson School prefix courses.

Minor

Minor Requirements: 30 credits as follows:

- 10 credits chosen from JSIS 200, JSIS 201, JSIS 202
- 15 credits in JSIS B-prefix courses, including at least 10 credits at the 300 or 400 level (courses with other JSIS prefixes are not eligible, but JSIS 478 may be counted).
- 5 additional credits chosen from courses in any of these prefixes: JSIS A, JSIS B, JSIS C, JSIS D
- Minimum 2.0 grade required in each course applied toward the minor.

Jewish Studies

Noam Pianko, Chair

Jewish studies takes an interdisciplinary approach to the global study of Jews, exploring the rich diversity of their cultures, their philosophies, their religious practices, their histories, their roles in politics, and other areas of contemporary life.

Areas of concentration include ancient cultures and sacred texts, modern literature and culture, Jewish languages, American Jewish studies, Sephardic studies, European Jewish studies, and Israel and Middle East studies.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: JSIS C 210, JSIS C 250/HIST 250. Courses that develop writing skills. Courses in international studies and world history (ancient, medieval, and modern). Modern European languages, e.g., French, German, Italian, Spanish. Progress toward two years of Hebrew.

Department Admission Requirements

Students in good academic standing may declare this major at any time.

Major Requirements

50 credits as follows:

- Introductory Courses (15 credits):* JSIS C 210, JSIS C 250/HIST 250, JSIS 201
- Jewish Studies Track (20 credits):* Approved courses in either the Judaic Cultural Tradition or the Jewish People in the Modern World
- Hebrew Language and Instruction (15 credits):* A minimum of 15 credits selected from an approved list of courses appropriate to the student's track. Students must be proficient in the Hebrew language through second-year level. Students who place above second-year level in Hebrew may choose courses from one or both Jewish Studies tracks to fulfill all or part of this requirement.

The lists of Jewish studies courses are maintained by the Jewish studies program as part of its website. For the current list of such courses, see jsis.washington.edu/advise/catalog/jewish_b.shtml

Minor

Minor Requirements: 30 credits as follows:

- JSIS C 210 and JSIS C 250/HIST 250 (10 credits)
- 15 credits of Jewish studies electives, chosen from the list of approved humanities/social science electives*
- 5 additional credits chosen from the list of approved humanities/social science electives or from courses in modern or Biblical Hebrew*
- 15 credits of the minor must be taken in residence at the UW.

* The list of Jewish studies electives is maintained by the Jewish studies program. For the current list of such courses, see jsis.washington.edu/advise/undergraduate/minors.shtml.

Latin American and Caribbean Studies

Jose Antonio Lucero, Chair

The Latin American and Caribbean studies major combines language study with work in history, the humanities, and the social sciences. It provides a comprehensive, interdisciplinary understanding of this major world region, emphasizing themes such as economic development, popular movements, cultural analysis, and hemispheric relations. At the same time, it gives students the option to develop their own particular disciplinary and thematic interests.

Bachelor of Arts

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: Substantial progress toward completing the language requirement described below. Courses in any of the following disciplines that deal with Latin America and the Caribbean: history, literature, economics, geography, sociology, political science.

Department Admission Requirements

Students in good academic standing may declare this major at any time.

Major Requirements

52 credits plus language training, as follows:

1. Training in two foreign languages of Latin America and the Caribbean, to include the sixth quarter (or equivalent) of one language chosen from Spanish, Portuguese, or French, and the third quarter (or equivalent) of a second of these languages
2. JSIS 201
3. Latin American History (10 credits): Courses to be selected from an approved list.*
4. Contemporary Latin America (15 credits): Courses drawn from a range of disciplines including anthropology, comparative literature, geography, international studies, and Spanish. See program website for a complete list of courses.
5. Electives (15 credits): Courses on Latin America, the Caribbean, and international studies selected from an approved list*
6. Interdisciplinary Seminar: JSIS A 486, JSIS A 492, or another course chosen from an approved list of research seminars
7. JSIS 493: Senior paper or project

* Lists of Latin American and Caribbean studies courses are maintained by the Latin American and Caribbean studies program as part of its website. For the current list of such courses, see jsis.washington.edu/advise/catalog/latam_ba.shtml.

Minor

Minor Requirements: 30 credits as follows, plus foreign language:

1. One year of Spanish or Portuguese, or equivalent proficiency
2. At least 5 credits in history chosen from an approved list*
3. At least 15 credits chosen from an approved list of courses on contemporary Latin America*
4. At least 10 additional credits chosen from the history or contemporary Latin America lists, or from an approved list of electives*
5. At least 20 of the 30 credits must be completed at the UW (UW foreign study programs included).
6. Minimum 2.0 grade required in each course applied toward the minor.

* The list of Latin American and Caribbean studies courses is maintained by the Latin American and Caribbean studies program. For the current list, see <http://jsis.washington.edu/advise/undergraduate/minors.shtml>. Since the program from time to time adds, subtracts, or reclassifies approved courses, students who have planned their studies on the basis of an earlier list may fulfill the requirements of the minor as specified on that list.

Middle East Studies

Ellis J. Goldberg, Chair

The undergraduate curriculum in Middle East studies provides a grounding in the modern Middle East and a view of how this region fits into the world community politically, historically, and economically. To achieve this understanding, students take courses in the social sciences and the humanities, and are strongly encouraged to study a Middle Eastern language.

Minor

Minor Requirements: 28-30 credits as follows:

1. Two courses chosen from JSIS A 210/NEAR E 210, JSIS A 215/NEAR E 213, ANTH 318, HIST 161, or HIST 163
2. 20 credits of electives chosen from the approved list.*
3. Study of a Middle East language is encouraged, but not required. A maximum 5 credits in Arabic, modern Hebrew, Persian, or Turkish language beyond the first-year level may be applied toward the 20 credits of approved electives. No credits from any first-year language course may be counted.
4. No more than 12 credits counted in the minor may also be counted toward requirements of a major.
5. Minimum 15 credits of 300-/400-level courses
6. Minimum 15 credits completed in residence at the UW Seattle campus
7. Minimum 2.00 cumulative GPA in courses applied to the minor.

* The list of Middle East electives is maintained by the Middle East studies program. For the current list of such courses, see <http://jsis.washington.edu/advise/undergraduate/minors.shtml>.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The majors offered in the School of International Studies emphasize development of critical thinking and provide a challenging framework for research and writing. Graduates attain competency in foreign language and an understanding of the political, economic, and cultural underpinnings of the global system and specific world regions. This background lays a foundation for advanced study in professional and academic disciplines, and for careers in the evolving global community. Graduates work in a wide range of jobs, depending on their interests and skills, including: Foreign Service officers, international trade specialists, political analysts, human rights associates, research assistants, social studies and language teachers, international student advisers, foreign study coordinators, program officers/managers for international non-profits and NGOs, foreign exchange specialists, international sales representatives/managers, import/export brokers, marketing analysts, associate editors/publicists, international news writers/journalists.

Instructional and Research Facilities: More than 1.5 million volumes in the University library system are related to international studies. The library has a large current international and domestic newspaper collection, with an emphasis on Slavic, South, and Southeast Asian papers and a selection of European papers. Specialized facilities include the East Asia Library, with a comprehensive collection of manuscripts, books, and serials on China, Japan, and Korea. The University's library holds an extensive collection of books and serials relating to South Asia. The library participates in the U.S. Library of Congress Public Law 480 program, which supplies current publications from India, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka; and is a member of the South Asian Microfilm Program of the Center for Research Libraries, providing access to a large collection of microfilm newspapers, journals, and documents on South Asia.

Jackson School undergraduates can draw upon an extensive roster of more than 500 UW Study-Abroad programs and exchanges, in 70 countries, to enrich their studies.

- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: The School's Office of Career Services provides resources for students exploring job and internship opportunities. The Jackson School has limited funds available for students who serve as unpaid interns in nonprofit and governmental agencies. The Leslieanne Shedd Memorial Internship Fund honors a Jackson School alumna killed while serving with the CIA. The Dorothy Fosdick Internship Fund is sponsored by the Henry M. Jackson Foundation in memory of the senator's foreign policy adviser. The George E. Taylor Internship Endowment supports students engaged in community-based internships. The Fathi-DiLuck Endowment supports unpaid internships with organizations in the greater Seattle area.
- Department Scholarships: Ivy Hovey Fitch Endowed Scholarship, Neal and Helen Fosseend Endowed Scholarship, David Hughes Endowed Scholarship (tuition); Vincent H. Gowen Scholarship (undergraduate-China); Margaret Mykut Scholarships; Ayako Betty Murakami Scholarship (Japan); I. Mervin and Georgiana Gorasht Scholarship, Arthur A. Jacobovitz Scholarship, Richard M. Willner Memorial Scholarship, and Jewish Studies Advisory Board Scholarship (Jewish Studies); Katherine M. Tyler Endowed Fellowships (Asia); Eugene and Marilyn Domoto Webb Scholarship and Marilyn Domoto Webb Fellowship (Comparative Religion); Margaret Mykut scholarships, Alice Wanamaker scholarships, and Jao scholarships (undergraduate study abroad). See also the funding opportunities described under Internships.
- Student Organizations/Associations: Jackson School Student Association

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Information

111 Thomson, Box 353650

(206) 543-6001

jsisinfo@uw.edu

The Jackson School offers graduate training leading to the Master of Arts in International Studies and Doctor of Philosophy degrees in a large number of fields. In addition to the PhD, nine programs that lead to a Master of Arts in International Studies degree: seven world area-studies programs, a comparative religion program, and a comparative and thematic program in international studies that concentrates on the interaction of international, economic, political, and cultural processes with states and societies around the world. The area-studies programs include China studies; Japan studies; Korea studies; Middle East studies; Russian, East European, and Central Asian studies; South Asian studies; and Southeast Asian studies. The comparative and thematic international studies program can be taken as a concurrent degree program with several professional schools. Specific requirements vary from one program to another, but all stress interdisciplinary study within the context of the historical cultures, contemporary situations, and languages either of the world areas or comparatively.

Master of Arts in International Studies

Admission Requirements

Applicants must meet the requirements of the Graduate School: a 3.00 GPA in the last 90 quarter (60 semester) graded credits and a baccalaureate degree from an accredited university. Submission of the scores of the general Graduate Record Examination is required. Applicants must also meet the requirements of the specific Jackson School program to which they are applying. Most require or strongly recommend previous study of an appropriate foreign language.

Degree Requirements

Students must meet Graduate School requirements for the Master of Arts, as well as individual Jackson School program requirements. Programs are designed to be completed in two years.

See also descriptions of research facilities on Russia, East Europe, and Central Asia as well as South Asia under the appropriate headings below.

China Studies

Madeleine Yue Dong, Chair

The China studies program provides a broad understanding of the Chinese people and their culture, historical development, and contemporary problems. The curriculum emphasizes the attainment of facility in Chinese language, a grounding in history, and a familiarity with the approaches of the social sciences to China studies. The cultural aspects of China are covered through offerings of several departments, with special strengths in art history and literature. The breadth of offerings allows students to select courses to meet career goals in business, government, or other professions, or to prepare for further graduate study in an academic discipline.

Admission Requirements

See above under Master of Arts in International Studies. While not required for admission, some previous study of Chinese language is highly recommended.

Degree Requirements

36 credits, plus language training.

Chinese language training through the third year; two seminars: JSIS A 521-JSIS A 522 plus 26 credits in discipline study related to China from at least two different disciplines; two seminar papers or a thesis; comprehensive oral examination.

Comparative Religion

James K. Wellman, Chair

The comparative religion program leading to the Master of Arts in International Studies offers an interdisciplinary curriculum in the study of religion, with several choices for areas of concentration. The required core seminars focus on methodology and comparative perspective in the study of religion. For the remaining course requirements, primary and secondary curricular concentrations are available in Buddhism, Hinduism, Judaism, Islam, Christianity, Biblical and Near Eastern religion, and religion and culture; further secondary curricular concentrations are available in Greco-Roman religions, religions in America, East Asian indigenous traditions, African traditions, and Native American traditions.

Admission Requirements

See above under Master of Arts in International Studies. The Comparative Religion faculty reserve the right to determine in each case whether an applicant has sufficient language preparation and background in the study of religion for acceptance into the program.

Degree Requirements

Completion of the third year in a language of the primary sources in the chosen concentration, and first-year reading proficiency in a secondary foreign language necessary for reading published research (e.g., German, French); certification of basic competency in the history of world religions; JSIS B 501, JSIS B 502; JSIS B 598, a colloquium course, each quarter; one course focused on historical relations between religious traditions; at least four courses in a major concentration and two in a minor; one or two final research paper(s); and a comprehensive examination including both oral and written segments.

International Studies

Sara R. Curran, Chair

The general program in international studies provides students with broad knowledge and skills in analyzing international affairs. Designed for students entering many different professional fields, the program trains them in international and comparative studies in a multidisciplinary setting. Students are prepared to undertake sophisticated analyses of international affairs and typically hold positions after graduation with the international divisions of federal and state governments, international divisions of banks, trading companies, policy-study institutes, corporations with international operations, and international development and educational organizations. About half of all students are enrolled in a concurrent graduate professional-degree program. This adds approximately one year to the student's course of study.

Admission Requirements

See above under Master of Arts in International Studies. Those applying concurrently to a professional program (Foster School of Business, Public Affairs, Marine Affairs, Environmental and Forest Sciences, Law, or Public Health) must also be accepted by the professional school. For non-concurrent applicants, preference is given to those who have a professional interest, or previous professional experience or education. Prior study of a foreign language and preparation in intermediate-level microeconomics and macroeconomics are highly recommended.

Degree Requirements

Japanese or Chinese language through the third year or any other modern foreign language through the second year; JSIS 500, JSIS 501, and JSIS 511; courses in two of the following three foci: a regional studies focus, a professional focus, or international studies field focus (minimum three classes—9 credits—for each focus); two seminar papers or a thesis; and an oral examination. Students in concurrent graduate-degree programs also must meet Graduate School requirements for the second degree.

Japan Studies

Marie Anchordoguy, Chair

The graduate program in Japan studies gives students in-depth knowledge of many facets of Japan, including its history, political economy, society, and language. Coursework helps prepare students for careers in business, government, journalism, secondary-school teaching, and a wide variety of other professional fields. The program is specifically designed (1) for students with bachelor's degrees in a discipline who need language and interdisciplinary training on Japan to pursue their career goals, and (2) as preparation for doctoral work in an academic discipline involving Japan for students who have had little or no training on Japan or in the language. A concurrent degree program with the Foster School of Business (MAIS/MBA) is offered and other combinations (e.g., with Public Affairs and Law) can be arranged.

Admission Requirements

See above under Master of Arts in International Studies. At least one year of prior training in Japanese language is strongly recommended.

Degree Requirements

46 credits, plus language training.

Japanese language through the third year level; JSIS A 555; 46 additional credits in discipline (non-language training) course work including at least one history course and one social science course. Up to 15 credits from advanced Japanese language classes may be counted toward these 46 credits.

Korea Studies

Clark W. Sorensen, Chair

The graduate program in Korea studies offers courses in Korean language, history, and society. Regular offerings are supplemented by visiting faculty from political science, economics and economic development, folklore, and literature. The program emphasizes the study of Korea in the context of East Asian civilization and the modern world economy, not simply as a single country in isolation from its neighbors. The objective of the program is to provide students with a broad background which is of use for further graduate study, or in a variety of professions such as teaching, business, and government.

Admission Requirements

See above under Master of Arts in International Studies. Previous language training is recommended.

Degree Requirements

36 credits, plus language training.

Korean language through the third year of instruction; HS-TAS 482, JSIS A 566, JSIS A 584, and JSIS A 585; 15 credits in discipline study of East Asia or international studies; two seminar papers or an essay of distinction; comprehensive oral examination.

Middle East Studies

Ellis Goldberg, Chair

The Middle East program is designed for students who wish to study the region within an interdisciplinary framework, focusing especially on the social, political, economic, and legal systems of the Middle East and/or Islamic Central Asia. To provide a thorough grounding in this region, students take courses in the social sciences, humanities, and a Middle Eastern or Central Asian language.

Admission Requirements

See above under Master of Arts in International Studies. Although knowledge of a Middle Eastern or Central Asian language is not a prerequisite for admission, it is advisable for applicants to have had at least the equivalent of one year's study of the language in which they plan to concentrate. Students accepted with no language training may wish to begin their language study in an intensive summer program.

Degree Requirements

Three 3-credit or two 5-credit Middle Eastern language courses beyond the second-year (native speakers as well as non-native speakers); 20 credits on the modern Middle East from at least two social science or humanities disciplines; one approved Jackson School course; two courses in one social science discipline or in one professional school other than courses taken for preceding requirements; either a thesis and an oral examination, or two seminar papers and a four-hour written examination.

Russian, East European, and Central Asian Studies

Scott Radnitz, Chair

Designed primarily for students with bachelor's degrees in a discipline, the program offers a background for professional pursuits in government and nongovernmental organizations, journalism, business, or teaching, or for advanced graduate study leading to the PhD degree in a discipline or in International Studies. The program includes language training, a concentration of study in a chosen discipline, and a combination of courses in other disciplines that deal with aspects of the area. Students usually focus on one region (Russia, East Europe, the Baltic States, or Central Asia), although the program provides flexibility to take courses on another region.

Admission Requirements

See above under Master of Arts in International Studies. A prerequisite for all applicants is two years of college-level language courses or the equivalent. For those focusing on Russia the language must be Russian; for other regions of the former Soviet Union and East Europe, two years of a language of the region, or another relevant language.

Degree Requirements

48 credits, plus language training.

Including the two years required for entry, four years of a language of the region being studied or two years each of two relevant languages (four years of Russian required for Russian focus); JSIS A 504; JSIS A 514, and JSIS A 515; 30 credits in disciplines other than language, with 15-20 credits in a discipline of concentration; 5 credits in a minor field and 10-15 credits in other REECAS-related courses; a thesis (9 credits of JSIS 700); and an oral interdisciplinary examination.

Research Facilities

The University of Washington is a major center for research on Eastern Europe, Russia, and the independent states of the former Soviet Union, notably the Baltic States and the countries of Central Asia. In addition to extensive holdings in Russian, East European, and Baltic language materials, the library has one of the best Central Asian language collections in the country and the largest collection of Latvian books outside Latvia. The strengths of the program are complemented by strong programs in East Asian and Middle Eastern Studies.

Graduate Certificate in Russian, East European, and Central Asian Studies

The Graduate Certificate in Russian, East European, Central Asia Studies (REECAS) is designed for graduate students to acquire in-depth knowledge of REECA regions and to develop interdisciplinary analytical and academic skills by taking sixteen student-credit hours at the 500 level or above. The certificate is an added qualification for students already pursuing professional, master's, or doctoral degrees.

Eligible students include: matriculated graduate students, matriculated professional students, and international scholars and fellows engaged in research and funded training programs at UW.

Requirements (16 credits): JSIS A 504; two elective REECA focused courses (10 credits); certificate capstone (1 credit).

A maximum of 6 of these credits may apply to a student's degree program (these "double counted" credits must be elective coursework in the degree program).

South Asian Studies

Anand Yang, Chair

The South Asian studies program is designed for students whose career objectives involve teaching and research in a traditional discipline with geographical interests within South Asia (i.e., India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, Tibet, and Nepal); those planning to enter professional-training programs (e.g., education, business administration, journalism, law, or public affairs); or students planning a career in government service (e.g., the Foreign Service) who wish to acquire a special understanding of the South Asia area.

Admission Requirements

See above under Master of Arts in International Studies.

Degree Requirements

Completion of the third year of a South Asian language to include at least 7 credits at the 400 level or above; JSIS A 508, JSIS A 509, JSIS A 510; 21 credits in coursework from at least two different departments, focused primarily on South Asia or in courses taught by South Asia faculty on topics relevant to the student's specializations (students may take a maximum of 10 credits not focused on South Asia, nor taught by South Asia faculty, to help fulfill disciplinary or professional objectives); two seminar papers or a thesis; a comprehensive oral examination.

Research Facilities

The University of Washington library holds an extensive collection of books and serials relating to South Asia. The library participates in the U.S. Library of Congress Public Law 480 program, which supplies current publications from India, Pakistan, and Sri Lanka; and is a member of the South Asian Microfilm Program of the Center for Research Libraries, providing access to a large collection of microfilm newspapers, journals, and documents on South Asia.

Graduate Certificate in South Asian Studies

The certificate, an added qualification for students already pursuing professional, master's, or doctoral degrees, helps students acquire in-depth knowledge of South Asia and develop interdisciplinary, analytical, and academic skills by taking four relevant courses. Eligible participants include matriculated graduate students, matriculated professional students, non-matriculated graduate students, and international scholars and fellows engaged in research and funded training programs at UW.

Requirements (16 credits): JSIS A 508; JSIS A 509; one elective South-Asia-focused course (5); JSIS A 513, capstone portfolio (1).

Southeast Asian Studies

Laurie J. Sears, Chair

The Southeast Asian Studies program offers students a framework within which to carry out interdisciplinary study of the peoples and nations of insular and mainland Southeast Asia -- Brunei, Burma, Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand, Timor Loro'sae, and Vietnam. The curriculum combines training in one or more Southeast Asian languages with study of various aspects of modern and classical Southeast Asian civilizations.

Admission Requirements

See above under Master of Arts in International Studies.

Degree Requirements

36 credits, plus language training.

Completion of the third year of a Southeast Asian language; JSIS A 506, JSIS A 580/HSTAS 530, JSIS A 582/HSTAS 532; 21 credits in coursework from at least two different departments, focused primarily on Southeast Asia or in courses taught by Southeast Asia faculty on topics relevant to the student's specializations (students may take a maximum of 5 credits not focused on Southeast Asia, nor taught by Southeast Asia faculty, to help fulfill disciplinary or professional objectives); a thesis or a non-thesis project (e.g., papers, documentary film, or performance project).

Doctor of Philosophy

Saadia M. Pekkanen, Director

The Jackson School PhD program seeks to integrate the renowned area-based capabilities of its existing graduate programs, with leading-edge scholarship and practice in the field of international studies. Its objective is to create scholars combining a deep knowledge of areas and regions in the context of contemporary global themes, policy challenges, and real-world problems.

The Jackson School PhD in International Studies is framed around four foundational fields that provide cohesion across our existing area-based graduate programs and courses: (1) "Religions, Cultures, and Civilizations (RCC)," which exposes students to the diversity of cultural and religious life anchored in concrete studies of world areas, histories, cultural and political movements, as well as religious institutions and practices; (2) "States, Markets, and Societies (SMS)," which exposes students to theoretical and empirical debates about the engagement of states with their societies and with transnational actors in their historical, political, and social settings; (3) "Peace, Violence, and Security (PVS)," which exposes students to theoretical and foreign policy debates about global security challenges, conflicts, and violence, as well as issues of their prevention; and (4) "Law, Rights, and Governance (LRG)," which exposes students to theoretical and policy debates about the causes and consequences of legal evolution, rule of law, and a broad range of governance concerns in world affairs.

The Jackson School PhD Program offers a two-track option for the dissertation. One track involves writing three thematically-linked article-length research papers; the other track requires writing one book-length monograph. Students choose the appropriate track in consultation with their advisers. Doctoral candidates are required (i) to situate their dissertations under an overarching theme/topic in one of the four foundational fields of the PhD Program, and (ii) to also ground them in one of the existing area-based MAIS degrees in the Jackson School.

Admission Requirements

1. Master's Degree
2. Statement of Purpose: detailing research question/interests in at least one of the four foundational fields of the PhD program and at least one of the area-based MAIS programs; and also identifying relevant JSIS faculty member(s) for research supervision
3. Writing Sample: published or unpublished sample/excerpt (not to exceed 40 pages) demonstrating ability to write critically and analytically
4. Curriculum Vitae
5. Three Letters of Recommendation
6. All Undergraduate and Graduate Transcripts
7. Language: in most fields of study prior language study is an asset, and stronger applicants normally have knowledge of relevant language sufficient for research
8. All Test Scores: GRE General Test Scores and TOEFL (for international students) sent directly by the Educational Testing Service

Degree Requirements

Along with Graduate School requirements, 100 credits minimum as follows:

1. Approval of 28 transfer credits corresponding to previous graduate level work; completion of 45 JSIS PhD program credits including introduction to international and area studies course, research tutorial, two field seminars, two specialization courses, two methods courses; and completion of 27 dissertation credits
2. Submission of proposed course of study form, Quarterly Progress Review (QPR) meetings with the director of the PhD program, and Annual Progress Review (APR) reports to the PhD program committee
3. Satisfactory performance in the research tutorial, including formal capstone presentation
4. Submission of request for establishing doctoral Supervisory Committee
5. Satisfactory performance in the PhD general examination, consisting of three written examinations (two in PhD program fields, one in area-based field), and an oral examination
6. Establishment of official doctoral reading committee
7. Satisfactory performance in dissertation prospectus defense to doctoral reading committee
8. Preparation and writing of doctoral dissertation (either three thematically-linked article-length research papers or one multi-chapter book-length monograph) acceptable to doctoral reading committee
9. Satisfactory performance in a final examination, consisting of oral defense of the written dissertation

Research Facilities

Along with entry to the UW library system with one of the most extensive collection of materials related to international and area studies in the world, students have access to the wide range of research resources, facilities, and networks of formal programs in the Jackson School, including those on Africa, Canada, China, Comparative Religion, Europe, Japan, Jewish Studies, Korea, Latin America and the Caribbean, Middle East, Russia, East European and Central Asia, South Asia, and Southeast Asia. Students also have access to programs and resources of Title-VI National Resource Centers (NRCs) in the Jackson School, including the Canadian Studies Center, Center for Global Studies, Center for West European Studies, East Asia Center, The Ellison Center for Russian, East European and Central Asian Studies, Middle East Center, South Asia Center, and Southeast Asia Center. Students can also avail themselves of the resources of other centers at the Jackson School, including the Center for Human Rights, Center for Korea Studies, East Asia Resources Center, European Union Center of Excellence, and the Latin American and Caribbean Studies Center. Students can also draw on the Jackson School's affiliation with the Center for Statistics and the Social Sciences (CSSS) for training and research purposes.

Research and training facilities for specific areas include the following: For East Asia, students have access to the East Asia Library, with a comprehensive collection of manuscripts, books, and serials on China, Japan, and Korea. In addition, the University is affiliated with the Inter-University Program for Chinese Language Studies in Beijing, language programs in Japan and the People's Republic of China sponsored by the Council on International Educational Exchange, the Inter-University Center for Japanese Language Studies in Yokohama, and other programs which provide intensive language training for advanced undergraduate and graduate students. For descriptions of research facilities in other areas, see Russia, East Europe, and Central Asia as well as South Asia under the appropriate headings above.

Financial Aid

Determinations about financial awards are made at the time of admission and during the course of a student's time at JSIS. Funding guarantees for consecutive years is contingent upon satisfactory academic progress. All accepted doctoral candidates are automatically considered for fellowships, teaching assistantships, and research assistantships. Financial support is available on a competitive basis to U.S. citizens and permanent residents in the form of Title VI Foreign Language and Area Studies Fellowships. Additional funding comes from the master's-level programs as well as other sources in the Jackson School.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

International Studies Core And Gateway Courses

JSIS 123 Introduction to Globalization (5) I&S, DIV M. SPARKE Provides an introduction to the debates over globalization. Focuses on the growth and intensification of global ties. Addresses the resulting inequalities and tensions, as well as the new opportunities for cultural and political exchange. Topics include the impacts on government, finance, labor, culture, the environment, health, and activism. Offered: jointly with GEOG 123.

Minor

The Labor Studies minor brings together a series of courses on labor in core social-science departments. It provides students an interdisciplinary program of study focusing on the importance of labor to the economic, social, political, and cultural evolution of modern societies.

Minor Requirements: 25 credits, to include the following:

1. HIST 249/POL S 249/SOC 266 (5 credits)
2. 20 additional credits from courses related to labor studies, with no more than 10 credits from one department. See department website for current list: depts.washington.edu/pcls/resources-courses.html.
3. Minimum 2.0 grade required for each course applied toward the minor.

Law, Societies, and Justice

42 Gowen

The program in Law, Societies, and Justice provides an interdisciplinary liberal arts education focusing on the roles of law and law-like systems in structuring social life. Courses challenge students to understand the multiple forms of law – criminal, civil, administrative, and constitutional – and the multiple roles law plays in the conduct of social action. Courses stress the importance of examining law in comparative perspective, and of recognizing the increasing significance of rights discourse in shaping how law is understood and practiced. Faculty are trained in several social science disciplines, and hence students learn to analyze law from multiple perspectives.

1. Core Courses: DIS ST 230/LSJ 230/CHID 230; DIS ST 433/LSJ 433/CHID 433; DIS ST 434/LSJ 434/CHID 434 (15 credits)
2. Capstone Course Requirement: DIS ST 435 (5 credits).
3. Disability Studies Electives: See LSJ adviser or disability studies program website for list of allowable classes (10 credits)

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The Law, Societies, and Justice curriculum emphasizes the development of a range of analytic and communicative skills. Courses challenge students to develop the capacities to: read and interpret texts, including theoretical, empirical, and legal documents; comprehend and contrast arguments; develop and defend arguments; contrast theoretical arguments with empirical realities; assess contemporary practices of justice delivery against contemporary conceptions of justice. Students are required to express these skills in both verbal and written forms, through active class discussions and well-constructed writing assignments. Development of these skills assists students in a range of possible future endeavors, including a wide array of careers in law and justice.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: Students have access to the Political Science/Law, Societies, and Justice/School of International Studies writing center for most classes. Research opportunities are available on an individual and group basis with many professors.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: LSJ requires each of its majors to complete an internship for credit. Internship aims: (1) to provide students with insights into the workings of law in practice; (2) to scrutinize and 'test' some of the theories and concepts found in the literature against 'real world' practice; (3) to advance career development and goals, and (4) to provide 100 hours of local community service. Student assignments vary, and include government agencies, non-profit social service organizations, private law firms, rights-focused organizations, and other sites that focus on issues connected to LSJ coursework. It is the student's responsibility to find an internship, although the LSJ adviser can help find a suitable one. Students are required to write two papers according to specific guidelines for internship course credit.

Many LSJ faculty regularly invite majors to assist them in the development and execution of research endeavors.

These provide students an unparalleled opportunity to understand the challenges and mechanics of high-level research.

- Department Scholarships: The Stromberg Study Abroad Fund provides financial assistance to LSJ majors who pursue Study Abroad opportunities in socio-legal studies.
- Student Organizations/Associations: The Law, Societies, and Justice Student Association sponsors regular events of interest to LSJ students, including career panels and service events.

Of Special Note: The required departmental seminar emphasizes close reading of texts, active class discussions, and well-reasoned analytic writing, providing an opportunity to establish a close connection to faculty and other students, and to hone analytic and communicative skills.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crsctat/

LSJ 200 Introduction to Law, Societies, and Justice (5) I&S K. BECKETT, S. HERBERT Explores the central role of law in social processes; investigates the primary types of legal regimes and compares them across different national and international contexts; contrasts legal with non-legal forms of social ordering; investigates the structure and practice of human rights law.

GODOY Overview of human rights issues and their recent evolution in Latin American history; military dictatorships; contemporary challenges in the region's democracies. Human rights concerns in relation to broader sociopolitical context. Recommended: knowledge of modern Latin American history. Offered: jointly with JSIS A 324.

LSJ 327 Women's Rights as Human Rights (5) I&S R. CICHOWSKI Women's rights in comparative perspective, focusing on varying settings that alter the meaning and practical application. Domestic level: areas including abortion politics to trafficking in women. International level: areas including equality claims before European supranational judicial bodies, rape as war crime in international law. Offered: jointly with POL S 327.

LSJ 329 Immigration, Citizenship, and Rights (5) I&S, DIV C. PINEDO-TURNOVSKY A sociological examination of citizenship. Focus on how immigration law and policies shape divers meanings, practices, and statutes, of citizenship in varied context. Topics include migration theories, state control, stage of legal status, relationship to race and gender ideology, as well as labor and civil society, in shaping membership and rights.

LSJ 330 Beyond Civil Rights: Law, Culture, and Change (5) I&S Assessment of the contemporary politics of civil rights as shaped by an identity politics that is both significant and passe. Recommended: either LSJ 363 or one course in either AES or GWSS. Offered: jointly with AES 330.

LSJ 331 The Politics of Race and Ethnicity in the United States (5) I&S, DIV M. FRANCIS Introduction to the history and development of racial hierarchy, focusing on how race and ethnicity shape political institutions (e.g., the Constitution, political parties, voting systems). Examination of political relationships between Whites, African Americans, Latinos, and Asian Americans. Case studies of minority representation and the politics of welfare, crime, immigration, and terrorism. Offered: jointly with POL S 317.

LSJ 332 Disability and Society (5) I&S Concentrates on contemporary issues in disability studies, focusing on the thematic frameworks of rights, identities, values, and science/medicine. Recommended: DIS ST 230/LSJ 230/CHID 230. Offered: jointly with CHID 332/DIS ST 332.

LSJ 360 Introduction to United States Constitutional Law (5) I&S G. LOVELL Growth and development of the United States Constitution as reflected in decisions of the Supreme Court; political, social, and economic effects. Offered: jointly with POL S 360.

LSJ 361 United States Courts and Civil Liberty (5) I&S G. LOVELL Cases and literature bearing on protection of constitutionally guaranteed private rights, with particular reference to the period since 1937. Offered: jointly with POL S 361.

LSJ 363 Law in Society (5) I&S Inquiry into how law matters in social practice. Examines general theories of law, the workings of legal institutions, and the character of legally constituted practices and relationships in diverse terrains of social life. Instructor: McCann. Offered: jointly with POL S 363.

LSJ 366 Comparative Law, Societies, and Courts: Global and Local Perspectives (5) I&S Barzilai Explores global issues of comparative law, societies, politics, and courts. Uses criteria, methodologies, and theories to compare legal settings internationally. Covers: what is 'comparative law'; families' of law; history of comparative law; models of judicial review; legal cultures; and models of regulation. Can not be taken for credit if student has already taken LSJ/POL S 367. Offered: jointly with JSIS B 366.

LSJ 367 Comparative Law and Courts (5) I&S R. CICHOWSKI Introduction to comparative judicial politics, focusing on the relationship between law and politics in cross-national perspective, as well as on the functioning of supranational and international legal entities in the international system. May not be taken for credit if student has taken LSJ/JSIS B 366. Offered: jointly with POL S 367.

LSJ 370 Privacy (5) I&S S. Pekkanen Explores how individuals, corporations, and governments respond to privacy challenges in the digital age. Examines evolution of the idea of privacy using case studies of actual privacy policies, legal cases, and real-world situations. Covers legal, political, and social facets of this fundamental human issue. Offered: jointly with JSIS B 370/POL S 370; Sp.

LSJ 375 Crime, Politics, and Justice (5) I&S J. WENDER Reviews the major components - police, courts, and corrections - of the U.S. criminal justice system; investigates critical factors that shape criminal procedure; considers the relationship between criminal procedure and wider concerns of justice.

LSJ 376 Drugs and Society (5) I&S K. BECKETT, J. WENDER Explores the questions of drug use and abuse, social and political factors that shape response to their use, and the social conditions under which drug use is likely to have adverse consequences. Also covers U.S. drug control policy, the political economy of legal and illegal drugs, and political aspects of drug use. Offered: jointly with SOC 376.

LSJ 377 Punishment: Theory and Practice (5) I&S Examines the philosophical reasoning that underlies punishment practices such as sentencing, imprisonment, or capital punishment. Considers policy issues in these areas in light of theories about morality and human nature. Helps students learn how to analyze punishment policies from ethical and philosophical perspectives.

LSJ 378 Policing the City (5) I&S S. HERBERT Investigates how and why formal and informal order is established in urban areas, how this order produces advantages and disadvantages, and possibilities of alternative visions of order. Topics include formal means of control (zoning, laws, policing, building codes) and informal means of control (gossip, ostracism, peer pressure, local politics). Offered: jointly with GEOG 378; A.

LSJ 380 Contemporary Issues in Comparative Legal Institutions (5, max. 10) I&S Covers theoretical, empirical, and comparative aspects of such topics as socio-legal concepts, justice, legal policies, and the institutions of law. Recommended: either POL S 101, POL S 202, POL S 204, or SOC 110.

LSJ 381 Contemporary Issues in Rights (5, max. 10) I&S Studies the theoretical, empirical, and comparative aspects of such topics as human rights, civil rights, and legal change.

LSJ 400 Senior Seminar (5, max. 10) For students in their final year as Law, Societies, and Justice majors. Incorporates material learned in student's primary field of specialization. Includes independent research, oral presentations, and the completion of a substantial paper.

LSJ 401 Field Experience in Law, Societies, and Justice (5) S. HERBERT Participant observation in a public or private agency relevant to the study of law, justice, human rights, or court systems.

LSJ 420 The Politics of Rights (5) I&S M. McCann Examines rights in practical and social interaction, rights as social conventions, relations of rights practices to official state policies, disputing practices, interest formation, and identity construction at individual and group levels. Explores how rights practices figure into the constellation of contested power relations within modern societies.

Analyzes international mechanisms for reconciliation alongside philosophical and moral consideration. Combines occidental moral philosophies of secular human rights rooted with local knowledge and value systems. Surveys faith-based epistemologies underlying reconciliation processes. Prerequisite: either LSJ 320/POL S 368, LSJ 321/ANTH 323, LSJ 322/JSIS A 324, or PHIL 338.

LSJ 428 Women's Rights in an Integrated Europe (5) I&S Examines the transformation in women's rights policy within the European community from the late 1950s through the present. Focuses on the legal rules and bodies that govern not only these policy domains, but also their evolution and impacts. Offered: jointly with POL S 415.

LSJ 430 Topics in Disability Studies (1-5, max. 15) I&S Theoretical, critical, analytical, or comparative examination of an issue or issues in Disability Studies. Topics vary. Prerequisite: either DIS ST/CHID/LSJ 230, DIS ST 332, DIS ST 433, or DIS ST 434. Offered: jointly with CHID 430/DIS ST 430.

LSJ 433 Disability Law, Policy, and the Community I&S (5) I&S, DIV Addresses the history of legal rights of disabled people, U. S. disability policy, and the role of community activism and other forces in policy development and systems change. Introduces the existing social service system that affects disabled people. Recommended: LSJ 230/CHID 230/DIS ST 230. Offered: jointly with CHID 433/DIS ST 433.

LSJ 434 Civil and Human Rights Law for Disabled People (5) I&S, DIV Brown Expands knowledge of civil and human rights for disabled people. Examines the American perspective (ADA) as well as various international models including the United Nations' International Human Rights treaties as they relate to disabled people. Recommended: LSJ 230/CHID 230/DIS ST 230. Offered: jointly with CHID 434/DIS ST 434.

LSJ 444 Ethics in Law and Justice (5) I&S Applies ethical theories, research, and practice to the law and justice system, with the goals of: (1) analyzing the moral dimensions of criminal law; (2) studying ethical issues in law enforcement, adjudications, and corrections; and (3) examining a variety of controversial ethical issues associated with the justice system.

LSJ 467 Law, Justice, and the Environment (5) I&S S. HERBERT Examines the role law plays in shaping environmental policy. Challenges student to understand how environmental concerns are translated into legal discourse, and covers several typical issues that emerge in environmental law. Centers on active discussions. Offered: jointly with GEOG 467.

LSJ 469 Law and Rights in Authoritarian Regimes (5) I&S S. WHITING Explores role of law and courts and nature of rights in authoritarian regimes. Questions addressed include why authoritarian regimes promote "rule-of-law", who is empowered by law, and the political consequences of "rule-of-law" promotion. Recommended: LSJ 366/JSIS B 366 or POL S 367/LSJ 367. Offered: jointly with JSIS B 469/POL S 469.

LSJ 474 Geography and the Law (5) I&S S. HERBERT Examines the relationship between geography, law, and socio-legal analysis; reviews significant instances where law and geography intersect, such as the regulation of public space, the regulation of borders and mobility, and disputes over property and land use. Offered: jointly with GEOG 474.

LSJ 476 Miscarriages of Justice (5) I&S Examines legal and social factors that shape criminal case outcomes, analyzing how one type of miscarriage of justice - wrongful conviction - occurs. How can cases of wrongful conviction be explained? Why are some people, against whom there is only weak evidence, convicted and sometimes even executed? Offered: jointly with SOC 476.

LSJ 480 Policing Modern Society (5) I&S J. WENDER Explores institution and practices of police in context of the rise of modern society, and considers the expanding presence of the police in everyday modern life. Topics include: history of policing, changing roles of police, police reform, and ethical dilemmas intrinsic to the police function.

LSJ 488 Honors in Law, Societies, and Justice (5-) First of a two-course hyphenated sequence. To be completed with LSJ 489.

LSJ 489 Honors in Law, Societies, and Justice (-[1-5], max. 5) I&S Thesis research honors option. Second of a two-course hyphenated sequence. To be completed with LSJ 488.

LSJ 490 Special Topics in Comparative Legal Institutions (1-5, max. 15) I&S Focused, comparative examination of legal institutions.

LSJ 491 Special Topics in Rights (1-5, max. 15) I&S Focused, comparative examination of topics in rights.

LSJ 495 Study Abroad-Law, Societies, and Justice (3-5, max. 15) I&S Comparative studies abroad of legal institutions, rights, and justice as related to national settings. Specific course content determined by faculty member.

LSJ 499 Readings in Law, Societies, and Justice (1-5, max. 10) Individual readings in law, societies, and justice.

LSJ 501 Law, Politics, and Society (5) Beckett, Herbert, McCann Provides a broad overview of, and introduction to, the interdisciplinary field of Law and Society Studies, including the historical development of law and society studies and an overview of its main concerns and questions.

LSJ 510 Topics in Law and Society Studies (3-5, max. 20) Current topics in law and society studies.

Linguistics

A210 Padelford

Linguistics is the scientific study of language, which is one of the most characteristic human attributes. In contrast to other language-related disciplines, linguistics is concerned with describing the rule-governed structures of languages, determining the extent to which these structures are universal or language-particular, positing constraints on possible linguistic structures, and explaining why there is only a fairly narrow range of possible human languages.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

A215 Padelford, Box 354340

(206) 685-4846

lingadv@uw.edu

The Department of Linguistics offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with options in general linguistics and Romance linguistics
- A minor in linguistics
- A minor in American sign language

Bachelor of Arts

General Linguistics

Suggested First- and Second-Year College Courses: LING 400 or other introductory course in linguistics. One year of a foreign language that belongs to a different family from the student's native language.

Department Admission Requirements

1. Completion of at least the third quarter, or equivalent, of a foreign language, with a minimum 2.0 grade
2. Completion of at least one writing (W) course and two quantitative and symbolic reasoning (QSR) courses, with a minimum 2.0 grade in each course and a cumulative 2.50 GPA in the three courses
3. The department accepts students who meet the minimum requirements stated above, but recognizes that a 2.50 GPA or higher is indicative of the motivation and academic skills needed for a reasonable probability of success in the program.

Major Requirements

80 credits, as follows:

1. LING 400 or other introductory course in linguistics
2. LING 450, LING 451, LING 461, LING 462
3. At least one of LING 432, LING 442, or LING 481
4. At least one year of each of two languages, one of which must belong to a language family different than the student's native language, with a minimum grade of 2.0 in the third quarter of each language
5. 20 additional credits of departmentally approved courses in linguistics.

Romance Linguistics

Suggested First- and Second-Year Courses: Two college years of study in a Romance language; LING 400 or other introductory course in linguistics

Department Admission Requirements

1. Completion of at least one year of college work in a single Romance language
2. Completion of at least one writing (W) course and two quantitative and symbolic reasoning (QSR) courses, with a minimum 2.0 grade in each course and a cumulative 2.50 GPA in the three courses
3. The department accepts students who meet the minimum requirements stated above, but recognizes that a GPA of 2.50 or higher is indicative of the motivation and academic skills needed for a reasonable probability of success in the program.

Major Requirements

Minimum 63 credits, as follows:

1. LING 400 or another introductory course in linguistics
2. LING 450, LING 451, LING 461, and LING 462
3. 15 credits at the 300 level or higher of one Romance language
4. LING 419
5. 20 additional credits of departmentally approved courses in linguistics, with at least one course for which a research paper on a Romance language is written

Minors

Linguistics -- Minor Requirements: 32 credits to include LING 400 or another introductory course in linguistics; three courses from LING 432, LING 442, LING 450, LING 451, LING 461, LING 462, or LING 481; 12 additional credits from a list of departmentally approved courses in linguistics, 6 of which must be in upper-division courses

American Sign Language -- Minor Requirements: 33-35 credits as follows:

1. Second-year American Sign Language (15 credits): ASL 201; ASL 202; ASL 203
2. Culture and History (3 credits): ASL 305
3. Theory and Structure (8-10 credits): LING 400 or LING 461; either ASL 343 or LING 403
4. Approved 300- 400-level electives (minimum 7 credits). See adviser for approved list.
5. Minimum 2.00 cumulative GPA for all courses applied to the minor
6. Minimum 18 credits from outside student's major requirements

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The study of linguistics emphasizes formal reasoning and critical thinking skills. Linguists' skill sets include the ability to analyze sound, word, and sentence structures of individual languages; the ability to understand and account for how languages change in certain patterns; the ability to understand how social factors can affect language, how people learn their first or second languages; and the ability to find out and appreciate how apparently vastly different languages can be governed by the same set of rules. Linguistics is a valuable component of liberal education and vocationally can have applications wherever language itself becomes a matter of practical concern. Graduates have a good foundation for pursuing further training and careers in teaching languages, in areas of rehabilitative medicine such as audiology or speech therapy, in special education, in work with native peoples or with immigrant groups, in lexicographic work, in interpretation and translation, in work in computer science and artificial intelligence, or in academic disciplines such as psychology, philosophy, literature and language studies, where the contribution of linguistics is recognized. An undergraduate degree in linguistics from the UW also serves as preparation for graduate work in linguistics or language-related fields such as speech and hearing science or language teaching.

- Instructional and Research Facilities: The Language Learning Center located in Denny Hall provides audio and video services facilitating language learning. It also has a computer laboratory providing instructional software for linguistics and varieties of languages. Departmental facilities include a phonetics laboratory for students conducting phonetic experiments and doing digital acoustic analyses, a linguistics library that supplements the linguistics collection of the UW libraries and provides a quiet study place, and a computer laboratory for research in computational linguistics.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of both Honors Core Curriculum and Honors requirements in the major). With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: None offered
- Department Scholarships: None offered
- Student Organizations/Associations: The Linguistics Undergraduate Association (LingUA)

GRADUATE PROGRAM

(206) 543-2046

phoneme@uw.edu

The Department of Linguistics offers a program of study for graduate students leading to the degrees of Master of Arts and Doctor of Philosophy. The program is administered by the departmental faculty. The major interest of the core faculty lies in syntax, semantics, phonetics, phonology, sociolinguistics, computational linguistics, and in theoretical aspects of second-language acquisition.

Some course work is also available in various cooperating departments. Among those fields represented outside the department are psycholinguistics, philosophy of language, speech synthesis, and the structure and history of a number of individual languages and language families.

Master of Arts

An MA is not required as a prerequisite to PhD study.

Degree Requirements

Thesis Option

1. Minimum 35 credits - LING 507, LING 508, LING 532, LING 551, LING 552, either LING 550 or LING 553, either LING 542 or LING 579

2. Language Requirement: Satisfied by one of the following:
3. One year of study at the university or community college level. Students who are language instructors in other UW departments can use their language teaching experience to satisfy one language requirement.
4. A major research project that involves significant primary data collection that includes substantial structural analysis and results in a major paper such as a generals paper
5. Translation exam to demonstrate the ability to read linguistic literature in a foreign language; only one of the two language requirements for the PhD can be satisfied through the translation exam
6. A thesis, written under the supervision of a Linguistics faculty member, and accepted by a second faculty reader. Normally the work is completed in 10 credits of LING 700.

Non-thesis Option: Students who pass the General Exam will automatically receive an M.A. degree in General Linguistics; the Generals papers and Exam constitute the capstone project necessary for a master's degree (or the student may complete the thesis model below).

Master of Science in Computational Linguistics

Admission Requirements

1. The ability to program, including knowledge of data structures and algorithms (equivalent to CSE 373); broad familiarity with C++ and Java; expertise in C++ or Java; and Perl and/or Python.
2. A college-level introductory course in linguistics or equivalent
3. Introduction to statistics and probability (equivalent to STAT 391)
4. Some knowledge of languages other than English is strongly encouraged.
5. A one- or two-page statement of purpose.
6. Two or three letters of recommendation, preferably from people familiar with the applicant's academic work
7. A sample of the applicant's academic work (required for applicants who have completed their previous degree within the past two years. Other applicants who wish to send samples of academic work are encouraged to do so). Types of samples include coding projects (together with write-ups), theses and term papers.
8. One complete set of official transcripts
9. International applicants must meet UW English language proficiency requirements. For more information, please refer to Memo 8: Graduate School English Language Proficiency Requirements.

Degree Requirements

43 credits, as follows:

1. Required Courses: LING 450, LING 566
2. One additional 400- or 500-level course in phonetics, phonology, morphology, syntax, semantics, or pragmatics
3. Computational Linguistics Courses: LING 570, LING 571, LING 572, LING 573
4. One elective in computational linguistics and one elective in computational linguistics or a related area
5. At least 10 credits of LING 600 or LING 700

Doctor of Philosophy

In addition to the general Linguistics PhD program, an option is offered Computational Linguistics. Variations in requirements are shown below.

Admission Requirements

Three letters of recommendation and Graduate Record Examination scores are required for all applicants. Applicants should send the department a copy of their master's thesis or a paper of high quality, or both.

Degree Requirements

Minimum 90 credits

General Linguistics

- Required Courses (35 credits): LING 507, LING 508, LING 532, LING 551, LING 552, LING 550 or LING 553, LING 542 or LING 579
- Additional courses for a minimum of 90 credits (27 of which are LING 800) to be determined by specialization and consultation with the Supervisory Committee
- Language Knowledge Requirement: Non-Computational Linguistics graduate students must satisfy two natural language requirements for the PhD through the following:
 - One year of study at the university or community college level. Students who are language instructors in other UW departments can use their language teaching experience to satisfy one language requirement.
 - A major research project that involves significant primary data collection that includes substantial structural analysis and results in a major paper such as a generals paper
 - Translation examination to demonstrate the ability to read linguistic literature in a foreign language; only one of the two language requirements for the PhD can be satisfied through the translation examination.
- Colloquium Conference Talks: Two papers delivered at a colloquium or conference
- Constitution of the PhD committee by the end of the second year of study
- Generals Papers: Two generals papers in different areas, at least one in grammatical theory. (Normally 10 credits of LING 600.)
- General Examination: An oral examination, in which the candidate is questioned on the two papers. The oral examination may not be scheduled until the committee has read the two papers and approved them as passing.
- Dissertation Prospectus: Within six months of the oral examination, the student presents a formal dissertation proposal to the subset of the PhD Supervisory Committee members who constitute the reading committee, along with a proposed calendar for completion of the dissertation.
- Final Examination: A final examination on the dissertation attended by the candidate's Supervisory Committee and open to others interested
- Dissertation: Suitable for publication
- All-but-dissertation (ABD) Requirement: All degree requirements except for the dissertation and the two colloquia must be completed before the general examination.

Computational Linguistics Option

Admission Requirements

Students who complete the Computational Linguistics Master of Science degree (CLMS) and who wish to be admitted to PhD study in linguistics must satisfy the following:

- Completion of CLMS degree requirements
- Completion of master's thesis option
- Completion of three courses required for the Linguistics PhD (Computational Linguistics track), subject to the following restrictions: (a) Courses must be taught by at least two non Computational Linguistics faculty; (b) Courses may not include LING 570 through LING 573

- The required general linguistics courses for the Computational Linguistics track PhD is as shown below.

Degree Requirements

Requirements are the same as for the General Linguistics option, except for the following:

- Required Courses: Two from LING 507, LING 508, LING 566; two from LING 550, LING 551, LING 552, LING 553; one from LING 542, LING 579; one from LING 532, LING 533; three from LING 567, LING 570, LING 571, LING 572, LING 573
- Language Knowledge Requirement: Computational Linguistics students must fulfill only one language requirement, but may not use a translation examination to do so.
- Generals Papers: Same as for the General Linguistics program except a master's thesis completed as part of the CLMS program may count as one of the two generals papers.
- Transition from the CLMS to PhD program is done in two steps:
 - Step 1: Entering the General Linguistics graduate program registered as a post-master's program student: Students may apply for admission to the Linguistics graduate program after receiving their CLMS degree; admission decision is made by the Computational Linguistics faculty; after admission, students pay regular UW tuition for courses.
 - Step 2: Entering the Linguistics PhD program: Students may apply for admission to the PhD program after completing all requirements listed above; admission decision is made by the full linguistics faculty. If all requirements are completed upon receipt of the CLMS degree, Steps 1 and 2 may be completed simultaneously.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

American Sign Language

ASL 101 Elementary American Sign Language I (5) L. FORSHAY, K. WINTER Introduction to American Sign Language using conversational methods. Covers vocabulary, grammatical usage, and culturally appropriate behavior within the deaf community. First in a sequence of three. Offered: A.

ASL 102 Elementary American Sign Language II (5) L. FORSHAY, K. WINTER Focuses on building mastery of American Sign Language grammar skills, increasing vocabulary, and gaining a deeper knowledge and appreciation of deaf culture. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: ASL 101. Offered: W.

ASL 103 Elementary American Sign Language III (5) L. FORSHAY, K. WINTER Focuses on grammatical features such as spatialization, directionality, and non-manual components. Intensive work in vocabulary development and continued study of deaf culture. Third in a series of three. Prerequisite: ASL 102. Offered: Sp.

ASL 134 Intensive First Year ASL (15) Bateh, Forshay, Winter Intensive introduction to American Sign Language using conversational methods and covering vocabulary, grammatical usage, and culturally appropriate behavior. Also focused on grammatical features such as spatialization, directionality, and non-manual components. Offered: S.

ASL 201 Intermediate American Sign Language I (5) VLPA L. FORSHAY Covers vocabulary, grammatical usage, and culturally appropriate behavior within the deaf community. Emphasizes receptive/expressive skill development and fluency with attention to correct formation of signs, movement, rhythm, phrasing, and clarity. First in a series of three. Prerequisite: either ASL 103 or ASL 134. Offered: A.

ASL 202 Intermediate American Sign Language II (5) VLPA L. FORSHAY Covers vocabulary, grammatical usage, and culturally appropriate behavior within the deaf community. Emphasizes receptive/expressive skill development and fluency with attention to correct formation of signs, movement, rhythm, phrasing, and clarity. Second in a series of three. Prerequisite: ASL 201. Offered: W.

ASL 203 Intermediate American Sign Language III (5) VLPA L. FORSHAY, K. WINTER Covers vocabulary, grammatical usage, and culturally appropriate behavior within the deaf community. Emphasizes receptive/expressive skill development and fluency with attention to correct formation of signs, movement, rhythm, phrasing, and clarity. Third in a series of three. Prerequisite: ASL 202. Offered: Sp.

ASL 234 Intensive Intermediate American Sign Language (15) VLPA L. FORSHAY Intensive second year American Sign Language using conversational methods and covering vocabulary, grammatical usage, and culturally appropriate behavior. Also focuses on grammatical features such as spatialization, directionality, and non-manual components. Prerequisite: ASL 103. Offered: S.

ASL 305 Introduction to American Deaf Culture (3) I&S, DIV L. FORSHAY Covers topics in Deaf culture, history, education, sociology, language, legal issues, art and literature, sensory variety and politics, audism, assistive technological devices, Deafhood, Deaf Blind, Deaf identity and intersections of diversity within the Deaf community, and other special topics analyzed from the Deaf culture worldview.

ASL 306 Deaf History (3) I&S Covers all major events impacting Deaf people, in Europe and America. Topics include: development of sign language, deaf education, politics of deafness, audism, eugenics, hearing technology, leadership in deaf community, deaf revolution movements, international deaf history, and key biographies. Experience with American Sign Language not required.

ASL 495 Literature and Poetry (3) VLPA Emphasizes the historical background, story content, analysis of grammatical features, and discourse analysis to include a variety of sign registers and styles. Challenges and redefines the concept of literature with the visual-gestural nature of sign language using films and videos including: the Veditz's 1913 motion films collections; American Sign Language poetry works by Valli and Lentz; folktales; and humor. Prerequisite: ASL 202.

ASL 499 Independent Study or Research (1-3, max. 3) L. FORSHAY, K. WINTER Advanced study or research of a topic related to American Sign Language guided by a faculty member. Prerequisite: ASL 203; ASL 305.

Linguistics

LING 100 Fundamentals of Grammar (5) VLPA L. MCGARITY, C. SUREK-CLARK, K. ZAGONA Introduction to basic grammatical concepts and terminology. Specifically intended for students planning to take a foreign language or linguistics. Does not count toward the linguistics major or minor.

LING 101 Fundamentals of Pronunciation for Language Learners (5) VLPA Kaisse Fundamentals of pronunciation for language learners. Introduces students to systematic characteristics of language sounds through examination of specific languages and their differences from English. Includes a laboratory component developing perceptual and productive skills of non-English sounds.

LING 200 Introduction to Linguistic Thought (5) VLPA/I&S, QSR Language as the fundamental characteristic of the human species; diversity and complexity of human languages; phonological and grammatical analysis; dimensions of language use; and language acquisition and historical language change. Not open for credit to students who have completed LING 201 or LING 400.

LING 201 Introduction to Linguistic Theory and Analysis (5) VLPA/I&S, QSR Background and scope of modern linguistics; behaviorist versus rationalist theories of language; universal and cognitive aspects of language structure; interplay of genetic and social factors in language formation; linguistic analysis. Not open for credit to students who have completed LING 200.

LING 203 Introduction to Anthropological Linguistics (5) VLPA/I&S Linguistic methods and theories used within anthropology. Basic structural features of language; human language and animal communication compared; evidence for the innate nature of language. Language and culture: linguistic relativism, ethnography of communication, sociolinguistics. Language and nationalism, language politics in the United States and elsewhere. Offered: jointly with ANTH 203.

LING 220 Origins of the Germanic Languages (5) VLPA Introduction to basic grammatical concepts, terminology, and linguistics with emphasis on German-English relationship. Overview of phonology, morphology, syntax, and history of Germanic languages and people, both ancient and modern. Languages covered include Old, Middle, and New High German; English, Frisian, Dutch, Old Saxon, and Gothic. Taught in English. Offered: jointly with GERMAN 220.

LING 233 Introduction to Language and Society (5) VLPA, DIV Evans, Wassink Introduces the study of sociolects, the varieties of language that arise from differences in cultural and societal groups, often reflective of power inequalities. Raises awareness of the role that society and the individual play in shaping sociolects via the systematic observation and critical discussion of linguistic phenomena. Offered: jointly with ANTH 233/COM 233; A.

LING 234 Language and Diversity (5) I&S, DIV Surek-Clark Advances students' knowledge of language and diversity in a global society, focusing on language and identity, multilingualism, language contact, language spread/variation, and language loss. Offered: W.

LING 242 Introduction to Meaning (5) VLPA Ogihara Non-technical introduction to meaning in language and how it functions in communication and thinking. Discussion of how and why meanings of words change through time. Prerequisite: either LING 200, LING 201, ANTH/LING 203, or LING 400.

LING 270 Introduction to Perl Programming for Linguists (5) Bender Fundamental programming techniques, including data types, control flow, regular expressions, file handling, GUI design, and CGI interaction. Content relates to a variety of linguistic concepts including syntax, morphology, phonology, lexicon building and foreign language corpora. No previous programming necessary; however, a background in general linguistic theory is assumed. Offered: W.

LING 333 Linguistics and Society (3) VLPA/I&S Interaction of language, culture, and society, and the relationship of linguistic theory to societal problems. Ethical and political considerations involved in the application of linguistic theory.

LING 372 Language and Translation (5) VLPA Tarlinskaja Role of linguistic concepts in the process of translation from one language to another. Attention to both language universals and language particulars.

LING 390 Foreign Studies in Linguistics (1-15, max. 20) I&S For students who take linguistics courses while participating in a University of Washington study abroad program and for which there is no direct University of Washington equivalent.

LING 400 Survey of Linguistic Method and Theory (5) VLPA/I&S, QSR L. MCGARRITY Examines major linguistic theories in phonology, syntax and semantics; linguistic analysis and argumentation. Not available for credit to students who have completed LING 200.

LING 401 The Linguistic, Philosophical, and Political Thought of Noam Chomsky (3) VLPA/I&S Relation of current work in Chomskyan linguistics to philosophical, psychological, political, and educational thought.

LING 402 Survey of the History of Linguistics (3) VLPA/I&S Zagana Main trends in linguistic theory and philosophy of linguistics from ancient times through advent of transformational-generative grammar. Includes nineteenth-century comparative and historical grammar, Prague school grammar, American structuralist grammar, major concerns of linguistics today. Prerequisite: LING 451.

LING 403 Structure of American Sign Language (5) VLPA Hargus Introduction to the phonological, morphological, and syntactic structure of American Sign Language. Topics include acquisition, sociolinguistics, neurolinguistics, lexicography, history, and culture. Knowledge of American Sign Language is not required. Prerequisite: LING 200, 201, 203, or 400.

LING 404 Indo-European (3) VLPA Voyles Overview of the Indo-European languages, of comparative method, and of the phonology, morphology, and syntax of reconstructed Indo-European. Grammatical analyses and texts from various attested ancient and modern Indo-European languages, selected according to the interests of the students.

LING 405 Indo-European (3) VLPA Voyles Overview of the Indo-European languages, of comparative method, and of the phonology, morphology, and syntax of reconstructed Indo-European. Grammatical analyses and texts from various attested ancient and modern Indo-European languages, selected according to the interests of the students.

LING 406 Indo-European (3) VLPA Voyles Overview of the Indo-European languages, of comparative method, and of the phonology, morphology, and syntax of reconstructed Indo-European. Grammatical analyses and texts from various attested ancient and modern Indo-European languages, selected according to the interests of the students.

LING 407 Languages of the World (5) VLPA A survey of the world's languages, focusing on their syntactic, phonological, and morphological properties. Prerequisite: either LING 200, LING 201, ANTH/LING 203, or LING 400.

LING 411 Native Languages and Language Families of Washington State (3) VLPA Hargus Survey of linguistic structures of Washington native languages. Language families consist of Salish, Wakashan, Chemakuan, Athabaskan, Chinookan, Sahaptian, Cayuse. Structure and origin of Chinook jargon. Prerequisite: LING 450; either LING 461 or LING 481.

LING 415 History of the German Language (5) VLPA Traces the history of the German language from early Germanic to the present. Recommended: LING 200; GERMAN 203. Offered: jointly with GERMAN 452; W.

LING 419 Romance Linguistics Senior Essay (3) VLPA Capstone course for undergraduate Romance Linguistics majors.

LING 430 Pidgin and Creole Languages (5) VLPA/I&S Wassink Explores aspects of the linguistic structure, history, and social context of pidgin and creole languages. Creolization as one possible outcome of language contact. Examines theories of creole genesis, similarities and differences between creole and non-creole languages. Prerequisite: either ANTH 203, LING 200, LING 201, LING 203, or LING 400. Offered: jointly with ANTH 439.

LING 432 Sociolinguistics I (5) VLPA/I&S, DIV Evans, Wassink Interrelationships between social and linguistic factors influencing variation in speech production and perception, morphology, syntax, lexicon. Considers contribution of ethnic, regional and socioeconomic group memberships to dialect differentiation and progression of language change. Nonstandard language, diglossia, pidgins, creoles, gender differences, bi- and multilingualism, ethnography of speaking, pragmatics, and language attitudes. Prerequisite: either LING 200 or LING 400; recommended: prior or concurrent registration in LING 450. Offered: jointly with ANTH 432.

LING 433 Sociolinguistics II (5) VLPA/I&S Wassink Examines field methods linguists use in socially oriented studies of language variation and change. Includes language attitudes, study of urban dialects, syntactic variation, sampling and interview design. Discussion of issues related to recording, ethics, and analysis of large bodies of data. Prerequisite: LING 432. Offered: jointly with ANTH 433.

LING 441 Linguistics and Poetic Language (3) VLPA Introduction to the Relationship between linguistic structures, linguistic universals, and the poetic uses of language; linguistic description in the analysis of literature. Prerequisite: either LING 200, LING 201, ANTH/LING 203, or LING 400.

LING 442 Semantics I (5) VLPA/NW Ogihara Introduction to the study of meaning as part of linguistic theory. Relation of semantics to syntax. Emphasis on formal semantics and pragmatics. Discussion of various semantic phenomena in natural language that are theoretically relevant. Prerequisite: LING 461.

LING 445 Descriptive Aspects of English as a Foreign Language (3) VLPA Linguistic analysis as a basis for the teaching of English as a foreign language; language as rule-governed behavior. Prerequisite: either LING 200, LING 201, ANTH/LING 203, or LING 400.

LING 446 English Phonology (3) VLPA Hargus Descriptively oriented approach to of English phonology and phonetics; dialect differences. Prerequisite: LING 450.

LING 447 Psychology of Language (4) VLPA/I&S Osterhout Introduction to the study of language, including language structure, speech perception, language acquisition, psychological processes underlying comprehension and production of language, the relation between brain and language, and the question of the species-specificity of human language. Prerequisite: either minimum 2.0 grade in PSYCH 209, minimum 2.0 grade in LING 200, or LING 201. Offered: jointly with PSYCH 447.

LING 449 Second-Language Learning (5) VLPA Herschensohn Issues related to the linguistic aspects of second-language learning. Prerequisite: either LING 200, LING 201, ANTH/LING 203, or LING 400.

LING 450 Introduction to Linguistic Phonetics (5) VLPA/NW S. HARGUS, A. WASSINK, R. WRIGHT Introduction to the articulatory and acoustic correlates of phonological features. Issues covered include the mapping of dynamic events to static representations, phonetic evidence for phonological description, universal constraints on phonological structure, and implications of psychological speech-sound categorization for phonological theory. Prerequisite: either LING 200 or LING 400.

LING 451 Phonology I (5) VLPA/I&S Hargus, Kaisse Patterning of sounds and gestures in human languages; analysis in generative phonological framework. Prerequisite: LING 450.

LING 452 Phonology II (5) VLPA/I&S Hargus, Kaisse Speech sounds, mechanism of their production, and structuring of sounds in languages; generative view of phonology; autosegmental and metrical phonology. Prerequisite: LING 451.

LING 453 Experimental Phonetics (5) VLPA/I&S/NW Wright Examines phonetic and phonological aspects of spoken language using experimental methods. Focuses on acoustic phonetics and speech perception. Significant time devoted to experimental design and hands-on data analysis techniques. Prerequisite: LING 451.

LING 454 Methods in Comparative Linguistics (5) VLPA Aldridge, Handel Method and theory of historical and comparative linguistics. Problems of phonological, morphological, syntactic, and semantic change and reconstruction. Prerequisite: either LING 200, LING 201, ANTH/LING 203, or LING 400.

LING 455 Areal Linguistics (3, max. 6) VLPA/I&S Issues involved in classification of languages. Systems of classification based on structure, word order, areal features. Ways in which languages may be classified for different purposes. Processes such as borrowing, vocabulary specialization, lexical change, and language death and revival. Prerequisite: either LING 200, LING 201, ANTH/LING 203, or LING 400. Offered: jointly with ANTH 455.

LING 457 Language Development (5) VLPA/I&S First-language acquisition and use by children. Emphasis on theoretical issues and research techniques. Prerequisite: minimum 2.0 grade in either PSYCH 206, PSYCH 306, LING 200, or LING 400. Offered: jointly with PSYCH 457.

LING 458 Language and Gender (5) VLPA/I&S, DIV L. BILANIUK Survey of the theoretical trends, methods, and research findings on the relationship between language and gender. Focus on power relations in gendered language use. Extensive study of research based on conversational analysis. Prerequisite: LING 200; either LING 201, LING 203, or ANTH 203. Offered: jointly with ANTH 450/GWSS 450.

LING 461 Syntax I (5) VLPA/I&S Aldridge, Citko, Zagona Study of the structural properties of language; introduction to generative transformational syntax. Prerequisite: either LING 200 or LING 400.

LING 462 Syntax II (5) VLPA/I&S Aldridge, Citko, Zagona Study of the structural properties of language; introduction to generative transformational syntax. Prerequisite: LING 461.

LING 463 Syntax III (4) VLPA/I&S Study of the structural properties of language; introduction to generative transformational syntax. Prerequisite: LING 462.

LING 464 Language Politics and Cultural Identity (3) VLPA/I&S L. BILANIUK Theories and case studies of the power of language and how it is manipulated. Multilingualism, diglossia. Role of language and linguistics in nationalism. Standardization, educational policy, language and ethnicity. World languages, language death and revival. Prerequisite: either LING 200, LING 201, ANTH/LING 203, or LING 400. Offered: jointly with ANTH 464.

LING 470 Discourse: Analyzing Talk and Texts (5) VLPA/I&S A critical and practical introduction to contemporary theories/methods in discourse analysis: how verbal communication (together with visual communication) is used in conversational talk and mediated texts to construct identities and relationships; and how power and ideology are reproduced through these everyday social interactions. Offered: jointly with COM 470.

LING 471 Computational Methods for Linguists (5) QSR Overview of methods for working with linguistic data in electronic form: electronic corpora, linguistic software tools, textual data formats, operating system fundamentals, and basic programming. Prerequisite: either LING 450 or LING 461.

LING 472 Introduction to Computational Linguistics (5) VLPA/NW E. BENDER Introduction to computational approaches to modeling language, for linguistic research and practical applications, including analyses at different levels of linguistic structure and symbolic as well as statistical approaches. Prerequisite: either LING 200 or LING 400; either LING 461 or CSE 311. Offered: jointly with CSE 472.

LING 473 Basics for Computational Linguistics (3) Examines computer applications involving automatic processing of natural language speech or text by machines. Intended as preparation for CLMS core courses. Includes concepts form probability and statistics; formal grammars and languages; finite-state automata and transducers; review of algorithms and data structures; and software for using parallel server cluster. Prerequisite: CSE 326; STAT 391; programming in Perl, C, C++, Java, or Python. Offered: S.

LING 476 Philosophy of Language (5) VLPA/I&S Current theories of meaning, reference, predication, and related concepts. Offered: jointly with PHIL 453.

LING 479 Semantics II (3) VLPA/I&S/NW T. OGIHARA Formal characterization of linguistic meaning. Emphasis on nature and purpose of formal semantics and on its relation to formal syntax. Prerequisite: LING 442. Offered: jointly with PHIL 479.

LING 480 Topics in Linguistics (3, max. 12) VLPA Introduction to an area of linguistic study not covered by the regular departmental course offerings.

LING 481 Introduction to Morphology (5) VLPA S. HARGUS Structure of words and the processes by which they are formed. Morphological processes in a wide variety of languages. Prerequisite: LING 451.

LING 484 Lexical Semantics and the Lexicon (3) VLPA Role of the lexicon in syntax and semantics. Topics include the syntax-lexicon mapping; theories of argument structure; complex predicate formation and lexical subordination; the lexicon and language acquisition; the role of the lexicon in linguistic theory; and the lexicon and sentence processing. Prerequisite: LING 461.

LING 490 Undergraduate Fieldwork (1-3, max. 6) Individual consultation with faculty member and supervised practical experience in a broad range of industry, community, clinical settings dealing with linguistic issues. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

LING 501 Field Methods (3) Guided analysis of a language unfamiliar to all students of the class; construction of a grammar based on material elicited from native informant. Prerequisite: LING 452, LING 462, or LING 508.

LING 502 Field Methods (3) Guided analysis of a language unfamiliar to all students of the class; construction of a grammar based on material elicited from native informant. Prerequisite: LING 452, LING 462, or LING 508.

LING 503 Field Methods (3) Guided analysis of a language unfamiliar to all students of the class; construction of a grammar based on material elicited from native informant. Prerequisite: LING 453, LING 462, or permission of instructor.

LING 507 Syntactic Theory I (5) E. ALDRIDGE, B. CITKO, K. ZAGONA Introduction to the principles and parameters model of syntactic theory. The lexicon and its relation to syntactic representations. Syntactic modules and principles. Problem solving.

LING 508 Syntactic Theory II (5) Zagona, Aldridge, Citko Further explorations in principles and parameters syntax. Topics include logical form, island phenomena, locality restrictions, and licensing. Prerequisite: LING 507 or permission of instructor. Offered: W.

LING 509 Syntactic Theory III (5) Zagona, Aldridge, Citko Focus on primary readings in syntactic theory, from classic papers on constraints and the architecture of grammar to recently published articles. Prerequisite: LING 508 or permission of instructor. Offered: Sp.

LING 514 Seminar in Comparative Linguistics (3) Kaisse Nineteenth- and twentieth-century theories of phonological change. Prerequisite: LING 404 or permission of instructor.

LING 515 Topics in the History of Germanic Languages (5) Barrack, Voyles Topics in diachronic studies of Germanic languages such as Gothic, Old High German, Old Saxon.

LING 519 Mathematical Models of Grammar (3) Ogihara Study of some mathematical models of language recognition, emphasizing context-free and context-sensitive grammars. Prerequisite: graduate standing in mathematics, linguistics, or psychology, or permission of instructor.

LING 522 Topics in the History of Linguistics (3) Zagona Intensive investigation of the main trends in the history of linguistics, concentrating on the development of nineteenth-century historical linguistics, the various schools of structural linguistics, and transformational-generative grammar. Prerequisite: LING 451.

LING 524 Seminar in Theoretical Linguistics (4, max. 8) Individual and joint research on selected topics in theoretical linguistics. Topics change each quarter. Typical topics are semantics, generative grammar, phonological theories. Prerequisite: LING 453, LING 463.

LING 525 Seminar in Theoretical Phonology (4, max. 12) Individual and joint research on selected topics in theoretical phonology. Topics vary. Typical offerings include phonology and the lexicon, syntax and phonology, phonological representations. Prerequisite: LING 452.

LING 530 Dialectology (3) The principles of dialect deviation as related to linguistic structure and usage. Prerequisite: LING 452, LING 462, LING 508, or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with ANTH 530.

LING 531 Problems in Romance Linguistics (2-5, max. 15) Group seminar, or individual conferences are scheduled under this number to meet special needs. Prerequisite: permission of graduate program coordinator.

LING 532 Sociolinguistics I (5) Evans, Wassink Examines social variation in the phonology, morphology, syntax, and lexicon of languages and dialects. Includes nonstandard language, diglossia, pidgins and creoles, gender differences, bi- and multilingualism, ethnography of speaking, and language attitudes. Prerequisite: either LING 200 or LING 400; recommended: prior or concurrent registration in LING 450. Offered: jointly with ANTH 532; S.

LING 533 Topics and Methods in Sociolinguistic Theory (5) Wassink Examines field methods linguists use in socially oriented studies of language variation and change. Includes language attitudes, study of urban dialects, syntactic variation, sampling and interview design. Discussion of issues related to recording, ethics, and analysis of large bodies of data. Prerequisite: LING 432.

LING 534 Sociolinguistic Applications of Social Network Theory (5) Wassink Examines structure and content of social networks from a linguistic perspective. Reviews applications of graph theory and sociometry in sociolinguistics. Examines how language is embedded in personal networks and how the study of linkages between individuals can elucidate the regularity and direction of language change. Prerequisite: LING 400 and LING 432.

LING 535 Advanced Sociolinguistics (5, max. 10) Wassink Explores perspective on language change and its mechanisms, understood in relation to the social context of language use in the speech community. Examines language-internal and -external motivations for change; phonological mergers and splits, chain-shifts, and diffusion of change through the lexicon. Prerequisite: LING 432 and LING 533.

LING 540 Phonological Development (3) Selected topics in the developmental sequence of phonological systems in normal-speaking children. Relationships between possible phonological inventories and rule systems in different languages. Prerequisite: LING 451, LING 452, or permission of instructor.

LING 542 Semantic Theory I (5) Ogihara Introduction to formal semantics and pragmatics. Basic skills for proposing compositional semantic rules for natural language data. Discussion of various semantic phenomena in natural language that are theoretically relevant. Prerequisite: graduate standing in Linguistics or permission of instructor.

LING 548 Second/Foreign Language Teaching Capstone Project (3-5) Involves a research (original or library), materials development, or a teaching practicum. Offered: AWSpS.

LING 549 Second Language Learning (5) Herschensohn Issues related to the linguistic aspects of second language learning. Prerequisite: either LING 200, LING 201, LING 203, or LING 400. Offered: AS.

LING 550 Introduction to Linguistic Phonetics (5) Wright, Wassink Introduction to the articulatory and acoustic correlates of phonological features. Covers mapping of dynamic events to static presentations, phonetic evidence for phonological description, universal constraints on phonological structure, and implications of psychological speech-sound categorization for phonological theory. Prerequisite: either LING 200 or LING 400. Offered: AWS.

LING 551 Phonology I: Introduction to Phonological Analysis (5) Hargus Patterning of sounds and gestures in human languages; analysis in generative phonological framework. Prerequisite: LING 550. Offered: WSPs.

LING 552 Phonology II: Advanced Phonology (5) Hargus, Kaisse Optimality theory; phonetics-phonology interface. Prerequisite: LING 551.

LING 553 Experimental Phonetics (5) Wright Examines phonetic and phonological aspects of spoken language using experimental methods. Focuses on acoustic phonetics and speech perception. Significant time devoted to experimental design and hands-on data analysis techniques. Prerequisite: LING 551. Offered: A.

LING 554 Advanced Linguistic Phonetics (3, max. 9) Wright, Wassink Individual and joint projects on selected topics in theoretical and experimental phonetics. Topics may include articulatory timing, the phonetics phonology interface, and constraints and constraint interaction. Prerequisite: LING 450 or LING 452. Offered: Sp.

LING 561 Advanced Syntax (2-3, max. 9) Advanced study in modern syntactic theory. Topics change each quarter. Typical topics are history of transformational grammar, anaphora, logical form. Prerequisite: LING 461, LING 462.

LING 562 Advanced Syntax (2-3, max. 9) Advanced study in modern syntactic theory. Topics change each quarter. Typical topics are history of transformational grammar, anaphora, logical form. Prerequisite: LING 461, LING 462.

LING 563 Advanced Syntax (2-3, max. 9) Advanced study in modern syntactic theory. Topics change each quarter. Typical topics are history of transformational grammar, anaphora, logical form. Prerequisite: LING 461, LING 462.

LING 565 Contrastive Linguistics (3) The attempt to look across linguistic systems for comparable and contrastive classes and subclasses. Problems of subcategorization and universal grammar. Three conceptually distinct models: structural, transfer grammar, generative. Prerequisite: LING 452, LING 463.

LING 566 Introduction to Syntax for Computational Linguistics (3) Bender Introduction to syntactic analysis and concepts with emphasis on the formally precise encoding in linguistic hypotheses and the design of grammars that can be scaled to practical applications. Coursework progressively builds up a consistent grammar for a fragment of English, while also considering data and phenomena from other languages. Offered: A.

LING 567 Knowledge Engineering for Deep Natural Language Processing (3) Bender Techniques and theoretical issues relating to the development of knowledge engineering resources required for deep processing (symbolic or hybrid), focusing on grammar engineering and semantic representations.

LING 570 Shallow Processing Techniques for Natural Language Processing (4) Xia Techniques and algorithms for associating relatively surface-level structures and information with natural language corpora, including POS tagging, morphological analysis, preprocessing/segmentation, named-entity recognition, chunk parsing, and word-sense disambiguation. Examines linguistic resources that can be leveraged for these tasks (e.g., WordNet). Prerequisite: a minimum grade of 2.7 in each of CSE 326 or equivalent, STAT 391 or equivalent, and LING 473 or passing score on the placement exam. Offered: A.

LING 571 Deep Processing Techniques for Natural Language Processing (4) G. LEVOW Algorithms for associating deep or elaborated linguistic structures with naturally occurring linguistic data (parsing/semantics/discourse), and for producing natural language strings from input semantic representations (generation). Prerequisite: a minimum grade of 2.7 in each of CSE 326 or equivalent, STAT 391 or equivalent, and LING 473 or passing score on the placement exam. Offered: W.

LING 572 Advanced Statistical Methods in Natural Language Processing (4) Xia Covers several important machine learning algorithms for natural language processing including decision tree, kNN, Naive Bayes, transformation-based learning, support vector machine, maximum entropy and conditional random field. Students implement many of the algorithms and apply these algorithms to some NLP tasks. Prerequisite: LING 570. Offered: W.

LING 573 Natural Language Processing Systems and Applications (4) G. LEVOW Examines building coherent systems to handle practical applications. Particular topics vary. Possible topics include information retrieval/extraction, natural language query systems, dialogue systems, augmentative and alternative communications, computer-assisted language learning, language documentation, spell/grammar checking, and software localization. Prerequisite: LING 570, LING 571, LING 572. Offered: Sp.

LING 575 Topics in Computational Linguistics (3, max. 30) BENDER, XIA In-depth study of a particular area of computational linguistics, with hands-on experience. Prerequisite: LING 570 and 571, or permission of instructor. Offered: WSP.

LING 579 Semantic Theory II (5) OGIHARA Advanced introduction to the formal semantics of natural language. Emphasizes the interface between syntax and semantics. Prerequisite: LING 542.

LING 580 Problems in Linguistics (2-4, max. 99.9) Advanced study in current theories of syntax, semantics, phonology, or morphology. Can be repeated for credit.

LING 581 Morphology (5) Explores the structure of words and the processes by which they are formed. Morphological processes in a wide variety of languages. Prerequisite: either LING 451, LING 551, or equivalent.

LING 582 Capturing Brain Dynamics: A Combined Neuroscience and Engineering Approach (4) A. LEE Introduces methods for capturing brain dynamics using an emerging neuroimaging technique known as magnetoencephalography (MEG). Uses techniques to examine perception and cognitive processes and their implications for future brain-computer-interface (BCI) design. Prepare students for interdisciplinary research in neuroscience and engineering. Offered: jointly with SPHSC 594; W.

LING 590 Graduate Fieldwork (1-10, max. 10) Individual consultation with faculty member and supervised practical experience in a broad range of industry, community, clinical settings dealing with linguistic issues. Offered: AWSpS.

LING 599 Linguistics Colloquium (1, max. 6) Seminar attended by faculty and graduate students to discuss research in progress and topics of general interest. Presentation of two seminars required for doctoral students. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

Mathematics

C138 Padelford

Mathematics is both a science and an art. Like any great art, mathematics has an intrinsic beauty and coherence that has attracted practitioners for centuries. Yet, unlike other arts, mathematics is a surprisingly effective tool for describing the natural world. Indeed, mathematics has come to serve as the foundation of modern science, through its language and results. Some mathematical results were initially developed in order to solve internally generated mathematical problems and only later found application in other disciplines; other mathematical results were inspired by the needs of these other disciplines. The two facets of mathematics -- tool of science and subject of inquiry for its own sake -- have come to be interwoven into a complex fabric.

The Department of Mathematics offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in mathematics -- standard program
- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in mathematics -- philosophy option
- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in mathematics, with an option designed specifically for students who plan to pursue secondary teaching careers
- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in mathematics -- standard program
- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in mathematics -- comprehensive option
- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in applied and computational mathematical sciences (ACMS). The Department of Mathematics cooperates with the departments of Applied Mathematics, Computer Science and Engineering, and Statistics in offering this major. (See ACMS for requirements.)
- A minor in mathematics

Bachelor of Arts

Department Admission Requirements

Admission Requirements for Standard Option and Philosophy Option:

A minimum 2.0 grade in the following courses: MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, and MATH 136); a minimum 2.20 cumulative GPA in these courses

Admission Requirements for Teacher Preparation Option:

A minimum 2.0 grade in MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, and MATH 136); a minimum 2.50 cumulative GPA in these courses.

Major Requirements

Standard Option (51 credits):

1. MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126, MATH 307, MATH 308 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, and MATH 136); MATH 300; MATH 324; and 8 courses numbered 301 or higher from an approved list of electives. See adviser for approved list.
2. A minimum 2.0 grade in all courses presented to satisfy the mathematics major requirements. A minimum 2.00 cumulative GPA or higher in all mathematics courses at the University, including course repeats.
3. At least 18 credits of graded mathematics courses numbered 300 or higher must be taken in residence at the University.

Philosophy Option (58 credits):

1. MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126, MATH 308 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, and MATH 136); MATH 300; MATH 327; MATH 328; five additional mathematics courses at the 300 or 400 level, including at least one two-quarter se-

- quence at the 400 level other than MATH 407, MATH 408, MATH 409, or MATH 421, MATH 422
- PHIL 120 or an upper-level course in logic; PHIL 100, PHIL 160, or PHIL 240; one philosophy course at the 300 level; one philosophy course at the 400 level
 - A minimum 2.0 grade in all courses presented to satisfy the mathematics major requirements. A minimum 2.00 cumulative GPA or higher in all mathematics courses at the University, including course repeats.
 - At least 18 credits of graded mathematics courses numbered 300 or higher taken in residence at the University.

Teacher Preparation Option (52-59 credits):

- MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126, MATH 307, MATH 308 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, and MATH 136); MATH 300; MATH 394, MATH 411, MATH 412, MATH 444, MATH 445; either STAT 311, MATH 390/STAT 390; or Q SCI 381; 15 credits of approved electives at the 300 level in MATH, AMATH, or STAT, or PHYS 407, PHYS 408, and PHYS 409. At least 6 credits of electives must be from the Mathematics Department.
- A minimum 2.0 grade in all courses presented to satisfy the mathematics major requirements. A minimum 2.50 cumulative GPA or higher in all mathematics courses at the University, including course repeats.
- At least 18 credits of graded mathematics courses numbered 300 or higher taken in residence at the University

Bachelor of Science

Department Admission Requirements

Standard Option: A minimum 2.0 grade in the following courses: MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, and MATH 136); a minimum 2.20 cumulative GPA in these courses.

Comprehensive Option: A minimum 2.0 grade in the following courses: MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126 (or MATH 134, MATH 135, and MATH 136); a minimum 2.50 cumulative GPA in these courses.

Major Requirements

Standard Option (66 credits):

- Elementary Mathematics Core (21 credits): MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126; MATH 300; MATH 324. (MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136 may be substituted for MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126, MATH 307, and MATH 308.)
- Intermediate Mathematics Core (9 credits): MATH 308; MATH 327, MATH 328. (MATH 334, MATH 335, MATH 336 may be substituted for MATH 300, MATH 309, MATH 324, MATH 327, and MATH 328.)
- Advanced Mathematics Core (21 credits): At least seven courses from the following, from at least three different areas, and including at least two two-quarter sequences:
 - Algebra:* MATH 402, MATH 403, MATH 404.
 - Analysis:* MATH 424, MATH 425, MATH 426.
 - Geometry:* MATH 441, MATH 442, MATH 443.
 - Other Analysis:* MATH 307, MATH 309; MATH 427, MATH 428.
 - Probability:* MATH 394, MATH 395, MATH 396; MATH 491, MATH 492.
 - Other Mathematics:* MATH 381; MATH 407, MATH 408, MATH 409; MATH 461, MATH 462; MATH 464, MATH 465, MATH 466.
- Electives (15 credits): Five additional mathematics courses, including a two-quarter sequence at the 300- or 400-level (teacher-preparation courses not allowed). With approval, two of the five courses may be chosen from appropriate courses offered by the departments of Applied Mathematics, Statistics, and Computer Science, or from certain other departments. Courses from the additional mathematics core sequences not used to fulfill core requirements can be used to fulfill the elective requirement.

- A minimum 2.0 grade in all courses presented to satisfy the mathematics major requirements. A minimum 2.00 cumulative GPA or higher in all mathematics courses at the University, including course repeats.
- At least 18 credits of graded mathematics courses numbered 300 or higher taken in residence at the University.

Comprehensive Option (69 credits):

Emphasizes the fundamental subjects of algebra, analysis, and geometry and is designed to provide a deep understanding of these basic areas of modern mathematics. Lays a good foundation for more advanced study. For this option, the grade, elementary core, and elective requirements remain unchanged, with the same substitutions permitted from the accelerated/Honors sequences. (Items 1, 2, 3, and 6 shown for the standard option, above.)

- Elementary Mathematics Core (21 credits): MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126; MATH 300; MATH 324. (MATH 134, MATH 135, MATH 136 may be substituted for MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126, MATH 307, and MATH 308.)
- Intermediate Mathematics Core (9 credits): MATH 308; MATH 327, MATH 328. (MATH 334, MATH 335, MATH 336 may be substituted for MATH 300, MATH 309, MATH 324, MATH 327, and MATH 328.)
- Advanced Mathematics Core (24 credits): At least eight courses from the following, including at least two in each of the first three areas. If only six courses are chosen from the first three areas, then the two courses chosen from the fourth area must form a two-quarter sequence:
 - Algebra:* MATH 402, MATH 403, MATH 404.
 - Analysis:* MATH 424, MATH 425, MATH 426.
 - Geometry:* MATH 441, MATH 442, MATH 443.
 - Other Analysis:* MATH 307, MATH 309; MATH 427, MATH 428.
- Electives (15 credits): Five additional mathematics courses, including a two-quarter sequence at the 300- or 400-level (teacher-preparation courses not allowed). With approval, two of the five courses may be chosen from appropriate courses offered by the departments of Applied Mathematics, Statistics, and Computer Science, or from certain other departments. Courses from the additional mathematics core sequences not used to fulfill core requirements can be used to fulfill the elective requirement.
- A minimum 2.0 grade in all courses presented to satisfy the mathematics major requirements. A minimum 2.50 cumulative GPA or higher in all mathematics courses at the University, including course repeats.
- At least 18 credits of graded mathematics courses numbered 300 or higher taken in residence at the University.

Continuation Policy

All students must make satisfactory academic progress in the major. Failure to do so results in probation, which can lead to dismissal from the major. For the complete continuation policy, contact the departmental adviser or refer to the department website.

Minor

Minor requirements (minimum 30 credits):

- Core (24-25 credits): MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126, MATH 307, MATH 308, and MATH 309; or MATH 134, MATH 135, and MATH 136 (25 credits, including 10 advanced-placement credits)

- Electives (6 credits): Mathematics courses numbered 301 or higher
- At least 9 credits of courses numbered 301 or higher taken in residence at the University. Minimum 2.0 grade required for each course offered as part of the minor.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The study of mathematics emphasizes exposure to the core foundational areas of analysis, modern algebra, and geometry. A mathematician's skill set includes the technical tools specific to each area as well as the development of critical thinking skills necessary for logical reasoning. Graduates have pursued careers in teaching, finance, science, engineering, and professional fields such as law and medicine.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: Mathematical Research Library and Math Sciences Computing Center
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors core curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: When available, internship opportunities are passed on to students.
- Department Scholarships: None offered.
- Student Organizations/Associations: MAA Student Chapter, Actuarial Club, Math Club.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Graduate Program Coordinator

(206) 543-6830

grads@math.washington.edu

The degrees of Master of Arts, Master of Science, and Doctor of Philosophy are offered. Opportunities are available within the department for study of abstract and applied mathematics for each of these degree programs. The Master of Arts degree is appropriate for students who need a broad background in advanced mathematics and who expect to continue working with mathematics of approximately the same level in their careers. The Master of Science degree is appropriate for students who expect to be working with more specialized mathematics of increasing order of complexity in their careers. The Doctor of Philosophy degree is the highest professional degree in mathematics. It is appropriate for students who plan on a career of research and/or teaching of mathematics at the highest levels.

Of the master's degrees, the MS non-thesis program has the most demanding course requirements and most closely matches the early stages of the PhD program. Most students who enroll in the department begin their studies with the PhD or MS non-thesis program in mind. The MS programs with options in numerical analysis or optimization provide more focused training in these directions, which can be useful for students seeking employment in certain industries; however, students intending to do research in these areas would normally follow the requirements of the PhD program. Note that the department does not offer a master's degree in mathematics education.

Master of Arts

Admission Requirements

Bachelor of Arts degree with major in mathematics or equivalent background (minimum of 45 quarter credits or 30 semester credits of mathematics beyond college algebra)

Degree Requirements

Master of Arts, Non-Thesis: Minimum twelve approved one-quarter courses at the 400 or 500 level, including two courses each in algebra, analysis, and one other field. The course total must include six courses chosen from the designated core graduate courses or, with prior approval of the Graduate Program Coordinator, from other 500-level sequences. The six courses at the 500 level should be distributed over no more than three sequences.

Written examination in an area agreed upon by the student and the chair of the examining committee. Oral examination may be substituted with prior approval of the Graduate Program Coordinator.

Master of Science

Admission Requirements

Bachelor of Science degree with major in mathematics, Bachelor of Arts degree with strong major in mathematics or equivalent background. In particular, at least one senior-level course in abstract algebra or real analysis is expected.

Degree Requirements

Master of Science, Thesis

A total of twelve numerically graded one-quarter courses from MATH 402, MATH 403, MATH 404; MATH 424, MATH 425, MATH 426; MATH 427, MATH 428, MATH 429; MATH 441, MATH 442, MATH 443; any 500-level mathematics course; AMATH 507; AMATH 584, AMATH 585, AMATH 586; plus 9 thesis credits (MATH 700). Other courses may be included in the total with prior approval of the Graduate Program Coordinator. Courses to include at least two quarters from each of two designated core graduate courses and one other 500-level sequence. Transfer credits are not accepted at the 400 level; other transfer credits and substitutions are at the discretion of the Graduate Program Coordinator.

The thesis, which is defended in an oral examination, should demonstrate the ability to do independent research.

Master of Science, Non-Thesis

A total of fifteen numerically graded one-quarter courses from MATH 402, MATH 403, MATH 404; MATH 424, MATH 425, MATH 426; MATH 427, MATH 428, MATH 429; MATH 441, MATH 442, MATH 443; any 500-level mathematics course; AMATH 507; AMATH 584, AMATH 585, AMATH 586. Other courses may be included in the total with prior approval of the Graduate Program Coordinator. Courses to include at least two quarters from each of three designated core graduate courses, and in addition one three-quarter sequence of 500-level mathematics courses in an area of specialization approved by the Graduate Program Coordinator and the chair of the student's examining committee.

Oral examination in the area of specialization on a topic agreed upon by the student and the chair of the examining committee, or the general examination for the PhD degree.

Master of Science, Numerical Analysis and Optimization Options, Non-thesis

A total of fifteen one-quarter courses, at least six of which are at the 500 level, chosen from MATH 424, MATH 425, MATH 426; MATH 427, MATH 428, MATH 429; MATH 438, MATH 439; MATH 441, MATH 442, MATH 443; MATH 461, MATH 462; MATH 491, MATH 492; any 500-level mathematics course; AMATH 507; AMATH 584, AMATH 585, AMATH 586. Other courses may be included in the total with prior approval of the Graduate Program Coordinator. Courses to include four from AMATH 584, AMATH 585, AMATH 586 and MATH 594, MATH 595, and MATH 596.

Oral examination in a special topic agreed upon by the student and the chair of the student's examining committee.

Doctor of Philosophy

Admission Requirements

Mathematical training equivalent to a bachelor's degree with strong major in mathematics, including rigorous coursework in real analysis and abstract algebra.

Degree Requirements

90 credits minimum, as follows:

1. Courses: Six three-quarter sequences numbered 500 or above or equivalent, including three sequences from the department's list of core graduate courses. The list of core courses includes MATH 504, MATH 505, MATH 506; MATH 524, MATH 525, MATH 526; MATH 534, MATH 535, MATH 536; MATH 544, MATH 545, MATH 546; MATH 554, MATH 555, MATH 556. At least two sequences from this list must be satisfactorily completed during year one, and the third must be satisfactorily completed by the end of year two. A student may substitute a passing performance in a preliminary examination for satisfactory completion of the corresponding designated core course.
2. Preliminary Examinations: Pass three preliminary examinations by September of the beginning of the third year.
3. Foreign Language/Computer Requirement: Pass either two foreign language examinations or one foreign language examination and a computer programming examination. A PhD student is expected to pass one language or computer examination by the end of summer quarter after the second year, and the second by the end of summer quarter after the third year.
4. General Examination: An oral examination on a special area of intended research, given by a committee after the student has passed the preliminary examinations and the language examinations. This examination can be given only after two years of graduate study. Normally, it should be taken by the middle of the student's fourth year. Thesis: An original contribution to knowledge. 27 credits of MATH 800 required.
5. Final Examination: An oral exam given by a committee headed by the thesis supervisor.

Financial Support

Most graduate students in mathematics are supported by fellowships, research assistantships, and teaching assistantships. The workload of teaching assistants allows ample time for graduate courses and thesis work.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at www.uw.edu/students/crscat/

MATH 098 Intermediate Algebra (0) Intermediate algebra equivalent to third semester of high school algebra. Includes linear equations and models, linear systems in two variables, quadratic equations, completing the square, graphing parabolas, inequalities, working with roots and radicals, distance formula, functions and graphs, exponential and logarithmic functions. Instruction provided by community colleges on UW campus. Extra fee required. Offered: AWSp.

MATH 100 Algebra (5) Similar to the first three terms of high school algebra. Assumes no previous experience in algebra. Open only to students [1] in the Educational Opportunity Program or [2] admitted with an entrance deficiency in mathematics. Offered: AWSp.

MATH 102 Algebra (5) Similar to the first three terms of high school algebra. Assumes no previous experience in algebra. Open only to students [1] in the Educational Opportunity Program or [2] admitted with an entrance deficiency in mathematics. Prerequisite: MATH 100. Offered: AWSp.

MATH 103 Introduction to Elementary Functions (5) Continues the study of algebra begun in MATH 100 and MATH 102 with emphasis on functions (polynomial, rational, logarithmic, exponential, and trigonometric). Open only to students who have completed MATH 102. Prerequisite: MATH 102. Offered: AWSp.

MATH 111 Algebra with Applications (5) NW, QSR Use of graphs and algebraic functions as found in business and economics. Algebraic and graphical manipulations to solve problems. Exponential and logarithm functions; various applications to growth of money. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 098, MATH 102, or MATH 103, a score of 147-150 on the MPT-GS placement test, or a score of 144-163 on the MPT-AS placement test. Offered: AWS.

MATH 112 Application of Calculus to Business and Economics (5) NW, QSR Rates of change, tangent, derivative, accumulation, area, integrals in specific contexts, particularly economics. Techniques of differentiation and integration. Application to problem solving. Optimization. Credit does not apply toward a mathematics major. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 111. Offered: WSp.

MATH 120 Precalculus (5) NW Basic properties of functions, graphs; with emphasis on linear, quadratic, trigonometric, exponential functions and their inverses. Emphasis on multi-step problem solving. Prerequisite: either a minimum grade of 2.5 in MATH 098, minimum grade of 3.0 in MATH 103, a score of 151-169 on the MPT-GS placement test, or score of 145-153 on the MPT-AS placement test. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 124 Calculus with Analytic Geometry I (5) NW, QSR First quarter in calculus of functions of a single variable. Emphasizes differential calculus. Emphasizes applications and problem solving using the tools of calculus. Prerequisite: either a minimum grade of 2.5 in MATH 120, a score of 154-163 on the MPT-AS placement test, or score of 2 on AP test. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 125 Calculus with Analytic Geometry II (5) NW Second quarter in the calculus of functions of a single variable. Emphasizes integral calculus. Emphasizes applications and problem solving using the tools of calculus. Prerequisite: either minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 124, score of 3 on AB advanced placement test, or score of 3 on BC advanced placement test. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 126 Calculus with Analytic Geometry III (5) NW Third quarter in calculus sequence. Introduction to Taylor polynomials and Taylor series, vector geometry in three dimensions, introduction to multivariable differential calculus, double integrals in Cartesian and polar coordinates. Prerequisite: either a minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 125, a score of 5 on AB advanced placement test, or a score of 4 on BC advanced placement test. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 134 Accelerated [Honors] Calculus (5) NW, QSR Covers the material of MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126; MATH 307, MATH 308. First year of a two-year accelerated sequence. May receive advanced placement (AP) credit for MATH 124 after taking MATH 134. For students with above average preparation, interest, and ability in mathematics. Offered: A.

MATH 135 Accelerated [Honors] Calculus (5) NW Covers the material of MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126; MATH 307, MATH 308. First year of a two-year accelerated sequence. May receive advanced placement (AP) credit for MATH 125 after taking MATH 135. For students with above average preparation, interest, and ability in mathematics. Offered: W.

MATH 136 Accelerated [Honors] Calculus (5) NW Covers the material of MATH 124, MATH 125, MATH 126; MATH

307, MATH 308. First year of a two-year accelerated sequence. May not receive credit for both MATH 126 and MATH 136. For students with above average preparation, interest, and ability in mathematics. Offered: Sp.

MATH 197 Problem Solving in Mathematics (2, max. 4) NW Lectures and problem sessions in mathematics with applications. Enrollment restricted to EOP students only. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSp.

MATH 198 Special Topics in Mathematics (1-5, max. 15) Independent reading in math. Does not count as credit toward a math major. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 300 Introduction to Mathematical Reasoning (3) NW Mathematical arguments and the writing of proofs in an elementary setting. Elementary set theory, elementary examples of functions and operations on functions, the principle of induction, counting, elementary number theory, elementary combinatorics, recurrence relations. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 125 or MATH 135. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 301 Elementary Number Theory (3) NW Brief introduction to some of the fundamental ideas of elementary number theory. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 126 or MATH 136.

MATH 307 Introduction to Differential Equations (3) NW Introductory course in ordinary differential equations. Includes first- and second-order equations and Laplace transform. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 125. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 308 Matrix Algebra with Applications (3) NW Systems of linear equations, vector spaces, matrices, subspaces, orthogonality, least squares, eigenvalues, eigenvectors, applications. For students in engineering, mathematics, and the sciences. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 126. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 309 Linear Analysis (3) NW First order systems of linear differential equations, Fourier series and partial differential equations, and the phase plane. Prerequisite: either a minimum grade of 2.0 in both MATH 307 and MATH 308 or minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 136. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 324 Advanced Multivariable Calculus I (3) NW Topics include double and triple integrals, the chain rule, vector fields, line and surface integrals. Culminates in the theorems of Green and Stokes, along with the Divergence Theorem. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 126 or MATH 136. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 327 Introductory Real Analysis I (3) NW Limits and continuity of functions, sequences, series tests, absolute convergence, uniform convergence. Power series, improper integrals, uniform continuity, fundamental theorems on continuous functions, theory of the Riemann integral. Prerequisite: either a minimum grade of 2.0 in both MATH 126 and MATH 300, or minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 136. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 328 Introductory Real Analysis II (3) NW Limits and continuity of functions, sequences, series tests, absolute convergence, uniform convergence. Power series, improper integrals, uniform continuity, fundamental theorems on continuous functions, theory of the Riemann integral. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 327. Offered: WSpS.

MATH 334 Accelerated [Honors] Advanced Calculus (5) NW Introduction to proofs and rigor; uniform convergence, Fourier series and partial differential equations, vector calculus, complex variables. Students who complete this sequence are not required to take MATH 300, MATH 309, MATH 324, MATH 327, MATH 328, and MATH 427. Second year of an accelerated two-year sequence; prepares students for senior-level mathematics courses. Prerequisite: either minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 136, or minimum grade of 2.0 in both MATH 126 and MATH 307 and MATH 308. Offered: A.

MATH 335 Accelerated [Honors] Advanced Calculus (5) NW Introduction to proofs and rigor; uniform convergence, Fourier series and partial differential equations, vector calculus, complex variables. Students who complete this sequence are not required to take MATH 300, MATH 309, MATH 324, MATH 327, MATH 328, and MATH 427. Second year of an accelerated two-year sequence; prepares students for senior-level mathematics courses. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 334. Offered: W.

MATH 336 Accelerated [Honors] Advanced Calculus (5) NW Introduction to proofs and rigor; uniform convergence, Fourier series and partial differential equations, vector calculus, complex variables. Students who complete this sequence are not required to take MATH 300, MATH 309, MATH 324, MATH 327, MATH 328, and MATH 427. Second year of an accelerated two-year sequence; prepares students for senior-level mathematics courses. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 335. Offered: Sp.

MATH 340 Abstract Linear Algebra (3) NW

MATH 380 Intermediate Topics in Undergraduate Mathematics (3, max. 12) NW Covers intermediate topics in undergraduate mathematics.

MATH 381 Discrete Mathematical Modeling (3) NW Introduction to methods of discrete mathematics, including topics from graph theory, network flows, and combinatorics. Emphasis on these tools to formulate models and solve problems arising in variety of applications, such as computer science, biology, and management science. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 136, MATH 308, or MATH 318. Offered: AWS.

MATH 390 Probability and Statistics in Engineering and Science (4) NW Concepts of probability and statistics. Conditional probability, independence, random variables, distribution functions. Descriptive statistics, transformations, sampling errors, confidence intervals, least squares and maximum likelihood. Exploratory data analysis and interactive computing. Students may receive credit for only one of STAT 390, STAT 481/ECON 481, and ECON 580. Prerequisite: either MATH 126 or MATH 136. Offered: jointly with STAT 390; AWSpS.

MATH 394 Probability I (3) NW Sample spaces; basic axioms of probability; combinatorial probability; conditional probability and independence; binomial, Poisson, and normal distributions. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 126 or MATH 136; recommended: either MATH 324 or MATH 327. Offered: jointly with STAT 394; AWS.

MATH 395 Probability II (3) NW Random variables; expectation and variance; laws of large numbers; normal approximation and other limit theorems; multidimensional distributions and transformations. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in STAT/MATH 394. Offered: jointly with STAT 395; WSpS.

MATH 396 Probability III (3) NW Characteristic functions and generating functions; recurrent events and renewal theory; random walk. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 395 or STAT 395. Offered: jointly with STAT 396; Sp.

MATH 398 Special Topics in Mathematics (1-5, max. 15) Independent reading in math. Does not count as credit toward a math major. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 402 Introduction to Modern Algebra (3) NW Elementary theory of groups: Cosets and Lagrange's theorem. Homomorphisms, normal subgroups, quotient groups, and the fundamental isomorphism theorems. Cyclic and symmetric groups. Orders and Cauchy's theorem. Direct products. Automorphisms. Prerequisite: minimum grade of either 2.0 MATH 136, MATH 327, MATH 336, or MATH 340. Offered: AS.

MATH 403 Introduction to Modern Algebra (3) NW Elementary theory of rings and fields: polynomial rings. Ideals, homomorphisms, quotients, and fundamental isomorphism theorems. Fields and maximal ideals. Euclidean rings. Field extensions. Algebraic extensions. Vector spaces and degrees of extensions. Adjoining roots of polynomials. Finite fields. Straight edge and compass constructions. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 402. Offered: W.

MATH 404 Introduction to Modern Algebra (3) NW Topics in algebra chosen from Galois theory, theory of modules, geometric group actions, and the theory of rings and fields. Specific content determined by instructor. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 403. Offered: Sp.

MATH 407 Linear Optimization (3) NW Maximization and minimization of linear functions subject to constraints consisting of linear equations and inequalities; linear programming and mathematical modeling. Simplex method, elementary games and duality. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 136, MATH 308, or MATH 352. Offered: AWS.

MATH 408 Nonlinear Optimization (3) NW Maximization and minimization of nonlinear functions, constrained and unconstrained; nonlinear programming problems and methods. Lagrange multipliers; Kuhn-Tucker conditions, convexity. Quadratic programming. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 308 or MATH 318; minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 327 or MATH 334. Offered: W.

MATH 409 Discrete Optimization (3) NW Maximization and minimization problems in graphs and networks (shortest paths, minimum spanning trees, maximum flows, minimum cost flows); transportation and trans-shipment problems, NP-completeness. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 407. Offered: Sp.

MATH 411 Introduction to Modern Algebra for Teachers (3) NW Basic concepts of abstract algebra with an emphasis on problem solving, constructing proofs, and communication of mathematical ideas. Designed for teaching majors; not open for credit to students who have taken MATH 402, MATH 403. Cannot be used as elective credit for either BS program in mathematics. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 136 or MATH 308. Offered: AS.

MATH 412 Introduction to Modern Algebra for Teachers (3) NW Basic concepts of abstract algebra with an emphasis on problem solving, constructing proofs, and communication of mathematical ideas. Designed for teaching majors; not open for credit to students who have taken MATH 402, MATH 403. Cannot be used as elective credit for either BS program in mathematics. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 411. Offered: WS.

MATH 420 History of Mathematics (3) NW Survey of the development of mathematics from its earliest beginnings through the first half of the twentieth century. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 126. Offered: S.

MATH 424 Fundamental Concepts of Analysis (3) NW The real number system; field, order, and LUB axioms. Metric spaces: Euclidean space. Bolzano-Weierstrass property. Sequences and limits of sequences. Cauchy sequences and completeness. The Heine-Borel Theorem. Uniform continuity. Connected sets and the intermediate value theorem. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 328 or MATH 335. Offered: A.

MATH 425 Fundamental Concepts of Analysis (3) NW One-variable differential calculus: chain rule, inverse function theorem, Rolle's theorem, intermediate value theorem, Taylor's theorem, and intermediate value theorem for derivatives. Multivariable differential calculus: mean value theorem, inverse and implicit function theorems, and Lagrange multipliers. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in both MATH 308 and MATH 424; minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 324 or MATH 335. Offered: W.

MATH 426 Fundamental Concepts of Analysis (3) NW Lebesgue measure on the reals. Construction of the Lebesgue integral and its basic properties. Monotone Convergence Theorem, Fatou's Lemma, and Dominated Convergence Theorem. Integration of series. Continuity and differentiability theorems for functions defined by integrals. Introduction to general measures and integration. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 425. Offered: Sp.

MATH 427 Complex Analysis (3) NW Complex numbers; analytic functions; sequences and series; complex integration; Cauchy integral formula; Taylor and Laurent series; uniform convergence; residue theory; conformal mapping. Topics chosen from: Fourier series and integrals, Laplace transforms, infinite products, complex dynamics; additional topics chose by instructor. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 327 or MATH 335; recommended: MATH 328. Offered: AS.

MATH 428 Complex Analysis (3) NW Continuation of MATH 427. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 427. Offered: W.

MATH 441 Topology (3) NW Metric and topological spaces, convergence, continuity, finite products, connectedness, and compactness. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 328 or MATH 335. Offered: AS.

MATH 442 Differential Geometry (3) NW Curves in 3-space, continuity and differentiability in 3-space, surfaces, tangent planes, first fundamental form, area, orientation, the Gauss Map. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 335 or both MATH 326 and MATH 328; minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 308 or MATH 318. Offered: W.

MATH 443 Topics in Topology and Geometry (3) NW Content selected from such topics as homotopy theory, topological surfaces, advanced differential geometry, projective geometry, hyperbolic geometry, spherical geometry, and combinatorial geometry. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 442. Offered: Sp.

MATH 444 Geometry for Teachers (3) NW Concepts of geometry from multiple approaches; discovery, formal and informal reasoning, transformations, coordinates, exploration using computers and models. Topics selected from Euclidean plane and space geometry, spherical geometry, non-Euclidean geometries, fractal geometry. Designed for teaching majors. Cannot be used as elective credit for either BS program in mathematics. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 126; minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 136 or MATH 308; minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 300. Offered: WS.

MATH 445 Geometry for Teachers (3) NW Concepts of geometry from multiple approaches; discovery, formal and informal reasoning, transformations, coordinates, exploration using computers and models. Topics selected from Euclidean plane and space geometry, spherical geometry, non-Euclidean geometries, fractal geometry. Designed for teaching majors. Cannot be used as elective credit for either BS program in mathematics. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 444. Offered: SpS.

MATH 461 Combinatorial Theory (3) NW Selected topics from among: block designs and finite geometries, coding theory, generating functions and other enumeration methods, graph theory, matroid theory, combinatorial algorithms, applications of combinatorics. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 308. Offered: A.

MATH 462 Combinatorial Theory (3) NW Selected topics from among: block designs and finite geometries, coding theory, generating functions and other enumeration methods, graph theory, matroid theory, combinatorial algorithms, applications of combinatorics. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in MATH 461. Offered: W.

MATH 464 Numerical Analysis I (3) NW Basic principles of numerical analysis, classical interpolation and approximation formulas, finite differences and difference equations. Numerical methods in algebra, systems of linear equations, matrix inversion, successive approximations, iterative and relaxation methods. Numerical differentiation and integration. Solution of differential equations and systems of such equations. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 136, MATH 308, or MATH 335 Offered: A.

MATH 465 Numerical Analysis II (3) NW Basic principles of numerical analysis, classical interpolation and approximation formulas, finite differences and difference equations. Numerical methods in algebra, systems of linear equations, matrix inversion, successive approximations, iterative and relaxation methods. Numerical differentiation and integration. Solution of differential equations and systems of such equations. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 136, MATH 308, or MATH 335. Offered: W.

MATH 466 Numerical Analysis III (3) NW Basic principles of numerical analysis, classical interpolation and approximation formulas, finite differences and difference equations. Numerical methods in algebra, systems of linear equations, matrix inversion, successive approximations, iterative and relaxation methods. Numerical differentiation and integration. Solution of differential equations and systems of such equations. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 136, both MATH 307 and MATH 308, or MATH 335.

MATH 480 Advanced Topics in Undergraduate Mathematics (3, max. 12) Covers advanced topics in undergraduate mathematics.

MATH 491 Introduction to Stochastic Processes (3) NW Random walks, Markov chains, branching processes, Poisson process, point processes, birth and death processes, queuing theory, stationary processes. Prerequisite: minimum grade of 2.0 in either MATH 395 or STAT 395. Offered: jointly with STAT 491; A.

MATH 492 Stochastic Calculus for Option Pricing (3) NW Introductory stochastic calculus mathematical foundation for pricing options and derivatives. Basic stochastic analysis tools, including stochastic integrals, stochastic differential equations, Ito's formula, theorems of Girsanov and Feynman-Kac, Black-Scholes option pricing, American and exotic options, bond options. Prerequisite: either MATH 394 or STAT 394; either MATH 395 or STAT 395. Offered: jointly with STAT 492; W.

MATH 496 Honors Senior Thesis (1-5) NW Problem seminar for Honors students. Cannot be repeated for credit. Offered: AWSp.

MATH 498 Special Topics in Mathematics (1-5, max. 15) Reading and lecture course intended for special needs of advanced students. Offered: AWSpS.

MATH 499 Undergraduate Research (8) NW Summer research opportunity for undergraduates. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: S.

MATH 504 Modern Algebra (5) First quarter of a three-quarter sequence covering group theory; field theory and Galois theory; commutative rings and modules, linear algebra, theory of forms; representation theory, associative rings and modules; commutative algebra and elementary algebraic geometry. Prerequisite: MATH 404 or equivalent.

MATH 505 Modern Algebra (5) Continuation of MATH 504. Prerequisite: MATH 504.

MATH 506 Modern Algebra (5) Continuation of MATH 505. Prerequisite: MATH 505.

MATH 507 Algebraic Geometry (3) First quarter of a two-quarter sequence covering the basic theory of affine and projective varieties, rings of functions, the Hilbert Nullstellensatz, localization, and dimension; the theory of algebraic curves, divisors, cohomology, genus, and the Riemann-Roch theorem; and related topics. Prerequisite: MATH 506.

MATH 508 Algebraic Geometry (3) Continuation of MATH 507. Prerequisite: MATH 507.

MATH 509 Theory of Optimal Control (3) Trajectories from ordinary differential equations with control variables. Controllability, optimality, maximum principle. Relaxation and existence of solutions. Techniques of nonsmooth analysis. Prerequisite: real analysis on the level of MATH 426; background in optimization corresponding to MATH 515. Offered: jointly with AMATH 509.

MATH 510 Seminar in Algebra (2-5, max. 12) Prerequisite: permission of Graduate Program Coordinator. Credit/no-credit only.

MATH 514 Networks and Combinatorial Optimization (3) Mathematical foundations of combinatorial and network optimization with an emphasis on structure and algorithms with proofs. Topics include combinatorial and geometric methods for optimization of network flows, matching, traveling salesmen problem, cuts, and stable sets on graphs. Special emphasis on connections to linear and integer programming, duality theory, total unimodularity, and matroids. Prerequisite: either MATH 308 or AMATH 352 any additional 400-level mathematics course. Offered: jointly with AMATH 514.

MATH 515 Fundamentals of Optimization (5) Maximization and minimization of functions of finitely many variables subject to constraints. Basic problem types and examples of applications; linear, convex, smooth, and nonsmooth programming. Optimality conditions. Saddlepoints and dual problems. Penalties, decomposition. Overview of computational approaches. Prerequisite: linear algebra and advanced calculus. Offered: jointly with AMATH 515/IND E 515.

MATH 516 Numerical Optimization (3) Methods of solving optimization problems in finitely many variables, with or without constraints. Steepest descent, quasi-Newton methods. Quadratic programming and complementarity. Exact penalty methods, multiplier methods. Sequential quadratic programming. Cutting planes and nonsmooth optimization. Prerequisite: MATH 515. Offered: jointly with AMATH 516.

MATH 521 Advanced Probability (3) Measure theory and integration, independence, laws of large numbers. Fourier analysis of distributions, central limit problem and infinitely divisible laws, conditional expectations, martingales. Prerequisite: either MATH 426 or MATH 576. Offered: jointly with STAT 521; A.

MATH 522 Advanced Probability (3) Measure theory and integration, independence, laws of large numbers. Fourier analysis of distributions, central limit problem and infinitely divisible laws, conditional expectations, martingales. Prerequisite: either MATH 426 or MATH 576. Offered: jointly with STAT 522; W.

MATH 523 Advanced Probability (3) Measure theory and integration, independence, laws of large numbers. Fourier analysis of distributions, central limit problem and infinitely divisible laws, conditional expectations, martingales. Prerequisite: either MATH 426 or MATH 576. Offered: jointly with STAT 523; Sp.

MATH 524 Real Analysis (5) First quarter of a three-quarter sequence covering the theory of measure and integration, point set topology, Banach spaces, L_p spaces, applications to the theory of functions of one and several real variables. Additional topics to be chosen by instructor. Prerequisite: MATH 426 or equivalent.

MATH 525 Real Analysis (5) Continuation of MATH 524. Prerequisite: MATH 524.

MATH 526 Real Analysis (5) Continuation of MATH 525. Prerequisite: MATH 525.

MATH 527 Functional Analysis (3) First quarter of a three-quarter sequence. Review of Banach, Hilbert, and L_p spaces; locally convex spaces (duality and separation theory, distributions, and function spaces); operators on locally convex spaces (adjoints, closed graph/open mapping and Banach-Steinhaus theorems); Banach algebras (spectral theory, elementary applications); spectral theorem for Hilbert space operators. Additional topics chosen by instructor. A working knowledge of real variables, general topology, and complex variables is assumed.

MATH 528 Functional Analysis (3) Continuation of MATH 527. Prerequisite: MATH 527.

MATH 529 Functional Analysis (3) Continuation of MATH 528. Prerequisite: MATH 528.

MATH 530 Seminar in Analysis (2-5, max. 12) Prerequisite: permission of graduate program coordinator. Credit/no-credit only.

MATH 534 Complex Analysis (5) First quarter of a three-quarter sequence covering complex numbers, analytic functions, contour integration, power series, analytic continuation, sequences of analytic functions, conformal mapping of simply connected regions, and related topics. Prerequisite: MATH 426.

MATH 535 Complex Analysis (5) Continuation of MATH 534. Prerequisite: MATH 534.

MATH 536 Complex Analysis (5) Continuation of MATH 535. Prerequisite: MATH 535.

MATH 544 Topology and Geometry of Manifolds (5) First quarter of a three-quarter sequence covering general topology, the fundamental group, covering spaces, topological and differentiable manifolds, vector fields, flows, the Frobenius theorem, Lie groups, homogeneous spaces, tensor fields, differential forms, Stokes's theorem, deRham cohomology. Prerequisite: MATH 404 and MATH 426 or equivalent.

MATH 545 Topology and Geometry of Manifolds (5) Continuation of MATH 544. Prerequisite: MATH 544.

MATH 546 Topology and Geometry of Manifolds (5) Continuation of MATH 545. Prerequisite: MATH 545.

MATH 547 Geometric Structures (3, max. 9) First quarter of a three-quarter sequence covering differential-geometric structures on manifolds, Riemannian metrics, geodesics, covariant differentiation, curvature, Jacobi fields, Gauss-Bonnet theorem. Additional topics to be chosen by the instructor, such as connections in vector bundles and principal bundles, symplectic geometry, Riemannian comparison theorems, symmetric spaces, symplectic geometry, complex manifolds, Hodge theory. Prerequisite: MATH 546.

MATH 548 Geometric Structures (3, max. 9) Continuation of MATH 547. Prerequisite: MATH 547.

MATH 549 Geometric Structures (3, max. 9) Continuation of MATH 548. Prerequisite: MATH 548.

MATH 550 Seminar in Geometry (2-5, max. 12) Prerequisite: permission of Graduate Program Coordinator. Credit/no-credit only.

MATH 554 Linear Analysis (5) First quarter of a three-quarter sequence covering advanced linear algebra and matrix analysis, ordinary differential equations (existence and uniqueness theory, linear systems, numerical approximations), Fourier analysis, introductions to functional analysis and partial differential equations, distribution theory. Prerequisite: MATH 426 and familiarity with complex analysis at the level of MATH 427 (the latter may be obtained concurrently).

MATH 555 Linear Analysis (5) Continuation of MATH 554. Prerequisite: MATH 554.

MATH 556 Linear Analysis (5) Continuation of MATH 555. Prerequisite: MATH 555.

MATH 557 Introduction to Partial Differential Equations (3) First quarter of a three-quarter sequence. Reviews the theory of distribution theory, weak derivatives, and Fourier transform; Laplace, heat, wave, Schrodinger equations; and notion of Euler-Lagrange equation and variational derivative. Prerequisite: either MATH 526 or MATH 556.

MATH 558 Introduction to Partial Differential Equations (3) Continuation of MATH 557. Covers Sobolev spaces; boundary value problems; additional topics may include: Cauchy-Kowalewski theorem, first order equations, initial value problems, and variational methods. Prerequisite: MATH 557.

MATH 559 Introduction to Partial Differential Equations (3) Continuation of MATH 558. Covers selected topics such as: introduction to microlocal analysis, Lax parame-trix construction, Schauder estimates, Calderson-Zygmund theory, energy methods, and boundary regularity on rough domains. Prerequisite: MATH 558.

MATH 564 Algebraic Topology (3) First quarter of a three-quarter sequence covering classical and modern approaches; complexes and their homology theory; applications; fixed points, products and Poincare duality; axiomatic approach. Prerequisite: MATH 506 and MATH 544, or equivalent.

MATH 565 Algebraic Topology (3) Continuation of MATH 564. Prerequisite: MATH 564.

MATH 566 Algebraic Topology (3) Continuation of MATH 565. Prerequisite: MATH 565.

MATH 570 Seminar in Topology (2-5, max. 12) Prerequisite: permission of graduate program coordinator. Credit/no-credit only.

MATH 574 Fundamental Concepts of Analysis (3) Sets, real numbers, topology of metric spaces, normed linear spaces, multivariable calculus from an advanced viewpoint. Introduction to Lebesgue measure and integration. Intended for students in biostatistics and related fields; does not fulfill requirements for degrees in mathematics.

MATH 575 Fundamental Concepts of Analysis (3) Sets, real numbers, topology of metric spaces, normed linear spaces, multivariable calculus from an advanced viewpoint. Introduction to Lebesgue measure and integration. Intended for students in biostatistics and related fields; does not fulfill requirements for degrees in mathematics.

MATH 576 Fundamental Concepts of Analysis (3) Sets, real numbers, topology of metric spaces, normed linear spaces, multivariable calculus from an advanced viewpoint. Introduction to Lebesgue measure and integration. Intended for students in biostatistics and related fields; does not fulfill requirements for degrees in mathematics.

MATH 577 Lie Groups and Lie Algebras (3, max. 9) Topics chosen from: root systems and reflection groups; the structure, classification, and representation theory of complex semisimple Lie algebras, compact Lie groups, or semisimple Lie groups; algebraic groups; enveloping algebras; infinite-dimensional representation theory of Lie groups and Lie algebras; harmonic analysis on Lie groups. Prerequisite: MATH 506; MATH 526 or MATH 546.

MATH 578 Lie Groups and Lie Algebras (3, max. 9) Topics chosen from: root systems and reflection groups; the structure, classification, and representation theory of complex semisimple Lie algebras, compact Lie groups, or semisimple Lie groups; algebraic groups; enveloping algebras; infinite-dimensional representation theory of Lie groups and Lie algebras; harmonic analysis on Lie groups. Prerequisite: MATH 506; MATH 526 or MATH 546.

MATH 579 Lie Groups and Lie Algebras (3, max. 9) Topics chosen from: root systems and reflection groups; the structure, classification, and representation theory of complex semisimple Lie algebras, compact Lie groups, or semisimple Lie groups; algebraic groups; enveloping algebras; infinite-dimensional representation theory of Lie groups and Lie algebras; harmonic analysis on Lie groups. Prerequisite: MATH 506; MATH 526 or MATH 546.

MATH 580 Current Topics in Mathematics (2, max. 12) Discussion of current research topics in mathematics, with emphasis on current departmental research projects and interests. Offered: AWSp.

MATH 581 Special Topics in Mathematics (1-5, max. 36) Advanced topics in various areas of mathematics. Offered: A.

MATH 582 Special Topics in Mathematics (1-5, max. 36) Advanced topics in various areas of mathematics. Offered: W.

MATH 583 Special Topics in Mathematics (1-5, max. 36) Advanced topics in various areas of mathematics. Offered: Sp.

MATH 584 Applied Linear Algebra and Introductory Numerical Analysis (5) Numerical methods for solving linear systems of equations, linear least squares problems, matrix eigen value problems, nonlinear systems of equations, interpolation, quadrature, and initial value ordinary differential equations. Prerequisite: either a course in linear algebra or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with AMATH 584; A.

MATH 585 Numerical Analysis of Boundary Value Problems (5) Numerical methods for steady-state differential equations. Two-point boundary value problems and elliptic equations. Iterative methods for sparse symmetric and non-symmetric linear systems: conjugate-gradients, preconditioners. Prerequisite: either AMATH 581, AMATH 584/MATH 584, or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with AMATH 585; W.

MATH 586 Numerical Analysis of Time Dependent Problems (5) Numerical methods for time-dependent differential equations, including explicit and implicit methods for hyperbolic and parabolic equations. Stability, accuracy, and convergence theory. Spectral and pseudospectral methods. Prerequisite: either AMATH 581, AMATH 584/MATH 584, AMATH 585/MATH 585, or permission of instructor. Offered: jointly with AMATH 586/ATM S 581; Sp.

MATH 590 Seminar in Probability (2-5, max. 12) Prerequisite: permission of instructor. Credit/no-credit only.

MATH 597 Seminar on Teaching Math (1, max. 3) Issues in the teaching and learning of college mathematics, such as discovering and working with student background and expectations, increasing student engagement with course material, and evaluating student achievement. For graduate students who are, or soon will be, teaching mathematics courses on their own. Credit/no-credit only.

Microbiology

K-335A Health Sciences

Microbiology is a natural science that deals with microorganisms such as bacteria, fungi, protozoa, algae, and viruses. It is concerned with the nature and properties of these organisms, their effects on humans and the environment, and how they can be exploited to provide useful products.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

K-335A Health Sciences, Box 357242

(206) 543-2572

advmicro@uw.edu

The Department of Microbiology offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in microbiology
- A minor in microbiology

Bachelor of Science

Suggested First- and Second-Year Courses: PHYS 114, PHYS 115, PHYS 116, or PHYS 121, PHYS 122, PHYS 123; one of the following: MATH 112, MATH 124, MATH 144, Q SCI 381, or STAT 311.

MICROM 410, the first microbiology course for majors, is taken after completion of BIOL 200 and organic chemistry (CHEM 223 or CHEM 237). To graduate in four years, a student must complete introductory biology and organic chemistry before autumn quarter of the junior year.

MICROM 101, MICROM 301, and MICROM 302, offered to non-majors, serve as introductory courses, but cannot be used to fulfill graduation requirements for a major in microbiology. MICROM 301 is a prerequisite for students applying to nursing, physical therapy, or dental school.

Department Admission Requirements

1. A minimum of 75 credits applicable to graduation, with a minimum overall cumulative GPA of 2.00.
2. Completion of the following prerequisite courses with a minimum cumulative GPA of 2.25: BIOL 180, BIOL 200, BIOL 220; CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162; CHEM 223 or CHEM 237.

Major Requirements

Minimum 90 credits (including microbiology courses) in the biological, physical, and mathematical sciences, as follows:

1. BIOL 180, BIOL 200, BIOL 220, or equivalent (15 credits/one year)
2. Inorganic Chemistry: CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162 (16 credits) (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155); Organic chemistry: CHEM 223, CHEM 237, or CHEM 335
3. Core Courses (8 credits): MICROM 402; MICROM 410; MICROM 496
4. Distribution: 15 credits from the following, to include at least one course in each distribution group and a minimum of two courses with a laboratory component.
 - a. Medical Microbiology: IMMUN 441, MICROM 442, MICROM 443, or MICROM 444.
 - b. Virology: MICROM 445 or MICROM 450
 - c. Diversity and Ecology: MICROM 412 or MICROM 435
 - d. Genetics and Molecular Biology: MICROM 411, MICROM 431, and GENOME 361 or GENOME 371
5. 13 credits of approved electives. See adviser for approved list. Approved electives may include any of the above courses not taken as a distribution requirement.
6. PHYS 114, PHYS 115 (8 credits) (or PHYS 121, PHYS 122) (PHYS 116 or PHYS 123 recommended)
7. Either MATH 112, MATH 124, MATH 144, Q SCI 381, or STAT 311 (5 credits)
8. BIOC 405, BIOC 406 (6 credits) (or BIOC 440, BIOC 441, BIOC 442)
9. For all required and elective microbiology courses used toward graduation, a minimum 2.25 cumulative GPA and a minimum grade of 1.8 in each course.
10. Transfer students must complete at least 20 of the required and elective microbiology credits at the UW.

Continuation Policy

All students must make satisfactory academic progress in the major. Failure to do so results in probation, which can lead to dismissal from the major. For the complete continuation policy, contact the departmental adviser or refer to the department website.

Minor

Minor Requirements: 30 credits as follows:

1. 15 credits in biology and chemistry (BIOL 200 or BIOL 161-BIOL 162 or equivalent; CHEM 237 or CHEM 220, CHEM 221, or equivalent)
2. 15 credits in 400-level, graded microbiology courses, including at least one lab course (MICROM 402 or MICROM 431 or MICROM 443; MICROM 302 also acceptable), and both MICROM 410 and MICROM 496.

3. Minimum cumulative 2.00 GPA for all courses counted toward the minor.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The department's objective is to provide a major with the best instruction possible in broad areas of microbiology so students qualify for a wide variety of positions with a terminal BS degree or qualify to pursue advanced degrees in graduate or professional schools.

Microbiology offers students an excellent education in the biology of microorganisms, namely bacteria, fungi, protozoa, and viruses. Through learning about the biology of these microorganisms and viruses, students more fully understand the pivotal position they occupy in establishing and maintaining our biosphere, their effects on human, animal, and plant life, and how the biological properties of certain microbes are exploited for certain purposes. Microorganisms are important in drinking water, wastewater and sewage treatment, production and spoilage of foods, production of antibiotics, bioremediation of toxic compounds, and genetic engineering of organisms having unique characteristics. Students gain insight into strategies used by microorganisms and viruses to cause disease and the mechanisms used by their host to defend themselves.

Graduates have found research positions in biotechnology and pharmaceutical companies, as well as in state and government positions hiring microbiologists. Students interested in a health profession or graduate program benefit from this program.

- Instructional and Research Facilities: Microbiology courses are taught using state-of-the-art facilities in the teaching wing of the Health Sciences building. Research labs are located in the Health Sciences, Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, NW Regional Primate Research Center, and UW Rosen building.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: MICROM 499, undergraduate laboratory research, is offered for credit. See adviser for details.
- Department Scholarships: The department offers four awards each year. More information is available at the department's Website.
- Student Organizations/Associations: The Microphiles Club is open to all students. The club sponsors field trips to local biotech companies, speakers on topics such as research and career opportunities, graduate school, and peer teaching.

Music

102 Music

The mission of the School of Music is creation, discovery, preservation, and transmission of a wide and diverse range of music from across time and place. Students, faculty, and staff of the School of Music work together to expand the frontiers of artistic knowledge through the creative processes of performance, composition, and scholarly research.

The School's faculty includes leading performers, composers, and scholars. Renowned guest artists and scholars regularly perform and teach. Through its instructional offerings, the School of Music provides opportunities for all UW students to explore the role of music in cultures of the world -- past, present, and future. The School teaches students to think creatively and critically. The faculty provides professional training to musical performers, composers, and academic scholars. The School's ultimate goal is to inspire students to reach the highest standards and ideals of excellence in both artistic and scholarly endeavors.

The School is a vital part of the artistic and scholarly life of the UW and plays a prominent role in Seattle and greater Pacific Northwest music and art communities. The School also offers each year over 100 public concerts of music spanning more than a millennium, with offerings that extend across many cultures.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

musicadv@uw.edu

The School of Music offers the following programs of study:

- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in music (plus music history option; voice option; instrumental track; early music option; music theory option)
- The Bachelor of Music degree with a major in composition, piano, string instruments, voice, organ, orchestral instruments, guitar, jazz studies, percussion (with options in orchestral percussion and in contemporary percussion and mallet keyboard), and music education; and an option in music history.
- The Bachelor of Arts degree with a major in ethnomusicology.
- A minor in music

Information Applicable to All Music Majors

Department Admission Requirements

All students must participate in an entrance audition and qualify at the MUSAP 320 level or better in their principal performance areas to be admitted as music majors and to receive private instruction. Check department website for entrance audition dates. Major status in performance areas is accorded when, after admission to the College of Arts and Sciences is acknowledged and the required School of Music audition is successfully completed, the student commences applied-music study in a performance medium (e.g., voice) with an approved faculty member of the School of Music. In music history, music education and composition, additional entrance requirements apply.

All music programs require instruction on an instrument. Auditions into freshman-level applied-music instruction (private lessons) are based on the assumption that a student's background includes four to eight years of private study on an instrument. Completion of a further two years of college-level private instruction does not automatically guarantee entry at the junior level of private instruction; placement is determined by an audition.

Most degree programs in the School of Music require one to two years of basic piano, to be completed during the course of study at the University.

Pre-Core Preparation

In preparation for beginning the music core coursework, all students must be evaluated by placement test to determine their levels in music theory and music history. Students who have minimal background in these areas may be required to take MUSIC 113/MUSIC 119 and MUSIC 120 before beginning the music core.

Transfer students who have had at least two quarters of music theory or music history are evaluated by a faculty member the quarter they are admitted to their program.

Music Core Requirements

The music core (36 credits), required in each of the undergraduate program tracks, is as follows: MUSIC 201/MUSIC 204, MUSIC 202/MUSIC 205, MUSIC 203/MUSIC 206; MUSIC 301/MUSIC 304, MUSIC 302/MUSIC 305, MUSIC 303/MUSIC 306; MUHST 210, MUHST 211, MUHST 212; at least 3 credits from among MUSIC 250, MUSIC 316, MUSIC 317, or any 400-level ethnomusicology course.

Grade Requirements

Undergraduate music majors are required to earn a minimum 2.0 grade in each course (core and elective) counted toward music major requirements. An overall 2.50 minimum GPA in music coursework is required for graduation.

Bachelor of Arts

Bachelor of Arts (with a major in ethnomusicology)

The BA degree with a major in ethnomusicology emphasizes the study of music as culture as well as art. Students may be admitted to the degree program on the basis of a written application. Course requirements include selected courses in the School of Music's core curriculum, ethnomusicology courses encompassing diverse repertoires and topics, several interdisciplinary courses including at least one in socio-cultural anthropology, world music performance study, and a capstone senior project. In addition to the ethnomusicology major requirements, students must also complete the general education requirements for the College of Arts and Sciences.

Admission Requirements

Admission is competitive. Students must have a minimum 3.0 grade in either MUSIC 316 or MUSIC 317, a minimum 2.0 grade in each MUSIC course taken, and a minimum 2.50 cumulative GPA to apply. Admission is based on student's transcripts, musical ability, and statement of purpose, which should explain the student's interest in ethnomusicology and potential areas of specialization.

Major Requirements

57-73 credits

- 1. Core Courses (39-45 credits): Minimum 2.00 cumulative GPA in MUSIC 201, MUSIC 202, MUSIC 203, MUSIC 204, MUSIC 205, MUSIC 206, MUSIC 316, MUSIC 317, MUSIC 499 (5 credits), and minimum six quarters of MUSAP 389 (12-18 credits)
- 2. Ethnomusicology Electives (9-15 credits): Minimum three 400-level ethnomusicology courses from approved list
- 3. Sociocultural Anthropology Elective (3 credits): Minimum one sociocultural anthropology course from approved list
- 4. Interdisciplinary Electives (6-10 credits): Minimum two interdisciplinary electives from approved list
- 5. Minimum 2.00 cumulative GPA in courses applied to the major

Academic Options

Music History

Admission Requirements: In addition to the admission requirements for all music majors, shown above, formal application to the music history division, to include verified completion of music core, 3.00 GPA in music core courses, 3.00 overall GPA, and a writing sample. Completion of minimum entrance requirements does not guarantee admission. The program of study and preparation of the senior thesis is developed in consultation with a music history faculty adviser. Students who intend to pursue graduate studies are strongly advised to establish proficiency in German or French and to acquire some acquaintance with one or two additional foreign languages.

Major Requirements: 135 credits as follows: Music core (36 credits) plus 6 credits of 300-level MUHST electives; 36 credits of 400-level MUSIC or MUHST (minimum 12 courses); a 3-credit 400-level course in ethnomusicology; 3 credits of MUSIC 498; 18 credits of MUSAP applied instruction (3 years); 9 credits of MUSEN ensembles; and 24 credits of music electives.

Minor

Minor Requirements: Minimum 25 credits of music courses (MUSIC, MUHST, MUSEN, MUSAP, or MUSED prefixes). Maximum 10 credits at the 100 level, minimum 15 credits at the 200 level or above including:

- At least 4 credits from courses dealing with the elements of music (chosen from MUSIC 116, MUSIC 117, MUSIC 118, MUSIC 113/MUSIC 119, or MUSIC 120).
- 5 credits from courses for non-majors that focus on a particular music area (MUSIC 121, MUSIC 122, MUSIC 160, MUSIC 162, MUSIC 316, MUSIC 317, MUSIC 318, MUSIC 319, MUSIC 331).

- Maximum 10 transfer credits (including maximum 5 transfer credits in performance lessons and ensembles) may count toward the minor.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Instructional and Research Facilities:* None.
- Honors Options Available:* With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning:* None.
- Department Scholarships:* None.
- Student Organizations/Associations:*
 - Music Student Association (MSA):* A group of undergraduate and graduate students from various divisions of the School of Music, working to foster a stronger sense of professional community, serve the larger cultural community, and build practical tools for encouraging and promoting student musicians' endeavors. For more information, contact sonare@uw.edu.
 - Ethnomusicology Student Association:* A student association which deals with the concerns of the ethnomusicology division, as well as meeting socially. For further information, contact the division at 206-543-0949 or 64 Music Building.
 - Music Educators National Conference (MENC):* A local chapter of this national scholarly organization of music educators is directly involved in annual state and regional meetings and events. Contact Professor Patricia Campbell (pcamp@uw.edu) for further details.

Continuation of Major Status

Performance studies should begin after audition and acceptance, and continue each subsequent quarter of registration until the minimum program requirements for applied-music lessons have been met. Applied-music study should continue as long as the student is registered and in residence until the final approved recital is given. In order to retain major standing, the student must make and demonstrate consistent and acceptable progress at the annual required jury. Concurrent enrollment or participation in at least one School of Music ensemble is required during each quarter in which a student receives MUSAP (applied-music) instruction, at the 300 level and above, except for MUSAP 389/589. Also, basic piano proficiency is required for all majors. Non-keyboard majors must enroll in the MUSAP 133/235 series until appropriate proficiency is attained. Any departure from the above requirements must have the recommendation of the appropriate program chair and the written consent of the Director of the School of Music.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

musicadv@uw.edu

Graduate programs in the School of Music take into consideration the dual nature of music's subject matter. First, it is one of the creative arts, requiring constant renewal through the efforts of composers, performers, and teachers. Second, it is a branch of the humanities, subject to scholarly study and interpretation of its theoretical concepts and historical development. Each degree focuses on one of these areas.

Master of Music or Doctor of Musical Arts

- Choral conducting
- Composition
- Instrumental conducting
- Jazz studies and improvised music
- Opera production
- Performance piano, organ, harpsichord, voice, strings, brass, woodwinds, percussion, harp

Master of Arts or Doctor of Philosophy

- Ethnomusicology
- Music education
- Music history
- Music theory

Master of Arts

Admission Requirements

- A baccalaureate degree from an accredited U.S. institution or its equivalent from a foreign institution. Performance programs expect that applicants have a bachelor's degree in music or the equivalent experience and training in the field.
- Minimum GPA of 3.00 or B average in the most recent two years of study.
- Scores from the Graduate Record Exam (GRE), unless the applicant holds an earned doctorate from an accredited institution
- International Applicants:* International applicants whose native language is not English are required to submit scores from the Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL). Scores must be less than two years old. Minimum scores is 90.

Degree Requirements

45 credits minimum, as follows:

- 45 credits as specified for the student's particular degree program; of these, 18 credits must be numerically graded and 18 credits must be at the 500-level
- Proficiency in a foreign language as required by the degree program
- Thesis, as required by the degree program
- All work for the degree completed within six years, to include applicable work transferred from other institutions (max. 6 credits transferable) and time spent on leave.

Master of Music

Near Eastern Languages and Civilization

229 Denny

Near Eastern languages and civilization focuses on the languages and civilizations of the Near East with an emphasis on the ancient and medieval roots of these civilizations as well as more recent cultural developments. Each language offered represents a major literary tradition. Arabic, Persian, Turkish, and Central Asian Turkic are the languages of the most significant literary manifestations of Islamic civilization. Hebrew and Aramaic are the languages of the Bible and are central to Judaism and Jewish culture. Egyptian languages (Coptic, hieroglyphic) and other Mesopotamian and Mediterranean languages (Akkadian, Ugaritic, Phoenician) are important to the ancient and Christian cultures of the Near East. These languages are taught in conjunction with courses on the social, cultural, and religious history of the Near East, providing students with a broad understanding and solid foundation for more advanced studies or professional career development.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: The NELC undergraduate degree offers a liberal arts education with a particular focus on the study of cultures and languages of the Near East and Central Asia. Educational outcomes from this degree serve a broad spectrum of undergraduates, ranging from those intending to begin the acquisition of specific linguistic and cultural proficiencies for the purpose of pursuing some career, academic or otherwise, related to these regions, to students for whom the Near East and/or Central Asia are regions with histories and cultures that are of special intellectual or personal interest. Students often combine Near Eastern studies as a double major with some other degree program that may be in a quite different discipline. For these students the NELC undergraduate major offers the important opportunity, as a core element in a broader liberal arts education, for expanding their cultural vision and understanding in ways made possible only through serious study of a language and literature other than one's own. Graduates from the BA degree have followed a wide range of post-baccalaureate paths, including further graduate study in the humanities or social sciences, professional degree programs in law or medicine, and employment with government or non-governmental organizations.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: The department draws on collections of books, serials, and other resources in the UW libraries that are unusually rich in the quantity and quality of items relating to Near Eastern and Central Asian languages and cultures. Students in the department's language classes make use of the University's well-equipped Language Learning Center.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors core curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.

- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: Undergraduate research is carried out under the supervision of faculty members. Students can also undertake research and internship opportunities while studying abroad.
- Department Scholarships: See departmental website for most current information.
- Student Organizations/Associations: There are no formal student organizations in the department, but the department frequently sponsors educational and cultural events organized by students and faculty involved in interest groups such as the Central Asian Circle or the Persian Circle.

GRADUATE PROGRAM

Master of Arts

The Department of Near Eastern Languages and Civilization offers a graduate program of studies leading to the master of arts degree. The program is designed to provide students with advanced training in at least one Near Eastern language and in a specific field of specialization. Students may concentrate in Arabic, Hebrew, Persian, Turkish, or Central Asian Turkic and may choose as their field of specialization a civilization or literature related to their language of concentration. The program is intended not only for those students who wish to continue their studies at the doctoral level but also for students who wish to pursue careers in government or business.

Admission Requirements

1. Statement of purpose
2. Sample of written academic work
3. Three letters of recommendation, of which at least two must attest to scholarly ability
4. Official transcripts from all collegiate institutions attended
5. Although knowledge of a Near Eastern language is not a prerequisite for admission, applicants are generally expected to have had the equivalent of two years' study of the language in which they plan to concentrate.

Doctor of Philosophy

Some department faculty are part of an interdisciplinary faculty group which offers doctoral study in Near and Middle Eastern studies. The program is located administratively within the Graduate School. See the Interdisciplinary Graduate Degree Programs section of this catalog.

Summer Programs

The department offers summer intensive language programs in Arabic, Hebrew, and Central Asian languages (Uzbek, Kazakh, Tajik, and others).

Research Facilities

The University of Washington libraries hold an extensive collection of books and materials in the languages of the Near East, the Turkic regions of Central Asia, and in European languages on Near Eastern and Central Asian Turkic subjects. Candidates for the master's degree as well as doctoral students find in the collection adequate resources for their research. The library participated in the Library of Congress Middle East Cooperative program for the acquisition of Arabic serials, and the Library of Congress Cooperative program for Pakistan for the purchase of Persian books and serials. The library staff includes Near East and Central Asia specialists responsible for acquiring and cataloging the collection. The library maintains book exchanges with the Central Asian republics, handled through the Near East and Slavic sections of the University's Suzzallo Library, some exchanges beginning as early as 1961. Among its staff are an exchange librarian and a specialist trained in Central Asian Turkic languages. A book exchange with Xinjiang is administered through the East Asia Library.

Financial Aid

A limited number of teaching assistantships are available for graduate students in the department who are fluent in speaking and writing a Near Eastern language. A limited number of graduate fellowships are also available.

Exchange Agreements

The department participates actively in exchange programs involving institutions abroad, sending students for language and cultural study and research to a variety of locations, and training many students from institutions overseas. Students take advantage of existing formal UW exchange agreements with several universities in North Africa and the Middle East, such as American University in Cairo; Al-Akhawayn University in Ifrane, Morocco; Yarmouk University and Mu'tah University in Jordan; American University in Beirut; Hebrew University in Jerusalem; and Bogazici University in Istanbul. There have also been department-level exchange agreements with Xinjiang University in Urumchi, China (for Uighur, Kazakh, Kirghiz), or institutions in Central Asia such as Tashkent State University, the Humanities University of Bishkek, Kyrgyzstan, or Kyrgyz State National University, Bishkek. NELC students also study at other institutions in which there are not currently formal exchanges, such as the University of Damascus (for the study of Arabic and related subjects).

Examines discourses developed on polytheistic and monotheistic religions, imperial and nationalist social systems, and ideological frameworks, such as Orientalism. Offered: jointly with JSIS A 491.

NEAR E 496 Advanced Studies in Near Eastern Languages and Civilization (3-5, max. 15) VLPA/I&S Offered occasionally by visitors or resident faculty. Content varies.

NEAR E 498 Senior Essay (5) VLPA/I&S Supervised individual research and writing of a major paper during the senior year. Offered: AWSp.

NEAR E 499 Undergraduate Research (1-6, max. 18)

NEAR E 510 Middle East Through Cinema (3, max. 12) Analyzes the function of cinema in shaping communal and individual identities in Middle Eastern cultures. Examines topics including religious transformation, violence, identity, gender, immigration, and exile through film screenings, discussions, and supplementary readings.

NEAR E 511 Digital Media: The Middle East and Central Asia (5) Hands-on, project-based approach to imaging, new media, electronic text, databases, metadata and accessibility, rights management, and other issues central to contemporary humanities research on the Middle East and Central Asia.

NEAR E 515 Islam in Jewish Contexts, Judaism in Muslim Contexts (3) An introduction to the Jewish-Muslim encounter: a look at exchange, symbiosis, liminality, and confrontation between these two kindred religio-cultural systems, from the rise of Islam, to the end of its Classical Age - six centuries wherein the majority of the world's Jews lived among Muslim majorities.

NEAR E 518 Foreign Language Teaching Methodology (2) BrandI Current foreign language teaching methods and approaches. Learning and teaching strategies and techniques for the four skills (reading, writing, speaking, listening) including cultural notions. Current and future trends in pedagogy and technology. Offered: jointly with GERMAN 518/SCAND 518/SLAV 518; A.

NEAR E 520 Prayer and Poetry in the Jewish and Islamic Traditions (5) Examines elements of traditional Jewish and Muslim prayers and worship with poems that draw on those classical sources. Introduces students to the language and practice of prayer for both Jews and Muslims. Examines poets from Europe, the Americas, Israel, and the Islamic world. Taught in English.

NEAR E 521 Research Methods (3) Introduction to research in Islamic civilization. Research methods, primary sources, evidence and documentation, reference works, transliteration systems, scholarly writing style.

NEAR E 524 Islamic Law (2-5) Selected topics in Islamic law that highlight major aspects of Islamic civilization. Offered: jointly with LAW B 556.

NEAR E 533 Islamic Poetry and Poetics (3) Detailed introduction to prosody and rhyme in classical Arabic and Persian, followed by critical analysis of selected texts. Prerequisite: advanced level of Arabic or Persian; recommended: some knowledge of the other language.

NEAR E 535 Language Conflict and Identity in the Middle East and North Africa (5) VLPA/I&S Explores social and linguistic aspects of the languages and cultures of the Middle East and North Africa, focusing on the relationship between language and national/ethnic identity from the perspective of group conflict. Considers language policies in colonial and post-colonial states, and individual strategies of accommodation and resistance to these policies.

NEAR E 564 Islam and Muslims in China (5) Introduces the lived experiences of Muslims in contemporary China. Examines Muslims' understanding of their faith; the relationship of Islam to the political, economic, and social lives of Muslims; how Islam shapes people's sense of culture and identity; and unity and diversity of various Chinese Muslim communities.

NEAR E 572 Peoples and Cultures of Central and Inner Asia (5) Offered: jointly with ANTH 522/JSIS D 572.

NEAR E 590 Seminar on Near Eastern Civilization and Thought (3-5, max. 30)

NEAR E 591 Methodologies in Near Eastern Studies (5) Investigates prevalent approaches through a survey of scholarship on Near and Middle Eastern civilizations across time periods, cultures, and communities. Examines discourses developed on polytheistic and monotheistic religions, imperial and nationalist social systems, and ideological frameworks, such as Orientalism.

NEAR E 596 Special Studies in Near Eastern Languages and Civilization (3-5, max. 15) Offered occasionally by visitors or resident faculty. Content varies.

Persian

PRSAN 199 Study Abroad (1-15, max. 15) Credit for elementary Persian in an approved Study Abroad program. Requires credit evaluation by department or faculty. Does not automatically apply to major or minor requirements. Offered: AWSpS.

PRSAN 399 Study Abroad (1-15, max. 15) Credit for elementary or intermediate Persian in an approved Study Abroad program. Requires credit evaluation by department or faculty. Does not automatically apply to major or minor requirements. Offered: AWSpS.

PRSAN 401 Intensive Elementary Persian (15) Intensive study of grammar with oral and written drills and reading of simple texts. Cannot be taken for credit if PRSAN 411, PRSAN 412, PRSAN 413 previously taken. Offered: S.

PRSAN 402 Intensive Elementary Tajik (15) Intensive study of grammar with oral and written drill and reading of selected texts in Tajik, the literary language spoken and written in the Central Asian Republic of Tajikistan. Offered: S.

PRSAN 404 Intensive Persian for Native Speakers (15) VLPA Enables students with a degree of proficiency in spoken Persian to read and write, to translate rudimentary texts, and to conceptualize the use of the formal style of composition. Reading, writing, and comprehension, particularly of handwritten manuscripts of the scribal tradition. Also covers calligraphy, translation, journalistic prose, and other facets of the language and the script. Offered: S.

PRSAN 411 Elementary Persian (5) Conversation, pronunciation, and graded reading. Persian alphabet and basic sentence constructions. Offers rudimentary conversational and reading ability with a vocabulary of about two thousand words. First in a sequence of three.

PRSAN 412 Elementary Persian (5) Conversation, pronunciation, and graded reading. Persian alphabet and basic sentence constructions. Offers rudimentary conversational and reading ability with a vocabulary of about two thousand words. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: PRSAN 411.

PRSAN 413 Elementary Persian (5) Conversation, pronunciation, and graded reading. Persian alphabet and basic sentence constructions. Offers rudimentary conversational and reading ability with a vocabulary of about two thousand words. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: PRSAN 412.

PRSAN 421 Intermediate Persian (5) VLPA Reading of simple texts with emphasis on reading and writing, conversation skills, grammar, and syntax. Builds a vocabulary of standard Persian in preparation for advanced reading and comprehension of literary texts. First in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: either PRSAN 401 or PRSAN 413.

PRSAN 422 Intermediate Persian (5) VLPA Reading of simple texts with emphasis on reading and writing, conversation skills, grammar, and syntax. Builds a vocabulary of standard Persian in preparation for advanced reading and comprehension of literary texts. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: PRSAN 421.

PRSAN 423 Intermediate Persian (5) VLPA Reading of simple texts with emphasis on reading and writing, conversation skills, grammar, and syntax. Builds a vocabulary of standard Persian in preparation for advanced reading and comprehension of literary texts. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: PRSAN 422.

PRSAN 451 Introduction to Persian Literature (3) VLPA Selected texts from modern and classical Persian poetry and prose. Provides insights into Iranian culture and its past and present achievements in literature. Prepares the student for a more comprehensive and critical study of Persian literature. Prerequisite: PRSAN 423.

PRSAN 452 Modern Persian Literature: A Survey (3) VLPA Development of poetry and prose after Iran felt and absorbed the impact of Western cultures. Periods and genres. Works of such authors as Jamalzadeh, Hedayat, Dehkoda, Al-e Ahmad, Nima, Sepehri, and Forugh. Prerequisite: PRSAN 423.

PRSAN 453 Classical Persian Literature: A Survey (3) VLPA History of Persian literature from Rudaki to Hafiz. Studies epic, lyric, and mystic traditions placed in historical settings. Covers the most important genres such as the Qasida, the Ghazal, the Ruba'i and the Masnavi. Prerequisite: PRSAN 423.

PRSAN 454 The Epic Tradition in Iran (3) VLPA Focuses on the Shahnameh of Firdawsi: explores the ancient legends that gave rise to it and follows the fortunes of epic poetry after Firdawsi, touching on the rise, development, and decline of romance in classical Persian literature. Prerequisite: PRSAN 433.

PRSAN 455 The Persian Ghazal (3) VLPA The Ghazal as the leading medium for lyrical expression in classical Persian tradition. Follows this genre from conception to culmination in the poetry of Hafiz. Conventions and devices of the Ghazal. Development placed in historical and social context. Prerequisite: PRSAN 433.

PRSAN 456 Sufism: Thought and Expression (3) VLPA/I&S Dynamics of mystical thought and expression as evolved in the writings of the great Sufi masters and reflected in the poetry of Sana'i, Attar, Rumi, and others. The fundamental unity of the mystical vision, with special attention to the peculiarities of individual style and expression. Prerequisite: PRSAN 433.

PRSAN 490 Supervised Study (1-6, max. 18) Special work in literary texts for graduates and undergraduates. Prerequisite: PRSAN 423.

PRSAN 496 Special Studies in Persian (3-5, max. 15) VLPA Topics vary.

PRSAN 499 Undergraduate Research (1-6, max. 18)

PRSAN 596 Special Studies in Persian (3-5, max. 15) Topics vary.

TKIC 199 Study Abroad (1-15, max. 15) Credit for elementary Turkic in an approved Study Abroad program. Requires credit evaluation by department or faculty. Does not automatically apply to major or minor requirements. Offered: AWSpS.

TKIC 399 Study Abroad (1-15, max. 15) Credit for elementary or intermediate Turkic in an approved Study Abroad program. Requires credit evaluation by department or faculty. Does not automatically apply to major or minor requirements. Offered: AWSpS.

TKIC 401 Intensive Elementary Uzbek (15) Intensive study of grammar, with oral and written drill and reading of simple texts in Uzbek. Covers first-year Uzbek. Cannot be taken for credit if TKIC 411, TKIC 412, TKIC 413 taken. Offered: S.

TKIC 402 Intensive Elementary Kazak (15) Intensive study of grammar, with oral and written drill and reading of simple texts in Kazak. Covers first-year Kazak. Cannot be taken for credit if TKIC 414, TKIC 415, TKIC 416 taken. Offered: S.

TKIC 403 Intensive Elementary Kirghiz (15) Intensive study of grammar with oral and written drill of selected texts. Offered: S.

TKIC 404 Intensive Intermediate Uzbek (15) VLPA Allows students to complete second-year Uzbek in one quarter. Reading of selected texts in Uzbek, with continuing emphasis on oral and written practice, grammar, and advanced readings. Cannot be taken for credit if TKIC 421, TKIC 422, TKIC 423 taken. Prerequisite: either TKIC 401 or TKIC 413. Offered: S.

TKIC 405 Intensive Intermediate Kazak (15) VLPA Allows students to complete second-year Kazak in one quarter. Reading of selected texts in modern literary Kazak, with emphasis on grammar, syntax, and oral practice. Prerequisite: either TKIC 402 or TKIC 416. Offered: S.

TKIC 406 Intensive Advanced Uzbek (15) VLPA Advanced-level instruction in speaking, writing, reading, and listening skills. Students work independently on translation projects. Emphasis on extensive writing practices in Uzbek and student participation in an Uzbek email conversation circle. Prerequisite: TKIC 423. Offered: S.

TKIC 407 Intensive Elementary Uyghur (15) Covers all four linguistic skills: reading, writing, speaking, and listening. Offered: S.

TKIC 411 Elementary Uzbek (5) Introduction to the modern written and spoken language. Cannot be taken for credit if TKIC 401 taken. First in a sequence of three.

TKIC 412 Elementary Uzbek (5) Introduction to the modern written and spoken language. Cannot be taken for credit if TKIC 401 taken. Second in a sequence of three.

TKIC 413 Elementary Uzbek (5) Introduction to the modern written and spoken language. Cannot be taken for credit if TKIC 401 taken. Third in a sequence of three.

TKIC 414 Elementary Kazak (5) Emphasizes the four basic language skills: listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Covers basic Kazak grammar and introduces some aspect of Kazak culture. Cannot be taken for credit if TKIC 402 taken. First in a sequence of three.

TKIC 415 Elementary Kazak (5) Emphasizes the four basic language skills: listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Covers basic Kazak grammar and introduces some aspect of Kazak culture. Cannot be taken for credit if TKIC 402 taken. Second in a sequence of three.

TKIC 416 Elementary Kazak (5) Emphasizes the four basic language skills: listening, speaking, reading, and writing. Covers basic Kazak grammar and introduces some aspect of Kazak culture. Cannot be taken for credit if TKIC 402 taken. Third in a sequence of three.

TKIC 417 Introduction to Uyghur (5) Designed for students with no prior knowledge of Uyghur. Includes acquisition of Uighur Arabic alphabet, general phonological rules, and basic grammar. Basic reading, listening, and oral comprehension practice all offered throughout the course. First in a sequence of three. Offered: A.

TKIC 418 Elementary Uyghur (5) Continuation of basic modern Uyghur: phonological rules, grammar, and vocabulary. Practice in reading, listening, and oral comprehension.

Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKIC 417. Offered: W.

TKIC 419 Elementary Uyghur (5) Continuation of basic modern Uyghur: phonological rules, grammar, and vocabulary. Practice in reading, listening, and oral comprehension. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKIC 418. Offered: Sp.

TKIC 421 Intermediate Uzbek (3) VLPA Continuation of elementary Uzbek. Oral work, grammar, and readings in Uzbek literature. First in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: either TKIC 401 or TKIC 413.

TKIC 422 Intermediate Uzbek (3) VLPA Continuation of elementary Uzbek. Oral work, grammar, and readings in Uzbek literature. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKIC 421.

TKIC 423 Intermediate Uzbek (3) VLPA Continuation of elementary Uzbek. Oral work, grammar, and readings in Uzbek literature. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKIC 422.

TKIC 427 Intermediate Uyghur (5) VLPA Second-year Uyghur. Includes reading, translation, oral comprehension, and composition. First in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKIC 419. Offered: A.

TKIC 428 Intermediate Uyghur (5) VLPA Second-year Uyghur. Includes reading, translation, oral comprehension, and composition. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKIC 427. Offered: W.

TKIC 429 Intermediate Uyghur (5) VLPA Second-year Uyghur. Includes reading, translation, oral comprehension, and composition. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKIC 428. Offered: Sp.

TKIC 437 Advanced Uyghur (3-5) VLPA Focuses on reading, writing, translation, and oral comprehension at an advanced level. Students gain fluency in order to work in social and scientific environments where only the Uyghur language is used. First in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKIC 429. Offered: A.

TKIC 438 Advanced Uyghur (3-5) VLPA Focuses on reading, writing, translation, and oral comprehension at an advanced level. Students gain fluency in order to work in social and scientific environments where only the Uyghur language is used. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKIC 437. Offered: W.

TKIC 439 Advanced Uyghur (3-5) VLPA Focuses on reading, writing, translation, and oral comprehension at an advanced level. Students gain fluency in order to work in social and scientific environments where only the Uyghur language is used. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKIC 438. Offered: Sp.

TKIC 451 Introduction to Turkic Studies (3) VLPA Bibliography, problems, and methods of research in the field of Turkic studies for advanced students of Turkish/Turkic languages, including readings in those languages on the languages, literatures, and ethnography of past and present Turkic peoples.

TKIC 454 Introduction to Uzbek Literature (3) VLPA Readings from selected Uzbek writers. Content varies.

TKIC 455 Introduction to Uzbek Literature (3) VLPA Readings from selected Uzbek writers. Content varies.

TKIC 456 Introduction to Uzbek Literature (3) VLPA Readings from selected Uzbek writers. Content varies.

TKIC 490 Supervised Study (1-6, max. 18) Special work in literary texts for graduates and undergraduates. Prerequisite: either TKIC 404, TKIC 405, or TKIC 423.

TKIC 496 Special Studies in Turkic Languages (3-5, max. 15) VLPA Topics vary.

TKIC 499 Undergraduate Research (3-5, max. 15) For Turkic language and literature majors.

TKIC 542 Comparative and Historical Grammar of Turkic Languages (3) Classification of the Turkic languages; alphabets used; phonology, morphology, and syntax; lexical composition; structure-changing developments. Prerequisite: TKIC 404.

TKIC 543 Comparative and Historical Grammar of Turkic Languages (3) Classification of the Turkic languages; alphabets used; phonology, morphology, and syntax; lexical composition; structure-changing developments. Prerequisite: TKIC 404.

TKIC 546 Old Turkic (3) Introduction to Runic script; phonology, morphology, and syntax of the oldest form of Turkic; reading and translation of eighth-century inscriptions of historical and literary importance. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

TKIC 547 Old Uyghur (3) Introduction to script systems; phonology, morphology, and syntax. Reading and translation of mainly Buddhist texts in Uyghur script, eighth through eleventh centuries. Prerequisite: background in a Turkic language, or permission of instructor.

TKIC 561 Middle Turkic (3) Introduction to the phonology, morphology, and syntax of the Middle Turkic languages; reading and translation of texts in Karakhanid, Khorazmian Turkic, Kipchak, and Chagatai. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

TKIC 562 Middle Turkic (3) Introduction to the phonology, morphology, and syntax of the Middle Turkic languages; reading and translation of texts in Karakhanid, Khorazmian Turkic, Kipchak, and Chagatai. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

TKIC 563 Seminar on Turkic Literature (5) Topics in oral and written literature. Prerequisite: permission of instructor.

TKIC 596 Special Studies in Turkic Languages (3-5, max. 15) Topics vary.

TKISH 399 Study Abroad (1-15, max. 15) Credit for elementary or intermediate Turkish in an approved Study Abroad program. Requires credit evaluation by department or faculty. Does not automatically apply to major or minor requirements. Offered: AWSpS.

TKISH 401 Intensive Elementary Turkish (15) Introduces modern Turkish. Focuses on pronunciation and conversation; grammar and composition; and graded reading. Uses Latin characters throughout. Cannot be taken for credit if credit earned in TKISH 411, TKISH 412, and TKISH 413. Offered: S.

TKISH 411 Elementary Turkish (5) Introduction to modern Turkish. Pronunciation and conversation, grammar and composition, graded reading. Latin characters used throughout. First in a sequence of three.

TKISH 412 Elementary Turkish (5) Introduction to modern Turkish. Pronunciation and conversation, grammar and composition, graded reading. Latin characters used throughout. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKISH 411.

TKISH 413 Elementary Turkish (5) Introduction to modern Turkish. Pronunciation and conversation, grammar and composition, graded reading. Latin characters used throughout. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKISH 412.

TKISH 421 Intermediate Turkish (5) VLPA Introduction to modern Turkish literature. First in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKISH 413.

TKISH 422 Intermediate Turkish (5) VLPA Introduction to modern Turkish literature. Second in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKISH 421.

TKISH 423 Intermediate Turkish (5) VLPA Introduction to modern Turkish literature. Third in a sequence of three. Prerequisite: TKISH 422.

TKISH 451 Readings in Turkish Literary History I: Modern (3) VLPA The development of modern Turkish literature and its ties to, and divergence from, the Ottoman tradition. Readings in modern and Tanzimat poetry, short story, drama, and novel.

TKISH 452 Readings in Turkish Literary History II: Literature of the Ottoman Empire (3) VLPA The parallel development of the classical high-culture literature and the popular literatures of the Ottoman Empire. Readings in poetry, history, travel-literature, drama, and popular narrative forms. Prerequisite: TKISH 423.

TKISH 453 Ottoman Travelers and Geography (3) VLPA Introduction to the geographic literature of Ottoman Turkish: readings from traditional cosmographies, travel journals, sailing instructions (portulans), ambassadorial and secret service reports. Prerequisite: TKISH 456.

TKISH 454 Turkish Literary Genres: Prose (3) VLPA Major genres, styles, and themes of Turkish art-prose from Ottoman times to present; creation of stylistic and critical norms. Prerequisite: TKISH 423.

TKISH 455 Turkish Literary Genres: Poetry (3) VLPA Poetic traditions of Turkey with a focus on the development of peculiarly Turkish aspects of style and structure. Social functions of poetry and the poetic milieu. Prerequisite: TKISH 423.

TKISH 456 Introduction to Ottoman Turkish (3) VLPA Introduction to Turkish in Arabic characters to cover the peculiar grammatical and syntactical problems of Ottoman.

TKISH 490 Supervised Study (1-6, max. 18) Special work in literary texts for graduates and undergraduates. Prerequisite: TKISH 423.

TKISH 496 Special Studies in Turkish (3-5, max. 15) VLPA Topics vary.

Neurobiology

318 Hitchcock

Neurobiology offers students an intense introduction to the study of nervous systems. Faculty in both the College of Arts and Sciences and the School of Medicine teach courses in the major. Students study the cellular and molecular properties of single nerve cells and the connections among them and learn how these properties determine animal behavior and human disease.

UNDERGRADUATE PROGRAM

Adviser

318 Hitchcock, Box 355320

(206) 616-3982

The Neurobiology Program offers the following program of study:

- The Bachelor of Science degree with a major in neurobiology

Bachelor of Science

Program Admission Requirements

1. BIOL 180, BIOL 200, BIOL 220, with minimum 2.0 grade in each
2. Completion of most supporting coursework in physics, math, and chemistry recommended (see specific course lists, below), with minimum 2.50 GPA in any such work completed at time of application
3. Admission is competitive; meeting minimum standards guarantees consideration but not acceptance. Early application is encouraged and may increase chances for acceptance. Since the program uses rolling admission, there is no specific deadline for applying. See adviser for details about applying.

Major Requirements

Minimum 86 credits, as follows:

1. Supporting Coursework (minimum 48 credits):
 - a. Chemistry: Pathway 1 -- CHEM 120, CHEM 220, CHEM 221; Pathway 2 (recommended) -- CHEM 142, CHEM 152, CHEM 162 (or CHEM 145, CHEM 155, CHEM 165); and CHEM 223, CHEM 224 (or CHEM 237, CHEM 238, CHEM 239) (or CHEM 335, CHEM 336, CHEM 337) (labs not required) (15 - 27 credits)

- b. Physics: Pathway 1 - PHYS 114, PHYS 115; Pathway 2 (recommended) - PHYS 121, PHYS 122. (8 to 10 credits)
 - c. Mathematics: Two quarters of calculus (MATH 124, MATH 125, or MATH 144, MATH 145, or Q SCI 291, Q SCI 292) (10 credits)
 - d. Introductory Biology (minimum 15 credits): BIOL 180, BIOL 200, BIOL 220 (15 credits)
2. Introduction to Neurobiology (10 credits): NBIO 301, NBIO 302.
 3. Advanced Courses in Neurobiology (12 credits): NBIO 401, NBIO 402, NBIO 403, NBIO 404.
 4. Electives: Minimum 16 credits from a wide variety of 400-level courses in the biological sciences. See adviser for list of courses. Courses not listed may be allowed with permission of program director. Students may apply up to 7 credits of undergraduate research toward the 16 elective credits.

Student Outcomes and Opportunities

- Learning Objectives and Expected Outcomes: Throughout the core sequence of neurobiology, students gain a deep understanding of the basic concepts of nervous system function and learn many of the basic techniques used to study nerve cells. Students also learn how to analyze neurophysiological data, and compose and present results. Graduates pursue careers in medicine, public health, education, pharmaceutical sales, computing, and graduate study.
- Instructional and Research Facilities: Laboratories are required with introductory courses. (NBIO 301 and NBIO 302). The program offers state-of-the-art facilities and equipment for each course.
- Honors Options Available: With College Honors (Completion of Honors Core Curriculum and Departmental Honors); With Honors (Completion of Departmental Honors requirements in the major). See adviser for requirements.
- Research, Internships, and Service Learning: Most neurobiology students participate in undergraduate research with faculty from both the College of Arts and Sciences and the School of Medicine.
- Program Scholarships: None offered.
- Student Organizations/Associations: Beta Beta Beta, the honor society for biological study; Alpha Epsilon Delta, the national premedical honorary society.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS

See page 5 for an explanation of course numbers, symbols, and abbreviations. For complete undergraduate course descriptions, see the online course catalog at uw.edu/students/crsat/

NBIO 301 Introduction to Cellular and Molecular Neurobiology (5) NW Moody Introduces students to the physiological and molecular properties of individual nerve cells and the synaptic connections between them, and to principles of nervous system development. Includes weekly laboratory sessions. Prerequisite: BIOL 220. Offered: W.

NBIO 302 Introduction to Systems and Behavioral Neurobiology (3/5) NW M. BOSMA, J. SISNEROS Introduces neuroethology, i.e., the mechanisms by which neurons and the synaptic connections among them produce sensory perceptions and complex behavioral outputs. Available with or without weekly laboratory sessions. Prerequisite: NBIO 301. Offered: A.

NBIO 303 Neuronal Coding and Computation (1-3) Introduces computational neuroscience, focusing on concepts that are related to neuronal and synaptic biophysics. Works through mathematical concepts and methods to describe neuronal dynamics, and introduce methods to analyze and characterize neural coding. Uses Matlab as a programming language to implement models or neuronal dynamics to perform data analysis. Prerequisite: MATH 125. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: W.

NBIO 401 Systems Neurobiology (3) NW Robinson Introduces students to the anatomical and physiological organization of the major sensory, motor, and associative systems of the mammalian brain. Behavioral data used to stress functional integration of systems. Includes gross brain anatomy demonstration and computer tutorials. Prerequisite: NBIO 302. Offered: Sp.

NBIO 402 Diseases of the Nervous System (3) NW Froener, Horwitz Introduces the basic mechanisms of mammalian nervous system function through the study of human neurological diseases that result from specific disruption of neuronal signaling. Prerequisite: NBIO 401. Offered: W.

NBIO 403 Systems and Behavioral Neurobiology (3) NW Kim Topics include information processing in sensory and motor systems, sensory-motor integration, learning, and memory. Using examples from the field of neuroethology, encourages students to work independently on problems taken from the recent neurobiological research literature. Prerequisite: NBIO 401. Offered: W.

NBIO 404 Neuropharmacology (3) NW Stella Actions of drugs on the brain at clinical, cellular, and molecular levels. Therapeutic use of drugs in treatment of neurological and psychiatric diseases. Abuse of drugs and the mechanisms of addiction, tolerance, and withdrawal. Prerequisite: NBIO 401. Offered: Sp.

NBIO 440 Topics in Current Neurobiology Research (2, max. 6) NW Prerequisite: NBIO 302. Credit/no-credit only.

NBIO 450 Current Research Literature in Neurobiology (2, max. 6) NW Weekly journal club in neurobiology. Students read and discuss original research articles in neurobiology, centered around a specific topic each quarter. Prerequisite: BIOL 220. Credit/no-credit only.

NBIO 496 Peer Teaching Facilitator in Neurobiology (5, max. 10) M. KENNEDY For undergraduates assisting in Neurobiology courses as facilitators. Peer Facilitators assist with laboratories, attend lectures, and attend weekly course meetings, gaining direct course experience. Does not include independent teaching or grading. Credit/no-credit only. Offered: AW.

NBIO 499 Individual Research in Neurobiology (3-6, max. 18) Students carry out projects in laboratories of program faculty. Prerequisite: NBIO 302.
